10,000 spectators expected

Gala fireworks show on tap at Causeway

BY BOB FRYER

Approximately 10,000 persons are expected to flock to the Jensen Beach Causeway and line the Indian River for the annual Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Fourth of July fireworks show Friday evening.

The show is billed as one of the best on the entire East Coast and attracts visitors from throughout the state as well as many Northern tourists.

This year's show will feature a number of ground displays as well as hundreds of aerial fireworks that can be seen for miles. Ground displays this year include a firetruck, firemen and a house on fire, a turtle, an American Flag, a giant wheel and a UFO display. The show will be capped with a 210-shot finale guaranteed to draw lots of oohs and ahs from the spectators.

The show will cost the Chamber of Commerce about $5,000, and thanks to the work of local volunteer firemen who have made many of the fireworks, it should rival shows costing much more than that.

The show will begin at dusk, around 9 p.m., and last about two hours.

Fourth of July activities at the causeway will begin much sooner in the day, however at noon, the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club and Jensen Beach Moose Lodge will begin serving food from their concession stands on the causeway. At 1 p.m. there will be a flag raising ceremony by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 10066 of Jensen Beach.

The Jensen Beach Lions Club will sponsor foot races for children at 1:30 p.m. and 2 p.m. The causeway bridge spans will be raised and will remain up until the fireworks show ends. Motorists planning trips to or from Hutchinson Island will have to use the Stuart causeway while the draw spans are up.

The Jensen Beach Optimist Club will sponsor a watermelon eating contest at 3 p.m.

The Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor it's annual popular attraction, a greased pole climb, at 5 p.m.

The Martin County Sheriff's Department will beef up patrols to handle the large crowd of spectors, and as many pedestrians will be walking along Indian River Drive during the show, Motorists are asked to be especially careful and to use patience when caught in traffic jams.

Anyone wishing to make donations to the fireworks fund can do so by making checks payable to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Fireworks Fund and mailing it to the chamber office at 1910 N.E. Commercial St., Jensen Beach, Fla. 33457.

$1,800 still needed for fireworks show

Donations to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Fireworks Fund have been coming in at a little quicker pace in the last week than in previous ones, but the fund is still about $1,800 short of its $5,000 goal.

Each year the Chamber sponsors a gala fireworks show on July 4th that has earned the reputation as one of the best on the entire East Coast. It is expected to attract about 10,000 spectators this year.

The show costs the Chamber about $5,000, and would cost even more if it weren't for the work of local volunteer firemen who make many of the fireworks displays.

Donations for this year's fund had been coming in slow, but Chamber executive director Dennis Doyle reported Tuesday that the pace of donations has quickened. "We have about $3,200 so far and need $1,800 more," he said.

Doyle noted that several sizable donations have been received. They include a $500 donation from the Jensen Beach Bank, $250 from Ralph Evinrude, $250 from Frances Langford Evinrude, $110 from the Stuart Rotary Club, $100 from Porter Lumber Company, and $100 from the Jensen Beach Animal Hospital.

"We are most grateful for these donations and hope they will serve as an example for others to follow," Doyle said.

What's open, closed on July Fourth

If you're planning a picnic for the Fourth of July, you won't have to worry about finding a food store open, but you'd better plan ahead so you'll have some cash for your food purchase.

A survey of local banks and food stores shows that most all food stores will be open on the Fourth of July, and all banks will be closed.

The Jensen Beach Bank, American Bank of Martin County, Stuart National Bank and First National Bank and Trust Company are all closing for Independence Day. At First National, all offices will remain open until 6 p.m. on Thursday, July 3, and all branch offices will be open for normal Saturday business hours, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., on July 5th.

Stuart National is also keeping all of its offices open until 6 p.m. on Thursday, July 3, and its branch offices will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, July 5.

Publix Supermarket will be closed on July 4th, but all other area food stores will be open on that day. The Winn Dixie stores will stay open until 7 p.m. on Independence Day, while hours will be the same as usual at Sureway, Grand Union, Cumberland Farms, Lil General, Lil Saints and 7-11 stores.

All county and state offices, except for those handling law enforcement and emergencies, will be closed on the Fourth of July. The Post Office will also be closed on that day, but there will be regular mail delivery on Saturday, July 5.

Wilkie named coordinator

Jensen disaster plan evolving

BY DICK CAMPBELL

Bill Jackson got part of what he came for, though he faced sometimes hostile questioning at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce forum Tuesday.

Jackson, chairman of the Red Cross disaster preparedness committee, came to Jensen Beach to explain that there was no shelter plan for a disaster, due to lack of response of the community.

"We have four shelters, the elementary school, Community Church, Presbyterian Church and the Baptist Church (in Jensen Beach). We can will have the field house at Langford Park.

There are approximately 26,000 persons in the area. There is no way to service that many people," Jackson said.

He added, "We need buildings and we need people to volunteer."

The volunteer chairman said the most important thing he needed was a coordinator for the Jensen Beach area. He got one immediately as Jensen Volunteer Fire Department Chief Joe Luciano said that Deputy Chief Don Wilkie had volunteered to be the coordinator for the area.

Wilkie is a long-time volunteer fireman, a past president of the Chamber of Commerce and an active civic leader.

Luciano, however, was critical of the Red Cross program, saying either the fire department or the chamber of commerce had been contacted for shelter ideas.

Jackson retorted that he and his assistant, Betty DeStefano, had been assigned to their post during the hurricane in September, and were, as volunteers, just trying to plan disaster preparedness for the entire county.

"Indiantown and Hobe Sound hollered the loudest, and they have a program. Now I hope that Jensen Beach hollers the loudest so we can get a program here," Jackson said.

Jackson outlined the requirements for a shelter, saying that the construction would have to be approved for shelter by the county engineer and a contract signed for use during a disaster.

He warned that the shelters would not just be needed for hurricanes.

"The train wreck two weeks ago could have been much more serious. If toxic chemicals had spilled, or if explosives had been aboard the twenty cars that left the tracks, we might have had to evacuate the area. We should have been prepared. Trains transport chemicals and explosives through Martin County every week," he said.

He also said that if there was an accident at the nuclear power plant, people would have to be sheltered twenty miles away from the plant, with only one shelter, south of Hobe Sound, in the needed range. He added that he was negotiating with Palm Beach County to get shelters, but would need local volunteers to man the shelters down there.

Jackson explained that the shelter problem was the only part of the disaster plan that the Red Cross handled, referring some of the questions as the responsibility of the Martin County Civil Defense.

Some Jensen merchants were obviously upset over the fact that Red Cross had no plan for Jensen, but Jackson said he and DeStefano were only two volunteers working to set up the program.

He said that with the acquisition of 20 new first aid shelter kits, the county could have 47 shelters equipped. The problem is finding the buildings and the volunteers to man each shelter.

"When I came down to handle the hurricane in September, one shelter had no Red Cross personnel and didn't know where to get food. Then, there were no certified shelter managers. Now there are twelve in the county."

DeStefano explained that the course to become a shelter manager takes just six hours. Each shelter should have eight persons to properly manage the facility.

Jackson suggested that mobile home owners check their tie-downs as he had found some rusted away over the years.

With the concern of the residents of north county shown by the interest in the program, Dennis Doyle, Chamber executive director said that the next forum, to be held August 5, will feature the remainder of the disaster program. Bill O'Brien, Civil Defense executive, agreed to present the CD plan for the north county at that program.

Sewall's Point votes funding for bike path

BY CATHIE FARAGO

Sewall's Point Commissioners are going to shift town funds in order to complete the proposed Sewall's Point bike path in a shorter period of time than originally scheduled.

At a recent meeting, at which three commissioners were present, it was decided to pull approximately $40,000 from the South River Road project and re-budget funds for that road in the next fiscal year. Originally, the bike path was to be constructed only as far as the town's $10,000 1979-80 fiscal year allotment would take it. Recently however, commissioners have decided that the time element was too lengthy for partial construction, and moved to finish it in one fell swoop.

Former commissioner Robert Russell, who had been working on the South River Road project for quite some time, expressed concern that his long-time accrued $60,000 fund may no longer be available. "Don't steal what I've set aside....We're going to start negotiating next week" for the acquisition of property for the road, he said. Mayor Ed Gluckler's response was, "Bob I don't want to give you heart trouble, but I think we'll go for the whole thing."

Commissioners agreed that approximately $30,000 should be reserved in next year's budget to purchase the needed land right-of-way for the road, and Gluckler thought the town could save enough to proceed with those negotiations directly.

With funds appropriated to the 1.5 mile bike path, the council turned to the question of what company would handle the work. One option was to contract with Martin County for their crews. The county engineer quoted Gluckler an estimate of $8 per linear foot. However, since work on the path could not begin for another three to four months, the offer was rejected.

Others bidding for the three-foot-wide path were: WEL Construction at $8.50 per linear foot, and Gorham Construction Company of Ft. Pierce at $5.46 per linear foot. After considerable discussion, it was decided that the job would be given to Gorham at a total cost of $41,140. The concrete path will run along the west side of Sewall's Point Road north from A1A to the north town line near Florida Institute of Technology, and hopefully will be completed within 60 days. A pre-construction meeting is scheduled between Gluckler, the town engineer, Gorham Construction, and other involved utility firms on Wednesday, July 9.

During the town council meeting, the question arose as to whether or not the proposed bike path should be widened from three feet to four. Originally, Gluckler had attempted to get residents to donate the needed land, but ran into opposition. This forced the town to remain within the 5 foot easement it owned next to the road. Subsequently, some commissioners felt that due to the narrow right of way, a 3 foot path would allow for a better and safer separation between the road. Commissioner Bill Barton felt differently and said, "I would like to see four feet." He contended that the town was inevitably going to grow and that future planning was needed to handle the additional bicyclists and pedestrians. Gluckler argued that, "there's a $14,000 difference" in price between the two widths and again commented on the hazards. By the end of the discussion it was moved and adopted that the three foot wide bike path would stand.

Hopefully, when the path is completed to the north town line limit, Martin County, with the help of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, may extend that path north to the Jensen Beach Causeway.

Also planned in the fall is a referendum for Jensen Beach, Rio, Sewall's Point and Hutchinson Island residents to see if they would be willing to increase their district tax for construction of a bike path network that would service all of the above areas.

FIREWORKS DONATION—The fund for the Fourth of July fireworks show grew $500 richer last week when the Jensen Beach Bank made its contribution to the show. Bank President Ron Mitchell, left, and bank Chairman of the Board Ross Philbrick, center, handed the check over to Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce director Stan Wampler, right, who said, "This is only a small part of what the bank has done for the community. There are a lot of civic projects they have supported and they're always willing to pitch in when we call on them. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Stuart Rotary installs new officers

D. Wade Aycock was installed as president of the Rotary Club of Stuart Wednesday evening by District Governor Paul J. Paprovich, M.D. at the installation of officers and board.

Also installed were Gerald P. Travis, vice president; Howard Shields, treasurer; and Lawrence Crary III, secretary. New directors are Gene Van Curen, Frank Rubino, Richard L. Bohner.

A Paul Harris Fellow medallion and membership was presented to Gale Kiplinger, active in Rotary since 1945.

Charter member and founder of Stuart Rotary, Dr. Ed Mannenger (1929-1980) was saluted for his continuing, active participation in the club's activities.

Outgoing President Carl Metz expressed his appreciation and gratitude to the chairmen and the membership for the deep support during the past year. Plaques were awarded to Secretary Dick Nolan, Gene Van Curen, Jim Rose, Jim Wilson, Tim Tealy and Charles Hawken. The "Stuart Rotary Man of The Year" plaque was awarded to Levi Johnson.

8,421 hours donated at Martin Memorial

Isaacs named district director

At the Florida Association of Court Clerks meeting in Daytona Beach recently, Martin County Clerk of the Circuit Court Lesley C. Isaacs was installed as director of the 4th District for the 1980-81 year.

Isaacs has served as Martin County Clerk since January, 1973. She is also active in the American Judicature Society, the National Association for Court Administration and the International Association of Clerks, Recorders, Election Officials and Treasurers. She is the widow of the late Coy D. Isaacs and the mother of two sons, Kenneth and Dean.

The purposes of the Florida Association of Court Clerks are to assist the clerks of the circuit court, appellate and other trial courts and deputy clerks in improving the professional efficiency of the clerks office in administration and in providing a forum for exchanging ideas for creating better public services; to study procedures, personal management, county finances, reporting, budgeting, auditing and accounting procedures; to secure information on keeping uniform financial records and permissible legal forms and records; to improve the clerks services to the courts.

First Federal of Martin constructs branch

If you happened to be driving down East Ocean Blvd. last Wednesday morning and a building suddenly appeared as if it had been beamed down from space -- don't worry, you haven't been out in the sun too long.

First Federal of Martin County doesn't make promises it can't keep. William T. Wallis, president of Martin County's largest financial institution, has pledged to "make saving quick and easy for all our customers." This pledge is becoming reality as the Savings and Loan's newest branch office is under construction at 2361 S.E. Ocean Blvd., just across from the Ocean East Mall.

First Federal purchased its newest facility from Diebold Corporation in Lake Park. "We married the modules the Rehl Building Corporation of Atlanta," stated Jack Malloy, Diebold sales representative.

"BBC built the units in its Clearwater plant and then shipped them here. From the time they arrive on sight until the time they are secured to the foundation, hooked up and ready to go, you're only talking about [illegible] hours."

Manley & Son Construction, Inc. of Miami laid the concrete foundation. Mullins, Inc. of Fort Pierce brought in a 65-ton crane to lift the 25,000 pound modules into place, and a few hours later, a 988 square-foot building stood where only an empty space had been.

First Federal's newest office will offer all the same services now available at the main office on U.S. No. 1 in Stuart. The East Ocean Blvd. branch will include a two-lane drive-in facility, as well as a night depository and will be open for business from 9 a.m. through 3 p.m., Monday through Thursday and from 9 a.m. through 6 p.m. Friday.

The building is a steel structure that comes with light fixtures, ceramic tile, wall coverings, air-conditioning and a teller counter. BBC has delivered more than 200 to Florida financial institutions, but his is the first in either Martin or St. Lucie counties.

In addition to Mosley, local companies involved with preparing the new building for occupancy include: Alpine Electric, Inc., Norton Plumbing Services, E.W.K. Paving & Contracting and Melweb Signs, Inc.

According to Malloy, the East Ocean Blvd. facility has a built-in capacity for future expansion. "Over one weekend, we can bring in a third section, separate the two that are together now, slip the new one into the middle and add 528 square feet."

The main office of First Federal Savings of Martin County is located at 980 South U.S. No. 1 in Stuart, and full-service offices are situated in the de la Bahia Plaza on Monterey Road, in Jensen Beach, Hobe Sound, Indiantown and Okeechobee.

The seventh First Federal office on East Ocean Blvd. is scheduled to open August 1.

Venture Three

VENTURE HARBOUR

A letter from Lois and Jack Elliott in Canada says Jack is feeling fine and is off his medicine for the time being. Their temperature, according to the letter, is in the low 40s, and Lois says clothes are so expensive there that she is going to get sewing and put the knowledge she gained here in sewing class to good use. She is planting her garden, but next year they will stay home later.

The Wierckes and Morgans are back in New Jersey. Bud and Yvonne will be off to Canada in their Mini-home to visit the Rawdings from Venture Three at St. Lucie.

VENTURE OUT AT ST. LUCIE

Curt and Arlene Galough of Endicott, N.Y. (Lot 747) with their grandson, Scott, from California are here for a three week vacation getting acquainted with their new southern home. Chuck and Barbara Robertson are spending some time on their Lot 728. They plan an interlude on a trip to the British Isles in July. Both of these teacher couples are enthusiastic about retirement in Venture Three in the future years. The Galoughs will have Curt's parents using their lot and trailer during the winter months.

Potluck Supper was a success again this past week. Hosts were Ray and Valerie Dombrowski with Betty Davis and Grace Murphy assisting. Ray and Val will be in the park off and on from this autumn on.

A letter from Tony and Edna Ortalani, who are summering in their trailer in the Catskills, are enjoying the country atmosphere. Edna has planted a vegetable garden, they plan to return to Venture Three in September.

'Sunkink' in rail is blamed for 20-car FEC train wreck

BY BOB FRYER

A combination of hot sun and an improperly seated balast holding down a rail are suspected as the cause of the 20-car Florida East Coast Railway train derailment in Jensen Beach on June 17th.

Ray Wykoff, senior vice president of FEC operations, said Tuesday morning, "It appears we had a sunkink in the rail, due to the heat."

He explained that because of the heat from the sun, the rail on a curved section of track about a quarter mile south of the Skyline Drive crossing expanded, causing the derailment.

There were no injuries as a result of the train wreck and there was only minimal damage to personal property. The cars in the northbound freight train were empty when the derailment occurred.

"The rail expanded and had to relieve itself somewhere. The ties held the rail in place and we had serviced the track about a week earlier. It's possible the balast hadn't seated properly," he said.

When asked if this was a common problem on hot summer days, Wykoff said, "This sort of thing is not common, but it's not unheard of either."

Witnesses said the train was moving fast when the derailment occurred.

Two days later, after a temporary track was laid next to the wreckage of the first accident, two more train cars left the track. One car, carrying two semi truck trailers, went off the rails along the temporary track, and a boxcar left the track about 100 yards north of the Skyline Drive crossing, on a section of track not damaged by the first derailment. In between the two derailed cars were several tanker cars. It took about four hours to get the two cars back on the track.

When asked the cause of the second derailment, Wykoff said, "This was a temporary, run-around track and train speeds were restricted to five miles per hour. We had people stationed along the track to watch for just this sort of thing. When you have a temporary operation, there is always the possibility of something like this happening."

During the week and a half after the first derailment, FEC workers worked long hours to clean up the wreckage and to install a new section of track. As this work took place, long trains moved slowed over the temporary track, causing lengthy delays for motorists at railroad crossings. Last Thursday, repairs were completed and trains started moving through town at their normal pace again.

Martin Ham Radio Club has field day

A nationwide ham radio operator's field day was held last weekend, and Martin County Amateur Radio Club took part in the two day exercise.

Forty ham operators took part in the test of emergency radio communications at a campsite off SR 76, southwest of Stuart. A total of 22 operators were on the radio equipment.

William Jochimsen, a member of the club, reported that the operators contacted 1,664 stations throughout the country during the two day test.

"We wanted to see if the radios and generators worked for a long period of time under emergency conditions," Jochimsen said.

ANTENNA—Ed Lindberg and ham club president Al Gryder installed the radio operator antenna for the ham radio field day last weekend.

Turtle watches cancelled for July 4 and 5

Due to the Independence Day holiday weekend, the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce turtle watches will be cancelled for Friday, July 4, and Saturday, July 5.

There will be a turtle watch on Thursday, July 3, and the normal schedule of watches each Thursday, Friday and Saturday will resume on the July 10-12 weekend and continue for the July 17-19 and July 24-26 weekends.

The Naturalist Society of the Jensen Beach campus of Florida Institute of Technology is supplying guides for the watches, and Society president Larry Vogel says there have been good-sized crowds for most watches so far. He said some persons on all-terrain-vehicles came riding down the beach last Saturday and apparently frightened some turtles away, but said on most nights, turtles have been spotted. "Most people seem to understand that they may have to wait and walk some to see a turtle. For the most part the spectators are cooperative," he said.

The Naturalist Society has had some turtle-watch t-shirts made and will use proceeds from sales of the shirts for Society projects.

Vogel said t-shirts can be purchased at the Chamber of Commerce building, at the Turtle Crossing clothes store and at the Village Corner, all on Commercial Street in Jensen Beach.

The t-shirts will also be on sale at a booth on the Jensen Causeway during Fourth of July activities. The booth will also contain photos of nesting sea turtles, and brochures on the turtle watches will be available at the booth.

If you haven't signed up to participate in a turtle watch, you can do so at the booth on the causeway or by calling the Chamber office at 334-3444.

Vogel said that for awhile the guides were setting different times for the turtle watchers to meet, based on tide calculations. However, he said it appears the turtles come ashore to nest during most any time of the night, so future watches will commence at the Jensen Public Beach at 9:30 p.m.

Call letters approved for IRCC

A new sound will be wafting through the area this Fall as Indian River Community College begins broadcasting from its new FM radio station, WQCS, 88.3 on the dial.

The station's format will include classical music, nostalgia and jazz, news and public affairs programming, and sports.

The call letters, WQCS, were suggested by the college and approved by the Federal Communications Commission to stand for Quad-County Service, since it is the four-county district area served by IRCC.

Heading up the new station will be Pat Hazel, who brings a wealth of radio experience to WQCS. A 30-year resident of Vero Beach, Hazel worked for 18 years with WTZB in Vero Beach, nine of those years as general manager of the station.

Now available at IRCC through the new FM station are broadcasting classes for students interested in communications careers. Beginning Fall Term, 1980, students may enroll in "Introduction to Broadcasting," a basic theory course designed to serve as a prerequisite to three other lecture courses and two practicum classes to be offered Spring Term, 1981. The practicums will include actual work experience at the radio station.

"I think that the station will definitely fill a need in our area," Hazel commented. "And it's interesting to note that the FM station is only one part of the total cultural experience soon to be available to everyone in our four counties at the brand new McAlpin Fine Arts Center on campus."

To occupy the second floor of the unique theater-music department building nearing completion on the east side of the IRCC Main Campus, WQCS "will play an important role in the college's aim to enrich the quality of life here in the Treasure Coast area," remarked IRCC president Herman A. Heise.

Sen. Lewis to be here July 8

State Senator Philip D. Lewis (D-West Palm Beach) will visit with residents and citizens of Martin, St. Lucie and Indian River Counties on Tuesday, July 8, to hear complaints and discuss legislative issues.

Senator Lewis, president of the Florida Senate, will answer questions on the recent legislative sessions and added he would be available to listen to problems of residents in his district. The Senator has made periodic visits to determine what his constituents are thinking.

In Fort Pierce he will be available from 11:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., in room 102 of the Administrative Building, 2300 Virginia Avenue.

In Martin County the meeting will be in the conference room, suite 1, Martin County Administrative Center in Stuart, from 2:00 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Two share top at Sandpiper

Posting totals of two under par 70, Sandy Sharlau and Steve Cunningham shared top honors and cash in the Pro-Am event held at the 18 hole championship Saints course at Sandpiper Bay with 72 golfers competing.

Cunningham's scoring paced his three amateur partners to first place in the Two Best of Foursome event. The father-son combo of Stuart's Jack Carmody Sr. and Jr. were included on the winning combo together with Dennis Von Aldenbrook. The team finished at 122, twenty-two under par.

Like Cunningham and the other pros who competed in the contest, Sandy Sharlau is getting his game down to the finer points in readiness for the Florida Open which gets under way at both the Saints and Sinner's Courses July 10 to 13. Sharlau's sub par round led his three amateur partners to second place in the team event, only one shot off the winning score, posting 21 under par 123. Amateurs were Lou Merland, Carl Affrey and Bill Walton.

The Gower brothers, Dave of Mid Rivers CC and Dan of Martin County Golf brought their respective teams into a third place tie of 125. Amateurs included Ed McGavock, Tony Franza, Bill Kerwin, Joe Chappelle, Ray Knight and Harold Goldman.

Jay Pyle of Crane Creek carded one under par 71 for third place among the pros while a pair of Sandpiper assistants Bruce Harrison and Greg Cerulli closed out the day at even par 72.

The next Pro Am will be at Mariners Sand, Stuart, July 18.

ORCHID ANNEX—Richmond Lee has so many orchid plants that it takes a "suburbs" to house them all in. Above, he is seen with some of the spillover from the large orchid house. Flowers of all types surround the small Lee home.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES

Assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Peg Ray

Holiday Outlines by Ruth Bowes assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Peggy Ray

We wish all a Happy Fourth. We know there will be lots of fun and family get-togethers. We will have two families here for a week's vacation, the Bob Longs, Bob Royals and mother Helen Allison.

One of the early owners, T. Adams, has sold his lot. Their trailer was moved away this week; it had been here since 1967. We always hate to see old friends move away.

All our street lights are being upgraded to give us better lighting. Bath houses No. 1 and No. 3 are completed. All shower floors have been refurbished. Palm tree cutting has started in the North End.

The mixed team of H.Out bowling at Jensen Lanes, won 3 out of four points on Wed night.

Bob and Betty Leister have two granddaughters, Kim and Kris Hosfeld from Philadelphia, Pa., visiting for a week. They keep Betty busy at the surf and pool — and riding in the electric cart.

Al & Peg Ray entertained guests on their patio Monday night. Celebrating two events, one their 46th Anniversary, the other the installation of a Kitchenmaster which fits on the sink in place of the faucets. It saves water, soap and time. Bob & Ethel Shilborn, Lester & Catty Ullmann and Bertha Ouellette were guests.

The following send regards to friends here in the Park. Marion and Bob Holden have been very busy since returning to Mass. They are visiting the Clingers this past week while at a campground in Meredith, N.H. Leaving there they will be their way to Madison, Maine to visit their son and family, before taking off for Alaska in mid-July. Already they are looking to return here to H.Out.

Edna and Gordon Emaus are busy entertaining and being entertained while catching up with their activities up north.

Millie & Frank Pier are still in N.Jersey, their first stop on their California trip. They ran into George and Ruth Leonard while in the vicinity of Crestwood Village.

Marion & George Madaus are back in the swing at Cape Cod and have been getting together with the "Cape Cod'y Holiday Outers" for pot luck cookouts.

Lena & Bob Black are waiting for the weather to warm up so they can start enjoying the lake again. In the meantime Lena is busy with her Bocce League. She also has found time to join the ladies auxiliary of the Elks.

Bertha & Roy Lamon attended a high school re-union, and enjoyed visiting with old classmates. They say that the weather is great in Mass. with warm days & cold nights.

Ruth & George Leonard spent five days at So. Fallsburg, N.Y. and reported that food and activities were great.

Kay & Ray Johnson spent a very enjoyable five day bus trip to Shilburne, Vt. They stayed at the Black Bear Inn on a mountain summit where the days were nice, nights cool and much fine food.

Saturday night found six of our H.Outers enjoying dinner at the Elks — the Wes Arbo's, Jack McConnel's, and Les Ullmann's. They were joined by Joe & Josie Arena, formerly of H.Out, who had six guests from Tall Pines with them.

Myrtle Ehlenger writes that she loved her trip home via auto train, and has been busy visiting relations. She is trying to find some time for her flower gardens in between trips.

Anniversaries Congratulations— Doris & Harry Berglund 7-5, Edna & Gordon Emaus, Marion & Geo Madaus 7-7, Catty & Lester Ullmann, Marie & Walter Vallery 7-9.

Happy Birthday Wishes— Juna Carleton, Linda Allen, Robert Wiley, Art Smith, Patrick Magrino 7-4, Eleanor Quaderer, Marie Gramstorf 7-5, Marge Bower 7-6, Ruth Donk Pauline Niman, Haden Steen 7-7 Fredrick Quaderer 7-7, Florenc Levine, Mac McCabe, Mildren Pier 7-9 Jack Jr. McConnell, Charles Blak 7-10.

Ruth Bowes enjoyed a wonderfu birthday on Sunday. After church she was treated to a dinner out and received a lovely bouquet of home grown red roses from a friend and many cards, thanks.

Dee and Morrie Brink sent a beautiful postcard picturing the Trollfjord in Norway where they are aboard a cruise ship on a twelve day cruise in the "Land of the Midnight Sun".

Before embarking aboard ship they took an extensive tour of the Scandinavian countries. Evening at the Tivoli Gardens in Copenhagen was "magic" with twinkling lights. At the city of Randers on Jutland peninsula of Denmark, they were lucky enough to see a stork nest and a stork — a rare sight!

From Randers they ferried to Gotenburg, Sweden and thence to Oslo. At Oslo they boarded a train for one of the most spectacular train rides in all of Europe. The train stops frequently at the most beautiful spots enroute to enable passengers to disembark in order to take photographs.

The Brinks interrupted the full journey in order to visit Myrdal. From there they took a narrow gauge railroad to Flama the most picturesque village on the famous Bogne fjord. Then a three hour cruise on the fjord to Gudeingen and a bus to Vosse and to Ulvik which is a quaint village on the Hardanjer fjord completely surrounded by mountain peaks covered with snow.

Lilacs, poppies, roses and geraniums greeted them at every stop, the weather was cool and delightful — a wonderful trip.

Mildred and Leo Stall had Marian and Pat Kime visit them at their home in Hamburg, N.Y. for a few happy days.

A more venturesome recent visitor was Stall's two year old grandson Michael, who decided to taste a caterpillar, said "yuck," shivered and quickly spit it out!

Lois and Dale Foster gave a farewell bar-be-que on Sunday afternoon for the Austin Williams and Frank Wehlages who are leaving soon for summer vacations. The Williams are headed for New York State and the Wehlages for Camp Le Jeune N.C., to visit their grandson Tim who is stationed there.

Dot and Audley Browne wrote on June 21st, from Garden City, Kansas enroute to Colorado. As they go farther west they see many more people traveling, most of them in motorhomes but a few still towing trailers. They all admit that it is very expensive to do so but are trying to get one last trip in. Gas prices are less than they are in Florida, $1.12 to $1.19 generally. The weather so far on their trip has been beautiful, warm days and delightfully cool nights.

HANDSOME HANDFUL—These fuscia beauties are of the Aerades Herman Slade variety of orchid, so named because of the man who developed the strain. The tender plants are nurtured in a covered "rain forest" simulating the natural conditions under which they grow in nature.

Orchidist has 15,000 varieties

Some people raise their pets.

Richmond Lee of Oaklane Drive grows his.

Lee, on his small residential tract bff 707, has a carefully nurtured "stable" of some 1,500 orchid plants, all of different varieties. To him, each one has a different name and a different nature.

It takes a careful eye and a green thumb to become an orchidist. Each month, he takes the catalogue put out by the American Orchid Society to check the latest developments and hybridizations which are carefully registered and named.

And they are legion.

"There are 3,000 native species, and scores more are developed every month," he said. Keeping up with those developments takes the eye of an accountant and the natural touch of the scientist.

In his orchidarium, he hasn't attempted too much hybridization, but he has had a few successes. One was an all-white cattleya, which occurs perhaps once in 10,000 times. The cattleya, one of the most common varieties, are usually tinged with yellow or pink.

Lee's interest in the exotic air-borne posies began approximately 15 years ago, but he's always had a green thumb.

A native of Troy, Ala., he grew up on the family farm.

"When I was in high school, I grew a rose garden that people came from everywhere to see," he recalled for The Mirror.

Lee came to Jensen Beach from Jacksonville in 1956, to take a job with Pratt Whitney. It proved a happy choice in more ways than one.

It was at Pratt Whitney that he met his wife, a sister employee. They found a common interest not only in flowers but in the artistry involved. Mrs. Lee, an artist since childhood, had studied at the Pratt Institute in New York, and is a skilled floral painter.

They make a splendid team — he nurturing his orchids and she taking excellent color photos of them. She is now in the process of handpainting an entire set of Havilland china in an orchid motif.

Lee is an active booster of orchids in the county. He served for two years as president of the Martin County Orchid Society, and is now the American Orchid Society representative to the Martin County Society.

He's not looking for new members, so if you're curious about the difference between a Renentonda Jack Warren and an Ascocenda Yipsumah, give him a call. He'll be happy to show you.

REALTY HYBRID—Richmond Lee stands with one of his prize hybrid orchids, the Renentanda Jack Warren, one of the more recently developed species in his vast collection of exotic plants.

ONE AMONG THOUSANDS—These carefully nrutured tiny orchids bear the name of cymbidium Alofolium, so named because of the plant's leafy resemblance to aloe. Richmond Lee knows the name of every one of his 15,000 varieties of orchids.

Story and photos by Sally Latham

DELICATE SPRAY—The spray of tiny orchids is of the Ascocenda Yipsumah variety, coming from the Pacific islands. Richmond Lee, whose orchidarium contains 15,000 varieties, is a past president of the Martin County Orchid Society.

Jensen Port St. Lucie divers are netted by Marine Patrol

BY BOB FRYER

Florida Marine Patrol officers netted several Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie divers last weekend when the officers arrested 17 persons for illegal diving activities in the vicinity of the St. Lucie inlet jetty and in the Peck's Lake area.

Included among those arrested in the Marine Patrol crackdown were an instructor from the Jensen Beach campus of Florida Institute of Technology and two students from Jensen Beach.

FMP Lt. Boots Byrd said this is the time of year when many divers seem to try getting an early jump on the upcoming lobster season. Consequently, he said this is the time of the year when Marine Patrol officers are out in force to prevent such activities.

The officers even went so far as to go diving themselves to check up on the divers, though all arrests last weekend were made on the surface of the water. Lt. Byrd promised that the officers will be out again this weekend looking for diving infractions.

FIT instructor John Holt, 25, Jensen Beach, was charged with illegal spearfishing near the jetty and bond was set at $42.

Student Gary Luse, 25, of Jensen was charged with spearfishing around the jetty and bond was set at $25, while student Byron Smith, 19, of Jensen was charged with possession of a speared snook and spearfishing around the jetty. His bond totaled $80 and his diving gear, including a polegun, mask, snorkel and flippers, was confiscated.

William Goldsby, 36, Port ST. Lucie, was charged with possession of wrung crawfish (lobster) tails (it is illegal to twist the tails off) and possession of crawfish out of season. He was identified as an employee of the Harbor Branch Foundation, a marine research organization headquartered north of Fort Pierce. His bond totaled $102.

Robert Aylsworth, 35, of Port St. Lucie was charged with having no diver-down flag displayed. His bond was $22.

Others with bonds set at $22 each for displaying no diver-down flag were David Fillar, 25, Bradenton; James Myers, 23, Stuart; Steve Johnson, 21, Pompano Beach; Al Rastrelli, 28, Stuart; Berry Ulic, 30, Port Salerno; Dennis Kellam, 27, Stuart; Jim Smith of Palm City; Jim Franklin, 26, West Palm Beach; and George Parker, 22, of West Palm Beach.

Robert LeFever, 25, and Robert Pogany, both of New Orleans, La., were each charged with possession of crawfish out of season and each had bond set at $104. Joel Moody of West Palm Beach was charged with possession of three speared crawfish and possession of three crawfish out of season. His bond was set at $94.

Arrest records show that on the prior weekend, Marine Patrol officers arrested Frank Blackburger, 18, Port Salerno; Kevin Hilton, 20, Stuart; and Bruce Martin, 31, Port Salerno, for displaying no diver-down flag. Bond was set at $17 each.

Lt. Byrd noted that this is the time of the year when female lobsters will bear eggs, and it is for that reason that the lobster season is closed. There will be a short season, on July 29 and 21, for sport divers only, and during that time the limit will be six lobsters per person, per day. Then the regular season, for commercial and sport lobstering, starts on July 26th. Once that season is opened, the limit is 24 lobsters per boat, per day, unless a $54 commercial license is obtained.

Sport divers are only allowed to take lobsters by hand or bullynet. Spearing is strictly forbidden. Also, lobsters must have a 3-inch carapice, measured from between the two horns on the head to the beginning of the tail, or a 5.5 inch tail. Anything shorter is illegal to take.

Snook are also protected by law. They can not be sold and can only be caught by hook and line. Additionally, fishermen are only allowed to catch four snook per day and all snook caught must be at least 18 inches long or they must be returned to the water. Lt. Byrd said this is the time of year for snook to spawn in waters along the coast.

Marine Patrol Officer Dan Byrd said illegal diving activities happen every year but added, "this time, instead of making spot checks, we just started checking everybody." Though he said not arrests were made underwater this last weekend, he said "we have made underwater arrests in the past."

The area around the jetty at the St. Lucie inlet is off-limits to divers. Lt. Byrd said this is for the protection of the fish and other marine life. He said there are no good diving areas immediately south of the jetty, but said divers to the north of the jetty should not venture any closer to the jetty than about half way between it and the area where Rand's Pier once stood.

IRCC Itinerary

Communication is probably one of the most easily overlooked and most important components in the success of any program, service, course, or event offered at Indian River Community College. To give the greatest possible opportunity to take advantage of the community college, IRCC has recently taken two big steps in communication.

DISPLAY SIGN LIT UP WITH NEWS

The new electronic sign located at the northeast corner of the Main Campus in Fort Pierce is lit. From now on, you will be able to keep up to date on the news at IRCC simply by driving down Virginia Avenue. The sign, is lit up with all sorts of facts and information about IRCC. For those rushing to get to work (or anywhere else) on time, the display will include a convenient time-temperature feature. This Fall, the sign will deliver some information about special events scheduled to take place in the new McAlpin Fine Arts Center on campus.

WQCS - LIVE FROM IRCC

The second new communications tool at IRCC also relates to the McAlpin Fine Arts Center. Located on the second floor of the theater-music department building will be IRCC's own FM radio station, WQCS, 88.3 on the FM dial. The call letters, WQCS, were suggested by the college and approved by the Federal Communications commission to stand for "Quad-County Sterio, emphasizing" the four-county area served by IRCC and the new station.

Pat Hazel, an 18-year veteran of the radio industry, will direct the operation of WQCS, which will broadcast a format of classical music, nostalgia and jazz, news, public affairs programming, and sports beginning by November, 1980.

A series of broadcasting classes will be offered for the first time at IRCC, and some will include actual work at the radio station. The background class, "Introduction to Broadcasting", is scheduled for Fall Term, with three more lecture courses and two labs to follow in the Spring.

More information is available through the IRCC Guidance Office on the Main Campus, ext. 323. IRCC's new FM radio station is only one part of the broad cultural experience soon to be available to area residents through the McAlpin Fine Arts Center.

A COMMUNICATIONS SUCCESS STORY

IRCC has been awarded second place in a recent publications contest. Hours of planning and hard work went into the program for the National Junior College Athletic Association Swimming and Diving Championships held at IRCC last March. Planned and produced by the campus print shop, the athletic department, the college photographer, and the Public Information Office, the program tied for second in the Division C Post-Season Program Category in the annual Collegiate Sports Information Directors Association (CoSIDA) competition.

A hearty "thank you" goes out to all who helped to make this year's NJCAA swim meet program an award-winner. For a copy of the program mailed free of charge, call the IRCC Public Information Office, ext. 408.

MUSIC SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED

Anthony Allo, Chairman of the Fine ARts Department at IRCC, announced that 25 area residents have been awarded music scholarships from IRCC for the upcoming academic year.

Martin County Scholarship winners are: Mark D'Ella, Robert Goodoak, Timothy McKenzie, Brian Phillips, Nancy Babler, Susan Rogers, Scott Smith.

St. Lucie County Schlarship winners are: Michael Hankins, Melinda Hardegree, Leslie Hardman, William Hutchinson, Craig Tucker, and Kevin Hand.

Nergard reception to be July 10

There will be a reception and dinner for State Representative Chuck Nergard at the Port St. Lucie Community Center, West Prima Vista Boulevard in Port St. Lucie on Thursday, July 10, at 6 P.M.

Plans have been made for a social evening with punch, a complete dinner, music and a chance to talk and meet with Chuck Nergard. This will be a relaxed, fun evening with speeches at a minimum.

Interested people are advised to please make plans to attend. Reservations must be made and tickets purchased in advance but no later than Monday, July 7. Tickets are available from Steve Watts 878-5174 and Jack Cullifon 878-1428.

Community pride

We are pleased with the response of citizens to the appeal for help in getting the Jensen Beach Community Center painted.

While a fresh face will not solve the many structural problems in a long range rejuvenation of the center, that fresh face will offer visitors to our community a nicer welcome to Jensen Beach.

There have been donations of paint, labor and money that will help to freshen the center's facade. In the long range plan, designed by architect Phil Braden at no cost, the center will become more attractive for clubs and organizations planning meetings.

The only thing needed to make that plan active is the volunteers and the donations that will spruce up the building. It has been a good beginning.

The time has come for impact fees

Martin and St. Lucie Counties should take immediate steps to bring rational thinking to the issue of impact fees on construction.

Some day someone is going to challenge the inequitable impact fees assessed by regional planning councils on developments of regional impact. When they do, the courts are going to throw out all agreements coerced from major developers.

It is unfortunate that the planning councils do not have jurisdiction over small developments. It seems that the RPCs are doing what the counties should have been doing all along.

5,000 individual builders building one home a year have much more impact than one builder building 5,000 homes over a five year period.

The responsibility lies with the local government. There is impact. One home or 5,000 have proportional impact, and the impact fees should be broad-based to affect all.

The $256 per home that Martin Downs much pass on to the home buyer would be less than half that if all builders were assessed impact fees.

It is only fair that if there is to be an impact fee, that fee should be equal and affect all who build homes.

It is the responsibility of local governments to set such fees, if they are to be levied at all.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

Congratulations on the recent award of THE MIRROR...isn't it wonderful to be considered the BEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER IN FLORIDA! We could have told you this long ago--but having the "Oscar" of your profession is really what counts.

We shall read (and hopefully be included in occasionally) the Best Weekly Newspaper in Florida with pride in the entire staff that made this possible.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

The Fourth of July made history
When the Signers met to enact
The Declaration of Independence,
And our Nation became a Fact.

Two hundred and four years later,
We have met with, and withstood rebuff,
One Nation Indivisible,
Tho the going at times has been tough.

Today, tho the times may be trying,
If we heed what the Signers foresaw,
With Faith in our God and our Country,--
How could we ask for more?

My morning coffee

I usually arise around six in the morning, let the dogs out and crawl into the shower. Following my ablutions, I let the dogs back in, give Bennie his pill, scratch Jocko behind the ear, pour my grapefruit juice and take the vitamins.

The pattern is always the same.

After getting juiced, I walk out the door, and up the stairs. I throw the Post down by the front door and take my Herald to the car. Usually the morning dew has loosened the dust on the car, and so I take the water hose and rinse down the car.

I get in, turn on the stereo and kick out, lighting the first cigarette of the day. It's a nice, sunrise drive to the Village Corner, where I ease into the far-corner table.

I take the plastic wrapper off my newspaper, move the ash tray to the right, adjust the salt and pepper shaker to the right, and pull the spoon from the napkin-wrapped silverware.

My morning coffee then arrives.

I read the Herald from front to back. The waitresses know that they keep pouring coffee until I get to the comics...then I eat my burned whole wheat toast with jelly.

The pattern seldom changes.

While reading there are pleasant interruptions. Someone will drop off a news release, or someone else will give me a tip on a story. Sandy will come by and ask if she can have the day off. I usually give her the day off from managing the restaurant. She seldom takes it.

However, last Monday the day seemed just right. The sun sparkled on the Indian River, and the coffee was hot and rich.

Then Sandy came out of the back and brought with her a bunch of music boxes. She wound one up and it played "If I were a rich man," from Fiddler. Then she wound up a bunch of them and the air was filled with music.

I ignored them, all of them, and kept reading.

Moments later, I saw Sandy bent over back by the john, poking a nail into a door lock on the Men's Room. She couldn't get the door open, so I walked back to help. Using all the mechanical knowledge I have, I prodded into the tiny hole to release the lock.

After five minutes, I gave the nail back to Sandy and went back to my coffee, saying, "Get a screwdriver and take the doorknob off."

Sandy took off the knob, and held it aloft as she worked the door open.

"That's nice," I said, and went back to my Herald.

I got lost in the newspaper, and was just about to the comics when I heard muffled cries for help.

"Help, Dick!" The sounds entered my subconscious.

Salli always complains that I never listen to her. When I am reading, or watching television, I become mentally captivated by the magazine, newspaper or program. I really get into it, and when Salli says something she usually has to say it twice to get my attention.

Remember the story about the mule and the two-by-four? That's me in concentration.

The sounds of "Help, Dick!" began to get my attention, and then I heard the pounding on the door. I looked toward the Men's Room and saw a nail jabbing in and out...coming from inside the john.

Sandy had locked herself in, and with the knob off the door couldn't figure out how to open it.

I sauntered to the door, and said, "Yes?!"

Sandy was half between panic and laughing.

"Open the door. Open the door," she cried.

I took the nail and slid the bolt back and the door opened. Sandy came out with a big smile on her face.

"You ought to get a new doorknob, with a lock you can open," I offered, heading back for my coffee.

I got to the comics and the horoscope before Sandy ventured back into the coffee shop from the back room. She looked a little sheepish. My toast and jelly arrived.

"Sandy, you've had a rough morning. Take the day off," I said.

It was 7:45 as I paid the bill and headed up to the office. Another usual day had begun.

Oops at it again

It's well known that everyone has a guardian angel.

He sits on your shoulder and looks out for the little things that are too trivial to bother Himself about -- like finding parking spaces, getting you in the right line at the bank and in general taking care of you in situations that, left to yourself, could be lethal or at least darned importunate.

The reason some people are "luckier" than others is that their guardian angels are more on the ball and quicker on the draw. I know one gal (Peggy Meissner by name) whose GA never lets her down: the parking place is always there, even in the midst of a convention, that seat on the front row is right where she knew it would be, and in a line, she man in front steps back if he's got a bag-full of checks to deposit. It's nice to go places with Peg and her guardian angel, whom she calls Mark and orders around a lot.

Me, I have a resident gremlin. His name is Oops. And he is on the tip of my tongue approximately fifty percent of the time.

If he were just a nice personal gremlin with no public vendetta, it wouldn't be so bad. I could apologize to people personally and forget about it.

But no. Oops is a show off. He does disgustingly obvious things that show up in public, leaving me holding the bag, with egg all over my face.

Oops first began showing himself in my life at the age of 11, when I was sure I was going to become the great dancer of the age. I'd already become Ruby Keeler in my living room, cavorting weightlessly to the tune of our windup Victorola. A friend, patently impressed by my gyrations, talked me into entering one of those talent contests held every Saturday afternoon at the Arcadia Theatre.

Nervously, I rigged up a costume that I imagined most closely resembled what Ruby would wear, and practiced the Charleston, the black-bottom and all those tricky dances sure to bring me fame and fortune.

Scared to death, that fateful Saturday afternoon, I made my entrance. Five steps into the Charleston, I turned my ankle on my sister's high-heel shoe and got hooked off the stage. Oops had fired his opening gun.

He didn't get any more chances at me in public until I entered the newspaper business, a glaring stage for every boo-boo ever invented.

Early on, as a writer for The Oak Ridger, I was to learn that Oops had personal likes and dislikes. On that paper, it was, of all things, the American Association of University Women. Try as I may, it was impossible for me to get a satisfactory photograph of any of them, individually or collectively.

When they needed a photograph, it got to the point that they'd ask politely "Please don't send Sally Latham. She can't take a picture."

I got a complex about it--began developing cramps or beri-beri every time I saw one of their events coming on. But, I thought, this is a silly phobia, and surely Sal you can do a story about one of them decently.

I blithely accepted an assignment to do a piece about one of their outstanding members, a woman who had taken the job of physical therapist at the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies.

When my page proof came out, I looked over the story carefully: photo OK, cutline OK, names spelled right. I sent it back, satisfied.

The paper rolled, and I felt at peace with the world.

Then the fan got its proverbial dose. The next day, the woman came in, storming. She slammed the paper down on the counter, demanding a retraction of my managing editor.

Bewildered, I went to the counter to ask what was wrong.

She said nothing, but sputtered and pointed to a blackly circled paragraph.

Oops had been at it again. There, before my horrified eyes, was reference to "Miss Blank, the rapist..." Oops had eaten a space in the middle of the word, in its most vulnerable spot.

What brought Oops so sorely back to mind of late was his evident animosity against a beautiful local lady, who has nothing against her except to belong. Mona Delz is a member of the Jensen Beach Woman's Association and of the Rainbow Wheel, and a sweeter little lady the Lord never made.

When oops first reared his ugly head after my arrival in Jensen, I thought he was after the Women's Association in general. I could do nothing right. First, I showed up for a photo assignment on the wrong day. Then, using a borrowed camera, I came up with blank film on a shot of their new officers.

Mona Delz was one of them.

Then I was to discover that Oops was being more selective. I went over to the Elks Club in Stuart to take pictures of the Rainbow Wheel installation, again with a borrowed camera (mine has been pouting at all the wrong times of late.)

I got back to the office and turned the film in. Again, a blank.

Mona Delz had been one of the Rainbow officers. Oops, its seems, is off on another of his one-woman vendettas.

I tried again last week to get that august body of Rainbow Wheelers, at their meeting held at the Holiday Inn on the beach. I haven't seen the film yet, but I'm hoping that Oops got in all his licks in the business of taking it. While I was waiting to take the photos, I was stung by a bee.

And who brushed it off of me?

Mona Delz.

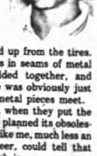
Battling obsolescense



For the last couple of months now, I've been battling planned obsolescence.

The battleground is Rose, my 1964 Rambler American convertible.

My weapons are a drill and wire brushes, sandpaper, body filler, primer and paint, as well as a number of assorted other items.

On the surface, my enemy is rust. Actually, and unfortunately, it goes deeper than that.

Getting at the rust is no easy task, but getting at the cause of it, planned obsolescence, is even harder.

When I bought Rose a couple of years ago, I knew she had some rust, but it didn't look too bad and I figured I'd get to it soon.

But within a month, instead of taking steps to heal my car, I injured her. On a rainy afternoon, I backed out of the parking lot of The Mirror office and hit a telephone pole. Rose took a pretty hard wallop and the pole dented the rear bumper, the truck lid and a body pannel behind the bumper.

I was livid with anger at myself, and made a promise that I would get the damage repaired soon, as well as fix the rust and get a new paint job for Rose.

I did get as far as cutting out some rust on the lower panels behind the back wheels and filling it in with body putty. But months rolled by and I continued to drive around with the bashed in rear-end.

The rust came back in a couple of small places I'd fixed, and I took Rose to a body shop to get an estimate of fixing all the rust, taking all the dents out and painting her. The price was $600.

Since I didn't have $600 to spare, I drove away. But once again promised Rose I'd fix her up, even if I had to do it myself.

A couple of months later, I bought another convertible. It's a 1971 Pontiac LeMans. I named her Louise.

I couldn't afford Louise, but I bought her anyway and figured once I got Rose fixed up, I'd sell Louise. By having Louise to drive around in, it meant I could work on Rose without having to worry about getting her ready for the road at the end of each day of labor.

I replaced the trunk lid and bent rear bumper with ones from a parts car I'd bought about a year ago, and used a sissors jack to push the bent portion of the rear-end back to its original shape. That task proved to be amazingly easy and it gave me incentive to tackle some of the rusted out areas I figured were beyond my abilities.

Progress is slow, because I only get to work on Rose on weekends. But I am making some headway. And, I'm making a lot of discoveries about how cars are put together in the process. In more than a dozen places, I've found holes and cracks and crevices under my car where water could easily get in. And it has.

These open invitations to water, and consequently rust, are not dents from rocks being kicked up from the tires. They are openings in seams of metal not carefully welded together, and holes where there was obviously just no plan to have metal pieces meet.

In other words, when they put the car together, they planned its obsolescence, as any fool like me, much less an alleged car engineer, could tell that water would splash in.

American Motors is not the only car manufacturer to do this. I've found similar flaws in other makes, including a Porsche 914 I once owned. It had a neat little crevice where rain could drip onto the battery, then seep down inside a rocker panel.

I have sealed all the holes I've come across so far, but I have an uneasy feeling I may have missed some and that I'll be battlin rust as long as I own Rose.

If I could, I'd keep her forever. She has an easy-to-work-on, economical six-cylinder engine and, in my biased opinion, attractive body styling. Additionally, she's a convertible, and the joys of driving around with the top down make riding in any hardtop car a ho-hum experience. She is all the car I'd ever want.

I figure I have another couple of months to go before I fix all the dents and rust areas and get Rose ready for her shiny new paint job. But she is such a fine car that I feel the work is worth it.

I just wish American Motors had felt the same way when she was designed and built.

Letter to the editor

To the editor:

A copy of your May 21st edition has been forwarded to The American Legion State Headquarters. On behalf of the 66,000 members of the Florida American Legion I would like to thank you for the recognition you gave to The American Legion's "Open House" Program and the Memorial Day activities. Through the support you have given, the sacrifices made by America's veterans were properly recognized in your community.

We again sincerely thank you for your generous support.

Exchange Club gears up for Great American Raft Race

hen the stouthearted and the hardy combine their imaginations efforts to create something worthy.
es, plans are already underway for 4th Annual Great American Raft e 1980, to be co-sponsored by the t St. Lucie Exchange Club, WVV-FM radio station and Bud-net.
he event will take place at the th Port Marina on Prima Vista d. in Port St. Lucie on September lthough it is rather early to be rming potential spectators of a pening that is rather early to be rming potential spectators of a pening that is to take place three ths from now, this is just about time when would-be Port St. Lucie ors take to their backyards with a mer, nails, tubes by fours and a ch of innertubes.

hey 'resemble latter-day Noahs ding sometimes sea-worthy struc-s that are revered in this town ost to the same degree as the lical ark itself.
or those new residents who will be nessing this phenomenon for the t time this year — the friends and ghbors you see compulsively mering away are merely prepar-for the Great American Raft Race in annual city-wide celebration in t St. Lucie.
ll races will start and finish in the th Fork of the St. Lucie River at North Port Marina. "Park and " bus service will again be vided to and from the marina. is in past years, food, music ovided by WOVV disc jockeys) and ecially beer will be plentiful at the 's events.
he new feature this year will be a ni contest, as well as other penings that come loosely under category "fun and games."
nyone, including clubs, businesses, anizations, individuals or groups, welcome to enter the raft races, ch have been broken into six upings.
he first category, innertubes, sists solely of tubes from a icle's tire. They may be hand, foot canoe paddled only. Single tubes sport only one crew member, le multiple tube crafts can have an limited crew. No platforms are wed in this category.
n the canoe division, conventional -person undecked canoes are uired, with no more than two crew mbers paddling. This class will be ivided to include: men, women, ed, over-55 and expert (open to ons who belong to a canoe racing ciation or have participated in a tioned canoe race.)
he "new" category this year will be rfboards. This class will be ted to conventional boards paddled by hand and foot only — no paddles or fins may be used.

The real creative genius of Port St. Lucie surfaces in the raft division, however. This consists of homemade crafts propelled solely by canoe paddles, oars or poles and constructed of non-marine type materials. The minimum crew is four, the maximum six.

The unlimited raft division brings forth even more complicated and deviously engineered vessels, as they may be constructed with any materials, propelled by any form of human-powered device, except oars or canoe paddles. Required crew number is the same as the standard raft division.

Finally, raft race organizers have designated "miscellaneous" as the final catch-all category for entries that do not fall into any of the other more specific division.

The rules for all divisions include that no craft be powered by any form of combustion engine or electric motor, unless the electricity is provided by hand. Only canoes and surfboards may use a premanufactured hull, although unlimited rafts and miscellaneous may "vaguely" resemble a boat. Square sails may be used in any category.

Awards will reportedly be given to the first, second and third craft to finish the race in each division, as well as special awards for unsinkable tub, effort and futility.

Exchange Club member Bill LoBrutto, who is working actively to organize the 1980 race predicted that this year should enjoy the biggest turnout ever.

Any interested party, courageous or foolish enough to consider entering the 1980 Great American Raft Race can obtain a registration form by writing the Port St. Lucie Exchange Club, in care of 8028 South U.S. 1, Port St. Lucie, Fla. 33452.

As in past years, the major portion of funds raised from the race will be donated to United Way.

HOPE FOR HEALTH
Keys to Good Health Naturally

By Dr.Jack L.Webb

Many people suffering from backaches for which no physical cause can be found actually have a treatable malfunction of the sacroiliac joint.

Patients of chronic low back pain are told that the doctor can find nothing physically wrong and to learn to live with the condition.

Inflammation occurs as a result of joint dysfunction.

We look for the following clues as part of our differential diagnosis: Pain and stiffness are especially bad in the early morning or after sitting or lying still for a while. The discomfort usually improves after the patient moves about, and may completely disappear as the day progresses.

These joints must stand a great deal of stress, more than any other body joints, due to the weight of the body.

If the diagnosis is missed, permanent disability can be the end result.

Examination can detect most sacroiliac problems.

Here's one way to stop passing the buck.

Buck-a-gallon gasoline. It's a reality. And they say it's going to get worse. For most of us, this means changing our driving habits. The less you drive, the more you save.

We can help. Our new Gas-Miser Program is a package of services that can eliminate dozens of trips to the bank. The program includes direct deposit of regular payments, such as Social Security and stock dividends; telephone transfers of money from checking to savings, and vice versa; deposits by mail to checking and savings (we pay the postage both ways) and more.

Our trained personnel have all the Gas Miser details. They'll help you stop passing the buck for non-essential driving.

The Gas-Miser Program: fewer trips to the bank; more to where you need or want to go. Become a Gas Miser at any office of Stuart National or Port Salerno National Banks.

Everything on the line at Hutchinson plant

The Florida Power and Light Nuclear Plant's valve woes were solved and the plant is now back on the line, according to Harry Schindehette, FPL manager for St. Lucie County.

The plant began producing power at 2:20 p.m. Monday, after having been shut down since June 11.

The valve problem necessitating the shut-down had no comparison with the Three Mile Island incident, he emphasized, and at no time was there any threat to personnel or atmosphere around the plant.

The shut down resulted actually from two separate incidents, he explained.

The cooling system surrounding the reactor is separate from that of the reactor itself, he said.

"The problem had nothing to do with the reactor cooling system," he explained. "We found a valve malfunction on the secondary system."

In reading it down to make the repair, a steam bubble occurred, but when the temperatures were equalized, the steam bubble disappeared.

"There was nothing hazardous about this," Schindehette said. "It was nothing like Three Mile Island. That was a gas problem, with an electrical short circuit causing the valve to close."

MERITORIOUS SERVICE.—Ebasco Services and Florida Power and Light Company were presented with Meritorious Service awards from the Palm Beach Blood Bank this week for the part the two firms played in conducting a massive blood donor drive at the St. Lucie Nuclear Power Plant on Hutchinson Island. Shown above the awards presentation are, from the left: Bill Eccles, FPL; Sara Timon, head of the Martin County branch of the blood bank; Ken Flanagan of Ebasco; Joseph Faletti, executive director of the blood bank; and Chris Farrell of Ebasco. Samaritans seek help on July 16

The status of the free ambulance service provided by the Jensen Beach Samaritans will be explained in an open house planned for Wednesday, July 16 at 7 p.m. at the Samaritan squad building on SR 723 (South Savanna Road) in Jensen Beach.

Nellie Cook, publicity officer of the ambulance squad, said the group plans to show the building, vehicles and equipment in an effort to induce more volunteers to take part in the ambulance service activities.

"We need help, more volunteers, or the entire concept of the free ambulance service is going down the drain," Mrs. Cook said.

The open house will offer information on the present status of volunteers who serve and what is needed to keep the service going.

Sailfish Point's gift to Martin

Construction of Martin County's newest public beach access is nearing completion, and it isn't costing taxpayers a dime.

Mobil Land Development (Florida) Corporation, the company building Sailfish Point, the luxury yacht and country club community adjacent to the St. Lucie Inlet on Hutchinson Island, is bearing the entire expense.

At an estimated cost of $300,000, the developers of Sailfish Point donated the land, hired the architects, retained the constructors and purchased all of the fixtures, as well as the plantings necessary for landscaping.

John D. Longhill, a landscape architect with Stresau Smith and Stresau PA of Fort Lauderdale, said, "We designed each and every element in an effort to blend with the environment. As a result, the parking area consists of shell instead of asphalt, the comfort station is light tan stucco instead of cement block and the boardwalk over the dune is constructed of a pine that will weather naturally."

Mosley & Son Construction, Inc. of Stuart, the contractors, have had a crew of 22 at work on the new public beach access since February.

According to Jack E. McDonald, Mosley's vice president, the first step was constructing the parking area which will accommodate 55 cars. "We layed down six inches of Florida shell rock and then rolled it to create an off-white surface that blends in with the sand."

The shell of the comfort station has already been completed, and the fixtures in the men's and ladies' rooms will soon be installed. "We're waiting for delivery of special fixtures made of stainless steel," McDonald pointed out. "They take a little longer to get, and cost more, but they're worth it because they should provide long service."

The outside wall of the convenience facility holds a drinking fountain, and the entrance to the boardwalk, is flanked by an outdoor shower and a "ribbon rack" that can accommodate up to 14 bicycles. As is the case with the tasteful design seen in every element of the Sailfish Point community itself, the boardwalk, constructed of pressure-treated timber, includes railings and benches at the summit that provide a breathtaking view of the sea.

Soon to be a reality is a lovely array of trees and plants that complement the environment. Yuccas, sea grapes, Australian pines, pampas grass, sable palms and morning-glories will be arranged in a landscape design meant to wet the public's appetite for the beauty that lies over the dune.

Commenting on the construction that is scheduled for completion by the end of July, Dortel T. Seaquist, Jr., president of Mobil Land Development (Florida) Corporation, said, "We want this beach access to make the same statement to the public that Sailfish Point will make to its residents.

"Only the very finest of everything is going into our community. The result will be America's premier yacht and country club, located on a site so magnificent that only nature could have created it."

Nature created the six-and-one-half miles of waterfront that Sailfish Point residents will enjoy, including more than a mile of beach, but it is the developers who are transforming Sailfish point into America's premier address.

NEW WALK—David Prisler of Jensen Beach and Thomas Pitman of Stuart return from a morning of fun in the surf. The boardwalk the young men are using is part of the $300,000 public beach access Sailfish Point, Inc. will donate to Martin County upon its completion.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND is obviously a hot one as he waits to be taken down to the water. The panting Irish Setter was one of the more hard-hit victims of the high temperatures over the weekend.

SWITCHING METHODS OF DEPRECIATION

QUESTION: I have owned my apartment house for several years and have been taking a tax deduction for depreciation since I bought it. I have been using what they call an accelerated method of depreciation. But each year when I check out my tax return, I notice that I am getting a smaller and smaller deduction for depreciation.

If it works out that I can now get a bigger deduction by using "straight line" depreciation, can I change methods? If so, how do I go about getting permission?

ANSWER: Many investors are not aware that they may change their method of depreciation in order to obtain the largest possible deduction.

Our tax laws allow you to switch from an accelerated method of depreciation to straight line at any time.

You do not need to obtain any special permission from the IRS. You need only file Form 3115 during the first 180 days of the tax year in which you want to make the change.

Be sure to calculate your new depreciation correctly by dividing the remaining undepreciated balance of your building by the remaining years of useful life.

If you can use a larger tax deduction, it certainly makes sense to switch from an accelerated method to straight line as soon as the change gives you more depreciation.

Kids at IRP see nature film

Where in Stuart can you find flying squirrels, black bears, red wolves, river otters, mountain lions and wild cougars? At Indian River Plantation!

Thanks to the Martin County Audubon Society, kids at the Plantation were treated to an hour's worth of animals filmed in their natural habitats. Slow motion and underwater photography brought scenes of nature to the children that were truly breathtaking. Shots of cougars hunting deer and alligators tracking down otters demonstrated the natural relationship between prey and predators to the children.

There will be another forum held at Indian River Plantation by the Audubon Society for children next month. Call 225-3700, ext. 2252 or the Audubon Society for more details.

GDC releases control of Rivergreen

A new type of neighborhood emerges in Port St. Lucie July 1 when the owners of Rivergreen villas take over direction of the properties from a Board of Directors previously made up of General Development Corp. executives.

Rivergreen Villas is a settlement of 163 townhouses units on Midport Road between U.S. 1 and Port St. Lucie Boulevard.

New officers of Rivergreen are Bert Latimore, president; Sam Feigenbaum; Bruce Meservey, secretary and John Gardner, treasurer.

In addition to the officers, directors are Stephen Van Allen, Harry Kilbrith, Dave Miller, Preston Hix and Richard Schlott III, Torrington, Conn.

The unique fact about Rivergreen is that the Property Owners Association owns all the common properties, including streets, and is responsible for all maintenance. Recreational facilities include an attractive clubhouse, a swimming pool and a tennis court. Use of these amenities is limited to owners, tenants and their guests.

Does FPL make a profit on the fuel adjustment? No! The Florida Public Service Commission established the fuel adjustment provision to allow electric utilities to recover the cost of fuel used in the generation of power. At present, a six-month levelized fuel charge appears on the bill.

This new clause, it is hoped, will be more equitable for the concerned customer who now will be able to budget household expenses more efficiently and measure conservation efforts more accurately. (The previous fuel adjustment method changed monthly – down or up – and made budgeting difficult.)

DO WE HAVE THE COURAGE TO SURVIVE AND THRIVE?

An editorial entitled "It Takes a Lot of Courage" offers thoughtful challenge. The writer noted the tremendous courage displayed by our forefathers in crossing the Atlantic, defying the King of England, developing this vast land and persevering the wars of the twentieth century. The writer then asks, "But as the Sixties progressed, there came concern, and rightfully so, for our environment... But that concern became an obsession and a vehicle by which those who feared virtually everything, could halt those who would continue to meet the needs of the rest of the nation."

The writer concluded that we have to take some risks to keep America strong and working. "And the risks are much less than our forefathers faced."

RUNNING STRONG—The number 27 Mike Meyer Mazda ran strong the first hour and 45 minutes of the six hours of Daytona race last Sunday, but an overheated engine caused Meyer and co-driver Rusty Bond of Jensen Beach to drop out of the race as the second hour of competition began

REN TILTON and Gina Roseti piloted Tilton's Mazda RX 2 to a 18th place finish at the Six Hours of Daytona race on Sunday. The car started in 38th place in a field of about 50 entrants, but never had enough power to run competitively with the top finishers

Jensen drivers frustrated in six-hour Daytona race

PIT CREW WORKERS poured over the Mike Meyer Mazda, but their efforts were in vain, as the car's engine overheated and the team had to drop out of the race. Shortly before the engine problem developed, the car had moved from a 13th place start to fourth place in the Six Hours of Daytona race

Though Jensen Beach auto racers Rusty Bond and Ren Tilton have fared well in many endurance races, last Sunday's six-hour event at Daytona International Speedway was not one of their better efforts.

Tilton was teamed up with Gina Roseti of Atlanta in his Mazda RX 2, while Bond shared driving duties with Mike Meyer of Palm Beach Gardens in Meyer's Mazda RX 2.

The Tilton-Roseti team finished in 18th place, and the Meyer-Bond car "finished so far back that it doesn't matter. I never checked to see exactly what place we finished in," said Bond.

The event was sanctioned by the International Motor Sports Association and featured racing stock (RS) class sedans such as AMC Sprints, Pintos, Datsun 200 SX and 710s and Mazda RS 2s and RX 3s. The rules called for them to race on street radial tires, rather than racing tires. And, because the race was good for points in the World Challenge for Endurance series of races as well as RS points, many top-name drivers who don't normally compete in the RS class were entered. In fact, about 80 cars took the green flag to start the race.

After curing ignition and rear-end problems in practice sessions, Meyer and Bond finally got their car running well and qualified in 13th position. Tilton and Roseti burned out a rear-end in a practice session and were never able to get as much power out of their brand new engine as they had hoped for. They qualified in 28th place and began the race with a rear-end which Tilton said, "is making some weird noises." He added, "I've started races where everything seemed to be perfect and have had problems and I've entered races when the car had problems, but held up and did well. Maybe it will be like that this time. We're just going to run it as long as it will go and hope the rear-end will hold up long enough to make it all the way."

Bond was optimistic about his chances before the race began. It seemed their practice session problems were behind them and that they could be real contenders.

They were, for about an hour and 45 minutes. The white and blue Meyer Mazda slipped from 13th to 17th in the first few laps, but then began making a steady climb up the standings. At the one-hour mark, with Meyer behind the wheel, the car had moved up to eighth place and was rounding the 3.84 mile course right behind the sixth and seventh place cars. Then, as the cars were leaving the infield portion of the track to roar around the banked oval, the two cars ahead of Meyer got held up in traffic. Meyer shot around them, grabbing sixth place.

The team's luck seemed to improve about half an hour later when unrelated events occurred. Chunks of the right front tire on Meyer's car started coming off about the same time Meyer spotted a wreck developing. When a car wrecks, the safety car is brought out and while it is on the track, pit stops are forbidden. But Meyer ducked into the pits for a tire change before the safety car got out on the track, allowing for the tire change while other cars had to circle the track slowly.

The team's good fortune turned sour in a hurry though. Because Meyer pitted unexpectedly, the pit crew wasn't ready. Meyer left the engine running, thinking it would be a quick stop, but the tire change and other factors took longer than expected. By the time the car was ready to go, with Bond at the wheel, he looked down and saw the engine was overheating.

Bond briefly moved the car into fourth place on the caution flag period ended, but when everyone got back to racing full speed, Bond realized the engine had lost much of its power. He pitted and an oil cooler that had just sprung a leak was changed. "I took the car back out for a few laps, but it was just way down on power. I brought it in so the engine wouldn't be damaged any more, and that was it. we had to drop out of the race," he said.

It was only one of a very few times in his seven-year racing career that he had failed to finish a race.

Tilton and Roseti battled noxious fumes from fluid in their car's rear-end and severe heat from a blistering sun to finish the race, but they were never in contention for a top spot.

"The engine just never had the power we expected from it," Tilton said. The rear-end in the RX 2, as well as the transmission, gave the team headaches throughout the race, but held together enough for them to finish.

Though Roseti and Tilton have only entered the Mazda in three RS races so far this year, they're hoping to enter more before the current season ends. "And, if we can get a sponsor, we'd like to run the full circuit of races next year," Roseti said.

She helped Tilton prepare the car for the six-hour race, and was one of only five women competing in the event.

"I got my IMSA driver's license at the beginning of this year after taking the Skip Barbour Driving School course," she said, adding that so far, most men in the racing business have reacted positively to her. "Most are supportive, rather than negative about it," she said.

Prior to entering the field of professional racing, she competed in a number of autocross events. "My first car was a sports car. I sold it and bought another, then got interested in autocross, so I pursued it. I worked for British Leyland in sales and as a service advisor and started maintaining my own car. The longer I was around cars, the more interested I got in racing them," she said.

Try fiddler crabs, clams, sand fleas

THIS IS THE TIME OF THE YEAR when the purveyors of live shrimp can't find anything except those fragile shrimplets scarcely big enough to impale on a hook. The local bait shops don't like them any more than you do, but anglers want live shrimp and your bait shop operator has no choice but to try to keep them alive long enough for you to purchase.

There's no doubt about it that there should be a closed season on shrimp at this time of the year, but there isn't, and that's that. ~~

You have other options, however. Clams make excellent bait for a wide variety of salt water fish, and you can buy them most of the time at any of the local bait shops. It's best to cut them in half through the muscle and then hook them through the muscle so that they stay on the hook. One suggestion: Take along a small hammer to shatter the shell. Otherwise you may have a problem breaking the shell.

Sand fleas are plentiful at this time of the year and you're likely to catch almost anything on them, like the 18 lb. (18-0) black drum taken from the Roosevelt Bridge last week. You can freeze them and use them later when the supply of live ones falls off. Buy a good flea rake at a tackle shop and rake them up at the water's edge as they tumble in and out along the shore to the rhythm of the surf. One thing to remember is that sand fleas will live a long time in a box of wet beach sand but will expire quickly if you put them in a container of salt water.

Fiddler crabs, preferably de-clawed, make good bait for many bottom fish, and are a favorite "delicacy" by those convict-striped, wily sheepshead. The beauty of sand fleas and fiddler crabs is that you can dig them yourself and that cuts down on the ever rising expenses of fishing. A good place to go for fiddlers is to the little mosquito ditches between Big Mud Creek just north of the power plant on up to Little Mud Creek about three miles to the north. Of late, according to reports, there are zillions of fiddlers up there. They're easy to keep if you don't put them in water or let them get too hot.

FISHING IN GENERAL isn't too swift right now. You can catch whiting and some snook in the surf, a few seatrout in the now too-warm Indian River, snook at night from the Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge, sheepshead and seatrout from the little bridge just east of the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge, and an occasional wahoo, sail, king mackerel or dolphin offshore, but it's an in and out situation, good action one day and slick the next.

ON THE FRESHWATER SCENE, Dick Hughes from Dick's Fish Camp at Lake Port on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee some 20 miles west of the Kissimmee River Bridge on SR 78: "Fishing's been pretty fair. Dick Bluegills (bream) and shellcrackers (redear sunfish) were exceptionally good during the full moon (28th) around the Harney Pond Canal, the spoil banks, the Monkey Box and Moonshine Bay. Bass fishing for yearlings to 5-0 was good there too, very early and quite late in the day. The bluegills are taking beetle spins and crickets, the shellcrackers live worms. Best bass baits are spoons, spinnerbaits and plastic worms."

FROM JENSEN BAIT AND TACKLE, Bill Kight: "We don't have too much for you this week. Dick, Ron and Chris Seymour, fishing from Wayne Kendall's boat and trolling ballyhoo, caught two red snappers to 10-0, a 300-0 lemon shark, a small dolphin and a 17-0 wahoo; Darryl and Carol Prew caught a 6 ft. 10-inch sailfish in 200 ft., trolling ballyhoo; Ralph Verlin caught a 40-0 jewfish on live bunker (menhaden) at the Ernest Lyons."

CHUCK SHEPHERD, from the Bait Box in Jensen: "I don't have a whole lot. We're down to these little bitty fresh shrimp. They're catching a lot of sheepshead and some seatrout from the bridge east of the Ernest Lyons on tiny live shrimp. Earl and Ray Puckett caught 11 whiting on live shrimp just north of the Park-N-Fish area; Sonny Dieber, 3 trout on live shrimp, same place. Offshore, they're getting some nice wahoo."

MARLIN MOUDY, captain of the head (drift or party) boat Lady Stuart, docking at the Sailfish Marina just east of Port Salerno and A1A below Stuart (286-1960): "We had a good week, some darned nice fish. Friday night, we had a 47-8 king, a 30-0 cobia and some really nice grouper. We had two nice cobia yesterday and some grouper, vermillion and Lane snappers. It's been excellent this past week. We've been going about five miles north inshore this week, fishing in 60 to 62 ft. of water. Incidentally, we've got the River Queen back and plan to run it on weekends from Pier 1."

FROM D&M BAIT AND TACKLE at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S. 1, Muriel Weideman: "Fishing's good here one day, then the next day, nothing. They're catching mangrove snappers, black drum, croakers and sheepshead, mostly on clams. Dick, there ought to be a law against taking and selling such small shrimp, but they net them and bring them to us and we have no choice but to sell them to our customers. Clams and sand fleas are just about as good, and one man caught a big black drum on a sand flea here last week. Snook are small and pretty scarce at night here now."

TRAVIS DISHMAN, JR., from Pier 1 at the north end of the Roosevelt: "The best place to snook fish now is at night from the Evans Crary on a high tide. I'd plan to fish there with live finger mullet, or live shrimp if you can find them big enough, like from 3-6 a.m. Thursday."

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK in Jensen, Tom Stewart: "It's been hot, mostly in the 90s and the water in the river's just too warm for good trout fishing. The seatrout are looking for cooler water down deep now. The Evans Crary and Frank Wacha (Jensen Causeway) bridges are good at night for snook taking live bait like shrimp, bunker (menhaden), pinfish or croakers. I'd recommend fishing either bridge from 2-4 a.m. Wednesday or 3-5 a.m. Thursday. Offshore fishing is spotty, just some wahoo, kings and sails. There are some really nice wahoo. You have to troll about 20 feet deep now with something like a big Rapala plug. With live shrimp so scarce and so small, this is a good time to catch fiddler crabs in the mosquito ditches north of the power plant. Dick, fishermen shouldn't blame bait shops for the high prices they shrimp now being offered for sale. We have it tough enough trying to keep those tiny shrimp alive and lose a lot of them after delivery. It would be better if they had a closed season on shrimp at this time of the year."

The Nook's log: Paul Phoenix, 4 snook to 10-0, live mullet, the Jensen surf; Terry Yager, 14 whiting and croakers, cut shrimp, surf; Junior Dishman, 4 snook to 20-0, live shrimp, Evans Crary; Ray Greenwald, 6 trout to 3-0, TM18 minnows, west shore, Walton Road; Charlie Areni, Jr. and Sr., 9 trout and a 9-8 snook, trout touts, Herman's Bay; Scott Gallivan and Chuck Watkins, a released sail, a wahoo and a barracuda, all on ballyhoo in 120-250 ft. due east of the SLI inlet and north to the power plant; Bob Hamburger and Ed Wagner, 4 trout to 2-0, touts, north of the power plant around the spoil islands; Bill Ditzel, 6 trout to 2-0, live shrimp, mangroves at Big Mud Creek; Eugene Berrieau, 10 croakers, live shrimp, Frank Wacha Bridge.

THE FOURTH OF JULY is a prime time for weekending on the water, but it's no time to run afoul of one of the state's Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission wildlife officers just because you neglected to renew your Florida fishing license.

Everyone needs one if you fish in fresh water, unless you are under 15 or over 65 or are fishing with no more than three cane poles in the county of your residence.

You don't need one — yet — for saltwater fishing. If you elect to fish in the St. Lucie River and are fishing with live shrimp and saltwater tackle where there are known to be saltwater fish, you don't need a license. Contrariwise, if you are fishing the St. Lucie with live or plastic worms for bream (bluegills) or Florida largemouth (black) bass, you'd better have a fishing license.

According to the GFWFC, 840 tickets were issued in May to individuals fishing without a license. "With the low cost of a fishing license as compared with a fine, it makes sense to buy a license and be safe," Major Kenneth L. Stivers, director of the Office of Informational Services for the Commission, said succinctly.

New 1980-81 fishing, hunting and boat licenses were required as of Tuesday, July 1.

If you have a boat, remember that its license expired on June 30! I- just renewed the license on the 16-foot aluminum Starcraft bass boat I'm trying to trade for a 14-footer that will fit in our new garage.

FISHING, HUNTING AND BOAT LICENSES are available at all county tax collectors, and hunting and fishing licenses are available at subagents like bait and tackle shops and fish camps all around the state.

While picking up a $6.50 fishing license, you may also want to buy a hunting license at the same time. A hunting-fishing combination license for residents can be purchased for $17.50. Also available are the $10 wildlife management area permits and the $3.25 state waterfowl stamps.

If you've reached your 65th birthday, you won't need to buy a hunting or fishing license. Upon submitting proof of age, the tax collector will issue you a permanent Resident Senior Citizen Hunting and Fishing Certificate, authorizing you to hunt and fish in the State of Florida, including Wildlife Management Areas, in accordance with the restrictions and regulations of the GFWFC.

It's a good idea to stop in at the tax collector's office and pick up a Florida Hunting Handbook as well as a Florida Freshwater Sport Fishing Guide and Fish Management Areas pamphlet. They'll answer all of your hunting and fishing questions, like telling you that the freshwater game fish bag limit in the state is 10 largemouth bass, 15 chain pickerel, 50 panfish, 6 sunshine bass and 6 striped bass.

FLA OBJECTIVES. What are they? The Florida League of Anglers was organized to save recreational fishing, both fresh and saltwater, in Florida. These are its objectives:

Determine reasons for the decline in quality of Florida fishing and inform the residents of Florida and alert the Department of Natural Resources as to the causes and effects of that decline.

Offer constructive programs designed to maintain and increase fish stocks and improve hook and line fishing throughout the state.

Insist on compliance with existing laws designed to prevent overfishing, pollution, and destruction of habitat.

Inform residents of Florida of the enormous importance of recreational fishing to the economy of the state.

Develop instructional youth programs in fishing techniques and conservation.

Encourage recreational fishermen to release, rather than sell fish not wanted for personal use.

JUNIOR DISHMAN holds one of four snook (aggregate weight 44 lbs.) he caught on live shrimp while fishing at night on an outgoing tide at the Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge.

YOUNG PAUL PHOENIX, 15, used live mullet to take these four snook fishing in the Jensen Beach surf. The total weight of the four was 38 lbs. and Paul looks mighty happy about the whole thing. (Photos courtesy of Tom Stewart)

Assist and encourage the Department of Natural Resources and the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission to develop and implement appropriate conservation measures to ensure improvement in Florida fishing.

THE ST. MARKS National Wildlife Refuge has announced that there will be two primitive weapons hunts and one conventional gun hunt this fall on a portion of the Refuge. The hunts will be three days each for white-tailed deer and feral hogs. Legal weapons will be according to state regulations for archery equipment, muzzle loading firearms and conventional weapons, except that no buckshot or hand guns will be permitted.

Dates for hunts will be Sept. 28-30, archery; Nov. 21-23, primitive guns; Dec. 12-14, conventional weapons.

Requests for permit applications are now being received by letter or personal appearance only. Any person who received a permit to hunt at St. Marks Refuge last year does not need to apply for this year's hunts. They will automatically receive a permit in the mail.

Write for the hunt brochure and permits to: St. Marks National Wildlife Refuge, P.O. Box 68, St. Marks, Fla. 32355.

The deadline date to receive requests for the hunt brochure and permits is Aug. 29!

There will be a drawing for the conventional weapons hunt only. Hunters interested in this hunt must apply early for the hunt brochure in order to send in the application form by Aug. 29. There will be 400 names drawn for this hunt.

THEY MAY BE PLAYING a deadly game of dominoes in Central Florida these days. It's this: "If Lake Tohopekaliga (south of Kissimmee and southwest of St. Cloud) falls, the upper Kissimmee River Chain of Lakes (Hatchinehs, Kissimmee, Cypress, Gentry, Alligator and East Lake Tohopekaliga) will go," is the opinion of Vince Williams, fisheries biologist for the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

"Based on data collected as well as field observation, Lake Tohopekaliga is approaching a Lake Apopka-like collapse within the next decade. The impact of high-level nutrient input to Lake Tohopekaliga ultimately has the potential of adversely affecting all downstream waters," the biologist warned Lake Tohopekaliga Task Force members recently.

Effects of man's intervention in the natural cycle of a water system were dramatically revealed in the St. Johns River area this month when a six-mile long, 10-million fish kill developed. The kill, according to biologists, was triggered primarily by the excessive nutrients pumped into the river from municipal, residential, agricultural and industrial wastes. Until the St. Johns is cleaned up, biologists predict more kills and a declining sportfish population.

Williams pointed out that the GFWFC has already conducted two major drawdowns on Lake Toho but admitted the lake cannot be maintained by any management technique if massive nutrient discharge from sewage treatment plants is allowed to continue unabated.

"Regulatory agencies should mandate removal of nutrient material from wastewater discharge, or the removal of the discharge itself from the watershed, within the next five years.

"The longer we wait to implement solutions, the closer we come to losing a valuable resource," Williams concluded.

THIS IS THE KIND OF PROBLEM facing sportfishermen of this and future generations that the FLA is fighting. Put your shoulder to the wheel by joining the FLA today. Help build clout. Only clout will be heard up in Tallahassee, and the bigger the FLA's membership rolls grow, the bigger grows its clout.

We've got to get involved before it's too late. Save our fish!

THE FLA NEEDS your support to continue its fight to save Florida fishing. You can join the FLA and become an individual member for a contribution, tax deductible, of just $10, or have a sustaining-family membership for a contribution of $25. If you can't pick up an application, blank locally, like at The Mirror or a bait and tackle shop, give your name, address and telephone number and mail your check to the Florida League of Anglers, Inc., P.O. Box 1597, Winter Park, Fla. 32790.

This is something that needs doing!

Treasure coast women's league

The Treasure Coast Women's League recently held their second field day at the Vista Royale Country Club in Vero Beach.

There were seventy-two participants in the competition with players from Martin County, Sandpiper Bay, Indian Hills and Vista, Royale country clubs competing for individual low gross and net honors.

Winners from the Sandpiper Bay club were Mary Maney who led the field with her low net 67, and Lorraine Swift who shot a low net of 70 in the first flight. In the second flight, Donna Cook was a winner with a net 70 as was Pearl Graeser at 71.

Marion Polidor shot a net 69 for a win in the third flight and Lea Eonne won with her net 70.

The next field day will be held at the Martin County Club in Stuart.

MIAMI DOLPHINS

with DICK LUNDIN

MIAMI'S DOLPHINS HAVE WON OR SHARED FIRST PLACE IN THE AFC East eight times in the last 10 years, and hope to emerge in the 80s as one of the dominant contenders for the Super Bowl.

Their principal obstacles to winning their way into the playoffs, however, are the other AFC East teams and, unfortunately, it looks like the Buffalo Bills and New York Jets for sure, and the New England Patriots and Baltimore Colts possibly, came out way ahead in the annual draft lottery last April.

It takes a lot of rationalizing to zero in on Coach Don Shula's thoughts in drafting a single running back when his rushing game in 1979 left much to be desired.

"We have to rebuild the offensive line, that's our No. 1 objective. Defensively, we've turned it around with only two starters remaining from the Super Bowl years. Our defense, especially early in 1979, showed promise of being a championship defense. The big disappointment was the manner in which we lost the playoff game (9-35 at Pittsburgh. In a game that meant so much, we played very poorly.

"Otherwise, I felt that our football team was coming along and was ready to compete for the Super Bowl," Shula said.

Yet, notwithstanding, Miami drafted only one offensive lineman in its first seven picks, (the blue ribbon selections) and that was Alabama center Dwight Stephenson, chosen, no doubt, to provide insurance at center where Mark Dennard will miss the experience may need lots of help replacing perennial All Pro Jim Langer who yearns for Minnesota and says he won't be back.

THE DOLPHINS under Shula decided a great record in the 70s, one of the best, but had little or no success last year in competing with winning teams away from home. The Pittsburgh debacle was just a case in point. What Coach Don Shula can do to take his outfit play .500 ball on the road against the teams it has to beat to become a bona fide Super Bowl contender, is the 64 dollar question. If Shula knew he'd do it, no doubt.

You have to wonder if it's the quarterback? Still, the Steelers scored with ease the first three times they had the ball, and you can't blame that on the quarterback.

Miami has three quarterbacks, four if you count eighth-round draftee Joe Woodley of LSU who looked like a rookie camp.

Bob Griese, the master tactician, is the big play passer so essential in the 80's offenses these days. At 35, he can add defenses with the best of them and still has his bright moments when everything comes together, but all too often, it seems, it's two running plays for short gains, an incomplete pass, and a punt. Griese, especially back in the golden years (1970-74), was without peer in using offensive weapons so beautifully tailored to his passing ability. That was then, and now is now. It looks like Bob can best serve Miami by taking over the role of Bert Morrall played so well as No. 2 backup quarterback.

BOB STROCK, 30 in November, failed to move the ball whenever he was in there during the 1979 season. Outstanding performances were a 4-point fourth quarter against Minnesota and a 28-point second half against Chicago. Playing the equivalent of 3½ games, Strock generated 32 points, an average of 31.1 per game. He definitely seems the heir apparent to Griese's throne. As Strock goes, so will go the Dolphins in 1980, it says here.

You can't overlook No. 3 quarterback Guy Benjamin, a consensus All-American at Stanford in 1977. Entering this third season, Guy should be ready to make his move, if ever. Coach Shula will undoubtedly give Benjamin a lot of playing time in the four preseason games against Detroit (Aug. 10, Orange Bowl, 4 p.m.), Seattle (Aug. 18, there, 7:30 p.m.), Minnesota (Aug. 23, 8 p.m.), and New Orleans (Aug. 29, there, 8 p.m.).

Woodley is such a long shot, it's hard to figure him in, but stranger things have happened.

RUNNING BACKS are an integral part of a synchronized offense. On paper, the Dolphins are well fortified with backfield performers capable of going inside, turning the corner and catching passes. Last year, sport fans, it just didn't work out that way, for one reason or another (injuries and an aging offensive line), but Coach Shula says he has confidence in Delvin Williams, Gary Davis, Larry Csonka, Tony Nathan and Steve Howell.

Shula indicates he's convinced that Williams will return to his 1,000-yard form of 1978, and that 1979 rookies Nathan and, Howell will sparkle in 1980. Davis is superb as a No. 2 running back. Csonka may return for one more year. He led the Dolphins with 8' yards and 13 touchdowns last season.

THE OFFENSIVE LINE may be Miami's Achilles heel, with rookies to play a key role. Veterans Bob Kuechenberg and Ed Newman will man the guard positions. Veteran Larry Little will be a swing man between guard and tackle, if he can get in good shape, Shula says.

Third-year Eric Laksso will be at right tackle and first-round draftee Jon Giesler at the other tackle. Free agent Cleveland Green (1979) and Jeff Toews, 1979 No. 2 draftee, will provide depth at guard. Dennard and Stephenson will try to make Dolphins fans forget the storied Langer.

WIDE RECEIVERS (think of those Jets with Wesley Walker and Lam Jones!) are the big play men in pro football today, and Miami has two of the best in Nat Moore and Duriel Harris — if the quarterback can get the ball to them down deep. Moore has established club career records of 258 receptions, 4,186 yards and 38 TD catches. Last year he caught 48 for 840 yards. Harris set a Miami record for one game with 10 catches for 180 yards against Green Bay last season, and had three other 100-yard games. Jimmy Cefalo gives Miami excellent depth at wide receiver. He'll have competition in preseason from Minnesota's Elmer Bailey and Michigan State's Eugene Byrd.

Shula anticipates "an interesting battle" at tight end with "more depth and ability than we've had there in a long time."

Bruce Hardy moved into the starting slot in 1979 when Andre Tillman broke his leg. Hardy had 886 yards on 30 receptions. Ronnie Lee, a 1979 rookie and a strong blocker, could make the team if Tillman is slow in rehabilitating.

THAT'S A BRIEF LOOK at the offense on which so much depends in 1980. Next week, we'll look over the defense as the Dolphin coaching staff gets ready to welcome the rookies (July 13) and veterans (July 24) to summer camp at Biscayne College.

The football season will be here sooner than you think!

GOLFING NEWS BY MIKE SANDY

Received a couple of letters recently which brought much pleasure -- one from an old colleague, Al DeSantis, former sports editor of the Schenectady N.Y. Union Star. We enjoyed close relations with Al while we covered New York State Pro Basketball League doings and also as members of the Eastern League Baseball Writers Assoc.

Al has moved downstate a few miles to Middletown, N.Y., where he covers sports for the Times Herald. Learned of Al being there from many winter residents of this area who hail from the Middletown area; namely -- Pro Chuck D'Andrea and other Middletowners Al Kazan and Paul Fiml.

Al continues to be very enterprising. Among his many side ventures includes his ownership of Northern Enterprises which handles top sports promotions. He proudly tells us that the Eddie Feigner games (the King and His Court) have been booked by him throughout Florida.

It wouldn't surprise us to see Al come to Port St. Lucie to spend his retirement years. Al asked me to look up Nick Mottola, a great athlete of the past, who now lives on Naranja Street in Port St. Lucie.

The other letter came from Golf Pro Joe Ennis, who spends the winter months in Jensen Beach and recently joined with old friends (the Joe Jensens) to operate Zia Stella Restaurant. Joe told us he looks forward to reading this column that he might keep abreast of what goes with golf in the area. Joe is head pro at North Hills C.C. in Manhasset, N.Y. and he too is looking forward to a permanent residency here. He is a constant participant in Sandpiper Pro Ams and has his son Joe attending Indian River C.C. here. Understand wife Barbara wants to be closer to son Joey, who incidentally has a promising future in golf.

Did you know that the course record at the Sandpiper Sinner's course is 64 held by Don Wilhelm, established several years ago. With the caliber of talent to play in this year's Florida Open, many observers think forward to a new course record.

Two of the youngest pros who'll be competing next week are the Green brothers, identical twins who hail from Meridian, Miss. Both Dave and Dan attracted much attention in collegiate ranks when they played for Delta State Univ. Believe they are the first set of twins to compete in the Open.

Both are talented and either Dan or Dave is able to "bust out" on a barrel bange and capture the Open. Dave serves as assistant pro to Kelly Cribbs at Mid Rivers in Stuart while Dan holds down the assistant job at Martin County C.C. Dan and Dave turned pro upon their acceptance of amateur capacities early this year. They took up the game at the instance of their father, who put them under the wing of Pro Bill Davis of Northwood C.C. in Meridian.

Bob Boatwright, caddy master at the Sinner's course for more than 15 years, has resigned that post to start a lawn and shrubbery business.

Some things we fail to understand. One is the "unwritten rule" for baseball umpires who are told never to brush off home plate with their buttocks facing the stands. Baseball officials have ruled it vulgar to take a bending position with "knees" toward the crowd. Then for the life of me why do the umpires continue to bend, brushing the plate with their "knees" toward the pitcher's mound in full view of the TV cameras which usually "shoot the pictures" from center field. Seems to me the camera crew should target cameras to another direction, (that is, if baseball is to follow the unwritten rule. After all there are millions who watch the games on TV, (a few more than occupy the stands). Wonder what the decision would be if we had women umpires who just love to keep things tidy?

There is little doubt that most of those who play their golf at Sandpiper are in the class of "senior citizens" and there is little doubt that each of us in that stage of life suffer aches and pains. But since we all love the game so much, we tend to forget those problems and look forward to playing the game.

A perfect example of some of the pleasures we get out of the game is the letter we rejoiced in receiving from Dorothy Stark. The letter in part follows:

"I came to Sandpiper with a 38 handicap, and now am a 29. Two Sundays ago I had a 83 on the front of the Saints, and on the back nine I came to life. I shot a nice 43 that gave me my best round of 96. This is from a lady who has arthritis so badly in the hands that I can hardly hold on to the club, but I'm out there swinging and loving every minute."

Behavior keynotes Sandpiper

BY MIKE SANDY

The Sandpiper Men golfers were on their best behavior Thursday at the Saints course, knowing that any infraction of the rules and golf etiquette might bring a summons from the St. Lucie County Sheriff's Dept. Both Sheriff Lanie Norvell and Deputy Joe Wildman were on hand for the day's feature, labeled as "Meet and Beat the Press Day" with 108 members shooting the works against the Press.

Veteran golf scribe Jim Lamont has his name drawn as the "one to beat" by the members. A 28 handicap golfer, Lamont who has been off his game of late was bested by 27 members led by a trio, each posting a net score of 65, and included John Linabury, Roy Rutherford and new member Gerald Porter. A four-way tie listed the following at 66: Carl Starach, Sid Maves, Paul Hotte and Norm Krecke.

Another shot off the pace at 67 were Bill Jahn, Howard Klerk, Bob Heller and Graydon Smith while Dave Kennedy, Tom Francoline and Ray Magee carded net 68's.

Individual low scoring awards of the day went to Jim Healy, 77, and guest Joe Wildman, 78. Sheriff Norvell was only two shots off his deputy's pace carding an 80 which included a birdie four on the final hole.

Special awards were made in form of the back half of a horse trophies presented to Sheriff Norvell, Dick Campbell of the Mirror and Bob D'Angelo of the Stuart News.

Northport men's golf

Low scores for the Northport Men's Golf Association Tuesday showed Earl Graham winning flight A with a net of 63. Clyde Stoltzemeyer had a 66.

Joe Lescravage won flight B with a 68. Hendus Davidson scored a 69. In flight C Al McIntyre had a 63. Jim Hensel had a 67. Herb Bowen won flight D with a 57. Ernie Riefler had a 61.

Walt Tracy was closest on the eighth hole. Earl Graham was closest on the 14th.

Bruce Harrison to represent Sandpiper in Florida Open

BY MIKE SANDY

Bruce Harrison, assistant to head o Chuck Johnson at Sandpiper Bay lf courses, will be included in a field 395 pros and amateurs who will be mpeting in the 1980 edition of the orida Open which gets under way at th the Saints and Sinner's courses ly 10 to 13.

This marks the first time that a ndpiper pro has been allowed to mpete, only because of the many ules that must be performed by the st pro staff at Sandpiper. However, hnson and Sandpiper officials deemed that Harrison should not be denied an opportunity of competing in the prestigious event which carries a guaranteed top prize of $4,000.

Lee Mowrey, 1980 Open Champion, will not be on hand to defend his title, deciding instead to defend his Colorado Open laurels, an event that falls on the same dates as the Florida Open. However, the field will be a tough one and includes many name golfers and former Florida Open and PGA winners.

Roger Ganem, executive director of the South Florida Section PGA, announced the prize money this year will be $38,000. Included among the entries are Tony Valentine of Plantation, winner of the 1977 event staged here, and Rich Bassett, who took the title of the 1976 event at Sandpiper.

Other former winners who'll vie for the 1980 crown include Jim King of Miami, winner in 1971 and '76; Lee Wykle, 1975; Charles Owens, 1974; Billy Maxwell, 1973; Dub Pagan, 1960 and PGA champion, 1955. Among the former Florida PGA champions who'll be here for the Open are Julius Boros, J.C. Goosie, Gordon Jones, Adolph Popp and Bill Robinson.

Close followers of the game here are, however, predicting a local area pro to cop the event this year. One in particular is Larry Rinker, who learned his golf in his early teens around the Sandpiper courses. Larry has been competing in "mini" events around Florida and recently won a qualifying spot for the U.S. Open at Baltrusol where he competed against the best in the land, missing the cut by a few strokes, scoring 76 and 77.

Steve Cunningham of Port St. Lucie believes he has his game together to become a threat and loves to play the Sandpiper courses where he recently scored a sizzling 66. Chuck Knebels, Mariner Sands pro, a recent winner of the Southeastern sectional is another to be considered, as is Billy Close, the 23-year assistant pro at Indian Hills in Fort Pierce, who has been winning pro-am events hereabouts recently.

J. D. Murchison, Stuart, who scored a 65 on the Saints last year as an amateur, will be taking a pro-fling this year, as will Buddy Harston of Stuart. Jay Pyle, head pro at Crane Creek and for many years one of the leading amateur and pro golfers here will be joined in the field by his assistant, Phil Campoli.

Stephen Castigliano, a son of Dr. Gordon Castigliano of Port St. Lucie, is included in the field, as are former Sandpiper pros Jimmy DeLarme and Zeno Rawley, both now at Tam O'Shanter in Pompano. Sandy Sharlau of Stuart will represent the Sailfish Capital along with promising pros Kelly Childs of Mid Rivers; David Cagle, Billies Grant; Ed Ficker, Jupiter; Wally Kuchar, Stuart, and the young twin pros, Dave and Dan Gower.

Among the notable name pros adding color to the field is Lew Worsham, a former U.S. Open champion who will accompany Julius Boros.

A strong field of amateurs is also included in the field headed by Mark Calcavecchia of Palm Beach who finished best among the simon-pures last year and was listed fifth in the overall. Dale Anderson, a former mayor of Stuart, will take his hand at the competition as will Port St. Lucie resident Dave Rigabar. Toby Chapman, son of a Ft. Pierce Central High coach and Richard Cromwell of Stuart, a member of the Texas A.M. College golf team, will be among the youngest to vie for honors.

Dave Peoples, Florida State Amateur champion of 1979, will be on hand, as will David Pesacov, a recent victor of the Palm Beach amateur event. Jim McCumber, a younger brother of tour player Mark McCumber, hopes to crash the select circle. The amateur field of 125 also includes Bob Michael, the National Lefthanded Amateur champion from Sarasota.

"Chuck" Johnson reported both courses have rounded out into excellent condition and that the entire field will be able to play practice rounds at either course on July 7 and 8 with the annual Pro-Am event to be played Wednesday, July 9 on the Sinner's course. A large field is listed for this event.

Sponsors of the 1980 Florida Open are General Development Corp. and Sandpiper Bay Resort along with the Florida Section PGA.

Volunteers from the Sandpiper Bay men's Association and Sandpiper Women's Association will act as marshals and tournament helpers throughout the tournament.

There will be no admission charge and the public is invited to view the proceedings.

HE WOMEN participated in the events of the Spanish kes tournament and enjoyed themselves thoroughly. Pictured are: Grace Stukes, Millie Lewis, in foreground; Boogie Premru and Dave Lewis, practicing in background.

Laurie Hammer to Colorado

Dave Stockton, two-time winner of the Professional Golf Association (PGA) Championship, and Laurie Hammer, a long-time teaching professional, have been selected to direct golf activities in Keystone, Colorado at the 18-hole Keystone Ranch Golf Course.

As Director of Golf, Stockton will conduct clinics for large groups at Keystone Ranch. Stockton also will represent Keystone on the PGA Tour.

Hammer, who was Stockton's partner in a Haig and Haig Scotch Foresome tournament in 1967 and played on the PGA Tour from 1966 to 1969, will be the resident golf professional. He has taught at the Delray Dunes Golf and Country Club in Florida for the past 10 years.

Hammer has always been one of the most popular pros in South Florida, having served as head pro at Delray Dunes Golf and Country Club. However, while he never won the Florida Open, he was a constant threat in recent years, finishing close to the top. In the 1980 event he lost out by two strokes to Lee Mowrey as Mowrey went on a birdie binge the final three holes to overtake Haminer. For his efforts Laurie fattened his bank account by $3,300.

New tennis pro at North River Shores

Management of North River Shores Tennis Club is pleased to announce the acquisition of their new Head-Pro Robbie Clouse. Born in 1952, Robbie graduated from Virginia Wesleyan College and completed Tennis America University in 1974. He has been teaching tennis at Boca West and Boca Lago before joining North River Shores T.C.

Robbie has worked with juniors extensively in the past (including some state ranked juniors) and is presently conducting junior and adult clinics at N.R.S. He is also available for private and group lessons.

YEAR 'ROUND LAWN CARE WITH A VERSATILE SNAPPER!

1. An outdoor vacuum which picks up leaves and litter, and packs them into a large grass catcher and with optional accessories
2. A mulching mower which turns cuttings into lawn food and you don't have to rake or empty the bag.
3. A leaf shredder so you can go over four times as far without emptying the bag.
4. A grass catcher which will quickly and easily empty cuttings directly into disposable plastic bags.

Before you buy a mower, compare the quality and performance features of a SNAPPER. You'll find SNAPPER is worth more because it does more. And its price is competitive with other quality mowers.

No sign of killer virus

There is an outbreak of a killer virus among dogs that seems to be spreading in Florida, and could affect dogs in the Jensen Beach area if proper precautions are not taken.

Dr. Stanley Wampler, owner of the Jensen Beach Animal Hospital, says that the virus has already struck in the Hobe Sound area, and he says once a dog gets it, the chances of survival are slim.

"It is called parvo virus, and it is a member of a virus family that infects dogs, cats and pigs. There was an outbreak of it in Orlando about 18 months ago and a big outbreak in Miami about six weeks ago. I talked to Dr. Richard Smith of the Hobe Sound Veterinary Clinic and he said he has had cases of it there. In dogs six months or older, there is about a 25 to 40 per cent loss, and for the younger ones, the chances of losing the puppy are 75 to 80 per cent," Dr. Wampler said.

Dr. Smith was contacted last week and reported that he had just lost a dog to the virus. The virus is a cousin to the virus that causes distemper in cats. The virus mutated slightly and invaded dogs. It seems to have started in the New England area, and first started showing up among dogs that had been in dog shows. The symptoms are that the dogs will begin vomiting and get dehydrated and depressed. If caught quickly, there is about a 50 per cent chance the dogs can be saved, but if not, the vomiting will get worse and the dog will eventually just drop over and die," he said.

Dr. Smith said the recent outbreak in Miami sometimes resulted in losses of 30 to 40 dogs in a single kennel, and he said the man who had the Hobe Sound clinic before he did said he had seen four or five cases there.

PERHAPS NOT A PAID COUNTY EMPLOYEE, but a good worker just the same, Martha's dog keeps an ever present eye towards oncoming ——. Because of all the recent construction nearby, her island companion has had to relocate the limits of his territory.

WEST VIRGINIA TRAVELLERS get a rare glimpse of old Florida. Luckily, these boaters were not one of the chosen few to get stuck in the pilings, so their visit was a short o (photos by Cathie Fara

Bridge tender makes way for progress

BY CATHIE FARAGO

For fifteen years, Martha Cumbee has lived her life in between horn blasts from oncoming boats.

She is part of a dying breed of people that tender the old swing bridges in Florida.

The bridge is located in western Martin County on State Road 76A and goes by the name Arundel Shoal. It's been there for 55 years and as Martha says "it's on its last legs." Obviously, the county shares her feelings and, with the help of state and federal funding, is in the process of completing a more efficient replacement.

Although the new bridge is needed, it marks the end of an era as well as the end of a lifestyle for Martha Cumbee. That lifestyle entailed spending 16 hours a day watching and listening for boats. When a horn was heard, it meant a walk from the small wood frame house she called home, located on the bank, to the center of the bridge. Once there, buttons were pushed, cranks were turned and slowly, the swing bridge opened.

The job however, was not without its casualties. As Martha puts it "you can't get into anything you can't get out." And so there was many a time when her husband ate burned meat and overcooked jelly. However, like the mailman, neither rain, sleet or snow would daunt her efforts to perform her job. Lightning, however, was a different matter entirely. She didn't mind getting wet, but when the lightning struck close enough to hear it crack she stayed inside. "The good Lord gave me a little bit of sense and expects me to use it."

If the swing bridge posed some problems to Martha, it also had the courtesy to distribute them evenly to boaters. According to Martha, many was the time when boaters would wedge themselves in between the pilings or just get stuck sideways. If too many people went into the canal trying to get the boat dislodged, then the dredging company was called. In the meantime, traffic on the bridge was backed up for miles and good natured spectators would provide a full audience to cheer the efforts on.

Aside from unwedging stuck boats, and opening the bridge approximately 21 times a day, Martha also acted as an information service center. She laughs as she says, "Yes, mercy, people ask all the time – how do I get to I 95?" For those needing answers, she'd give them the right replies and for those just driving by, she was usually there with a wave.

Not only will Martha lose her job that she admits she's spoiled with, but she also stands to lose her home of 15 years. The small frame house, once a barracks building, was moved from Jonathan Dickinson State Park in 1947. Owned by the county, Martha thinks that it will be moved to Phipps Park by the St. Lucie Locks or possibly torn down. If that's the case then she and her husband will probably move closer to town so that she can still find some sort of job with the county. "It's a good house," she says, but here's not the personality that lives over tomorrow. "I'm just going to take it day by day."

The construction on the new bridge was started last June and should be completed by December. Her dog was vehemently opposed to the work and never hesitated to voice his opinion, but Martha laughingly says, "I gave up a long time ago."

Soon, when the new bridge is up, boaters will be longer have to wait for the swing bridge to open. Drivers won't have to move their foot from the accelerator as they climb the new heights to and the panoramic view of the river. And no one will again have to jump into the water trying to free a boat. But they will also miss a woman, her dog, and an old Florida way of life.

IN RE: ESTATE OF
JOHANNE M. BRUNING,
Deceased.

NOTICE OF ADMINISTRATION

TO ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS OR DEMANDS AGAINST THE ABOVE ESTATE AND ALL OTHER PERSONS INTERESTED IN THE ESTATE:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that the administration of the estate of JOHANNE M. BRUNING, deceased, File Number 80-168-CP, is pending in the Circuit Court for Martin County, Florida, Probate Division, the address of which is Martin County Courthouse, Stuart, Florida 33494. The personal representative of the estate is Peter Bruning, whose address is 218 Salsbo Palm North, Elkhart, Florida 33033. The name and address of the personal representative's attorney are set forth below.

All persons having claims or demands against the estate are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file with the clerk of the above court a written statement of any claim or demand they may have. Each claim must be in writing and must indicate the basis for the claim, the name and address of the creditor or his agent or attorney, and the amount claimed. If the claim is not yet due, the date when it will become due shall be stated. If the claim is contingent or unliquidated, the nature of the uncertainty shall be stated. If the claim is secured, the security shall be described. The claimant shall deliver sufficient copies of the claim to the clerk to enable the clerk to mail one copy to each personal representative.

All persons interested in the estate to whom a copy of this Notice of Administration has been mailed are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file any objections they may have that challenge the validity of the decedent's will, the qualifications of the personal representative, or the venue or jurisdiction of the court.

ALL CLAIMS, DEMANDS, AND OBJECTIONS NOT SO FILED WILL BE FOREVER BARRED.

Date of the first publication of this Notice of Administration: June 25, 1980.

Rescue League has cats and dogs for adoption

National Adopt-a-Cat Month ended on the last day of June, but at the Martin County Animal Rescue League, there are still plenty of cats to be adopted.

Last week, there were a total of 29 cats and kittens at the league shelter on A1A south of Stuart.

Luther Edmonson of the League says this is the time of the year when the shelter receives more cats and kittens than any other time, so there is a good variety of cats and kittens to choose from.

"We have plenty of cats and kittens, and also have a lot of dogs, so if anyone is interested in owning one, we urge them to drop by the shelter and pick one out," Edmunson said.

Edmonson noted that the Animal Birth Control organization has a spay-neuter program operating in conjunction with the shelter, so all cats and dogs up for adoption have been spayed or neutered. He said a $10 donation, to cover the spay-neuter cost and the cost of care for the pets at the Rescue League, is asked when a person adopts a pet from the League.

Edmonson said the collection of cats and kittens at the shelter has come from persons abandoning them, from strays found by Rescue League workers, and from persons giving them up.

The League shelter is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays and from noon to 4 p.m. on Saturdays.

BASKET FULL OF CATS—The Animal Rescue League on A1A south of Stuart is overrun with cats and kittens these days and would like to find a good home for them. This is the time of year when the league gets more cats at the shelter than any other, so those who would like to adopt a cat will have a big selection to choose from. Among those up for adoption are those in this basket.

BY TOM FALKENBURG

Director of Tennis Indian River Plantation

May I borrow the motto of the W.T.A., (Womens Tennis Association) 'you've come a long way baby'. Yes, Stuart you really have come a long way. When I say Stuart, I mean Jensen Beach, Rio, Hobe Sound, Indiantown, Tequesta and all of Martin County.

Ten years ago when I saw Stuart for the first time, it was less than a one pro town, ZIP. I was not officially a pro. Twelve years ago a tennis pro was just above a third class citizen. Eight years ago, tennis pro's moved all the way up, so I said to myself, 'self, why not turn pro and get paid for doing what I have enjoyed all my life.'

I started at the Y.C.C.S., Dagne Jochem was my first paid lesson, I had been doing it for free and the fun of it for 25 years. And now look at Stuart, tennis courts everywhere, half a dozen tennis clubs and at least a dozen tennis pros.

Indian River Plantation has hosted the W.T.A. Avon Laides tournament, American Express mens. tourney, which by the way was the springboard for over 18 men and women, at Wimbledon this year. Just completed the 4th Annual Martin County Tennis Championships, and in celebration of National Tennis Week, this year we had the 1st Annual Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles Champs. So this week, right here in Stuart, Fla. we have seen over 200 local tennis players participating in local tournament play. Ten years ago it wasn't too easy to find a fourth for doubles.

I hope I am around to read '15 years ago' in the Mirror when they compare this with then.

Here is the way it went, starting Friday evening, we got in 13 matches. Saturday at 8 a.m., 22 warriors decended on 11 battlefields, each field fencing in an area of 120' X 60'. In the Ladies 'C' singles, Joan Hrnagel, Debra Datz, Nancy Kenna, Marybeth Schambach, Lucille Howard, Barbara Brown, Felicia Froehling, and Annie Marquadt did battle. The finals saw Frank Froehling's girl friend Debra Datz batling for almost four hours against Frank's daughter Felicia. Poor Frank stood at the net the whole time keeping score and peace in the family. Datz def. Froehling 6-3, 3-6, 6-4. The finals of the C doubles was rained out and will be completed next Monday. Finalists are Patty Abraham & Elaine Mier VS Datz & Froehling.

Ladies 'B' singles included Leigh Ann Neild, Ann Dolan, Glinda McKinney, Merlynn Johnston, Gwen Henry, Camille Kiel, Audrey Dunn, Fiona Stow, Helen Meyers, Robin Poux and Linda Turner. Stow def. a scrappy Neild in the finals 6-4, 6-2.

Ladies 'B' doubles saw the 'bobsie twins' Nye & Neubauer def. a team with more experience, Jean Wamnes & Ann Munson 6-2, 6-3.

Ladies 'A' singles saw Dick Campbell's 'roomie' Sally, def. Rhea Cemer 6-3, 6-1. Sally was up to her old tricks again, pushing one more and then one more until Rhea finally missed. Rhea def. Beth Grossnickle and Sue Sbcweer. The rest of the field included Rita Nelson, Denise Bennett, Suzanne Howard & Alice Purkey.

Ladies 'A' doubles was hotly contested. Montgomery & Montgomery def. Howard & Howard 0-6, 6-2, 7-6 (7-5). That was a mother and daughter VS sisters. Tate and Garramore def. McCarthy & Fox 7-6, (7-5) 6-1. Cemer & Evans def. Miles & Pate 6-2, 6-1. Blackard & Socker def. Falkenburg & Woods 2-6, 6-2, 7-5. The Montgomery's def. Blackard & Socker in the finals 6-3, 6-3.

Men's 'B' singles included Jim Hogan, Gerard Wach, Jan Fredin, Neil Bowan (playing in his pre-honeymoon tournament) John McCaskill, Tom Burns, Timothy Parks. Stephan Dutcher, Roger Kenna, Larry McCaskill, Joey Dieffenbach (brother of my chief line sweeper Jeff), Richard Gaskalla, Peter Brown, and Louis Taormina (holder of record of shortest match. His back caused him to default after a good warm-up). Joey Dieffenbach finally got control of his worst enemy, himself, and went on to defeat Jim Hogan in the finals 6-4, 6-1.

Mens 'B' doubles. In the semi's Scutari & Hawkins def. Zentz & Henderson 6-4, 4-6, 6-2. Burns & Stanislaw def. the Dieffenbachs 6-1, 6-2. Then big Frank & Bill were in a hurry to get to the bar, so they poured it on Tom & George 6-1, 6-2 to take the finals.

Mens 'C' singles. John Kavanagh def. Boyd Bradfield 6-2, 6-4. I really enjoyed passing out these trophies, as I am sure they were first's.

Mens 'C' doubles. Bradfield and Oliver def. Mack and John McCaskill 6-3, 3 6-1.

Mens 'A' singles. The draw included Bill Oughterson, Larry Goins, Pat McFarland, Andy McKinney, Scott Henderson, Brenden McCarthy, Ed Gibson, Jr., Nick McIver, Doug Johnson, Lee Abraham, William Coulton, Mike McBride, Paul Bromstrup and Ken Rickson. Ken outlasted Doc Gibson 6-0, 2-0 (def.) to take the 'A' title. That's O.K. Doc, it's a small battle on a hot day, and now you can come back again on a cooler day. Bill Dunne knows about this, almost the hard way. I was soaking wet all day long and just watching.

Mens 'A' doubles. Lots of good hot action in this event. Rickson & Oughterson had their hands full in defeating Hahn and Tilton 6-4, 5-7, 7-6, (7-5). Tilton & Hahn had a good warm up against Abraham & Tate 2-6, 6-0, 6-3. Grossnickle & Ponder def. McKinney & Newsome 6-4, 6-3, then Ed Gibson III and Ed Gibson Jr. went down 3-6, 6-4, 6-4. The finals got under way, completing one set before the rains came. Elbow grease needed Saturday for Center

Efforts to spruce up the Jensen ach Community Center will resume this Saturday, and volunteers are heartily invited to pitch in.

Mary Meissner and Susan Schott are spearheading the effort and will be on hand Saturday to supply some of their own elbow grease.

ORE THAN A MOUTHFUL.—This youngster bit off a little more than he could ow during the watermelon eating contest at the Fourth of July celebration on the Jensen Beach Causeway. The event was sponsored by the Jensen Beach Optimist Club and proved to be a popular one among the younger set.

"We'll start at 8 a.m. and work until noon. In the summer heat, we've found it just gets too hot to accomplish much in the afternoon, but we hope to make some real progress in the morning," said Meissner.

A few weeks ago, a team of volunteers scraped paint off most of the lower portion of the front of the building. This Saturday, the volunteers will bring ladders to tackle the upper portion.

"We have a few ladders lined up, but could use more, so if anyone would like to bring a ladder along, or, better yet, some scaffolding, we would welcome it. It would also help if volunteers could bring paint scrapers and wire brushes," Meissner said.

"The old community center has been a landmark in Jensen Beach for years, and has been neglected for quite some time. Aside from occasional use by local Boy Scouts and the Jensen Beach Garden Club, the building stand empty. Organizers of the drive to spruce up the building are hopeful that when improvements are made, it will once again, become a true community center, used frequently for social and civic functions.

"It has gotten to the point where the old building has become an eyesore. It doesn't give visitors, or even locals, a good impression of our downtown area. I can't blame anyone for wanting to meet elsewhere. But rather than see it continue to deteriorate, we felt it should be fixed up. The building has been a part of Jensen Beach for years, and with some work, it can become a vital part of the community again. It's a great opportunity for residents to demonstrate their community pride," Meissner said.

None of the volunteers have much experience in renovating buildings, but they have a willingness to work.

"We have found some boards around the doors and windows will need replacing. If anyone has any boards and carpentry skills they'd like to provide, we could sure use them," she added.

"The clean-up project is an open-ended proposition. There is much to be done to the Center, and how much gets done depends on how much the community cares. The building needs a new roof and new paint, and architect Phil Braden has drafted plans for renovating the inside. He did that for free, but it will take money and hard work to implement those plans. Braden's drawings call for new restrooms, an office and a kitchen. It may take a while to accomplish everything in the plans, but if people care, it can be done," Meissner said.

A fund has been started for the improvement project, and donations are tax deductable. Anyone who would like to contribute can do so by making check payable to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Community Center Fund and mailing it to the chamber office at 1910 N.E. Commercial St., Jensen Beach, Fla. 33457. To date, donations of $100 each have been received from Ginny Scranton of Joan's Beauty Salon in Jensen and from Anita Wacha of Jensen. And Fred Keller, owner of The Paint Shed in Jensen, has agreed to donate Benjamin Moore paint for the center.

C. F. "Lucky" Shawver of Shawver Construction Company in Jensen has volunteered to replace windows and give advise on other restoration problems, Meissner announced Tuesday. "He has been made a member of the improvement committee and should prove to be very helpful. We're very pleased to have him with us," Meissner said.

Multi-family, business, rental districts are in plan for OBP

Sometime in the future, the town of esen Breeze Park may have multi-ily housing units, a business trict, and a rental mobile home ea.

All of those features are included in e town's comprehensive plan, now in e hands of state officials awaiting view.

A few years back, the state andated that all city and county vernmental units come up with a mprehensive plan for future devel-ment. The original deadline for sub-tting the plans was last July, but any governments, including Ocean reeze, were given a one-year exten-on on the deadline.

Dagne Jochem of Economic and nd Development Consultant Serv-es drafted the town's plan and hand livered it to state officials in April. hey were supposed to have to eview it and return it with comments thin 60 days, but they're late," she id.

However, Jochem said she expected adverse comments from state offi-als on the plan.

Last month, the Treasure Coast Re-onal Planning Council reviewed the an and found it generally acceptable. egional planning staff members did te that the plan "does not address conomic feasibility, economic as-mptions or fiscal proposals," for pital improvements.

The staff members also commented. The town reports in the Land Use an that multi-family housing is uired in the future, and an area on e land use map is designated for this e. It appears, however, that the nincorporated areas surrounding the ultifamily designation are made up f single-family residences. The town ould review this situation and avoid any conflict in land uses with Martin County which may arise."

Jochem responded by pointing out that there was no need for an elaborate statement as to economic feasibilities for capital improvements, as the town is owned by one man, Gene Hoke, and that "plans for improvements come out of his pocket. They just have to understand that this town is different from any other place."

She said once the plan is returned to town officials for formal adoption, the town council would likely make a statement about economic feasibilities for capital improvements while adopting the plan. And, she said of the capital improvements that may be in store for the town, widening of Indian River Drive and construction of bike paths, Hoke has indicated a willingness to work with county officials.

The widening of Indian River Drive would be out of town jurisdiction, as it is a state road, and Jochem said Hoke is willing to go along with proposals to build a bike path through the town as soon as the county gets other portions of the bike path lined up "so the bike path in the town would have something to connect to."

As for the multi-family housing area, Jochem said she didn't know whether it would be condominiums or simply more mobile homes. She also said she didn't know when a rental section for mobile homes would be added to the town or when any businesses would be built in the land designated as a business district.

"All of that depends on the economic realities of any given time," she said.

The area designated for multi-families is west of the FEC track and adjacent to the Jensen Highlands and Legion Heights tracts, south of Commercial Street. The business district is in an area immediately west of the tracks and south of Commercial, where sand excavation has been taking place for a number of months. South of that is the area designated for the rental trailer park.

Types of businesses listed as permissible in the business district include food stores and a large number of retail businesses typically found in this community. Some businesses included in the list seem to be somewhat out of character for the town or the location of the land, such as day care centers, amusement arcades, feed stores, golf courses, marinas, race tracks, and skating rinks. However, Jochem said just because something is included in the list does not mean it will be built.

"The plan is forever and ever, so you have to cover yourself for anything you might want to do anytime," she said, adding that the list is "a standard list."

The plan states that the town contains about 90 acres, 48.5 of which are now vacant. As of last December, the town had 674 housing units and an adult population of 1,065, with no pre-school and school aged residents.

The plan projects there will be 800 housing units and 1,260 residents by 1985 and 1,000 housing units and 1,580 and residents by 1990.

Hardees now open

The first fast-food chain restaurant Jensen Beach, Hardees Hamburg-, opened for business Tuesday orning.

Mike Petrullo, director of opera-ons for the Hardees franchise from oward County to Indian River ounty, said the new restaurant is affed by 43 employees, including four managers, and that it will be open from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. on weekdays and from 7 a.m. to midnight on weekends.

In addition to hamburgers, the restaurant will offer roast beef sandwiches, hot dogs, chili dogs, and a breakfast menu.

County will fund deputies for island

Hutchinson Island should become a safer place to live sooner than was originally expected.

In the wake of a wave of vandalism at public beaches and complaints from island residents of persons trespassing on their land, county officials called for beefed up Sheriff's deputy patrols of the island.

Martin County Sheriff James Holt responded by telling county commissioners that he would be asking for a $400,000 budget hike for the coming fiscal year. He noted that much of that money would go to providing four additional deputies for the island and to pay for their equipment.

But at a preliminary budget session recently, Holt announced that because his department will be getting a state grant for additional deputies, he wouldn't be needing all that money from the county. Needless to say, commissioners were pleasantly surprised.

Holt explained that since I-95 is not built in Martin County and this means more traffic on local roads, the state was granting money to his department for additional deputies.

That grant is due to start when the new fiscal year starts, on October 1.

However, as a result of county commission action Tuesday, it looks like the additional deputies will be joining the department sooner than planned.

"Because of the response and reception the sheriff got from the people of Hutchinson Island and the commissioners, I asked the sheriff to come up with figures on what it would cost to start with the added deputies now, instead of waiting for Oct. 1," said county commissioner Frank Wacha.

He said that if the state funds came in in October, it would be November or December before new men could be hired and trained. He said he was hopeful that commissioners could come up with enough money to go ahead and fund the hiring of the four additional men right away, then let state funding take over in October.

A Sheriff's department official said Tuesday afternoon that the commissioners came up with the money to do that.

PGA Open tournament this weekend at Sandpiper Bay

When Rich Bassett of Hialeah won the 1977 Florida PGA Open at Sandpiper Bay Resort in Port St. Lucie, he had a 72 hole total of 276 for two trips each around the Saints and Sinners courses.

The following year Tony Valentine of Fort Lauderdale shot 275, and last summer Larry Mowry of Maitland totaled 272.

That's 12, 13 and 16 under par, respectively — pretty good numbers for comparative no-names.

Except for Mowry, who is defending his Colorado Open title this week, most of the winners in recent years will be at Sandpiper Bay this weekend to battle it out for the 36th Annual Florida Open title. And, local residents will get to view the competition for free. It starts Thursday and runs through Sunday.

Pre-dating the Florida Open's current tenure at Sandpiper Bay, most of the recent champions have entered this year, including Jim King (1971, 1976), Lee Wylie (1975), Charles Owens (1974) and Billy Maxwell (1978).

Others include W. A. "Dub" Pagne, the 1960 champion, and J. C. Goosie, winner of the Florida Open the first time it was played at Sandpiper Bay — at the time known as the Port St. Lucie County Club, in 1963.

King, Wylie, Owens, Maxwell and Goosie at one time or another were tour players, too.

Though the margins of victory by Bassett, Valentine and Mowry were by one, three and two strokes, in order, traditionally the competition here has been close down to the last few holes.

For the past three years the tournament has been played at Sandpiper Bay. Miami club professional Gary Baker, a former tourist, has been in the top 10 each time. Others who have challenged frequently include former U.S. Amateur champion Bruce Fleisher, past National Club Professionals titlist Laurie Hammer, and Julius Boros, twice the U.S. Open king.

So for all of its detractors who may criticize the caliber of its field, the Florida Open has no apologies to make. With traditionally a full field of 360 players, and with a purse in the neighborhood of $40,000, it is always one of the biggest and best in the country each year.

It's those who don't play who share the regrets, not the Florida Open.

"You can get low numbers out of no names," Dean Refram was saying when someone once questioned the lack of "stars" playing in the Florida Open golf tournament.

It was on the eve of the 1977 tournament, the first of four in a row at the Sandpiper Bay Resort. It was played opposite a "designated" tournament on the pro golf tour.

The tour's premier players who live in Florida and would be eligible to compete — the Nicklauses, the Floyds, the Beans and the Burns, for example — had to be elsewhere that week.

This year's Florida Open is played opposite the Greater Milwaukee Open. While not a designated tournament, Milwaukee precedes the British Open by one week. With most of the game's superstars headed overseas, many others are looking at their absence as a chance to make a killing on the domestic tour, much as Calvin Peete of Clewiston did with his victory at Suds City last summer.

Perhaps the Florida Open has not attracted the current "name" players in recent years, but it certainly has not lacked for the ability to create its own superstars.

"You might be surprised at how good some of these young players are who are here this week," Refram, a former tour player from Wesley Chapel, was saying in 1977.

The same statement could be repeated here this week.

Freeholders want zone change on PSL Drive frontage

BY MICHELLE NASPINSKI

Members of the Indian River Drive Freeholders Association are asking Port St. Lucie Officials to take another look at the land use element of their new Comprehensive Plan and eliminate what the Freeholders consider to be an inconsistency with St. Lucie County's land use plan.

The request concerns a three-quarter mile strip of South Indian River Drive frontage, north of Walton Road, that was annexed by Port St. Lucie in 1973 and zoned Planned Unit Development (PUD), a classification that may allow up to 12 units per acre, according to city planner Steve Renninger.

"As the annexed land, which is part of a 230 acre PUD tract, lies adjacent to county territory zoned for single family, low density development, the Freeholders consider the situation a dangerous case of spot zoning.

"This breech in Drive zoning is a threat to the entire area — now there are some 360 residential units on the entire Drive," explained John Mack, chairman of the Freeholders' zoning committee, "this one tract, which was annexed by Port St. Lucie, could conceivably support over 3,000 units.

"With this traffic exiting on Indian River Drive, it is not hard to envision the results — a hazardous nightmare of traffic congestion the entire length of the Drive."

Freeholders' attorney Gerald James notified the Port St. Lucie city planner, by letter, of the property owners' request for redesignation of land fronting the Drive to single family zoning.

Although the attorney did not request to appear before the city council with an official request for rezoning, James did say that the Freeholders will be represented at the upcoming Comprehensive Plan public hearings. At this time, James said, the Indian River Drive Freeholders' Association will request that the city's land use map be changed so as to indicate that the annexed parcel in question is limited to single family, low density development.

Renninger explained, however, that even if the map was changed as requested, this would have no legal bearing on the use of the annexed property, as the city will not be formally adopting the proposed land use map as part of its Comprehensive Plan.

As it is presently zoned, the Drive property annexed by the city could not be developed without city council approval as to the density and type of development. If a project is proposed that consists of 750 units or more, it would be considered a Development of Regional Impact (DRI) and would require review by the Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council.

Renninger disputed the Freeholders' claim that the parcel was spot zoned, saying, "I don't consider the zoning of any parcel as large as 230 acres to be an instance of spot zoning."

The city planner also maintained that the council will have to consider any development on this parcel closely, as it will have a substantial impact on Indian River Drive traffic situation and on the preservation and protection of the Savannas, which the property abuts.

The annexed property is owned by NGH Investments Inc. and Bankers Life and Casualty Company, which is represented locally by attorney Bob Seeley.

Seeley confirmed that the owners have not set any definite plans for immediate development of this parcel, however he mentioned that there has been talk of building in the future a "high quality, low density cluster of townhouses" on the site.

Seeley said the eventual proposed development would consist of a golf course-country club facility, with other recreational amenities (that he termed "a high class development."

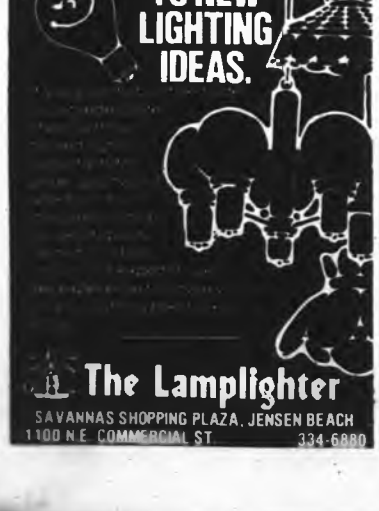
"I'm sure the density will be far less than is allowed under a PUD zoning," commented Seeley, "the owners recognize that this is an area of environmental concern."

The attorney also maintained that the owners of the annexed parcel will continue to support the present PUD zoning.

"The owners of this property have spent considerable money and effort to obtain the PUD zoning," said Seeley, "they would not like to see it changed."

The Indian River Drive Freeholders Association would like to see the zoning changed to single-family, however, and are expected to continue their efforts to have that done.

If their efforts are centered on amending the Port St. Lucie land use map though, they will have been exercised in vain. For, according to city planner Renninger, the city is not and — for the time being — will not be legally required to adhere to the proposed zoning outlined in the map.



TERMINE LaFLAIR

Employee of year named at Sandpiper

The first year of the sandpiper bay "Employee of the Month" program concluded with a dinner-dance, to which the 68 employees nominated during the year and their guests were invited.

The highlight of the evening was the announcement of the two employees chosen as "Employee of the Year." One employee was selected from the back of the house (non-guest contact) and one from the front of the house (guest-contact).

The announcement of the two winners was made by Robert F. Ehrling, General Development Company President and Chief Executive Officer. Myrna Termine, accounting office, took home the honors for the non-guest contact employee. Myrna, her husband, Jack, and their six children are residents of Port St. Lucie and she has been an employee of Sandpiper Bay for one year.

The guest-contact winner was John (J.J.) LaFlair, Golf Starter and Ranger. J.J., his wife, Althea and their son, Eric, live in Port St. Lucie and he has been employed at Sandpiper Bay for four years.

Both winners received a week vacation for two at the Dutch Inn, Lake Buena Vista, Florida.

Bafalis will seek fifth term in congress

U.S. Rep. L. A. "Skip" Bafalis, Republican from Fort Myers Beach, announced today he has qualified as a candidate for re-election from Florida's 10th Congressional District.

Bafalis said he will seek a fifth term and plans to run on his record.

"During my eight years in the Congress, I have made every effort to assist the people of the 10th District — whether it was in solving a social security problem, helping a veteran, or aiding a community with a vital local project," Bafalis said.

"While helping people may be the most rewarding part of being a congressman, our primary task is to consider and vote on legislation," the Republican lawmaker said.

"During my four terms in Washington I believe my voting record strongly reflects the views and concerns of the people of the 10th District."

Congressman Bafalis was a leader in the effort to give the House of Representatives a voice in the Panama Canal treaties approval. Bafalis and 60 of his colleagues filed suit in federal court to give the House a chance to vote on the issue, but the suit was dismissed by the United States Supreme Court.

He also played a role in congressional efforts to pass anti-busing legislation and a constitutional amendment permitting prayer in schools.

Our open door policy starts here.

It starts with John O'Neill, manager of our Northside office. His door is always open. If you need help with your banking, come in and talk to him. Or Carl Mihaly. Or Dave Skiles. Or Charlie Paul. As Stuart National managers, their doors are always open, too.

With five full-service offices all over town, and more coming, no matter where you are, you're near Stuart National. When you bank at one office, you can bank at all. And, you spend less time and use less gas getting there. That's important, with today's skyrocketing gas prices.

People like John O'Neill make our open door policy work. Like all our managers, he's there when you need him, treating you as a friend and neighbor as well as a customer.

So come to Stuart National. Our doors are open all over town.

It was a fabulous Fourth

Fourth of July festivities at the Jensen Beach Causeway offered an afternoon of hot fun in the sun and an evening of dazzling brilliance in the sky.

Thousands of local residents and visitors participated in the gala celebration of the nation's 204th birthday, and from all accounts, it was a very successful occasion.

Sheriff James Holt said that while there were a few traffic snarls and a few boisterous celebrants, this year's event went off very smoothly compared to many in previous years, and was especially better than last year's celebration, when a number of fights broke out on the causeway.

The sheriff put his entire staff on duty for the occasion and said that traffic seemed to move faster this year than last. "When you have that many people all in the same area, you are bound to have some traffic tie-ups, but they weren't too bad this year," he noted.

Crowds began flocking to the causeway Thursday night and the flow of celebrants continued throughout Friday. The causeway was packed with cars and the Independence Day celebrants spent the afternoon cooking, swimming, fishing, competing in the many activities provided by civic groups, and listening to music.

The weather was hot and clear, making for a fine day of boating off the causeway.

Activities got underway at 1 p.m. with VFW Post 10066 of Jensen conducting a flag-raising ceremony.

The Jensen Beach Lions Club sponsored foot races during the festivities at the causeway. There was some confusion in recording the results of the races, as the kids wrote their own names on the winner's list, but here is a partial list of the winners.

Grouda Jacobs finished first and Tiwanda Davis placed second in the 50 yard dash for girls six to 10 years old. In the 100 yard dash for girls 11 to 15 years old, one heat was won by Joy Zurawski and one heat was won by Tammy Graham. In the second heat, Joy placed second.

Keith Davis and Charles Lumpkin each won heats in the 50 yard dash for boys six to 10 years old, with Ron Filipkowski taking a second in one of those heats.

In the 100 yard dash for boys 11 to 15 years old, Stanley Jackson won and Quinton Jacobs placed second.

There were no last names available in the 25 yard runs for boys and girls three to five years old, but Randi placed first and Stephanie second among the girls and Tommy won the boys race.

In the 50-yard potato race for girls six to 10, Katie Hughes was first and Patsy Torrie was second. In the same competition for the boys, Ron Flipkowski won twice, Keith Davis won once, and Rick Weigett won once.

Quinton Jacobs and Stanley Jackson each took firsts and Shane Graham was second in the potato race for boys 11 to 15 years old.

In the 50-yard sack race for six to 10 year old youngsters, Gronda Jacobs and Kim Russer took firsts while Jennifer Hughes and Tiwanda Davis took seconds for the girls. Charles Lumpkin and Carl Lumpkin each won firsts for the boys, while David Rare and Joe Maiella each took seconds.

Dawn Meyers was first and Tammy Graham and Laura Mathews were second place finishers in the 100-yard sack race for girls 11 to 15.

In the same race for the boys, Stanley Jackson and Mak Arbour won first place honors.

Willeena Holmes was first and Pat Dickey was second in the first mother's 50-yard dash, while in the second heat it was Cecelia Hodge in first and Jane Donnelly in second.

Dennie Carter was first and Dave Corrigan was second in the father's 100-yard race.

In a special race for three to five year old kids, Tommy Hughes was first and Stephanie George was second.

Results of the popular watermelon eating contest are also incomplete, but in the five and under age group, Matt Smith gobbled the melon fastest. Joe Maiella won the six to eight year old competition, while Barry Frette won the 12-15 year old division. The contest was sponsored by the Jensen Beach Optimist Club.

The Jensen Volunteer Fire Department sponsored it's annual greased pole climb. A lot of youngsters gave it a good try, but the first ones in line quickly found that they should have flocked to the back of the line. Each climber were off a little more grease, helping the next competitor. Finally, Brian McQuill made it all the way up and plucked a $10 bill from the top of the pole.

The big event, of course, was the fireworks show at night. The show was, as usual, spectacular. Aerial blasts and impressive ground displays, including a 20-foot pinwheel that may qualify for mention in the Guinness Book of World Records, brought lots of oohs and aahs from the crowd.

The causeway and Indian River Drive, as well as many side streets, were jammed with an estimated 10,000 spectators. Many favorable comments about the show were heard following the 210-shot finale.

Not only was the fireworks show a visual success, but it was also a monetary success. A couple of weeks ago it looked like contributions for the show would fall short of the mark, jeopardizing future shows. But folks pitched in and Jensen Chamber executive Director Dennis Doyle said that with only a few bills for expenses to come in, the show was put on at a cost of $5,616 and that contributions totaled $8,505.

"The expense figure will be a little higher than that when all bills are in, but the income figure will be higher too, as the Kiwanis Club and Moose Lodge contributions from their concession stands aren't in yet," Doyle said.

In addition to donations of $700 or more already reported by the Chamber, Doyle listed these contributors: Perry Cable, $250; Ocean Breeze Park, $200; A and W Inc. of Jensen, $100; Lindahl, Browning and Ferrari, Inc., $100; and 707 Nursery, $100.

Jensen Park Estates approval expected from county today

Barring any unforseen last-minute problems, Martin County commissioners were expected to grant approval Wednesday morning to the final plat for phase one of the Jensen Park Estates subdivision on Savanna Road.

Bob Coy, developer of the project, said he fully expected the commission to grant the approval, and said as soon as that is done, work on the housing project will begin.

Coy noted that the first phase calls for 116 single-family homes and that when all four phases of the project are complete, Jensen Park Estates will contain 410 homes.

"We hope to have phase one completed in 18 months and have already pre-sold 12 units," he said.

The project is to feature a central water and sewer system and to have homes in the low $50,000 to $70,000 price range.

Lots will be about a quarter acre in size, Coy said, adding that it is one of few developments in the area to offer lots that size. The homesites are selling for $12,500 to $15,000, and Coy said if the project is like his past developments of Sarita Heights and Lake Charlotte, it will contain a population of about 35 to 40 per cent retirees and the balance will consist of "middle-class working people."

Coy said the project has a large boulevard entrance and extends about half a mile west of Savanna Road.

Karen Avery is on dean's list

Karen Leslie Avery, daughter of Norma Avery, 17 Middle Road, Jensen Beach, was named to the dean's list for the spring quarter at Emory University in Atlanta. Miss Avery was cited for "superior academic achievement."

OBP residents to miss Kitchin

Residents of Ocean Breeze Park were saddened recently to learn of the death of Raymond "Mort" Kitchin, who left the park a couple of months ago to return to his home in Lambertville, N.J.

Kitchin, 71, died following a long illness. Park resident and close friend Carl Engle says he will be missed by his many friends here.

Engle said Kitchin lived in the park for many years and is survived by his wife, Dorothy, and two brothers. One of his brothers, Randy, is a winter resident of the park.

Funeral services were conducted in Lambertville by th Rev. David Errickson of the Lambertville Wesleyan Church. Burial was in the Riverview Cemetery in Lambertville.

Sandpiper hosts Lizard Race event

The fourth annual Lizard Races crawled across the grounds of Sandpiper Bay Sunday, when hotel guests and country club members turned out to honor the speediest reptile.

In contrast to some of the grander Sandpiper sponsored events, such as the tennis and golf tournaments, the Lizard Race was a small, all for fun, basically unprestigious event, open to local chameleons only.

Ten contestants, ranging in age from five to 16 years old, turned out with their scale-clad pets to participate in the races.

The lizards were turned loose in a specially designed, two-lane, wood and pexiglass structure and the first to cross the finish line won.

Some of the changeling reptiles stood quite still and appeared somewhat bewildered at the raving humans who shouted encouragements, while pounding the top of the plexiglass track.

Other more cooperative chameleons either understood what was expected of them or simply ran for their lives and quickly outpaced their confused competitors.

Overall winner of the Lizard Race was Port St. Lucie native Speedy Gonzales, who was caught and trained by owners Dee Ann Eakew and Justin Smith.

Sandpiper activities director Wendy Bowers, who was responsible for organizing the race, commented that it was an "all family event."

"They were out all morning trying to catch lizards," recalled Bower. "It was pretty bizarre to see fathers crawling through the bushes after some poor chameleon."

Some 25 spectators turned out to watch the reptile marathon — one of the smallest crowds yet to attend the annual event. The activity director explained that at least 50 people usually attend the spectacle and decided that this year's low turnout was probably due to the extreme mid afternoon heat that was present Sunday.

But the spectators and participants that did show up certainly did not let a little bit of Florida sunshine stop them from frantically rooting on their favorite lizard.

The owners of Speedy Gonzales were awarded the official Lizard Race trophy, for having chosen such an accomplished chameleon.

Following the races, a contest was held in order to determine who should receive the dubious honor of "Lizard Queen." Six contestants, between the ages of five and nine, entered in all, although this title was claimed by only one — eight year old Davina Race, a guest at the resort.

Davina received the official cloak of royalty — the one and only Lizard Queen T-shirt.

For those who attended or participated, the Sandpiper Lizard Races were obviously the perfect ending to a long Independence Day, weekend.

THE BEST WAY TO MAKE MONEY FAST

QUESTION: I have often heard of the great fortunes which have been made by people who invested in real estate. The more I look at properties offered for sale, the more mystified I become. Almost all of the properties that I have been offered look like good investments. But I have yet to see any on which I could make a quick killing. Why is that? Do insiders buy up all the gold mines?"

ANSWER: Perhaps you should examine your concept of investing in real estate. It sounds like you have been looking at "investments" when you should be looking for "speculations."

There is an old axiom shared by real estate practitioners which says that risk and reward are totally inter twined.

By this they mean that you will be highly rewarded if you are willing to take more risk.

Your question reminds me of a recent cartoon I saw in which a well-dressed man was telling his stock broker that he wanted to "take a flyer one sure thing."

There are many opportunities for making large sums of money in real estate. These often lie in creating a new, more valuable use for a property, such as converting an idle warehouse to rental apartments, condominiums or cooperatives.

There are many opportunities, but you must recognize that the bigger rewards go to those who are willing to assume a larger degree of risk.

White City to replace old bridge

The Department of Transportation has announced plans to replace the old bridge over the North Fork of St. Lucie River on White City Road.

Application for the new bridge was made by St. Lucie County to the U.S. Coast Guard for a fixed highway bridge over the river, because of the eroding condition of the present span.

The bridge, approximately 178.2 feet in length, will be 43.3 feet wide, and will have a four-foot sidewalk on the south side for pedestrian traffic. It would have a clearance of 9.48 feet, allowing river traffic for small craft. The clearance between pile caps is set at 30 feet.

The project also includes excavation of approximately 15 cubic yards of material above mean high water, and placement of some 10 cubic yards below mean high water.

The present bridge will be completely removed, which will mean an extended period of detour around the construction. Traffic will be routed to the north by utilizing Hrwley Road and Bell Avenue, and Prima Vista to the south.

Application has been made to the State of Florida Department of Environment Regulation for Water Quality Certification, according to G. M. Montanese Jr., Lt. Cmdr. of the U.S. Coast Guard. The project has also been researched with the U.S. Department of Interior, Fish and Wildlife Services and other agencies concerned with threat to wildlife or endangered species.

St. Lucie County Engineer Mark Baggett said Tuesday that the bridge construction will probably get under way in four to five months. The request is now in Washington for further consideration by the Coast Guard. When the red tape is wound up, bids will be let for construction, Baggett said.

Be prepared to apply for Social Security

BY BRUCE FERGUSON
SSA Field Representative

Do you plan to apply soon for social security benefits? If so, there are certain things you should know.

Both you and any eligible dependents will need your social security cards. And you'll need to present official copies of birth certificates or baptismal certificates recorded before the age of five. As a wage earner of self-employed person, you also need your 1978 and 1979 W-2 forms (Wage and Tax Statements) or self-employment tax returns because earnings for those years will not yet appear on your social security earnings record.

"Inquire before you retire" is particularly good advice if your retirement plans are uncertain. For example, you may be undecided on whether to start drawing reduced benefits BEFORE 65 or wait and get your full amount at 65. You may want to know more about how your benefit can be increased by delaying your retirement until AFTER 65.

You can continue to do some work after retirement without losing any benefits. How much you can make depends on your age.

If you are age 65 or older in 1980, you can earn $5,000 this year and receive all of your benefits. This figure increases to $5,500 in 1981 and $6,000 in 1982. After that, it will increase automatically to keep pace with increased in average wages.

If you are under 65 in 1980, you can earn $3,720 and receive all benefits for the year. This amount will increase automatically in future years to keep pace with increases in annual wages. For earnings over $3,720, benefits will be reduced $1 for every $2 of excess earnings.

You should also remember that only earnings from work count for social security purposes under the retirement test. Thus, savings, investments, or rental income, for example, do not count.

If you are nearing 65, you should know that you do not have to retire to get Medicare protection. But you must apply for it. And this should be done 2 or 3 months before you are 65 so you will receive full coverage at the earliest possible time.

Keep in mind that most social security business can be handled by phone. Even your application for benefits may now be taken by phone. The best time to call is on a Wednesday or Thursday afternoon during the last half of the month. The phone number is 283-5700 or 464-5700.

BOYS STATE--Jensen Beach American Legion Post Commander Tom Flanagan was on hand last week to give five Martin County youths a send-off for the Boys State program in Tallahassee. The program is designed to acquaint the boys with the workings of the state legislature. The five boys were selected for their outstanding scholastic ability and spent a week in Tallahassee. Shown above, from the left, are: Flanagan, John Bee, Clayton Grant, Bob Taylor, Paul Calkins and Julie Hawkins.

HARDEES HAMBURGERS employees were busy Monday afternoon learning how to handle complex orders on their computer cash registers. Shown above, from the left, are: Dawn Pecci, Sandy Kozik, assistant manager Rich Buttner and Barbara Lassiter. The restaurant, Jensen's first fast-food chain store, opened for business Tuesday morning.

Leslie Lutton on Dean's List

Approximately 1,800 students at Florida State University made the Dean's List for the Spring quarter.

The Dean's List is an honor roll of students whose grade averages are "A" or "B" for all courses taken during the quarter.

Included on the list is Leslie Ann Lutton of 1917 S E. Rodwing Circle, Port St. Lucie.

Moore completes 11-week course

Marine Pfc. David J. Moore, son of Samuel E. Moore of 184 NE Caprona, Port St. Lucie, has completed the Aviation Electrician's Mate Course.

The 11-week course was conducted at the Naval Air Technical Training Center, Millington, Tenn. The concentrated training program is designed to provide an introductory understanding of electrical theory and circuitry, and serves to prepare trainees to perform basic electrical maintenance on jet aircraft.

Students received classroom instruction on, and studied the operating procedures for, electrohydraulic and automatic flight control systems, plus power generation and distribution systems.

He joined the Marine Corps in August, 1979.

Candidates to speak to America First

A great fireworks

The people responded as they should, the volunteers did their usual fantastic job, and the fireworks in the 1980 Independence Day celebration at the Jensen Causeway were fantastic...as usual.

The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce reported Monday that the donations had surpassed the $5,000 goal for the fireworks show, with about $800 left over to start the fund for next year.

The three-month effort of many men working with Bill Yurillo produced a great fireworks show. The ground displays brought many gasps, and the sky thundered with reports of aerial displays.

It gave everyone involved in a full day of activity a deep feeling of pride that the thousands of visitors received a spectacular and enriching show.

We salute those who worked so hard, and those who gave so much, for continuing the prestige of Jensen Beach as having the finest Independence Day celebration in Florida.

Welcome back, mini

According to the latest from Europe, the mini-skirt is coming back. The hemline is going up, as will the spirits of fellow male chauvinists.

We remember the days of the mini-skirts. They were wonderful days.

However, with every prize must come responsibility. That responsibility must take to task the rules of women wearing a mini-skirt.

First, don't wear one until after you are 16 years of age.

Secondly, don't wear one when you are over 40, unless you have the figure of a Vogue model with a bust.

Third, it helps to have an hourglass figure, where the sand has not all run to the bottom of the glass.

Fourth, don't pay any attention to people who stare.

The uprising of the mini-skirt was reported by Miami Herald financial editor Mark Russell, who said that a Wall Street firm had matched the length of women's skirts to the Dow Jones Industrial Average. And, since 1807, the hemline has followed the rise and fall of the stock market.

He quotes a market analyist as saying, "Based on the Dow Jones average, the last two years of market behavior have been quite erratic, to say the least. Of course, this has been the period when the slit skirt has prevailed...now you see it, now you don't. It's more enticing than real."

We look forward to a rise in the stock market.

The Martin County tax roll revealed value of $180,272,226 in the county, with a mill worth $121,288.

Don Wilkie was "The Spirit of 76" on the Jensen Chamber float in the Stuart July 4 parade. On the Jensen Causeway, Phil Baker was chairman of a day of games, capped by fireworks.

Sirloin steak was $1.09 a pound, chuck steak, 58 cents a pound, leaf lettuce, two bunches for 29 cents, and coffee 38 cents a pound can.

Al Walker and Frank Wacha spent all day emceeing the Jensen Causeway celebration. (Some things never change...they did it this year.)

And, it was 15 years ago that Frank Wacha asked the county to "top" the australian pines on the causeway for the fireworks celebration, and then left town for a few days. When he got back, the county crews had done such a good job the trees were about 10-feet high and naked stumps with no foliage. With everyone upset, Frank announced in the Mirror the mistake, and said, "If you want to be made at someone, let it be me."

Construction of a nuclear power plant on Hutchinson Island received approval of the atomic energy commission. A 1973 completion date was named.

The US Census report was called a scandal by county officials. With over 40,000 residents being serviced by the Stuart offices in the county the Census Bureau put the county population at 38,992.

Frank Wacha and Al Walker were pictured announcing the July 4 activities on the Jensen Causeway.

At a Troop 801 court of honor, Tom Littman received his life badge, and David Pollard and Barkley Butterfield received their star ranks.

Chuck steak was 69 cents a pound, iceberg lettuce, two heads for 39 cents, and coffee was 58 cents a pound can.

The county tax roll was set at $256,789,993, and a mill was worth $242,000.

Jensen Beach merchants combined on a promotion that paid a million "Jensen Savannas Bucks" to shoppers. The special "bucks" were later used to bid on valuable prizes.

"The Spirit of '76" was the theme of the first Jensen Chamber July 4 parade from Commercial Street to the Causeway. And, Frank Wacha and Al Walker were the emcees all afternoon on the Causeway.

Chuck steak was $1.79 a pound, and coffee was 79 cents a pound can.

Ground was broken on the $37,000 expansion program for the Port St. Lucie Community Center.

Don White was parade marshall for the July 4 parade in Port ST. Lucie.

On a once hot issue

Heat.

The heat of Florida, I know, isn't the worst in the world. I've been more desparately uncomfortable during summers in the north– getting up at 3 a.m. to wring the sheets out in Washington, D.C. and spending the good part of the night in a bathtub in Addison, N.Y.

No, Florida heat isn't the worst in the world, but it still can sit down and smother you through the breeziness black of night.

Particularly before the common spread of air conditioning.

I'm remembering back to one particularly breathless period in my Florida life. It was 1961. Many buildings and most homes had air conditioning, but mine didn't. And neither did the old courthouse in Fort Pierce.

The occasion was made unforgettable by what was going on in that courthouse– the murder trial of Judge James Peel for the killing of Palm Beach Judge C.E. Chillingworth.

I'm remembering it particularly because of an ancient and yellowed clipping I pulled out of a book while cleaning my bookcase the other day. It brought back memories of the trial, which had brought to town all the hot-shot writers from big newspapers all over the country.

Among them was Jim Bishop.

I had already developed a fondness for the short, white-haired author-columnist from prior experience. Some months before, he had come to Fort Pierce with the ostensible purpose of investing in some Port St. Lucie property, and it had fallen my lot to interview him. The interview developed into a tenuous friendship, during which he became aware of my penchant for writing poetry.

Jim was at the Peel trial both as a reporter and as columnist. And as columnists will, he used his poetic license to pull his ideas from everywhere.

It had been a particularly dull day at the trial, which dragged out through the pre-Easter heat to the breaking point. His column the next day, in part, read:

"It is 10 p.m. The town is asleep. At the drive-in theatre, one big eye is open.

"On the third floor rear, Joseph Peel, a judge accused of engineering the killing of a judge, sits on the edge of his bunk, looking out at the parking lot below and the Australian Pines across the street, and beyond to the Indian River and the winking stars. He is a bright man, and he has been able to figure out everything like except how to get on the other side of this window.

"A Florida East Coast diesel pours through the city southbound followed by 83 freight cars, a drunken swaying boa constrictor with a headlight. Over at Poor Bob's on Jensen Beach, Ray Stone says: 'Two beers and two liverwurst sandwiches, one with onions please and mustard.'

"The big man with the briefcase– Philip O'Connell, state attorney– walks around the swimming pool of Quality Courts Southernaire to rooms occupied by his legal assistants Mrs. O'Connell calls out: 'they have lights on the putting green, Phil.' She cannot tempt him from his work, which has included four blank indictments, putting them on the inside of barred windows and keeping them there.

"There is a scent of jasmine around the courthouse, but the Negro woman who mops the courthouse floor smells only the ammonia. She knows every stone in this floor and has known them for years.

"On the other side of town, Sally Latham, a writer sits with two pillows propped behind her in bed. She is composing a poem and sometimes a new line comes swiftly, and sometimes it hides and defies her.

"It is 10:30 now, and the street lights stare down at empty macadam and concrete. In the dark, the oranges and grapefruit ripen on the trees, and over at Indian River golf course, a wild duck sits on a nest of reed and contemplates a little lake and freight cars standing on a siding.

"Fort Pierce is quiet. In the silence, I can hear an air conditioner stop."

When I picked up the Miami Herald the next day, I was warmed and thrilled that the great Jim Bishop should have chosen to mention me. Everyone at the office made cute remarks about it, and we let it go at that.

At least I thought the matter was dropped until the mail began to come in. They came, by the dozen, from all over the country– Buffalo, N.Y., Chicago, Ill., Tacoma, Wash., San Francisco, from everywhere, it seemed, that the columnist was syndicated. And all of them asked the same question: "How does Bishop know you use two pillows?"

I retaliated with a poem to Jim to the effect that:

"Here I stand unvindicated–
"A poet who's been syndicated."

But in case there is anyone left in the world who cares one way or the other, he didn't know. I use three pillows.

So that for that hot item of 20 years ago. Back to the beat....

WHAT AGE HAS WISDOM?
BY SALLY LATHAM

I, Thirty, met my counterpart
Of Seventeen. Same mind, same heart,
Same yearning to be wise and great,
Same love to plot a different fate.

I, Thirty, counselled Seventeen
"Look sharp to what your love will mean,
"For love, with all its precious
bliss,
"Can stifle talent with a kiss."

But Thirty's mind and Thirty's heart
From Seventeen are poles
apart.
I heard a thin, far whisper low:
"Did you do thus, in such a year?"

The crazy season begins

Line up, candidates. It's that time again, and the political pot begins to simmer.

From the already tiring campaign for president of the United States to the county commission, there will be many seats to fill. Each candidate is seeking the vehicle (gimmick) that will propel him or her into office.

Bob Graham has already done his one hundred jobs, and Lawton Chiles owns a beat up pair of boots from walking 1,000 miles through Florida, so those fleas are out.

One candidate is going to hold all his meetings in McDonalds, because incumbent Senator Dick Stone wouldn't be seen in one. Skip Bafalis will toss his coat over his shoulder again, and probably be reelected in a landslide.

Lori Wilson will marshall forces to seek a new era in Florida politics as an independent candidate for Senator, and her husband, Al Neuharth, will insist that the editors of the Gannett Newspapers in Florida can pick who they want to endorse. (And, they will.)

Doc Myers will run for just one more term, and Chuck Nergard will do the same. John Holt will wear his cowboy boots and Jim Holt will take his off.

Frank Wacha will stop saying, "If you don't like what I'm doing, you can show it at the polls," and Bud Ragwell will show that he gets no financial aid from the Reeds.

Louise Isaacs will be pretty, prim, proper and all that shy. Peggy Robbins will have a massive voter registration drive. Tom Crook will keep a low profile in his first campaign, and try to keep the millage down. And Augie Mallregeot will blame assessments on the computor.

Carolyn Liebty and David Crandall will try to get people interested in the school board race, and Jim Navitsky will hope people think he is appointed, not elected.

Everyone will have his or her gimmick, and hope that it works. There will be many candidates for the seats of the incumbents listed above. As incumbent friends to retire, it will be up to the people to keep them or elect someone else.

It will be a money battle, and all candidates are now out having cocktail parties and coffee parties, and other fund-raising events to build a war chest for the campaign. Some have been active for several months on the local scene.

Some have already begun the headline-exposure battle, in which all the candidates seek as much free publicity as possible while saving their advertising dollars for later in the campaign. It is still months away to the first primary on September 9. The runoff date is October 7, and the general election is November 4.

So, as the filings begin, watch for the crazy season. Some people will do almost anything to get in the newspapers. Usually, it is the helpers who create the situation that makes news, and all media are aware of what is going on.

We handle it simply. We report when the person files, and run a story and picture of the candidate. Then, at the end of the campaign, we run a synopsis of the candidate's platform. Unlike some other "events" we let the candidate build his platform.

It will be a fun time for all, and a bunch of people will get to organize many different events for the candidates. In the end, we'll have an election, and someone will win while others will lose. How they get there will be the result of their individual campaigns.

Derailment is a public event

Ray W. Wykoff is a very important man.

He must be. It took 10 long-distance phone calls over a period of two weeks before I ever got a chance to talk to him.

Wykoff is senior vice president of operations for Florida East Coast Railway.

I first tried calling him the afternoon of the 20-car FEC train derailment in Jensen Beach, on June 17th. While at the scene of the wreckage, I climbed aboard the train engine and tried to interview the engineer. He politely, but firmly told me to get off the train and said he was not authorized to speak to me. He told me to call Wykoff in St. Augustine.

I called, but his secretary said he was out of town. I asked if anyone else was available for comment and she said no.

Two days later there was a second, minor derailment along the same stretch of track. I called the morning after the derailment, but Wykoff was again out of town.

During the next two weeks, I called a number of times for Wykoff and he was repeatedly either in conference, on another line and not expected to get off anytime soon, or out of town. On several of those occasions I asked if there was anyone else I could talk to and was told there wasn't. I also asked several times if Wykoff could call me, explaining to the secretary my difficulty in reaching him. She replied each time that he could not do that, but did not elaborate as to why that was so.

On Thursday, June 26th, the investigation into the 20-car derailment was completed and a local radio station carried a report on it. Our next paper wasn't due out until the next Wednesday and I was tied up with other work, so I didn't call until the next day. Wykoff's secretary said he was out of town and wouldn't be back until Monday.

I tried on Monday, but he was out of the office and not expected back until the next morning. I explained again that I had been trying numerous times to reach him and that I had heard a statement as to the cause of the derailment had been made. I asked if anyone else could supply that information. The secretary said I'd have to talk to Wykoff and no one else, so I asked what time of day would be best to reach him. "Between 8:15 a.m. and 8:30 a.m.," she replied.

I called the next morning at 8:30 a.m. and was told he was in conference but should be out of it in 30 minutes. I gave him 40 minutes, called back, and was told it would be another 30 minutes before he would be free. Again, I asked if he could return my call. When she said no, I asked why.

"He is a very busy man and gets a lot of calls from reporters and just wouldn't be able to return all of them," she said.

I called back half an hour later and, after a lengthy delay, was connected with Wykoff. It was my 10th call to him and my first connection.

"You're a little late in asking. I gave that information out last week," Wykoff said when I asked the cause of the derailment. I explained that my repeated attempts to reach him had been in vain and he commented that he was out of town often. I can't say I got much sympathy from him.

His explanation of the derailment was that the sun heated the track, a rail expanded, and a ballast holding the track to the railroad ties had apparently not been tested properly. A "sunkink" in the rail is what he called it. He said maintenance crews had "serviced" that section of track about a week before the derailment, implying that the problem with the ballast could have occurred then. He also went on to say a "sunkink" was "not common, but not unheard of."

If the "service" work on the track was a contributing factor, we have a lot of track in our area that could be suspect, as crews have been working up and down the line around here for several weeks. All in all, it was not a comforting explanation for the derailment, especially after I pointed out that we have a lot of hot summer days ahead of us and he seemed to be trying to reassure me by saying the tracks are frequently "serviced."

I told him I hoped we never had another derailment here and hoped I would never have to call him again.

"But if I do need to call FEC again, isn't there anyone else who can give out information if you're not in?" I asked. "No, I'm the only one," he said.

If FEC was a small firm having little effect on the public I could accept that. But their track runs through hundreds of towns along the coast. The nature of their business affects thousands of people, if, in no other manner, through noisy horn blasts and the routine delays in traffic as their trains roar through. Fortunately, the 20 cars derailed the first time in Jensen, and the two derailed two days later, contained no hazardous materials. Nobody was hurt and property damage was minimal. But the derailment could have been disastrous, and anytime a firm conducts business that could so adversely harm the public, it seems to me they should have more than one person who can respond to inquiries made on behalf of the public by news reporters.

If FEC insists upon only one person to answer inquiries from reporters, it seems to me that FEC should assign that task to someone who can be more readily reached for comment. At the very least, the job should go to someone with enough sense of obligation to the public to return phone calls if he is out of the office when those calls come in.

I guess what I am trying to say is the same thing I told a security guard at the scene of the second derailment. He approached me as I was taking photos of a derailed car and angrily told me to get away. "This is FEC property you're on, and you have no business here."

"When your train stays on the track, I'll keep away, but this is my town and that's your train off the track. It has no business being off the track. When it jumps the track, that makes it a public event, and it's my business to report that."

Fathom attracts easy listeners with mellow 3-part harmony

BY MICHELLE NASPINSKI

The ideal of not making music strictly for financial gain, but still being financially successful, is one that every popular musician would probably like to hold claim to.

Turning commercial in the music industry is fairly equitable with taking graft in a political office – it stands as the cardinal sin of the business.

Yet, an airy "top 40's" station will attest, many contemporary musicians are doing it and getting rich in the wake. It is not easy for money to "mean nothin" to a musician when he wonders how he will afford his next meal.

It is at these difficult crossroads that "I know that this may sound funny, but money don't mean nothin' to me. I won't make my music for money, no, I'm gonna make my music for me"–Jimmy Buffet.

Mickie Miller, Hank Miller and Jim Shettleroe now stand. The three musicians, billed as "Fathom", are currently entertaining audiences at B. Geez, the new restaurant-lounge in Smithfield Shopping Center, Stuart.

Their sound is unlike any other band in this area.

In contrast to the heavy metal rock and roll, throbbing disco and "top of the charts" pop music that can be heard at virtually every other local night spot, Fathom specializes in a refreshing blend of Jimmy Buffet "American island music", old Crosby, Stills Nash and Young melodies, tunes by America, and Jackson Browne.

Fathom appeals to everyone, but they offer a special refuge for the, 22 through 35 age group that has grown weary of over amplification and lyrics that extol the virtues of disco dancing.

The sound is acoustical, mellow. With ballads and classic flashbacks to the 1960's, the music of Fathom assimilates well into a new decade that is ripe for such a change.

Plus, the intimate, woody atmosphere of B. Geez provides a perfect back drop for Fathom's "laid back" style of music.

"There are enough people in the woodwork who are dying for a place to go," said Fathom guitarist Hank Miller, "but they don't want to listen to dance music, so they stay home."

Lately, however, they've been coming to B. Geez.

Since Fathom shrined playing at the Stuart restaurant, a veritable love triangle has developed between B. Geez, the band and the diverse audience they are attracting.

But by "devotedly keeping their music so low-key, Fathom has, at least for the present, seriously limited the number of night spots where they can play.

"Other places are not ready to take a chance–all they want are top 40 bands," explained guitarist Mickie Miller, "we like it at B. Geez, what's keeping us here is the enthusiasm of the people–they're ready for this."

Thus, the crossroads stand clear–and the band is stubbornly clinging to the belief that success can be attained without compromising for easy money pop music.

When they are not working at B. Geez, the trio is practicing to synchronize their three-part harmony or composing original songs, which they play at intervals between more commonly known tunes.

Fathom's own music, like that which they most enjoy playing, ranges from mellow, "living in the sunshine" songs to humorous, somewhat satirical views of American life 1980-style. The Hank Miller song "Vicious Cycle", for instance, laments the current pollutic problems known as credit cards.

Where Fathom members hope to take their music is, of course, into a comfortable recording contract – just as do countless other amateur musicians across the country.

What will separate Fathom from the musical multitudes?

Some may note the band's evident talent and originality. But perhaps more than any other factor, Fathom's sheer refusal to compromise their form of music may be the key to their success.

One day followers of Fathom may have to invest in an album or wait for an annual concert to catch their act. But while time holds out, area residents who are seeking a change in their listening habits can find it–with blessed relief–at B. Geez from Thursday through Saturday 10 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. and Sunday 6 p.m. to 1 a.m.

"Music is the communication of an experience. If you're a musician you have to play what's in your heart," concluded banjo-guitarist Jim Shettleroe, "then you gather around you people who feel the same."

About nine years ago we sponsored a child from the Philippines through the Christian Children's Fund, Inc. It was a very rewarding experience.

Cesar's letters were a joy and we established a relationship that was wonderful.

For only $15 a month, or $180 a year, plus a birthday and Christmas gift of $10 each, you can literally be a Godsend to a poor, little child.

As conditions improved at his home Cesar was no longer eligible for aid and a nine year old girl was his replacement. Virgie has also brought us much joy. We exchange snapshots and she is so proud of her school activities.

Last year we visited her and her mother and father and nine brothers and sisters. They live in a one room shack with a leaky roof. Virgie looked like a little doll in her new dress and shoes, bought with our gift for her birthday. It's amazing what they can do with $10.

Two years ago we sponsored a little Mexican boy. When we were in the Orient we sponsored a little Thai girl and an Indian child.

A child information folder comes with each child. There is a snapshot and a description of the problems that led to their seeking help. It is heartbreaking to read of the poverty.

I am sure that some of you have read of this charity, but others have not. Hence, this letter.

We have investigated the charity and found that they spend a minimal amount for overhead. We are satisfied that it is money well spent.

Interested persons can write for information to Dr. Verent J. Mills, Christian Children's Fund, Inc. PO Box 26511, Richmond, Virginia 23261. They will send you literature explaining the details.

Sincerely,
Doris Rupp

Straw vote is likely for one mill tax to build bike paths

Instead of holding a binding referendum on bike paths for the Jensen, Rio and Hutchinson Island area this fall, it's more likely that a straw vote will be held.

Earlier this summer County Commissioner Frank Wacha proposed a referendum to allow voters in tax district A to determine whether or not an extra mill of tax should be assessed for bicycle paths.

The original proposal, if approved, would have authorized the county to issue bonds for construction of a bike path network in the Jensen, Rio and Hutchinson Island area. It would have meant that the county could proceed to build that network as soon as possible, with the cost of the paths to be paid off over a number of years by funds raised from the extra mill of tax.

Wacha said Monday that there may not be time for completing the studies necessary for holding a vote on a bond issue this fall. So instead of a vote that would be binding on the county commission, Wacha said it is likely that a straw vote will be held.

"If we can get an expression of opinion from the public that they would be willing to have their tax raised by one mill for bicycle paths, then the county commission can vote to impose the tax," Wacha said, adding that, "It's up to the people. If they feel it is an immediate priority and are willing to pay for it, we can do it."

Wacha explained that the current district A tax is about one mill. That mill for services in the Jensen, Rio, Hutchinson Island area that are not provided through general county taxes. State law forbids raising that tax by more than eight per cent unless the county commission approves a higher tax by at least a four-fifths majority. Wacha indicated that there should be no problem in getting a four-fifths majority. Wacha indicated that there should be no problem in getting a four-fifths commission vote for adding the extra mill of tax if voters support bike paths in the straw vote.

If a straw vote is held, it would mean that instead of issuing bonds for construction of the bike path network in one fell swoop, the paths would be built in annual segments.

"The extra mill would give us a good head start, and we could build $50,000 to $80,000 worth of bike paths per year, with a planned program instead of just doing what we can when there is money available," Wacha said.

When discussing the bike referendum previously, Wacha had said he hoped an approval would mean a network of paths could be built along Indian River Drive from Florida Institute of Technology to the Causeway, over the Causeway to A1A and down A1A to hook up with an existing path that runs from Stuart to Stuart Beach. Also to be included would be a path along SR 707 through Rio and added portions of a path along Commercial Street in Jensen. Presumably, all those paths would be included in the planned program that Wacha hoped to implement if there is a positive straw vote.

During the first six months of the year, three bicyclists died as a result of accidents on local roads, and it was on the wake of the third fatality that the proposal was made for a referendum on bike paths. However, prior to that, the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce directors had voted to make a bike path along Indian River Drive, from FIT to the causeway, as it's number one priority for the year. The big problem facing the chamber was obtaining the necessary easements for a path. Volunteer Susan Sullivan had made door-to-door requests for easements and has had pretty good results so far, and several chamber members have also lined up easement donations. More than half the necessary easements have been donated, and Sullivan and chamber members will continue to seek the rest of the needed easements.

Recently, Sewall's Point commissioners voted to pull funds from a road project to go ahead and build a bike path from A1A to a point near FIT, and work on that path is expected to begin soon.

Additionally, work may begin soon on a path along SR 707 in front of Langford Park. Wacha said Monday that he planned to make a proposal at the Tuesday county commission meeting for $30,000 in federal revenue sharing funds to be divided among the county commission districts. This would result in $6,000 for the Jensen district, and Wacha was hopeful the money could be used to build a path that would start from a point near what was once a car wash and is now an office building. "It is to start there and run north, in front of the park, for as long as we can take it for $6,000," Wacha said.

The vote on Wacha's proposal was to occur after the Mirror press deadline, but he expressed optimism that commissioners would go along with the idea.

When asked when the straw vote would be held, Wacha said he was not sure whether it would be during fall primary elections or during the November general election. "I'll have to check with the supervisor of elections to see what the best time for it is," he said.

Stacy is named outstanding man

The Board of Advisors for the Outstanding Young Men of America Awards Program announced recently that R. Wayne Stacy, 1721 Media Ave., Jensen Beach, has been selected for inclusion in the 1980 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America.

The men in the edition were selected from nominations received from senators, congressmen, governors, mayors, state legislators, university and college presidents and deans as well as various civic groups — including the United States Jaycees, which also endorses the Outstanding Young Men of America program.

In every community there are young men working diligently to make their cities, as well as their country, better places in which to live. These men, having distinguished themselves in one or more fields of endeavor,

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES

Assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Peg Ray

The Fourth was celebrated nicely in Holiday Out. The weather was beautiful and families and friends gathered around the patios, having fun, games and picnicking. One such was on the Longs and Nagys compound, about 25 persons attended a rib barbecue and watermelon repast. The McCabes had their son and family as guests. Mother Lou and Dale Foster entertained two sons, Jimmy & Gary Potter from Lantana, over the weekend. Pauline & Frank Riley from W. Palm Beach arrived Friday for the weekend, they enjoy their walks on the beach. Also, Mibel & Hal Theimer came up from W. Palm Beach. The fireworks were grand.

The Holiday Out mixed bowling team won 3 out of 4 points on Wednesday night. Lil McDonnell was high with 512 pins.

Since Adams old trailer was moved off the lot, the few owners are — anxious — customers to the lot. The driveway was cut in and final grading and paving were done on Monday & Tuesday. Sure looks nice.

Ellen & J. C. Freeman arrived last Wednesday for a week, but will be returning to Greenville, S.C. until the fall. Ellen was disappointed in the fishing, but is enjoying the ocean.

Peg & Al Ray's son Bob & his wife Betty came up from Hialeah for a few cool days. They loved the delightful breeze on the patio. Al surprised them with his new Buick Skylark, all white car. It looks like a toy along side of the station wagon. The Prices of Venture Harbor took the Rays on a tour of the river Sunday night, what a beautiful sunset!

Mary & Russ Desserick sent a card from Oregon, saying they hope to be in Vancouver by the weekend. Enroute from Ohio, they stopped at the Flaming Gorge in Colorado, Yosemite and spent 3 delightful days in the San Francisco area.

Carrie Ullmann writes that she is very busy entertaining. Also heard that they have sold their home in N.Y. and will soon be here permanently.

Bob Shilhorn saw Peg Ray take her new car to the laundrymat on her first solo drive. We didn't hear any crash, so guess all is well.

The Arbo's had a phone call from Bob & Erma Barton, who said it was so cool in Maine they had to have heat. Bob said they would be back early this year.

Also heard from Lorraine & Ed Stork, who were fine and enjoying themselves.

Ruth Hogan is recovering from surgery and has to take it easy. Doc is very busy with his black walnut trees.

On Saturday Night Catty & Les Ullman, Ruth & Wes Arbo went out for a seafood dinner. Catty and Les left Monday for New York. We shall all miss them.

We are happy to have Jerry and Ginny Belmore back in the Park.

Anniversaries Congratulations— Eileen & Art Norris, Janice & (Goodman) Stanley 7-11, Catherine & Otto Fischlein 7-13, Helen & Eddie Kay 7-14.

Happy Birthday Wishes— Terry Samsel 7-12, Dorothy Noble 7-13, Robert Young 7-14, Edna Emaus 7-17.

In a phone call to friends in the Park, Frank Houghton said that his grandson, John, is spending the summer with him in Rutland, Vt. When Frank returns to Holiday Out in the fall, he hopes to have his daughter Nancy come down with him.

Lee and Maury Foote were in Orlando over the weekend to attend the christening of their newest grandson, David.

Mary and Bill Cameron phoned from their home in Saginaw, Michigan, to say that all is well with them and that the weather, so far this summer, has been just delightful.

Gordon McIntyree and Malcolm O'Donnells were entertained by former Holiday Out lot owners, Anne and Albert Crisconi, at their new Sand Dollar condominium last Thursday.

Venture Three

The Fourth of July was celebrated at Venture Three with a steakout preceded by a strawberry champagne punch made and served by Joe Frestag fittingly dressed as "Uncle Sam." The evening ended with the Causeway display of fireworks, viewed from Venture Harbour.

Venture Three wishes a speedy recovery to Ester Shaver who was operated upon in St. Mary's Hospital, 45th St., West Palm Beach, Fl. Cards may be sent there.

A bike accident sent Clet Galough to Martin Memorial where he was found to have several cracked ribs and many bruises. We hope this new owner will not be discouraged in his efforts to vacation and gradually become a retiree in Venture Three.

It was nice to see his grandson Scott, enjoying his time here along with many other vacationing young people.

"Some Major Causes of Back Pain"

The major reason that you need to see a doctor if you have severe or persistent back pain is that so many things can be the cause of the pain, some major and some minor, some even life threatening.

Some causes can be sudden and injurious, others have been slowly coming about for years, causing a gradual wear and tear process until the pain finally becomes unbearable and even disabling.

In our case history under "probably cause" the following are mentioned routinely: sudden twisting of the spine and vertebrae, sudden blows, falls, lifting, vacuuming, bowling, began unsupervised exercises and stress combined with tension.

If you back pain seems to come on suddenly without injury, and you have pain that is not helped by rest, stiffness that becomes worse after sleep or inactivity, you should see your doctor today for examination including X-rays and laboratory tests.

Ashcraft named chairman

John Ashcraft, executive director of the Four-County Mental Health Center, has been named chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Florida Council for Community Mental Health, Inc.

Ashcraft called his appointment by Council President Jim Whitaker "a prestigious honor". He said, "The work of the Legislative Committee of the council is, in my opinion, the most important work done by the council during any year. I am very grateful to be asked to serve as its chairman."

In his appointment Whitaker pointed out that "the Legislative Committee has the major responsibility for reviewing legislation, writing legislation, and formulating Florida Council strategies for board approval. Advocacy is a vital part of the work of the Council and this committee plays a major role in our advocacy initiatives."

The Council is an organization formed of persons from all levels of work with mental health centers in the state.

For two years, Ashcraft was executive director of the Florida Council, a job he left to take his present position at the Indian River Community Mental Health Center in Fort Pierce.

Widman to run for school board

Dr. Rudy Widman recently declared his candidacy for the office of School Board Member representing St. Lucie County's Southside District. Widman said he made this decision "because I see a challenge in the opportunity to make St. Lucie County public education a more positive experience for our children."

Dr. Widman has been Director of Educational Services at Indian River Community College for the past six years, active in Little League and Boy Scouts, and has served as a member and officer of the St. Lucie Community Action Organization. He was Director of the 1977 Florida State Science and Engineering Fair, has taught chemistry in high school, and holds a Ph.D. in chemistry from Northeastern University. Widman will run on the Republican ticket.

Sandpiper gears up for 5-day golf clinic

Entries for the First Annual Sandpiper Bay Golf Clinic will be taken starting Monday, July 14 for the five-day Sandpiper Bay Golf Clinic. It is scheduled for morning sessions from July 21 to 25 with three tested assistant pros, Bruce Harrison, Robbie Cruso and Greg Cerulli.

Harrison, who has finalized all arrangements, reported the clinic is under direction of head pro Chuck Johnson and that the clinic will be divided into three categories — beginners, intermediate and advanced golfers. There will be a maximum of six persons at each session. Every phase of the golf game will be included in the clinic — driving, iron play, putting, sand trap shots and fairway woods.

Harrison said the program has been devised to teach all "how best to enjoy" the game in a prescribed format. Beginners will be taught the fundamentals of the game with progressive steps starting at 9 a.m. while the intermediate class golfers will be on tap at 10 a.m., and the advanced golfers scheduled at 11 a.m. "For the beginners, it's be a lifetime of rewarding golf," said Harrison.

Culminating the five day session will be a tournament on the Sinners course where prizes and trophies will be awarded by the teaching pros. Golfers who desire to participate in the clinic are urged to call the Sandpiper Sinners pro shop for reservations. Call 334-4490 and ask for either Bruce, Robbie or Greg.

The Florida Commemorative Collection

With a 6 month Money Market Certificate from Southeast, you can get a lot more than a high rate of interest.

You can also get a beautiful, heirloom quality belt buckle handcrafted in solid brass or smaller sized bronze. The buckles in the Florida Commemorative Collection were chosen for their special significance to all Floridians.

In vivid three-dimensional detail, they portray Ponce de Leon's discovery of Florida, our native alligator and our Indian Heritage. Any one of them can be yours to treasure when you purchase a Certificate of Deposit, or when you make a qualifying deposit to a new checking account, or a new or existing savings account at any Southeast Bank. Depending on the amount you deposit you'll receive the buckle of your choice — free, or at a reduced price, or you may choose a three buckle set with a leather-covered hardwood display plaque at a reduced price. After making your qualifying deposit, you can buy additional buckles and three buckle display sets at special low prices. (See the chart for exact requirements.)

Six Month Money Market Certificate
Annual interest rate paid on certificates purchased through July 16, 1986
$10,000 minimum deposit required
8.535%
Effective annual yield based upon reinvestment of principal and interest at the same rate of maturity
Rates subject to change at maturity
The interest earned can be paid to you monthly, quarterly or at maturity. You may choose to have the interest deposited into your checking account, or we can mail a check to your home. Even though Federal Regulations forbid the compounding of interest on these Certificates, you can have it deposited into your Southeast Bank regular 5¼% savings account each month, allowing you to earn more interest on your interest.
Federal regulations require a substantial penalty if any portion of a Certificate of Deposit is withdrawn before maturity.

You can get these high paying CD's from other financial institutions, of course. But only Southeast can give you these stunning belt buckles in the bargain. And you have the added confidence of knowing that you're dealing with Florida's largest and most substantial banking group, with over $5 billion in assets standing behind you.

In times like these, that can give you a very comfortable feeling.

Make your qualifying deposit now at Southeast. And get something more to treasure than a high rate of interest.

RACING—It was a race to the finish as Jensen Lions conducted their annual kids races as part of the Independence Day family picnic at the Jensen Causeway. This bag race was for the ten-and-under age group.

LIGHT SHOW—Hailed as one of the best shows in the nation, the Fourth of July fireworks on the Jensen Beach Causeway lit up the sky and delighted thousands of spectators. In addition to the aerial blasts, there were also many ground fireworks displays, including a 20-foot pinwheel that may be entered inthe Guinness Book of World Records.

EMCEES—Al Walker, left, returned from his North Carolina retreat to renew his long-time association as co-emcee of the Independence Day celebration on the Jensen Causeway with County Commissioner Frank Wacha. (See 5-10-15 years ago in The Mirror inside.)

SMALL CRAFT—There were hundreds of boats in the Indian River around the Jensen Beach Causeway for the annual fireworks show, but none seemed any smaller than this "craft". While it didn't have much room for moving around on, it was sure cheaper than most vessels on the water Friday. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

CHAMBERWATCHER—Sue Sullivan was one of the volunteer workers manning the Jensen Chamber of Commerce booth at the July 4 celebration on the Jensen Causeway.

HOT DOG—Handling the sales of soft drinks and hot dogs at the Jensen Kiwanis Club booth on the Jensen Causeway July 4 were Adon Jeffery and Dan Carlock.

SWIM FUN—Enjoying a swim while waiting for the July 4 fireworks to begin were Stephanie Hudson and Kelly Hardy, who spent the day on a boat near the Jensen Causeway and on the causeway.

READY TO SHOW—Waiting for the fireworks show to begin on the Indian River are Don and Sandy St. Onge, Clarence and Sherrie Shawver and Don Killoren. Over 300 boats watched the fireworks at the Jensen Causeway on July 4.

MORNING AFTER—Hundreds of boats anchored off the Jensen Beach Causeway for the spectacular Fourth of July fireworks show, and when it was over, a long parade of lights on the river could be seen as the boaters returned home. But, as the photo above shows, many elected to spend the night by the causeway before leaving. (Photo by Dick Lundin)

JENSEN BEACH MOOSE LODGE—The local Moose lodge set up a concession stand at the Jensen Beach Causeway for the Fourth of July festivities this year and, contrary to what is shown above, did a good business most of the day. It was the first year the organization had a booth at the causeway, but they'll very likely make it a regular thing.

Regatta set in Vero Beach

Many of the state's outstanding sailing enthusiasts are expected to be on hand for the Driftwood Challenge Regatta, August 2-3, at the Driftwood Inn in Vero Beach.

The three-mile race governed by the U.S. Yacht Racing Union rules, will be open to both hobie cats and prindle cats in three categories – 18s, 16s and hobie 14s – with trophies awarded to the first three finishers in each division.

The regatta, co-sponsored by the Driftwood Inn and Shannon's Hobie Center, Cocoa Beach, will be limited to the first 60 entries. The entry fee is $20 for hobie 14s and $25 for all other craft.

Pre-race registration will be held at the Driftwood Inn on Friday, August 1, from 4-7 p.m. and again on Saturday morning from 9-11 a.m., with the first day's races beginning at noon.

Jensen Beach bridge results

LISA KENNEDY bends low as she rocks and rolls her way to a happier, healthier body.

California Bodyworks: rock-n-roll fitness

PAM LEARY firms up leg muscles during a California Bodyworks work-out in Jensen Beach. She is one of more than 400 women who have enrolled in classes in the area.

It was hard to tell whether the women came to have fun or to lose weight.

To the beat of rock-n-roll music, they hopped, twisted, kicked and stretched.

Occasionally, their faces showed signs of strain. But more often, they were smiling, and it was evident that if they were going to lose weight, they were dare well prepared to have some fun doing it.

The women were members of a California Bodyworks exercise class at the First Federal Savings and Loan building in Jensen.

Instructor Mary Lou Sanders got hooked on the Bodyworks program early this year and has been teaching the exercises for eight weeks now. She's probably the best ambassador that Celest Burgk, originator of the program in this area, could ask for. She's pure energy.

During the 45 minute sessions, Sanders' energy is contagious.

"We have 12 routines and more than 100 songs, so the program varies all the time. We use rock n roll, disco, toss in some country and western, and are picking up on some of the new wave tunes," she says.

Whether it's the music or Sanders' enthusiasm that provides the catalyst, the combination of songs and exercises seems to be working. The women get a hearty work-out and come away feeling good. "We have a lot of fun doing this, and that's the most important thing," Sanders says.

"And," she adds, "the program does wonders for your body. Most women come for weight control and don't realize the other benefits they'll get from it, but it's good for the cardio vascular system, for muscle toning, endurance, weight control, and increasing lung capacity. It makes you feel good and you have all kinds of energy you never felt before," she says.

Though all her students are women, Sanders says the program is open to anyone from about 10 or 12 years old and up.

"The nice thing about the program is that the women can go at their own pace. We may all look like we're lifting and kicking our legs and arms alike, but as you get into the program, you find that by changing the angle of your legs or arms, you can make the exercises harder," Sanders explained.

California Bodyworks classes are popping up all over the area. Burgk, a former Miss Florida, learned the routines in Lake Tahoe, Nevada and brought them here about a year ago. Now, she and three other instructors give lessons in White City, Port St. Lucie, Jensen, Stuart, Hobe Sound and Jupiter. Sanders says more than 400 women are enrolled in the classes and that figure is growing weekly.

"A lot of women come out of curiosity, but when they see how much fun it is, nearly all of them come back," Sanders says.

Now is a good time to review witholding tax

The Internal Revenue Service is advising Florida employees to review their federal tax withholding situation now that the 1990 tax year has reached the midway point.

"This is a very convenient time to estimate how you are going to make out on your 1990 tax return," said Charles G. DeWitt, IRS district director for Florida. Many of the employees who expect their salaries to remain roughly the same throughout the remainder of the year, can simply double the income and withheld tax amounts as of the end of June to arrive at an estimated refund or tax balance due.

Many taxpayers can arrive at a more accurate estimate if they take into consideration their estimated itemized deductions, tax credits and any other items which may significantly alter their tax. Also helpful would be a review of last year's tax return. "Receipt of a sizable refund check or a large balance due to the IRS on last year's return may indicate a need to adjust the amount withheld from your current payments," said DeWitt. However, employees should make sure that tax credits taken in the past — earned income or energy, for example — still apply if they are being considered in determining this year's tax liability.

WHY IS IT that young fishermen seem to have more fun than anyone? Todd Brown, 9, and Tim Brown, 11, of Port St. Lucie are seen fishing with frozen shrimp and cut bait from the west bridge over the North Fork of the St. Lucie River on Port St. Lucie Boulevard. Todd said they'd only caught a single catfish so far but had high hopes things would change any minute July 4th.

Mid-Court Racquetball Center opens this Saturday

The fastest growing sport in the nation is about to take a giant leap forward in Rio.

On Saturday, July 12, the Mid Court Racquetball Center on SR 707 in Rio will be open for business.

The huge center will feature eight four-walled, air-conditioned courts, billiards, whirlpool baths, saunas, a universal gym, a game room, a pro shop, a beer and wine lounge with a large screen television unit, and even a free nursery.

The center building is a large, two-story structure, but it's still hard to imagine from the outside how much the center has to offer inside.

"People who drop by are constantly amazed that we have so much to offer here," says Clarence Rydell, one of six partners in the new business venture.

A couple of years ago Rydell was owner and operator of a local service station. But he and fellow investors "worked hard to make our dream become a reality," and on Saturday, Rydell will begin a new career as manager of the center.

The eight courts, including a tournament court with a glass wall so spectators can view the action from bleachers, are all located on the ground floor. Locker rooms, showers, a universal gym, whirlpool baths and saunas are also on the first floor. "Upstairs, we have our lounge with a big screen television unit for football games and the like, a pro shop, my office, and a nursery," Rydell explained as he gave a tour of the facilities.

From the lounge area, you can look over a rail down into the courts to catch the racquetball action.

When asked why he and his partners decided to build the center, Rydell replied, "We thought it was something the Stuart, Rio and Jensen area needed. It's the fastest growing sport in the nation. It's easier to learn than tennis, gives you a good, hard work-out, and so far we have had good response from the community."

Rydell said he is hopeful that Brenda Grossnickle will be on hand Saturday for an exhibition.

Yearly memberships for individuals or families are sold, and non members can play for a fixed hourly fee. That fee will vary, depending on the time of day.

Rydell said the lounge will be for members only and said reservations should be made for nursery service and for courts.

For those tired of playing racquetball, pin ball machines and pool tables are also available.

Rydell said the nearest indoor racquetball courts are in West Palm Beach and the venture there seems to be quite successful. He added that indoor courts are under construction in Vero Beach too. "It's a sport that's becoming very popular, and we feel our center will offer the finest facilities," he said.

TAKING THE PLUNGE—A youngster at the Jensen Beach Causeway for the Fourth of July festivities found the heat too much, so he flopped off the fishing pier for a refreshing dip in the river. About 10,000 spectators showed up for the annual Independence Day celebration. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

GETTING READY—Mid Court Racquetball Center will open on Saturday, July 12, and partners in the sports complex are busy this week getting ready for the big day. Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

During the finals of Wimbledon week how could you write anything about tennis other than Wimbledon, the Olympics of tennis.

Every televised match was full of shot making and excitement. The match between Chris Evert and Evonne Goolagong had to have everyone full of mixed emotion. We wanted to see our own Floridian Chris win and then we wanted to see the match go three sets and finally you just had to feel good for Evonne. She came back. After winning there in 1971 and coming ever so close several more times since then, and taking off a year and having a baby, wow, it's a dream come true for her. By the way, she is the first mama in over 50 years to win the big one.

Then what history will probably call the greatest match ever, or up to this date anyway. Borg VS McEnroe. It left me exhausted just watching. It would be almost impossible to duplicate that match because of the odds on anyone having so many chances to win and not, but coming back later with the same cool we have seen for 5 years, and winning an unprecedented 5th time in a row. The fifth set told the whole story. Borg won his serve easily every time and McEnroe struggled every time, even being down love 40 twice.

A few notes of interest in comparing past winners. Back in 1881 W. Renshaw and E. Renshaw were mentioned as winners 13 times, and played each other many times in the finals. They also won the doubles 8 times.

Then starting around 1896 the Doherty brothers took over. R. F. and H. L. took turns winning 10 times in singles and took the doubles 8 times.

In 1934, 5, and 6, Fred Perry, who gave a clinic at I.R.P. last year, won the championship losing only 20 games in three finals. Borg lost 27 games to McEnroe in one match, and he only won 28. And it would be possible for the tie-breaker to amount to 8 more games, 18-16 was the way that ended.

In 1948 my brother Bob played John Bromwich a five setter, Bob won the match, winning 23 total games against John's 24 games. Too bad there was no T.V. then to show some more excitement. Bob was down 5 to 2 in the fifth and 40 - 15, double match point. He made two diving stretches to produce unbelievable passing shots that drew white dust. He was down three more match points in as many games, but pulled it out 7-5 in the fifth.

1980 will go down in history as producing the first mother champion in over 50 years, the first time in modern tennis that anyone has won five consecutive singles crowns, the first time a brother and sister have won the mixed doubles, and the first time Wimbledon has used an electric eye to augment the human eye on calling lines. However a few British umpires even overruled the electric eye.

I was in a first in 1942. My sister Jinx asked me to play mixed doubles in the U.S. National Championships. In the quarter finals we played Bud Hart and his sister Doris. First time a brother and sister have ever played a brother and sister in the Nationals. Bud could beat me in singles and Doris could trounce Jinx, but we won. Doris Hart went on from there to win 5 National Mixed Doubles Championships.

If any of you were checking your watches on the changeover, you would have seen 90 seconds elapse many times, and once I clocked two minutes before the server served. The rules state one minute on change, but T.V. dictates to many $$$$ on those commercials.

There has been a lot said about Peck's Bad Boy John McEnroe. Funnily enough, he was chastised by one of the worst, Jimmy Connors. Actually, I don't think he was that bad in comparison to Nastase and a few others.

About 40 years ago I watched a real 'baddy', Frank Shields. He didn't take any guff from anyone, but was very fair. Once I saw a spectator heckel him, he gave the man warning, "shut up or I'll come up there and break your jaw," the man hollered out one more time and Frank kept his word. Before getting in the ambulance, the man filed charges, and about 5 or 6 uniformed cops were waiting for Big Frank Shields when he came off the court. He decked every one of them, really, I was right behind him.

Another time I saw some real gamesmanship. Big Bill Tilden was beating Frank Kovacs badly, when they changed sides late in the second set, Frank cut his long pants off on the right leg, just above the knee. Several games later, he cut the other leg off above the ankle. This went on until Frank was wearing short cut-offs, and leading in the third set after winning the second. Then came his big mistake, he put his hands on his hips and swiveled. Big Bill was livid, and said to Frank, "you have already won your last game." And it was.

Just after the war, number II that is, a fellow named Earl Cochell, who was a top contender, was playing a match when a spectator heckled him. Earl gave him the finger, which Connors does regularly, and was banned for life from any sanctioned tournaments.

Today, the rules are strict and fair. The umpire has to give you a warning before doing any subtracting or adding to your score. And then he can lower the boom on you. Default.

Now that all of you have watched the 'lingering death" tie-breaker, try to learn it, it will be used in all U.S.T.A. tournaments.

Two weeks ago I stuck my neck out and did a little forecasting on Wimbledon. I predicted Borg, he won easily; I picked Tracy Austin, she lost to the eventual winner; I said Borg would probably play every match on center court, he did. I said the doubles winners would not both be in the top ten world ranking, they went like this. Either winner in the men's doubles or mixed doubles would have made me correct. John Austin is ranked 122 in the ATP. His opponent Mark Edmonson is also over 50. Bob Lutz and Stan Smith, the finalists, are not in top ten, and very few people ever heard of the winners Peter McNamara and Paul McNamee who are both way down the line on the ATP ranking. The point I am making is that even you can pick a good partner and play together better than two players playing singles on a doubles court.

The last match of the Martin County Championship, Ladies 'C' Doubles, between Debra Datz & Felicia Froehling VS Elaine Meir & Patty Abraham was played yesterday. The winners were Datz & Froehling, 6-2, 6-2.

Next tournament in Martin County will be a Seniors event at Crane Creek, July 19 to 20.

Lauri Rinker named to All American Collegiate Golf Team

The youngest member of the "Golfing Rinker" family of Stuart, also became the youngest to win national acclaim as an "All American" when she was selected as a member of the prestigious National Intercollegiate Women's team. The award and notification of Lauri's honors came following the National Collegiate Golf tournament, played recently on Albuquerque, New Mexico's University of New Mexico golf course.

WINDSURFING—while thousands of Fourth of July celebrants sweated through a hot day of festivities on the Jensen Beach Causeway, this man took to the water for a bit of windsurfing. It may have been just as hot on the water, but all he had to do to cool off was drop his sail and flop into the river. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Lauri, a graduate of Martin County High School, is the freshman standout of the University of Florida golf team. Mimi Ryan, Lady Gator coach said, "I am not surprised at Lauri's coveted selection." She first noticed Lauri's ability when the girl was a freshman in high school and to say the least, Lady Ryan eagerly awaited her arrival at UF last January.

Golf came naturally and instinctively to Lauri Rinker who, as the youngest member of a golfing family, could do nothing but follow her talented brothers and father. She just did the things that were most common around the Rinker household. Father, Laine Sr., eldest son Jaime Jr., Larry Rinker and Lenny, all played and talked golf. She watched them swing at golf balls and she started emulating the rest of the family that brought her along for the ride. However, it wasn't long before she talked on "even par" with her brothers and father and she believed she could take their measure soon. Like her brothers, Lauri collected Junior All American honors while in high school.

Lauri was successful in qualifying for the U.S. Women's Open in 1979, after just missing out in that test the previous year.

The Rinkers, Laine Sr. and wife Pamela, are sure proud of their kids, who are not only all American young folks in the sports world, but also all American characters that continue to bring much joy to their parents, community, school and church. Laine Sr. said he will work very closely with Lauri and guide her to whatever path she chooses, whether it be all-the-way with golf or another profession.

"Pam and I have guided these four kids to a respectable status. If they need further help from us, we'll always be ready," Laine Sr. said.

While Lauri does not admit it, there are those close to her who believe she wants to take fling at the women's pro tour and if she decides to do just that, the women's pro ranks will have one of the most gracious young ladies in the fairings. After all — she's family, she's golf, and like the other Rinkers, she is devoted to God.

It takes patience when the fishing's slow

BY DICK LUNDIN
Outdoor Editor

THIS IS THE TIME OF THE YEAR when they separate the men from the boys on the fishing scene. The fishing isn't easy and it takes a lot of patience if you're going to string enough fish for even one meal at home.

That doesn't mean it's no time to go fishing. Every day is a good time to go fishing if you accept the fact that fishing's just plain fun and perhaps the most restful thing you can do. If ever there's a time to reflect and let the cares of the world fall away from your shoulders, it's when you concentrate on a rod tip, a dancing cork, or await the feel of a strike.

The reasoning in back of that bit of piscatorial philosophy is that the area fishing is a mite slow, the live shrimp range from tiny to very small, and you have to work very hard for what you catch.

Yet, there's no lack of fisherfolk with myriads of youngsters wetting a line here, there and everywhere. It's a great time for you to take one fishing. They get their "enjoys" just from the fishing and even a catfish or a six ounce mangrove snapper is a catch to be treasured, especially if it's their very first fish.

Another thing you can do for those young fishermen is to share with them some of your tackle items. I checked out the tackle box of a youngster on the Port St. Lucie west bridge July 4th and was appalled at how empty it was. I hope I run into that young man again when I have my own box along and can fill some of the empty compartments in his with hooks, sinkers and lures.

FRESHWATER FISHING can be a little better than the saltwater variety at this time of the year, so let's hear it from Tony Pye at Taylor Creek Lodge on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee and U.S. 441 some 4-5 miles south and a little east of the city of Okeechobee: "They've been doing pretty good on bass around Eagle Bay and in the sawgrass near the Kissimmee (river), using mostly plastic worms and topwater plugs. Bluegills (bream) are good on the flats off of Government Cut and in the Cut too, taking live worms and crickets, or hitting beetle spins. There haven't been many shellcrackers caught lately. Fishing is really good here now. They're even catching some specks (black crappies) on live minnows out in the deep water."

FROM THE LADY STUART drift (party or head) boat operating half days out of the Sailfish Marina (286-1880) just east of A1A below Stuart, Capt. Marlin Moody: "It's been fair, Dick. We're still getting kings on ballyhoo and sardines between Six Mile Reef and shore, and some Lane and vermillion snappers, sea bass, porgies and trigger fish. We had a 40-0 (40 lb.) wahoo this week too. There are only a few dolphin around now, mostly grasshoppers (very small). The sails are jumping at night. We've been getting some grouper and lost some big ones. There's a monster jewfish out there in 200 feet that keeps breaking us off. It's got to be around 300 or 400 pounds to move off like it does."

MARY BILLUE, from Bill's Place in Port Salerno on the Manatee Pocket near the Sailfish Marina: "They're getting some nice snapper and grouper out at Eight Mile Reef but the current's been awful hard though. It takes about a pound of lead to stay down. There are lots of tripletails on the flats in the river off Sandspur Park."

FROM D&M BAIT AND TACKLE at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S. 1 above Stuart: "Believe it or not, Dick, they've been catching some bluefish on 52M28 shrimplures from the Palm City Bridge. Here at the Roosevelt fishing has fallen off rather badly, but a lot of mangrove snappers are being caught just west of the southbound lane along the shore. The only snook I've heard about this week were the 16 and 18-pounders the Hally boys caught on live shrimp from their boat off the Pelican Hotel. Up to two years ago we stayed open 'till 10 p.m. but now we close at 8 p.m. There just aren't the fishermen here any more. I think it's all this treated sewage being dumped in the river, now three million gallons a day more than they were dumping. I don't care what the biologists say, it's hurting the fishing. We can see it here," said Muriel Weideman.

CHUCK SHEPHERD from the Bait Box in Jensen: "It's been awfully slow. There are some whiting and croakers in the surf but you need a lot of patience to fish for them. They are still catching some seatrout on live shrimp from that little bridge just east of the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge on the Stuart Causeway. Snook fishing is real slow. Offshore, they're getting a few small sails. That's it, Dick. There just isn't anything more to tell."

FROM JENSEN BAIT AND TACKLE, Dave Lamb: "There are a lot of little trout moving around, but lots and lots of catfish. There isn't much snook action. Fishing in general seems a little slow. John Bagby caught snook of 12-0 and 18-8 at the North Bridge up in Fort Pierce on live bunker (menhaden); Christy Clark, a 46-4 wahoo, ballyhoo, 240 ft. due east of the St. Lucie Inlet; Bob James, 32 whiting and 6 croakers, clams and shrimp, early, Jensen surf; Jay Shank, a 4-0 trout, live shrimp, flats, north of the power plant; Jim Miner, 4 trout to 2-0, live shrimp, power plant. Reports have it that commercial hook-and-liners are catching lots of seatrout on live pigfish at night just north of Fort Pierce's North Bridge."

TOM STEWART from the Snook Nook in Jensen: "Dick, I'm more and more convinced that we need a closed season on shrimp from June 15 to Aug. 1. We are getting really tiny live shrimp now and it's too bad they are allowed to net them this small. On the bait scene, it wasn't a good ballyhoo season and anglers would be wise to cast-net some of the many silver mullet from the Indian River so they can freeze them and have them for trolling later in the year when ballyhoo (balao) may not be available. There are still seatrout on the grass flats around Walton Road on the west shore, in Herman's Bay, around the power plant and off Big Mud Creek. Trout fishing's good one day, poor the next. You just can't tell. There doesn't seem to be too much action on the bridges, just a few mangrove snappers, sheepshead, sand perch and other bottom varieties. We have some whiting and croakers in the surf, like at Normandy Beach just south of the power plant. Offshore reports are limited this week. There's lots of bait in the surf and the river."

The Nook's log: Ed Wagner, 10 trout to 3-0, trout touts, Big Mud Creek; Bill Sowden, 3 trout to 6-2, gold Tony Acretta spoons, Walton Road; Bill Dinzel, 11 trout to 7-0, live shrimp and pinfish (sailor's choice), Big Mud; Sam Zegraf, 8 trout and 2 flounder, 7M21 mirrolure, west shore, Walton Road; Terry and Steve Yager, 19 whiting and 11 croakers, clams and sand fleas, Normandy Beach; Melvin Lori, 8 whiting to 1-0, sand fleas, Jensen surf; Fred Rein, a 61-8 cobia, ballyhoo, 120 ft. of water, NE of the SL Inlet; Raymond King, 4 trout to 8-8, Golden Eye popper, Herman's Bay; Jeff Kappert, 15, 4 trout and 2 channel bass (redfish), trout tipped with shrimp, Indian River (he didn't say where).

RE PATIENT! Remember, it's no old wives tale when they say 90 per cent of the fish are caught by 10 per cent of the fishermen fishing 90 per cent of the time.

WE CAN GIVE YOU THE LOWEST STICKER PRICE ON YOUR AUTO INSURANCE IF...

YOU CAN ANSWER YES TO THESE FOUR QUESTIONS:

	YES	NO
1. Do all operators of your car(s) have driving records free of moving violations or convictions for at least the past three years?	☐	☐
2. Have all operators of your car(s) been licensed drivers for the past six years or longer?	☐	☐
3. Do you use your car(s) for pleasure purposes, including light commuting?	☐	☐
4. Have you had a claim-free record for the past three years?	☐	☐

Were you able to answer yes to four or close to it? That means you're probably a good driver. And Commercial Union believes drivers like you deserve lower insurance rates. That's why we've designed a special insurance plan just for you . . . it's called Custom Auto.

If in addition to being a good driver, you own a 1976 or newer Buick Skylark, Dodge Aspen, Plymouth Volare, or a number of other models that our research has shown cost less to repair, Custom Auto could save you even more. All together up to 20% annually.

Plus, if you are still with the Custom Auto Program after three years and you have no claims . . . you can qualify for additional premium credits.

So before you go shopping for a new car for yourself . . . or a second car for your family . . . stop in to see us about Custom Auto.

Charles Fritz may win trip

Charles R. Fritz of 12 Hidalgo Lane, Port St. Lucie, is eligible to win a free tripto Scotland and $1,000 as a result of scoring a hole-in-one at the Indian Hills Golf Club.

Fritz's ace qualified him for the 30th annual Rusty Nail Hole-in-One Sweepstakes, a national competition sponsored by the Drambuie Liqueur Company of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The winner will be announced early next year.

Northport men's golf

A net score of 58 by Earl Graham won the flight A competition among the Northport men's golf association Tuesday. Archie Taylor scored a 61.

In flight B Charlie Stallings had a 56. Ed Rombach had a 61. A 61 also won flight C for Jim Hensel. Bill Harris was second with a 62. Frank Rhein and Al Nowicki tied for flight D with 62s.

Earl Graham was closest on the third hole. Bill Yacinski was closest on the 14th hole.

All you need to know about Ft. Pierce Jai-Alai.

Outdoor News

THAT PUBLIC HEARING in Fort Pierce last week was the playing of a broken record, as the commercial hook-and-line fishermen and the Florida League of Anglers strove to get across their point to the representatives of the all-powerful South Atlantic Fishery Management Council.

Their point is that the incursion of large roller rig net boats with their deadly spotter planes into the last remaining areas of king mackerel off the southeast Atlantic coast signals the end of the once teeming king mackerel schools. They point out that with the arrival of the netters their hook and line catches have fallen off dismally, the netters hauling in as many kings in two weeks as hook and liners take in an entire season. They recounted how they used to make annual junkets to the west coast of Florida to fish for kings over there but that for the past five years that hasn't been done because netting has so decimated the west coast schools of kings.

Rollie Fransen of the FLA pretty well summed up the feelings of the fill odd hook and-liners present at the hearing: "There is no way that roller riggers and hook and line fishermen can ever be compatible. What has to happen eventually is that roller rigs will be outlawed. The FLA is unalterably opposed to this plan and wants gill nets banned."

After the meeting, Fransen added somewhat disconsolately that they have information indicating that the roller riggers will have even more effective netting procedures by next fall. "We hope to get something done about it but by the time we get the laws changed it may be too late for the king mackerel fishery.

Although confronted by hook and liners with fact after fact concerning the trouble the king mackerel fishery is in, O. R. Lee, chairman of the joint mackerel (Gulf and Atlantic) study group for the Council, steadfastly insisted that "the kingfish population is in no biological trouble."

The purpose of the hearing was to present the final plan of the Council for resolving any gear conflicts between the two styles of fishing, not to re-hash the acrimonious session of last February when over 300 hook and liners crowded the sauna Civic Center to have their say about roller rigger net boats, but Lee had little success in keeping to the main topic of the hearing.

Recreational fishermen should take note of the point made over and over by hook and liners -- once the roller riggers get into a school of mackerel the survivors are so spooked that they don't feed again for some time and move perhaps 40 or 50 miles before regrouping. This could accout for the extremely poor kingfishing we've had here the past few seasons.

Another alarming point to be considered. Once the roller riggers have wiped out the king mackerel, what happens to the Spanish mackerel, seatrout, channel bass (redfish), snook and whatever else that can be marketed by the big fish houses controlling the netters?

THE FLA IS IN THIS THING all the way and urges all fishermen to write to their legislators up in Tallahassee (Florida State Senate and Florida House of Representatives, The Capitol, Tallahassee, Fla. 32304) and earnestly seek their active support in prohibiting the taking of King mackerel / Spanish mackerel, redfish or seatrout by any means other than hook and line, also the landing or sale of king mackerel taken by any other means.

IN ADDITION TO WRITING LETTERS, get an application blank from one of the local bait and tackle shops or The Mirror and join the FLA while there's still time to do something about the saltwater and freshwater fisheries (pollution threatens the St. Johns River and the Kissimmee Chain of Lakes).

This is no time to temporize. Put your money where your heart is -- in protecting Florida's fishery, in making sure that the last fish isn't caught in your lifetime!

IF THE MOON and its movements influences you in how you plan your fishing activities, here are some celestial goings on this month: the young crescent moon will be between Regulus and Jupiter on July 15; it will be between Jupiter and Saturn on the 16th and between Saturn and Mars on the 17th; there will be a penumbral lunar eclipse before moonrise on July 27th; phases will produce a new moon on July 12, first quarter on the 20th, and a full moon on the 27th. Also there will be a perigee moon (nearest the earth) on July 30 and an apogee moon (farthest) on the 16th.

That should set you up for some lunar considerations in your piscatorial peregrinations.

IF YOU DREAM about sailing in faraway waters, take a gander at the guide to 1981 chartering that appears in the July issue of Cruising World magazine, now available in local book stores and news stands. It's packed with information calculated to help the prospective charterer make decisions on bareboat and crewed charters all over the world.

Two articles you'll also want to read are "Sail Your Own Tax Shelter," which offers financial advice for the boat owner who can operate his boat as a business, and "What Happens Legally When You Charter" covers an important topic also.

Personally, I took to "Trek To The Mighty Amazon" and "Encounter With Leviathans."

Cruising World costs $2.50, but you certainly get your money's worth.

IF YOU FOLLOW THE BASSERS, Larry Nixon of Memphill, Texas won the $61,000 Texas Invitational B.A.S.S. Tournament at the big Toledo Bend Reservoir June 26-27. Nixon collected the $10,500 first prize that included a $5,500 Ranger bass boat for his 60 lbs. nine ounces of largemouth bass over the minimum 14-inch tournament limit. He edged out Robert Rials of Shreveport, La. by just one pound.

THE FLORIDA GAME AND FRESH WATER FISH COMMISSION, ever on the lookout for ways and means to help save energy and increase patrol effectiveness, has purchased 10 motorcycles for use in selected areas across the state.

"Purchase of these motorcycles is just one of the ways the Commission is directing efforts towards energy conservation. We chose these patrol vehicles not only for their high mileage per gallon and low noise levels, but also for their suitability for off road patrol. For the next six months, the Commission will evaluate the effectiveness and economy of using these motorcycles as a secondary vehicle for patrol," said Col. Robert M. Brantly, executive director of the Commission.

He added that each motorcycle averages approximately 80 mpg, as compared to the 12 to 18 mpg of standard patrol vehicles, and emphasized that they were selected not only for their gas economy and quietness but also for their low visibility in the woods.

Brantly noted that the Commission has been using three-wheeled motorcycles (ARV 90s) in the Everglades for several years and has always been pleased with their effectiveness.

JOE AND MARGE EGG of Port St. Lucie said they weren't catching anything Saturday morning fishing from the seawall west and north of the little Mosquito Bridge on the Jensen Causeway, but they both seemed to be having a lot of fun. (Dick Lundin photo)

MIAMI DOLPHINS

Dolphin defense ahead of offense

DEFENSE is what it's all about in the National Football League, when all is said and done.

The Seattle Seahawks with their fire bombing Jim Zorn have been putting points on the board for nearly three years now, but the expansionist team's defense hasn't caught up to its offense, and Seattle is still in the wings waiting to be admitted to the inner circle of NFL powerhouses.

On the other hand, Coach Bud Grant's defense-minded Vikings were perennial playoff contenders in the NFC's Central Division until age caught up with such defensive stalwarts as Carl Eller, Jim Marshall, Alan Page, Bob Lurtsema, Wally Hilgenberg and Roy Winston. Minnesota didn't need too many points on the board with quarterback Fran Tarkenton, throwing to Chuck Foreman and the rest of the backs coming out of the backfield, and Fred Cox kicking needed field goals.

MIAMI'S DOLPHINS under Coach Don Shula tend to be cast from the same mold. Their defense was positively awesome during their 1971-73 Super Bowl glory years, and defense has always been a Shula trademark. Proof that he hasn't swerved from that path one iota came during the April draft when the Dolphins passed up USC's great running back Charles White as their first selection in favor of All American cornerback Don McNeal of Alabama. Two of Miami's first three picks were defensive players (defensive end Bill Barnett of Nebraska was tabbed third after center Dwight Stephenson of Alabama).

The Dolphin defense was impressive much of 1979 but was literally destroyed by Pittsburgh in the playoff loss at Three Rivers. Undoubtedly, that 34-14 loss still rankles and Shula must have felt that it was more important to add some potent ingredients to his defense, figuring that the offense was good enough to get Miami to the playoffs anyway, even if it was completely dominated by the Steeler defense.

SHULA'S 1979 defense, up to the playoffs, was impressive. The defensive line limited nine of 16 regular season opponents to less than 100 yards rushing, and ranked second in the NFL. In losing to Houston in the Orange Bowl on Nov. 5, Miami held the powerful Oiler offense to just nine points (9-6 was the score), and that's quite an accomplishment considering Houston's power.

Nose tackle Bob Baumhower, drafted second behind A.J. Duhe in 1977, was voted a starting berth in the Pro Bowl after his third year of Dolphin-record tackles (131, 144 and 146). He extended his streak to 48 consecutive starts and his 6-½ quarterback sacks were more than he had in his first two years.

Left end Vern Den Herder, 31, who has missed only three games in 143 since becoming a Dolphin as a ninth round draftee in 1971 (Central Iowa), collected a team-leading nine quarterback sacks and was named MVP by his teammates. He earned a game ball with four QB sacks in a 19-0 shutout of Baltimore in the Orange Bowl Nov. 11. Miami's coaching staff will be bringing Barnett along to spell and eventually succeed Den Herder. He was described by Coach Connor, director of Dolphin Player Personnel, AKA, "potentially explosive pass rusher out of the mold of Nebraska linemen."

A good pass rush has been a Miami need of late and maybe out of a convoy of Don Herder, Duhe, Barnett, and Doug Betters, Defensive Coach Bill Arnsparger will be able to forge a pass rush capable of putting heat on passers like Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw and Cleveland's Brian Sipe. It doesn't matter how many Don McNeal's you draft if opposing quarterbacks can lull backs there and pick out receivers at their leisure. Let's not overlook Carl Barisich, a solid reserve defensive lineman for three seasons, who seems to fit rather well into Miami's pass rush scheme.

LINEBACKING isn't a Miami weakness. The key to the Dolphins' warming 3-4 defense has been a mobile and aggressive set of linebackers. They are Kim Bokamper backed by Bob Matheson and Mel Lee on the left side; Larry Gordon backed by Earnest Rhone on the right; Steve Towle backed by Ralph Ortega and 10th round draftee Ben Long on the inside, left; Rusty Chambers backed by Rhone, inside, right.

Bokamper became the Dolphins' first Pro Bowl linebacker in seven years. His versatility as a down lineman in passing situations has resulted in 14 quarterback sacks in the past two seasons. His counterpart on the right side, Gordon, has All Pro potential with a reputation as a quick-hitting defender. Gordon has topped 100 tackles each season while missing only one start in 63 games.

Inside linebacker Rusty Chambers, the team's leading tackler for a second time (179 stops), epitomizes the robust and disciplined style of Dolphin defense. Chambers has operated alongside Steve Towle the last two seasons but five-year veteran Towle has requested a trade. Towle holds the Dolphin career record of 705 tackles. If he stays, he will be challenged by the veteran Ortega who played on special teams late in 1979 after recovering from knee surgery. Five rookies will join the training camp battle.

MIAMI'S SECONDARY had a respectable season in 1979 and strong safety Tim Foley, a forceful leader, achieved Pro Bowl status in his ninth season. He and Don Herder are the only defensive starters from the 1972-73 Super Bowl champions.

"Foley's coming off a great year and we've got to work to tighten up our secondary. It hurt us in 1979 when we lost Glenn Blackwood (knee injury) because he made a big contribution as our fifth defensive back," Coach Shula said.

Free safety Neal Colzie, who intercepted five passes for the Dolphins after being acquired in a trade from Oakland, will be competing with second-year man Blackwood and Don Bessillieu. Another 1979 rookie, Mike Kozlowski, will switch from free to strong safety.

The Dolphins opted for help at the corners by drafting McNeal from the Crimson Tide in the first round to challenge Norris Thomas and Gerald Small, a tandem for the last two seasons. It will take some doing if McNeal is to dislodge either Thomas, a fierce hitter who has broken up 37 passes in three years as a starter, or Small, a big-play speedster who averages 25.7 yards on nine career interceptions, but if the "ball-for-leather" McNeal can just provide quality depth at the corners, Miami's secondary will be stronger.

On the 1980 preseason depth chart, free safety is manned by Colzie, backed by Bessillieu and Blackwood; strong safety by Foley, backed by Kozlowski; right cornerback by Small, backed by Ed Taylor and Jeff Allen an 8th rounder out of Cal Davis; left cornerback by Thomas, backed by McNeal.

ALL IN ALL, Miami's defensive outlook, at least from this vantage point, is much more promising than it's offensive future.

The defense was pretty solid, and should be strengthened by McNeal and Barnett, by the return of Blackwood and an Ortega at full strength from the start.

The offense has question marks at running back, quarterback and in the offensive line. Only those four preseason contests with Detroit, Seattle, Minnesota and New Orleans will tell how successful offensive coaches Don Henning, John Sandusky and Carl Taseff have been in coming up with the answers.

THE KICKING GAME seems to be better than average.

Rookie placekicker Uwe von Schamann silenced those who were so quick to criticize Shula for waiving Garo Yepremian early in 1979, by hitting 21 of 28 field goal attempts, including one streak of 16.

Left-footed punter George Roberts has averaged 40.3 and 40.2 yards in two seasons of solid performances.

The football is in good hands (Hands?) with Roberts and von Schamann.

NEXT WEEK, we'll agonize over the apparent draft successes of the Buffalo Bills, New York Jets, New England Patriots and Baltimore Colts, and try to determine just how promising are the Dolphins' chances of regaining an AFC East titleholders.

MONSTER LOBSTER—Divers who go seeking lobsters on the reefs off Hutchinson and Jupiter islands this coming Sunday and Monday for the "short season" will be lucky if they can come up with a "bug" to match the size of this one. It weighed in at eight pounds and was caught by expert skin diver Bob Fenton a couple of years ago.

Short season for lobsters starts early Sunday morning

The "short season" for lobster diving begins at 12:01 a.m. Sunday, July 20, and runs through midnight on Monday, July 21.

The season is open to sport divers only, though commercial operators may set traps on those days.

Florida Marine Patrol officials have set up the two-day lobstering season so sport divers can get a jump on the commercial operators, but it appears that many folks have opted to get an even earlier jump on the season. FMP officers have been patrolling offshore waters heavily for the last several weeks, and have been making scores of arrests for illegal diving activities. Several weeks ago, 17 persons were arrested offshore around the St. Lucie Inlet jetty and off the Peck's Lake area for diving with no divers-down flag, for spearing lobster and snook, and for wringing the tails of lobsters. Over the Fourth of July weekend, 17 more arrests for those practices were made.

Lobstering season closes at the end of March and does not open until late July in order to protect the tasty crustaceons. It is during this period that the female lobsters bear eggs.

During the two-day season, only six lobsters per person, per day are allowed to be taken, and, as is the case at all times, no egg-bearing females can be taken. The eggs are bright orange and are carried on the belly of the lobster, so it is easy to spot them.

Other rules that divers should be aware of are that at no time is spearing lobsters permitted. They must be taken by hand, or, if you have a commercial license, they can be taken with traps.

Though the lobsters found among offshore reefs along Hutchinson and Jupiter islands are not the same type and are generally not as large as those caught off New England state shores, they are nevertheless very tasty morsels.

Also, lobsters must have a three-inch carapice, measured between the two horns of the head to the beginning of the tail, and a 5.5-inch tail to be taken. Any shorter than that must be released.

Another law the Marine Patrol officers will be enforcing is one prohibiting the wringing of tails. Until the lobsters are brought to shore, they must be kept intact.

The regular lobstering season begins at 12:01 a.m. Satuday, July 26, and will run through next March.

Only two more weekends for sea turtle watches

If you haven't yet gone on a Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce sea turtle watch, you'd better make plans to do it soon.

There are only two more weekends of watches left this year.

Watches will be conducted on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 17-19 and July 24-26, beginning at Jensen Public Beach at 9 p.m.

Response to the turtle watches, which began in June, has been good so far, though crowds at the last few events have been smaller than at the first ones.

The Chamber sponsors the watches, and the Naturalist Society of the Jensen Beach campus of Florida Institute of Technology is providing guides for them. The organization also wrote an informative pamphlet for the watches.

During summer months, giant sea turtles come ashore on local beaches to dig nests and lay eggs. As the turtles are skittish of humans and are protected from molestation by law, the Chamber conducts organized watches so viewers can observe the nightly wonder on the beach without harming the pre-historic creatures.

The watches begin at 9 p.m. on the designated nights and guides advise observers to be patient, as there can often be a wait for the turtles to come ashore. On some nights, no nesting turtles have been sighted, but on most nights, the viewers get what they came for.

Those wishing to participate in a turtle watch should make reservations by calling the Chamber office at 334-3444, or by dropping by the office at 1910 N.E. Commercial Street.

No pets are allowed at the watches and guides advise persons to wear long pants and long-sleeve shirts and bring insect repellent to ward off mosquitoes and noseums.

The Naturalist Society has had some colorful turtle watch t-shirts made, and proceeds from sales of the shirts will be used for the organization's projects. They are on sale at the Chamber Office, at the Village Corner and at the Turtle Crossing store, all on Commercial Street.

ABC films local sea turtle project

BY BOB FRYER

Morley Safer, Mike Wallace, Dan Rather, Harry Reasoner and Mickey Mouse, move over.

Ross Witham and Lou Fallon of Jensen Beach will be competing against the famous 60 minutes team and against Disney's Wonderful World for the attention of television viewers this fall.

Witham and his assistant, Fallon, were filmed this week by an ABC network crew for a segment of a new television series to be known as 'Those Amazing Animals'. The film segment will feature the work of Witham and Fallon to help save the endangered species of green sea turtles.

The new show is to begin a 13-week run on August 24th and will be in the 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday time slot, against 60 Minutes on CBS and Disney's Wonderful World on NBC. The show will be narrated by Burgess Meridith, Jim Stafford, and Priscilla Presley, wife of the late rock star, Elvis Presley.

ABC producer Karin Howard said the segment on the local turtle research program will not be included in the first show. "We just don't know right now when it will be aired, but it will be sometime after August 24th and before Christmas," she commented.

Howard and cameraman Ralph White flew in from Los Angeles and were joined by three ABC crew members from Miami to film the sea turtle sequences here.

They began filming around 2 p.m. Sunday and were up until 2 a.m. Monday, filming a turtle crawl on Hutchinson Island. On Monday, the crew filmed Witham and Fallon measuring and weighing green sea turtles at the House of Refuge, then filmed a turtle release on a nearby beach.

"Last night, we filmed a Loggerhead nesting and a nest of eggs eaten by raccoons," Witham said. Another scene will show Witham and Fallon removing eggs from a Green turtle nest on Hutchinson Island.

Producer Howard noted that the crew had to wait about an hour and a half for a turtle crawl and that the noseeums and mosquitoes gave the crew fits. Though local beaches are one of the major nesting grounds for giant sea turtles, the pre-historic cratures don't perform their nightly summertime miracle on a timetable made for man.

The work was easier on Monday. At the House of Refuge, when Witham rears Green sea turtles from the hatchling stage until they are about a year old, the crew took shots of Witham and Fallon tagging and measuring the yearling turtles in preparation for release into the ocean. And, they constructed an artificial nest in a fish tank to show the struggle of the hatchlings to crawl from their eggs to the surface of the sand. "It's a social movement. They all hatch at relatively the same time, and all move together toward the surface of the ground. Any that don't hatch in time don't make it, because alone they can't make the climb," Witham explained.

The film crew couldn't have picked a better man than Witham to use in the segment on Green sea turtles, as the state marine biologist is a pioneer in sea turtle research and has gained an international reputation for his local program to help save the endangered species.

As the camera and sound track were rolling, Witham tagged a turtle and explained, Green sea turtles have been heavily exploited since the days of colonization. They were used as a food source, and still are in some places, and over the years their numbers have been greatly depleted. What we're doing is to collect the egs from nests on local beaches, then incubate them and bring the hatchlings to the House of Refuge. We keep them here for about a year, so they'll be large enough to have a better chance against preditators when we release them into the ocean," he explained.

Since 1955, Witham has championed the cause of sea turtles. It began when he was taking a walk on a local beach while recovering from a back injury. He found a hatchling entangled in seaweed, about to drown, and freed the turtle.

That incident sparked an interest in sea turtles, and it was not too long before he began a turtle research program.

Since the early 1960s, Witham has been collecting eggs, incubating them, and keeping the hatchlings in salt-water pens at the House of Refuge until they're large enough to tag and release. In the last 10 years, he has focused his work on the Green sea turtles, as the populations of Loggerhead turtles seems to be coming back and the Green turtles are the most threatened species.

His program of tagging and releasing the turtle after holding them a year is not only designed to give the Green turtles a better chance of survival, but is also significant in determining information about their movements at sea.

When he began his work, the prevailing theory was that the hatchlings travelled great distances to feeding grounds. But Witham's work has served to discount that theory, as he has shown that the turtles are primarily carried by ocean currents. He has also shown that turtles eat Portuguese man-o-war and jelly fish, both of which are found in all ocean currents.

For the last year, Fallon has been assisting Witham with his research program, and she is shown with Witham in many of the scenes shot by the ABC crew.

When asked why the local research project was selected as a topic for the show, producer Howard replied, "I'm not sure how we got a lead on this one. We have teams of researchers in Los Angeles who look for interesting subjects and we get a lot of letters and clips of newspaper stories."

Howard worked for a German television network for five years before moving to Los Angeles and said Those Amazing Animals is the first show she is producing for ABC. She said while in Florida, The ABC crew will also be filming segments at Boca Raton, Cypress Gardens, Silver Springs and the Miami Sequarium on such animals as crocodiles, alligators, and a housebroken pig.

Though the struggle for survival for Green sea turtles is against heavy odds, it is likely that the struggle for survival of Those Amazing Animals against the highly-popular 60 Minutes will be great too. 60 Minutes has knocked out many would-be competitors in the ratings battles, but if they poll Jensen Beach area viewers when the segment of Witham's turtle research program airs this fall, the 60 Minutes team may have to find new employment.

ROSS WITHAM, left, measures the shell length of a Green sea turtle while assistant Lou Fallon records the measurement. The two marine researchers tagged and measured turtles at the House of Refuge Monday while an ABC television crew filmed the event for airing on a show to be called Those Amazing Animals. The show is to run 13-weeks, starting on August 24, and will be in the 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday time slot — opposite 60 Minutes and Disney's Wonderful World.

Fireworks success brings donations to start next year

The Jensen Beach Fireworks Fund will be solvent enough to make the down payment on next year's fireworks show after all bills have been paid.

The pleasant news came to the Jensen Fireworks Committee Monday after the results of the fireworks fund drive were compiled by Dennis Doyle, executive director of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce. Doyle reported that there was a balance of $1,200 in the fund after all expenses were taken care of.

The fund started the year with $620 from last year. The fund drive was begun by the Chamber in March, and the week of the fireworks the fund was $1,800 short of the $5,000 goal.

However, the Chamber collected $2,161 at the Causeway and enough mail donations to amass the largest amount ever given to the fireworks through donations, $6,610.11, not counting the revenues produced by the Jensen Beach Moose Lodge and Jensen Kiwanis.

The deposit on the fireworks in Feburary of $500 almost wiped out the fund in the beginning, but the drive continued, and brought in the necessary cash to fund the show. The Chamber had to loan the fund $1,500 to meet payments due, but was reimbursed from later donations.

The total cost of the fireworks show was $5,705.16.

The Kiwanians reported a profit of $97, half of which goes to the fireworks fund, and the Moose Lodge reported $463.11, half of which goes to the fund, or $284.77.

It was the first time that two food concessions were allowed on the Causeway, with the Kiwanis handling soda and hot dogs and the Moose selling kielbasa and beer. Chamber directors discussed combining food service next year to lessen the work and offer a more concentrated food and beverage service to celebrants.

The breakdown of expenses is $5,000 for fireworks, $402.32 for printing, $79.22 for staples and stamps, $100 for labor and $123.62 for lumber, for $5,705.16.

Wacha files

Frank Wacha, sixteen year veteran of the Martin County Commission, filed this week for reelection. His filing was keyed to the payment of his filing fee from donations of Palm City supporters, which he explained, "Their support and confidence in my integrity is a prayer answered blessing."

Wacha said that he has received "many calls and messages in these past few weeks in support of my seeking reelection."

He was first elected to the commission in 1960, and served twelve years, six of them as chairman of the commission. He ran for the Florida Senate, is 1972, winning the Democratic nomination, but lost in the general election.

In 1976 he was elected to his fourth term on the board, and served as commission chairman in 1979.

Wacha was one of the moving forces in the development of Langford Park. He served first with the old Langford Park Association, organized the Jensen Little League and served as a Pony League coach for sixteen years. He was on the Florida Amateur Softball Association Commission for ten years, and was instrumental in getting the county to lease the park so that recreation could be expanded and services provided to the people of Martin County.

In his many years on the commission, if there is one thing that stands out, it is the effort of Wacha to refinance bridge bonds so that tolls could be taken off the three bridges to the ocean and a new bridge be built in Jensen Beach. It is now named the Frank Wacha Bridge.

Wacha has been active in both civic and political circles. He is a charter member of the Stuart Lions Club and helped to form the Jensen Lions, is a Life Member of American Legion Post 126 in Jensen Beach, a life member of VFW Post 10066, Jensen Beach, co-founder and coordinator of the Jensen Beach Fireworks Committee, served on the 4-H advisory council, is on the governor's advisory council on veteran's affairs, and served on the board of public broadcasting Channel Two in Miami. He was president of the Jensen Chamber of Commerce in 1955.

Among the projects that Wacha feels he had a role in completing in the past four years, he lists the establishment of a location for I-95 through the county, the development of a senior citizen's center at Langford Park with private contributions and a federal grant, holding the line on taxes for the past four years, completion of the improvement of the intersection of Savanna Road and Commercial Street, a traffic light at US 1 and Commercial Street, flasher lights at Jensen Elementary School, and the completion of a bike path from Indian River Drive to the Savannas Shopping Center west of town.

For the future, Wacha points to hopeful completion of the bulkheading of the west end of the Jensen Beach Causeway Park, improvement of both intersections at either end of the Jensen Causeway, acquisition of a regional park, completion of the sidewalk-bike path network, four-laning of East Ocean Blvd. and his major plank, additional bridge access to the ocean south of the St. Lucie Inlet for public beach use to relive the traffic problems of Hutchinson Island bridges.

Wacha came to Martin County in 1943, and was stationed at Camp Murphy (now Johnathon Dickenson State Park). He returned after overseas duty in North Africa, and became a registered voter in 1946. He graduated from the University of Florida in 1948 and became a certified public accountant in 1950. He operated his own accounting firm until recently when he also become a real estate salesman with the W.B. Tilton firm.

Lots of candidates toss hats in ring

Political candidates have already started signing up for fall elections in heavy numbers, and Martin County Supervisor of Elections Peggy Robbins says there will likely be even more hats in the ring before the qualification period for candidates ends next Tuesday.

To date, here's a list of who is running for what:

William "Doc" Myers, (R), is seeking re-election to his District 77 state House of Representatives seat. So far, he has no opposition.

Sheriff James Hole, (R), is to date unopposed as a candidate for sheriff, and so far Louise Isaacs, (R), is unopposed in her bid for re-election as Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Peggy Robbins, (D), has filed as a candidate for Supervisor of Elections, but has not yet paid her qualifying fee. So far, she faces no opposition.

Incumbent Thomas Crook, (D), is seeking to return to his post as county tax collector. He also faces no opposition so far.

A. D. Maltregot, (D), has qualified to run for re-election as county property appraiser. Joan Felton, (R), has filed to run against him, but has not yet paid the qualifying fee.

In the race for school board superintendent, V. James Navitsky, (R), has filed for re-election and is facing two competitors. They are Wayne Bowling, (R), and Hazel Watts, (R). Bowling has not yet paid his qualifying fee.

In the District One (Jensen-Rio Hutchinson Island area) county commission race, Frank Wachs, (D), seeks re-election against two Republican opponents, Alex Haynes and James Rowe.

In the District Three (south county) county commission race, Lavon "Bud" Bagwell, (R), seeks re-election against Sherrie King, (R).

In the District Five (western county) race, A. H. Pitchford, (R), has filed for the seat and is so far unopposed.

Carolyn Lichty has filed for re-election to the District Two non-partisan school board seat and in the school board District Four race, it is incumbent David Crandall against Rosemary Dressler. To date, Dressler had filed for the seat, but not paid the qualifying fee.

Marc Clanca has filed to retain his non-partisan county judge's seat and so far faces no opponents.

Incumbent Robert Stone and incumbent Elton Schwarz have filed to retain their respective posts as state attorney and public defender. So far, neither man has opposition in the non-partisan races.

Michael Fogarty has filed, but not yet paid the qualifying fee for the Group Two soil and water conservation district seat.

Those who have not yet paid their qualifying fees, or who have not yet filed as candidates, have until noon on Tuesday, July 22, to do so.

Navitsky announces

V. James Navitsky, superintendent of Martin County Schools for the past 13 years, has announced officially his intention to run for another term in office.

A graduate of West Chester State College in Pennsylvania, Navitsky also holds a master's degree in administration and supervision from Temple University at Philadelphia. He has also done graduate work at Florida Atlantic University and the University of Florida.

Prior to becoming superintendent in 1967, he had experience at teaching, coaching and administration in Philadelphia and Martin County since 1954.

He is a member and past president of the Florida Association of District School Superintendents, past chairman of the Florida School Desegregation Center Advisory Committee and of the Indian River Area Vocational Coordinating Council.

Navitsky is also a past president of the Florida Association of School Administrators; a member of the American Association of School Administrators, of the State Parent Teacher Association Board of Managers and of the Commission on Secondary Schools Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

He is also a past director of the Florida High School Activities Association.

In the community, he is a member and past president of the Kiwanis Club of Stuart; a former director of the SODA (Stamp Out Drug Abuse) Inc.; member of the Local PTA, the Boy Scout Advisory Council; a director of the Red Cross; director of the county pool construction fund; and active in the Save Our Beach Campaign.

A veteran of two years with the U.S. Army, he is married to an emergency room nurse at Martin Memorial Hospital. They have two children, Lynn, a graduate of Western Kentucky University, and Scott, a graduate of the University of Florida.

In his campaign, Navitsky says:

"Our policy of being fair but firm, is one that needs to be implemented during this challenging time when many of the other areas of our county and state are floundering because of lack of direction. With the efforts of this office, and the citizens that have supported our schools, we have given a positive direction in the area of public achievement."

Elections office to be open six days a week

With a flood of candidates signing up to run for office and the Republican National Convention underway, it's time to start thinking about what you'll be doing during the upcoming elections.

Martin County Supervisor of Elections Peggy Robbins is hoping you'll be voting. And, to make it easier on those who have not yet registered to vote, she has extended her office hours and is planning on sending out a mobile voter registration unit on Saturday, July 19.

As of last Saturday, Robbins began opening her office in the Martin County Courthouse on East Ocean Boulevard in Stuart on Saturdays. From now through Saturday, Aug. 9, she will retain the six days a week schedule. The office hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on weekdays.

Additionally, the mobile voter registration unit will be open this Saturday from noon to 1 p.m. in front of the Publix Supermarket at the Stuart Shopping Center on U.S. 1.

In order to register to vote, you must be 18 or older, a permanent resident of Martin County, and a U.S. citizen.

When you register, your registration will be permanent, provided you vote at least once every two years. In order to vote in the primary elections in September and October, you must register by Saturday, Aug. 9. And, if you are a registered voter in Martin County but have changed your address, you should let the Supervisor of Elections office know about it.

Storm breaks heat-wave back

A fiery electrical storm, dousing the area with rain and hail, swept across the Treasure Coast Monday night, temporarily breaking the back of the tandem heat wave which has held the area in its grip for the past two weeks.

The storm hit between 7 and 8 p.m., beginning with a clatter of hail that threatened to break windows and screen shelters. The stones were enormous in some areas. Chuck Shepard of the Bait Box captured one measuring two inches in diameter.

The lashing electrical storm, which moved in from the northwest, brought a total of 1.01 inches of rain in an hour, giving welcome relief from the 99 degree temperature which had been the peak for the day.

Martin County now controls utility firms

As a result of changes in Chapter 367, Florida Statutes, the Public Service Commission no longer has regulatory jurisdiction over investor-owned water and sewer utilities operating in Charlotte and Martin Counties.

Each utility formerly regulated by the commission is entitled to receive a certificate from the county in which it is located to continue operation in its service area. Application for a certificate should be made to the governing body of the county.

Rates and charges presently in effect shall remain in effect until lawfully changed, and all cases involving a previously regulated utility which are still pending before the commission or the courts will remain under the jurisdiction of the PSC until resolved.

On August 29, this man will do everything in his power to make your belt buckle a collector's item.

Endless hours of painstaking craftsmanship went into the creation of the Florida Commemorative Collection.

And in a few minutes on August 29th, the entire series of molds for the Collection will be destroyed – thus assuring that no more of these handsome belt buckles will ever be produced.

With a few blows of a sledgehammer, your buckles become part of a truly limited edition. And the possibility of their increasing in value is enhanced many times over.

The Florida Commemorative Collection consists of three solid brass or bronze belt buckles depicting scenes and events of historical significance to all Floridians: Ponce de Leon's discovery of Florida; our native alligator; and our Indian heritage.

Originally, these buckles were to be available only through July 11. But because of the enthusiastic response to this offer, we're extending their availability through August 29th.

But that's it. (Our friend above will make sure of that.) Supplies of particular designs may run out before then, so get in soon to be sure you can get the design of your choice.

All you have to do to get one is to make a qualifying deposit at any Southeast Bank. Depending on the amount you deposit, you'll receive the buckle of your choice free, or at a reduced price.

After making your qualifying deposit, you can buy additional buckles and three buckle display sets with a leather-covered hardwood display plaque at special low prices. (See chart below for exact requirements.)

Come to a Southeast Bank and pick up the buckle of your choice now. On August 29th, you're going to own a collector's item.

Note: Only personal accounts qualify. Limit of one free or reduced item per account. Qualifying deposit must remain in qualifying account for 6 months. All items subject to availability. Prices include Florida sales tax. Sorry, no mail or phone orders. No items will be available after offer ends on August 29, 1982. Substantial interest penalty is required for early withdrawals from Certificate of Deposit. International Department and offshore customers must conform to international minimum deposit requirements in order to qualify for this promotion.

FEET ON WHEELS—Three previously sure footed Port St. Lucie youngsters donned wheels Monday, which they exercised on the floor of the Port St. Lucie Community Center. They were participants in the Port St. Lucie branch Library Things To Do and See program, designed to open children up to a whole range of fun and educational experiences. Betty Shearer, owner of Super Skate, gave the children a roller skating demonstration and a talk on skating safety. (Photo by Michelle Naspinski)

PSL library kids slip-slide away at roller skating demo

BY MICHELLE NASPINSKI

You couldn't help but admire his determination.

As youthful members of the Super Skate Flyers zipped gracefully around the waxed floors of the Port St. Lucie Community Center, young John Balchunas spent half of his first experience with roller skates on the floor.

But Balchunas did not let the confounded wheels, nor the large onlooking crowd of his peers, nor the many slips and spills dismade him.

With each fall, he merely looked to the ceiling of the Community Center, begging the indulgence of some higher authority, and got back up on his roller strapped feet.

And by the end of the demonstration session, the irrepressible youth was skating — in a manner of sorts.

Super Skate owner Betty Shearer purposely saddled three formerly sure-footed youngsters with wheels at the onset of her demonstration, to prove that roller skating is a sport which can be easily learned by anyone.

Shearer and her trio of winged-foot Flyers appeared before the 50 some children Monday, in cooperation with the Port St. Lucie branch Library "Things to Do and See" summer program.

The skating rink owner passed on skating safety tips to the Port St. Lucie youngsters and demonstrated what could be done with a little practice.

She advised the children to come equipped with knee and elbow pads — whether skating indoors or outdoors — to avoid painful skidburns that result from a fall. For outdoor skating, the instructor-owner further suggested wearing a helmet to, prevent potentially serious head injuries.

Shearer showed and described to the children the different types of footwear that characterize speed and art, freestyle skating, as well as costumes that are worn in shows and competitions.

She was able to ultimately set her audience volunteers in motion by having them simply lift one foot at a time, thus causing them to gain confidence in their balance on wheels.

"Basically all children have good balance," explained Shearer, "it is the adults that develop poor posture and have problems with balance."

Shearer discredited the myth that "weak ankles" should keep a potential skater off the rink.

"There is no such thing as a weak ankle," she contended, "anyway you use your thigh and back muscles to skate."

Whether due to good posture, strong ankles or perhaps simply an excess of confidence, the Super Skaters Shearer brought to demonstrate the sport certainly showed how it should be done.

Michael and Broward Foster, members of the Flyers speed skating team, cut the tight corners of Lundin Hall with an agility that was to the envy and awe of all present.

Following the speed demonstration, 16 year old Greg Tompson executed a number of jumps, spins and art skating maneuvers, as well as a roller dance segment with Shearer. Tompson is training to be a competitive speed and freestyle skater.

Shearer mentioned that in addition to her regular classes, she has held special skating sessions for the mentally and physically handicapped. Among those she has taught to skate are epileptic and mongoloid children.

"It took a couple of hours for them to learn to skate; the speed team taught them," Shearer recalled, "when the night was over I just went back to my office and cried."

But the greatest moments to the skating instructor have been when she witnessed a child — handicapped either by a birth defect or by sheer lack of confidence — gain a sense of security on wheels.

Some 50 Port St. Lucie children were able to join in that thrill Monday, as they watched John Balchunas master the roller skates through his own determination.

ANXIOUS FACES—Roller skating veteran Greg Tompson laces up the skates of Joe Balchunas as Cynthia Thornton and John Balchunas apprehensively look on. Monday marked the first time ever on roller skates for these three summer library program participants. There were thrills and spills at the Community Center, but by the end of the session the three were well on their way to learning how to roller skate. (Photo by Michelle Naspinski)

Condo advisory board to meet

The Condominium Advisory Board of the Florida Division of Land Sales and Condominiums will hold its regional meeting at the Monterey Yacht and Country Club, 1900 Palm City Road, Stuart, at 10 a.m., Friday, July 18.

The agenda includes the discussion and question "What role should the Division of Florida Land Sales and Condominiums play in the regulation of unit owner controlled condominium associations?"

Division Director, Earl Foster, has asked Alex M. Knight, Bureau of Compliance to set up the meeting in the form of a panel.

The meeting will be open to the public, and all persons interested in condominium regulations are urged to attend.

August GED exams set

Registration will begin July 21 thru 30 for adults who are interested in taking the GED test for their high school diploma at the Adult Education Office, 500 East Ocean Boulevard, Stuart. Registration is required as enrollment is limited to 50 persons.

Applicant must be a resident of Florida and not enrolled in a day school program, will need to bring a birth certificate or driver's license along with $14.50 to cover the cost for the battery of five tests. They will also need social security cards as they will serve as test identification numbers.

Each examinee will test each evening August 11-12-13, beginning at 6:15 pm at the Martin County High School. The five test areas are writing skills, social studies, science, reading skills and math.

THE NIGHT SHIFT—As the sun goes down in Port St. Lucie and Jensen Beach and most area residents retire from a long day's work, the men & women of the graveyard shift prepare to leave for their jobs as nurses, law enforcement officers, doctors & commercial fishermen, radio disc jockeys and many other night shift occupations. (Photo by Michelle Naspinski)

Area residents pioneer the frontier of night

First in a series

The night shift.

The graveyard shift... the mad night hour... twilight time... the wee hours of the morning... after dark... after hours... moonlighting... overtime... bedtime.

For the majority of Americans these terms still describe a time of the day's cycle when work is ended and the body is able to rest in preparation for the next sunrise.

But for some 13.5 million Americans – 16 percent of this nation's total workforce – the traditional day night cycle is reversed.

They are the members of the graveyard shift, the pioneers of night.

And while they are most easily found in metropolitan centers like New York and Chicago, which are fast becoming 24 hour cities, even the small towns of Port St. Lucie and Jensen Beach depend on their night hustling nurses, doctors and law enforcement personnel to let nine-to-fivers rest easier.

The phenomenon of night work has increased steadily since the 19th century development of electric light ing. But sociologists are now tying its dramatic upswing in occurance to a shift in pioneering from space to time, rather than any invention of man.

Boston University professor of sociology Murray Melbin has spearheaded research into a theory that American pioneers, when faced with the inability to push any further west than California, moved instead into the time zone of night... claiming that their new frontier.

One intriguing result is that California's main cities have become areas of great activity in the dark hours, stated Melbin, "almost as if the flow across the continent, because it could not spill into the sea, swerved into the nighttime."

Who are these pioneers of the night frontier?

Locally they include a diverse range of personalities and professions that benefit the area in ways often forgotten by workers of the day shift.

In the upcoming segments of this series, the Mirror will take its readers on a tour through the light-dimmed corridors of Martin Memorial Hospital at night. We'll stop and talk with the medical personnel that are charged with guarding the sometimes tremulous conditions of their patients while they sleep.

In much the same way pioneers of the wild West faced constant danger from outlaws and indian attacks, the modern night frontier attracts its own share of intrigue, as the greatest share of violent crimes are committed at night. The Mirror will bring readers along for a midnight ride with a Sheriff's deputy and learn why patrolling the streets during the graveyard shift is unlike any other time.

Next week, the Mirror will look inside the Ft. Pierce Wizard 99 radio station as the jockey Bob Rivers pilots the midnight airways for sundown listeners.

These are just a few of the nocturnal area workers who keep Port St. Lucie and Jensen Beach alive with activity at night.

Who works the night shift and why? What effect does the time swap have on their lifestyles and perspectives? Embark on this journey into the nighttime netherlands next week in the Mirror and find out.

The German-American Club of Stuart will conduct a social evening at the Port St. Lucie Community Center, Prima Vista Boulevard, Port St. Lucie at 7 p.m. Friday, July 18.

Singing, dancing and entertainment will be presented by members of the club and the event is open to members and prospective members. Food will be available, but it is a byob affair.

Seven Adelines attend meeting

Sweet Adelines, Inc. held a seminar recently at the University of Central Florida, Orlando. The curriculum included arranging, directing, vocal production, and choreography. The faculty came from far and near: New Jersey, Oklahoma, Texas, North Carolina and Florida.

Attending this weekend of education and fun from the Treasure Coast Chorus were Gace Riley, director; Evelyn Jackson, Janice Hawks, Mildred Clark, Muriel Berg, Theresa Bush, and Margaret Burns.

The chorus is looking for good singers, ages 16 years and up, needing singers for the tenor lead, baritone and bass sections. Persons do not have to be able to read music although it is helpful. For transportation or carpool to rehearsals, contact Val Wilson 461-6085, Jan Hawks 878-2737, Mildred Clark 334-1909, or any other member.

Rehearsals are held each Monday at 7:30 p.m. St. Peter's Lutheran Church Social Hall, corner of Virginia Avenue and South 26th Street, Ft. Pierce.

Also, the chorus is available to entertain at parties, banquets, or meetings. Whether 15 minutes or an hour, Adelines can provide entertainment for all ages. To schedule the singers contact Jan Hawks, 878-2737.

Mucci Agency awarded Heritage

In a move designed to reduce administrative costs and improve internal marketing effectiveness, Heritage Federal Savings and Loan Association of Daytona Beach has appointed Mucci Associates, Inc., as its agency of record to administer its $350,000 advertising budget.

The move from internal administration according to Heritage Federal Executive Vice President Ken Hill, will free the staff to more effectively plan and prepare new services and coordinate marketing efforts within the institution's 16 offices.

IRCC Itinerary

If you think of the typical community college student as a recent high school graduate who is taking classes in order to earn a degree and move on to an upper-level college or university, you may be surprised to know how the typical Indian River Community College student contradicts this description.

For one thing, the typical student at IRCC is 28 years old. This fact leads to other interesting differences between the imagined and the actual community college student. Many students who attend IRCC go directly into the work force after learning a skill and earning a degree or certificate. Some students already employed in their chosen career fields, attend IRCC to upgrade or refresh their knowledge. Still others are employed but want to change jobs; they often take occupational training classes during their free time to gain the skills necessary to get the job they really want.

Whether they take one class or an entire program at IRCC, all these students have a common goal. They want to improve themselves and their lives, and they know that education is one of the surest, most gainful ways to do it. If you would like to assess your career goals and plan an educational program to fit your objectives, the IRCC Guidance Office would like to help. Why not drop by Guidance today, pick up a Fall schedule, and talk with an counselor. You have nothing to lose by updating or learning new job skills, and you might have a lot to gain.

R-E LICENSE RENEWAL

Real estate salespersons with last names beginning with G-M must complete a real estate post registration course by October 1 in order to keep their licenses in force. IRCC has post registration classes scheduled in all four counties through Summer II and Fall Terms, and all classes will meet in convenient weekend sessions to make it easy to update your license. Available either for college credit or institutional credit, the post registration classes are held from 2 to 8 p.m. on Friday and from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, on August 22 and 23 at the Main Campus in Fort Pierce. Scheduled to begin with Fall Term as a whole is a series of these post-registration classes, so watch for further announcements to keep your license valid. IRCC also will offer various other real estate courses this Fall, including Real Estate Practices and Principles I and II, Real Estate Licensing Law, Real Estate Finance, and Real Estate Appraisal. Call the IRCC Guidance Office for more information about any of these classes.

PARAMEDIC-EMT PROGRAM

Registration is going on now for the Paramedic and EMT courses scheduled to take place this Fall in Martin, St. Lucie, and Indian River Counties.

Fundamentals of Emergency Care, a basic theory course which will qualify students to take the state EMT certification exam, will be offered at the Martin County Civil Defense Building in Stuart on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. beginning August 25, at the Indian River County Volunteer Ambulance Squad in Vero Beach on Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. beginning August 25, and at the IRCC Main Campus in Fort Pierce on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. beginning August 26. Registration for these classes must be completed by August 15.

An Emergency Medical Care Refresher Course, required by the state for recertification of EMTs, will also be offered this Fall. To meet at the Martin County High School on Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. beginning August 25, at the Indian River Volunteer Ambulance Squad on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

One additional EMT course, First Provider Concepts of Emergency Care, will cover only the most basic first aid information and is not designed to qualify students for the state EMT exam. Also being offered are two courses in the Paramedic Training Program, Medical and Traumatic Emergencies and Clinical and Extrication, which must be taken simultaneously and for which registration must be completed by August 15. For more information about the entrance requirements and courses offered by the EMT-Paramedic Department, call the IRCC Guidance Office, ext. 323, or EMT Paramedic, ext. 474.

Register to vote

Local residents have until August 9 to register to vote in the upcoming primary elections. Also, persons who have not voted in the past two years must check with the county supervisor of elections to see if their names have been purged from the rolls.

Persons who have changed their address from one precinct to another must register the change at the elections office.

In an informative statement by the supervisor of elections, the value of one vote was outlined.

One Vote does count!

One vote made Oliver Cromwell Lord Protector of the Commonwealth and gave him control of England. (1645)

One vote caused Charles I to be executed. (1649)

One vote decided that Americans speak English rather than German. (1776)

One vote kept Aaron Burr, later charged with treason, from becoming President. (1800)

One vote elected Marcus Morton governor of Massachusetts. (1839)

One vote elected Texas part of the United States. (1845)

One vote saved President Andrew Johnson from impeachment. (1868)

One vote changed France from a monarchy to a republic. (1875)

One vote admitted California, Idaho, Washington and Oregon to the Union. (1850, 1890, 1889, 1859)

One vote elected Rutherford B. Hayes to the presidency, and the man in the electoral college who cast that vote was an Indiana congressman elected by one vote. (1876)

One vote made Adolph Hitler head of the Nazi Party. (1923)

One vote saved the selective service system only 12 weeks before Pearl Harbor. (1941)

Yes, one vote does count. And if you consider ten, a hundred, or a thousand votes, they scream a demand, for in our democracy, the people select their government.

Advanced life support an expensive problem

Every family would like to drive a new car, live in a $100,000 house, and eat steak every night. It would be nice, but every family cannot afford the car, house and steak.

The professional medical people at Martin Memorial Hospital would like to have only professional paramedics and the latest in advanced life support systems on ambulances bringing patients to the hospital. It would be nice, but the people of Martin County cannot afford the price.

There is no way that the suggested $471,566 price of advanced life support will stay there. As it is, the price is too high.

Martin County is still a small county, without the large tax base to warrent such refinements. Even at that, the expensive advanced life support poses a problem and warrents questions into the direction of what has been an excellent volunteer effort.

Why is it that Jensen Beach and Hobe Sound can produce excellent volunteer ambulance squads, and the rest of the county cannot? Why is it that the Emergency Medical Services Council cannot instill spirit and dedication into other areas so that they can have enough volunteers to do the job in areas outside Jensen Beach and Hobe Sound?

This is not to be critical of those who are working hard in the tri-area ambulance system. They are dedicated people and offer good service. But every time we hear a presentation, the lack of volunteers seems to be the crux of a drive for a paid staff, rather than a volunteer staff on ambulances.

The philosophy of The Mirror has always been that government should do only that which the people themselves cannot do.

This is reflected in the community spirit of cleaning up the Jensen Community Center, building Langford Park, holding the July 4 fireworks, voluntary donations of rights-of-way for bike paths and landscaping the Arch.

It is reflected in the volunteer fire departments in Jensen Beach and Rio.

Of course, there is a lack of volunteers. The Samaritan Ambulance Squad in Jensen is always crying out for more volunteers to serve as emergency medical technicians and drivers. The service has never been overstaffed.

But the Samaritans have a spirit of volunteerism that is unmatched, and they never stop trying to seek out and train new volunteers. And, the volunteers keep coming for ward to serve.

We suggest that the Emergency Medical Services Council seek that kind of spirit and bring together the people to solve their own problem without abandoning the volunteer concept.

While advanced life support would be preferable, basic life support is the system that has worked well in the past, and worked well because it was based upon volunteers and donated funds.

Community spirit will suffer if one more volunteer service is taken away from the people.

Sentimental journey

Got a call from Albuquerque, N.M. the other night that brought back memories of one of my most unforgettable trips — that of delivering Lake to her new job.

Lake, I hasten to add, is one of the most mis-nicknamed females in existence. Instead of the tall, raspy roughshod Texan the moniker implies, looks and acts more like a duchess, regal and stately in her every mannerism. How she got either the name or the association with the somewhat grubby, ink stained trade will have to remain a mystery to both of us.

When she joined the staff of The Oak Rodger, we were all a bit fearful that we'd taken a misfit into our midst. But we needn't have worried. Like true royalty, she proved early that she could go along with a gag along with the best — or the worst — of us.

When it came time for a particularly deadly assignment, she was up for grabs. When the boss instructed a group of us to go out with rakes and hoes to clean up a particularly unsightly lot to enlist support for a clean-up-the-town story, Lake was out there hoe hoe-ing with gusto.

And all this despite a polio leg that had since childhood. It took a pretty ruthless reporter to gripe about the personal indignities imposed by the powers that be, with her setting the pace.

Besides which, Lake's bright and cheerful personality fit neatly into our off hours inner sanctum, ORBALLS Inc. ORBALLS, to let you in on the secret, stood for Oak Ridge Beer and Liquor Lappin' Society, a group of lesser employes which met on random back porches or around fireplaces, depending on the weather, mainly to drink beer and complain about the management. We were a tight little organization, most of the time.

It was at one of these sessions that Lake (who didn't drink but fit herself into the pattern and the mood anyway) sprang the news that she was yearning to get back to her old newspaper, The Albuquerque Tribune.

There was just one big hold up, she said. She'd learned to drive and bought a car only since her arrival in Oak Ridge, and she didn't think she was capable of tackling the drive out west all by herself.

I don't remember whether it was the third beer I was working on, or whether it was merely an overwhelming urge to fly off into the wild blue yonder myself, but I volunteered. I told her if she decided to take the job I'd go with her to help her drive out, not having an idea in my head as to how far it was or how long it would take.

In short, she took me up on it, and cheerily wrote her old boss she'd be back. And I was caught on the hook by my own beery words.

There was to be a third passenger, Lake's cat Grey Ghost. The prospect threw a shadow on my enthusiasm. I admit. I'd never traveled with an animal of any sort before, much less a cat.

Now, I won't say I don't like cats. It's just that I've always had the terrible feeling they are smarter than I am. After all, they get fed, pampered, cat sat with, and generally cozened. And unlike a dog, they aren't required to return any affection or acts of servility, like sitting up and barking for their food. The cat is always the winner, in any contest.

On our first day, we made it to Memphis, home of the Holiday Inn. We must have gotten one of the first ones built, because the walls were so thin you could hear the sheets rustle in the room next door.

The rest of the trip was a breeze, out through the hilly parts of Arkansas, through the endless seas of wheat of northern Texas, the occasional silo looming like a city in the distance. It makes you realize the vastness and security of this beautiful country, to drive through it.

Those long straight miles of Route 66 are a wonderful way to build up confidence in your driving ability, too. At first, during Lake's turn at the wheel, she held to an uncertain and hesitant 40 miles per hour. After the second day out, she was breezing along, occasionally remembering to be shocked by the fact that she was going 80. (Don't be shook up, officer. Back then, that was the speed limit on most of that long, unwinding highway.)

I was to be in Albuquerque three days, before my return by train. And we made the most of it. The first day there we spotted one of those familiar blue and gray trucks which had to be Atomic Energy Commission. Since we were so near our atomic sister city of Los Alamos, why not, we asked each other.

I picked up the phone and got the AEC headquarters office in Albuquerque. We'd like a tour, I said, after explaining who we were. Doors were opened with great alacrity. Soon we were headed for the mountains. (You just think you're in mountains in Albuquerque until you start going up.)

Up, up up we wound, past the timberline to 5,000 feet, finally coming to this incredible town in the sky. Lawns were green, flowers were blooming on lawns which looked almost impossibly like Oak Ridge. The only difference was — you couldn't breathe. My lungs don't even like the idea of functioning at 7,000 feet.

Nonetheless, it was a royal guided tour we got of the western atomic city. The scientists there seemed flattered that we were even interested in their remote ayrie.

Getting back to Albuquerque, for all its height, seemed like coming down to earth again. And, hot as it was — 98 during the day, the thin air made it seem cool by comparison.

I fell in love with Albuquerque — a mixture of the old and the new — the intermingling of the ancient Indian culture with the evidences of the atomic age made it a territory I'd like to spend a whole lot more time exploring.

And maybe I will some day. I told myself as I got on the train in that picturesque old railroad station. At least I left a good friend there to give me plenty of reasons to return.

The cost of the cultural

With the greying of the temples (if there is anything left there to grey) comes a natural phenomenum the conversion to conservatism. Also, the aging process brings with its more realistic and practical approach to what can be done.

All this is philosophical, and for those who have continued to read this far, I'd like to espouse a little bit of grey-haired truism.

Culture costs money.

Once, in a brilliant piece of deductive reasoning and community-minded spirit, I called Janet Hutchinson, curator of the Elliott Museum and driving force for just about all cultural growth in Martin County.

"Janet," I said, "wouldn't it be great to take the old Florida East Coast Railroad Station in Jensen Beach and [illegible] cultural history of Jensen Beach, the pineapple days, the fishing days, the art of early Florida."

That would be fine," Janet said patiently. "All we would need would be someone to come up with about $40,000 a year to run it, keep it staffed, and handle maintenance and that's after we restore it to its early-Florida beauty. I don't know what that would cost."

"Well, er, ummm, don't you think it's a great idea."

Janet matter-of-factly pierced my balloon of civic pride with, "If you can get the money, it's a grand idea, Dick."

Not to be daunted, I decided that it would be great to just get the FEC to give the old station to Martin County, or lease it for a dollar a year, and then worry about how to fund the museum.

I wrote a letter to a Mr. Thornton, head of the FEC, and outlined my plan. I got a resolution from the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce to back it up.

I didn't receive a reply, but a little while later a bulldozer arrived and the old station, the only concrete station on the FEC line, came tumbling down. It was all I could do to get the bulldozer operator to be gentle when he knocked down the "Jensen Beach" station sign and give it to me for the Chamber office.

"It was a great idea, the spirit of cultural-historical preservation is directly related to the cost of cultural-historical preservation.

There isn't much in the county budget for cultural development. It isn't that kind of a county. The success of the Martin County Historical Society is due to the interest of those who support the arts, with money and with work.

"You get five dollars in value for every fifty cents," Janet told me this week. "Martin County is the best bargain in museums."

Through volunteer workers and donations the Elliott Museum and House of Refuge operate. Martin County budgets only $12,000 a year for the House of Refuge, nothing for Elliott. The fifty-cent admission fee helps considerably.

The utility bill for the new wing of Elliott Museum just came in. It's $1,000 a month!

The upshot of all this is the proposal to renovate the old ice house in Stuart to a community center auditorium-art center-etc. The architects of the area would plan it, and it would take $100,000 to put it in shape.

It is estimated that the use fees would carry the cost of operation and maintenance if a highly paid staff isn't hired. It could possibly be operated under the historical society.

But, where would the $100,000 come from? If there isn't enough public support, it will come from a bunch of people who love the arts and who would be willing to plunk down a bunch of bucks to make the project go.

It's not impossible, but all should be aware of the cost of culture.

Perhaps we might form a fund raising organization similar to the "Save Our Beaches" committee (SOB) that raised enough to purchase beach access strips along Hutchinson Island.

It can be done. All it takes is money.

For Altie and Ellen

The letter came addressed to Uncle Bob Bob, in care of The Mirror.

Dick Campbell was leafing through the mail when he came across it and, of course, made a point of letting everyone in the office within earshot know that Uncle Bob Bob had received a letter.

I didn't have to open it to know it was from my nephew, Altie and or neice, Ellen, from Mystic, Conn.

They are the son and daughter of my brother, Alton, and sister-in-law, Jean. Altie just had his fifth birthday on July 11 (sorry the present is late, Jean, but it's on the way), and Ellen will be three next month. And, by the time Ellen is three, she and Altie will have a brother or sister, as Jean is due soon.

The envelope contained a card, for my recent birthday, from Altie and Ellen. Original examples of their art work were drawn on the card.

The envelope also contained a letter from Altie.

He's not a long-winded writer, unlike his uncle, but he sure has a way with words. His letter said, "I love you. I miss you."

It also contained a nifty drawing of a beak-bill dinosaur. I know it's a beak-bill dinosaur because it says so under the drawing.

Jean attached a note saying it was Altie's first letter and that it was entirely his idea.

It was a real treat to receive it.

Since Jean refuses to move south of the Mason Dixon line and I thank it gets too cold even in Jensen Beach sometimes, I don't often get to see Alton, Jean, Altie and Ellen. And, all of us are great procrastinators at writing letters, so I don't often hear much news from them, or send much.

I guess I should commend that last comment, because now that Altie is a letter writer, I'll have to see how frequently his letters start arriving. And, it's hardly fair to include Ellen as a procrastinator at writing letters, as she hasn't quite mastered her ABCs.

Anyway, the point is, I don't often get to see or hear from Alton, Jean, Altie and Ellen. And, since Altie and Ellen wished me a happy birthday, and it's the birthday season for them, I'd like to wish them both a happy one in this column, as well as one to my new neice or nephew.

Now I imagine Dick Campbell prefers that I direct my column comments to a greater audience than two members of my family, and one on the way, but I figure that's only because he has never met Altie and Ellen. Otherwise, he'd know they possess universal qualities of charm, and thereby qualify as column material for all our readers. Besides, I wrote a birthday column a couple of years ago for my nephew Brian, son of my sister, Pris, and brother in law Jim Beers. Dick never squalched about that one (Pris and Jen, I'll do one for Sara someday, so be patient).

Altie is, from what I hear, "into dinosaurs." I think it's an affliction of his age that will pass. Prior to dinosaurs, it was poky doh and, God forbid, snow shoveling. Altie has blond hair and rosy-red cheeks, a condition obtained, I'm sure, from not seeing enough sun up in the frozen wasteland known as Connecticut.

Nonetheless, he's adorable, as is his sister, Ellen. She's not yet well versed on the subject of dinosaurs, but knows an awful lot about crayons. And, she has very engaging conversations with her doll. She also has big brown eyes that can captivate any human, no matter how callous, from 20 paces.

Though Jean says they'll never move south of the Mason Dixon line, they are due to move from Connecticut to Maryland soon, so maybe they'll thaw out enough to come to their senses and move down in this neck of the woods. I'd sure like that, as I really miss seeing them grow up.

Anyway, let me wrap this up by saying Happy Birthday, Altie. I hope it was a fine one. And, Happy Birthday to you too, Ellen.

And as every good journalist is one who steals lines from other writers, let me close by stealing a couple of lines from Altie, who is now a "published" writer, by saying, "I love you. I miss you."

P.S. Jean, I notice Altie signed his letter "Alton." If he's old enough to have outgrown Altie, maybe it's time I simply became Uncle Bob instead of Uncle Bob Bob. It would make it easier on me around the office when your far too seldom letters arrive.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

The fireworks display this year was so spectacular that words cannot adequately describe it. The timing was perfect, the variety infinite. The oohs, aahs, and boat whistles and horns were awesome in their appreciation. We boaters pulled in close enough to shore to share in the groundworks which add immeasurably to the emotion and excitement.

The finale was so exquisitely choreographed that it brought tears to the eyes, lumps to the throats, and lots of gratitude to the Jensen group.

Enormous thanks to all who participated in and brought to us a very exciting 4th of July 1980.

Nergard kicks off campaign

State representative Charles (Chuck) Nergard kicked off his 1980 re-election campaign Thursday, with a well attended benefit dinner at the Port St. Lucie Community Center.

Nearly 300 area residents were in attendance Thursday to cheer Nergard on to another successful campaign and enjoy the company of their friends and neighbors.

Republican incumbant to District 76 Nergard was first elected to the Florida House of Representatives in 1967 and retained his seat through 1976.

In 1976 Nergard declined to run, due to the health of his wife Kay. But Nergard was re-elected in 1978 and filed his qualifying papers for the next election this month.

State officials labeled plans to plant sea oats on the dunes of Hutchinson Island to retard erosion as "not workable."

Savannas make cut for endangered land funds

The Savannas wetlands survived the first cut recently when state officials trimmed down a list of applications for funds to buy environmentally endangered land.

Not surviving the first cut was an application for funds to buy land along the south fork of the St. Lucie River in Martin County.

Though area conservationists were dismayed with the elimination of the south fork project, they were elated that the Savannas project is still alive.

For a number of years, local conservationists led by Dr. Walter Stokes have been seeking to save the Savannas from development. When local efforts began, the wetlands were owned by hundreds of residents.

It involved hours of research mounds of paperwork to gather the necessary information to submit an application for purchase of the Savannas by the state, but that was done and several years ago state approval was granted.

Following approval, several thousand acres were bought. However, before the purchase process was completed, a scandal rocked the state administration involved in purchasing endangered lands and the head of that department was ousted from office.

Though the Savannas purchases were not part of the scandal, when a new department head was named, he ruled that all projects, including those already approved, would have to be resubmitted and reevaluated before any more state money would be spent on endangered lands.

Again, Dr. Stokes set to work on the application, and got it in ahead of time even though he faced a stiff deadline. Last week the applications were reviewed by state officials and the Savannas was among the projects surviving the first cut. In future months, there will be several other reviews and eliminations of applicants before a final list will go to the governor and state cabinet for funding approval.

One thing in favor of the Savannas application is that the land already purchased by the state is dotted in a swiss cheese pattern with land not yet purchased. In order to successfully manage the areas already bought, state park officials say the land included in the newest application is needed.

CASH ON CASH RETURNS

QUESTION: I guess every business has its own jargon. But there are a lot of phrases which real estate people use that I find confusing.

One that I hear once in a while is 'cash on cash.' What does it mean?

ANSWER: The expression "cash on cash" usually refers to a comparison between the cash flow from an income property and the amount of down payment used to buy it.

For example, suppose you were offered a property at 100 Main Street. You would figure out the property's annual rental income, then subtract from this figure the operating expenses and your financing costs. The result would be the property's cash flow. Let's say that this cash flow amounts to $2,100. Let's also assume that you would purchase the property with $30,000 down.

Your "cash on cash" return would be 7 percent. This was calculated by dividing your $30,000 down payment into the property's $2,100 of annual cash flow ($2,100 ÷ $30,000 = .07). The cash on cash return from investment properties can vary significantly depending upon many factors, such as the degree of leverage used and the property's anticipated growth potential.

Corps expects inlet to be finished in November

Giant cranes mounted on barges are in the process of lifting six to 10-ton boulders into place in the St. Lucie Inlet.

The work is progress as part of the Inlet Improvement Project, which got under way when Mobile Land Development (Florida) Corporation, the developers of Sailfish Point, reached an agreement with the Army Corps of Engineers last fall. In return for land fill dredged from the Intracoastal, the developers signed over ownership of 350,000 cubic yards of beach quality sand to be dredged from upland and submerged property in the inlet, and used to replenish eroded beaches at the state park on Jupiter Island's north end.

Mike Grundy, an area engineer who works out of the Corps' Clewiston office, said the first rock was layed several weeks ago.

"After placing about 500 tons of rock at the 'North' Jetty," Grundy stated, "we ran into a slight problem when a shoal developed in the channel. We put a small dredge in there to take care of the shoal, and everything is back in normal. We're pretty much back on schedule and we expect the entire project to be completed some time in November."

Wilkinson & Jenkins Construction Co., Inc. of St. Petersburg is under contract to the Corps to handle the project. The huge boulders are being quarried in Georgia and Tennessee and shipped to Indiantown aboard the Seaboard Coastline Railroad. Wilkinson & Jenkins then uses a 100-ton crane to place the rocks on barges that transport them through the St. Lucie River to the Inlet.

A company spokesman said, "We try to unload them at the North Jetty, but when the weather's too rough, we drop them off at a staging area on Jupiter Island.

"So far we've placed about 10,000 tons. Before we're finished, the total should come to approximately 100,000 tons. Now that summer is here and we've got calm weather, we should be able to work at a pace of about 2,000 tons per day."

The company has a crew of 15 men at work on the project. While some are at work constructing the North Jetty, others have a full time job transporting the 34,000 tons of rock that are now stock piled in Indiantown.

Martin County residents are anxiously awaiting the completion of the project that will make the St. Lucie Inlet among the best in Florida.

Once Wilkinson & Jenkins has constructed the North and South Jetties, as well as an offshore breakwater, Trans State Dredging Co. of Fort Pierce takes over.

A subcontractor hired by Wilkinson and Jenkins to dredge the Inlet, Trans State will bring in the 800 ton 150 foot "Stuart" which employs a 20-inch hydraulic pipeline. A crew of 35, working in three shifts, seven days per week, 24 hours per day, will need approximately three months to complete the job.

"We'll dredge from just beyond the old jetty to a point slightly west of Sailfish Point," said Bill Pearce, vice president of Trans State. "About a mile in all."

According to Pearce, when the job is completed the Inlet will be about 10 feet deep on the west end and gradually increase to 18 feet on its eastern extremity.

"We'll pump about 700,000 cubic yards of sand onto the beach on the north end of Jupiter Island. It will extend the beach 75 feet out toward the water for a total length of 18,000 feet.

INLET PROJECT—At the staging area on the north end of Jupiter Island, a 100-ton crane loads huge boulders onto a barge. After a short haul to the North Jetty, the crane lifts the boulders into place as the St. Lucie Porject progresses on schedule.

Shot is fired at Bay Harbor security guard

Three juveniles, two boys and a girl, were arrested early Sunday morning after allegedly firing a shot at a security guard at Bay Harbor Plaza in Sewall's Point.

Guard James Simpson reports he spotted the three youths hiding behind a vehicle in the parking lot and that they took off running as he approached.

One of the youths reportedly fired a rifle shot at Simpson, but missed.

The youths fled, but were eventually caught after law officers conducted a search for them. During the search, a loaded and cocked rifle, wrapped in a towel, and a box of ammunition was found. Also, officers found that a vehicle near the Evans Crary Bridge had been broken into, but nothing was apparently taken from it. The youths were turned over to Division of Youth Services officials.

8,000 volume theatre library given as memorial to FIT

A comprehensive library on the theatre arts, donated by actor Richard Lake, has arrived at Florida Institute of Technology, and is being prepared for circulation at the FIT library, home of the Frances Langford Fellowship Little Theatre.

Lake, who has become familiar to the area with his presentations at Elliott Museum, said he was making the donation to the local facility as his "spiritual home." His appearances at the museum have become a high point of the season for the Martin County Historical Society.

The gift collection includes some 8,000 pieces, from manuscripts to full studies in theatrical works. The actor's intention to make the donation was announced last March, when a "token," dozen or so pieces were turned over to Prof. Susan Braunstein, of the school's Humanities Department.

At present, FIT has no drama department per se, but the books are expected to be useful to students studying the humanities, according to Dr. William Gehring.

The gift has been made in memory of Lake's twin sister, Chiquita Lake Napier, who died in 1978 after a losing battle with multiple sclerosis and cancer. Mrs. Napier, a graduate of the Illinois Masonic School of Nursing, lived with her husband Joseph Napier and their four children in Homewood, Ill.

The Lake twins were born in Chicago. Following high school, Lake received his bachelors degree at the University of Arizona and his master's degree from Purdue, where he joined Actor's Equity with the university's resident repertoire company. After serving in the Navy and apprenticing at San Diego's famed Old Globe Theatre, he attended the Pasadena Playhouse, touring for two years and working with summer stock.

Lake was artist in residence at the University of Florida for some time, teaching, coaching and performing. It was during this period that he was contacted by Elliott Museum director Janet Hutchinson who asked for performing arts programs at the museum. Among them was the now famous "Evening with Carl Sandburg," which proved so popular with local audiences.

In his donated collection are scripts, technical books on theatre history, acting, make up, programs, articles on outstanding theatre personalities, old albums and many signed books. Many of them are of plays and other theatricals in which Lake has performed.

There are also many Lake originals. He has performed in some 30 productions, and has directed more than 20 plays, choreographed and designed two ballets and four musicals. In his spare time, he also writes poetry.

Dr. William Adams, who recently settled in Stuart, emphasized the value of such a comprehensive collection of related material to the FIT library.

"After 28 years of teaching," Dr. Adams said, "I can appreciate the value of good tools."

$800,000 in sales at Crane Creek

Crane Creek at Martin Downs, a single family home community located just west of Stuart, recorded more than $800,000 in homesite sales in less than three months.

Don Ricci, director of sales, attributes much of the brisk activity to a creative financing program launched by the development in April.

"We introduced direct 10 years loans at 10 percent interest on Crane Creek homesites as interest rated climbed to record levels," Ricci explained. "Even though rates have eased off a bit, our financing is still well below the market." The financing program is expected to continue until mid September, as availability permits.

All Crane Creek homesites are an acre-plus in size, with prices starting at $23,500. According to Ricci, many of the recent buyers are from Dade and Broward counties.

Martin Downs is a 2,400 acre community with more than 80 homes built or under construction in Crane Creek.

Ricci stated that Crane Creek also has second mortgage money available for builder's spec homes.

THEY HOPED TO SEE the turtles at the House of Refuge on the beach south of the Stuart Causeway, but had to settle for this outside view of the famed chelonian haven, because it didn't open for visitors until 1 p.m. and they had to head back to the Orlando area after lunch. The adults didn't mind too much, but the six-year-old was desolated and consoled only by the promise that he would "see the big turtles" on his next visit to the area.

Orlando visitors discover the House of Refuge and Hutchinson Island

A SHELL IS A SHELL and a joy to the eye of the beholder, especially if he's just six and looks upon just about all shells as wonders of nature and something to collect and take home. Here, Wade hands his mother a choice mollusk he has just retrieved from the surf.

IF ROCK FORMATIONS are your bag, don't miss those down at the House of Refuge. Two Orlando visitors, father and son, are enjoying the smooth sandy beach, searching for shells and otherwise reveling in what we who live here take so much for granted, beautiful beaches, gentle surf, sunshine and breathtaking rock formations.

THIS CLOSE UP of the tower landmark at the House of Refuge shows Barry Lundin of Casselberry, a northeast suburb of Orlando, standing among some of the fascinating rock structures marking the beach near the Refuge.

Fire departments are recognized, then chiefs air their differences

Though Martin County has had a number of volunteer fire departments for years, they were only officially recognized as being in existence last week, and right away, two fire chiefs got into a disagreement.

The departments were recognized in passage of an ordinance last week by the county commission, according to Joe Luciano, Jensen Beach Fire Chief and president of the county Fire Chief's Association.

Luciano said the ordinance recognizes the existence of the departments and sets standards that must be met in order for persons to serve as firemen or as fire chief. "It won't affect the people serving now, but in the future, it will establish qualifications. For example, all new firemen will have to have a physical. And, instead of being a popularity contest, it sets standards for selecting fire chiefs. They must have at least eight years of firefighting experience, be a certified firefighter, and have at least a high school diploma," he said.

Luciano added that county commissioners also discussed operational procedures for handling hazardous materials emergencies. There has been a lot of concern expressed recently over the county's capability for responding to hazardous materials accidents in the wake of a 20-car train derailment in Jensen Beach last month. None of the cars carried hazardous materials, but it prompted talk of what would be done if there was an accident involving such materials.

The District Two county fire department has been designated as the hazardous materials rescue team. That department is headed by Chief Ed Smith, and at last week's commission meeting, Luciano said he has some differences with Smith. He commented that Smith implied that the Jensen Department endangered lives when firemen parked their trucks next to derailed train cars at the Jensen Beach accident before knowing the cars contained no hazardous materials.

Luciano said he had "already found out from three sources that there was nothing in the train before we parked."

"One chief shouldn't insist on having it his way when there are 10 other chiefs involved," Luciano said of a proposal by Smith that all firemen remain at their department head quarters until the hazardous materials team arrives on the scene of an accident and calls for them. Luciano said that proposal was rejected and that there was to be a meeting Monday night among the fire chiefs to try setting up operational procedures for hazardous materials accidents.

Crandall seeks second term on school board

David Crandall announced this week that he is seeking re-election to the District Four Martin County School Board seat.

Crandall, who has worked for Pratt and Whitney Aircraft for 12 years as a systems design engineer and supervisor, has served one term on the school board.

He has been a resident of Martin County for 10 years and has been active in church and school committees, the United Way, and as a Pony League baseball coach in Palm City.

Crandall, 35, says he is seeking re-election to develop a long range facility plan for the school district, to assure completion of on-going construction programs, to work on attendance districting and program goals and development, and to continue disciplinary programs to stress student responsibility.

He also seeks to guide implementation of school based management, to help complete revision of school board policies and to continue addressing "the interesting challenges of the position."

He and his family reside in Crane Creek in Palm City. His wife, Sharon, is a registered nurse and owner of Lullaby Nursery in Stuart. They have two sons, both students of Palm City Elementary School.

Moose offer to build one causeway pavilion

The Jensen Beach Legion of the Moose will seek the permission of Martin County Commission to build a new pavilion on the Jensen Beach Causeway. The plan was revealed as Moose members reported to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce board of directors on the success of their July 4 food concession at the causeway.

"We used one pavilion and had to rent a generator to operate. A new pavilion is needed, and we need a public service project," said George Mumm, Moose secretary, who appeared at the board meeting.

Mumm, and Moose Trustee Don Howard were congratulated by the Chamber for the public spirit of The Moose Lodge, and told that the county would welcome the offer of the Moose.

Riverside Village fire destroys mobile home

Fire destroyed the mobile home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Shettleroe recently at Riverside Village trailer park according to Jensen Beach Fire Chief Joe Luciano.

Luciano said fire was already coming out of the windows of the trailer by the time he arrived at the scene, and said the fire apparently started in the bedroom from an electrical short. He said the owners were not present when the fire broke out and that their son had left the trailer less than an hour before it started.

A total of 18 men and five fire trucks were called to the scene and it only took a few minutes to put out the blaze "though it flared up several times," he said.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES

Assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Peg Ray

We have many letters coming in from our large family, thank you all. Peg and Reg Turner took over a week to arrive home. At Wilmington, Del. visiting long time friends, made a very pleasant trip. Seemed good to be back home, to find the Spring lush greens everywhere. Although a weather news commentator announced that out of 13 days, that a record 11 days, breaking the low temperatures. Then to get into plenty of jobs that needed their attention, after 7 or 8 months here at H Out Oh Well!

Our Recreation Clerk, Stephanie Kerlafer and husband Fred arrived home in N.Y. all O.K. But already Stephanie misses her daily walks oceanside. It is cool there. They are having a garage sale. Wish them well.

Jim and Martha Lewis, home in Akron, Ohio, are having generally bad weather. But they are as usual making their shuffleboard tournaments on weekends. On June 5th at Carey, Ohio, Jim & Martha took 1st place in Consolation Class. The next weekend they went to Canton, Martha took 4th place in Main Event. The following week they were in Gadon, Martha tripped and fell hurting her ankle, so had to return home. The next weekend they had the Ohio State singles at their club. Martha took 2nd place consolation. The next week will go to Lakeside for 2 weeks for the Ohio State and National games.

Helen and Carl Eury writes that Carl was hospitalized for nine days in June in Asheville, N.C. But is home now following the Dr.'s orders, to be quiet for at least 6 to 8 weeks. Also home bound, no trips. Helen says she is watching over Carl carefully. We hope that Carl will return in good health.

We also learned that Mr. Richard Worber of Lot 127 passed away at his home in Cincinnati, Ohio. We extend our heartfelt condolences to wife Clara & family.

The host & hostess of the week were the Bob & Ethel Shilhorn's. They had a turkey dinner for Aunt and Uncle Catty and Leslie Gilmann on Sunday night. Monday evening they wined and dined Pat Sykora and Dell Stam on their return trip from Michigan. Pa said she got homesick for H Out and couldn't stay away any longer. Thursday, Ethel treated us all to a watermelon party on the beach.

Al & Peg Ray enjoyed being the guest of Lee Price's at Venture Harbor on Thursday night. They all went to the Venture. Three covered dish supper. Fran Tenor and Alydth Guedt were the hostesses. Fran did exotic things to the baked chicken that she cooked for all.

We were sorry to learn that Peg and Al Ray were called to Hialeah on Saturday morning. Their daughter-in-law was slightly hurt in an accident but the daughter's mother was hurt seriously.

Anniversaries congratulations: Pat & James Sykora, 7-18. Carole & Al Wright, 7-19.

Happy Birthday Wishes: Anthony Palumbo, Gerald Titherington, and Lois Denison 7-18. Joe Fittinger, 7-19. Lolton Devore and Barry Young, 7-20. Harriet Dublon, 7-21. Herb Rough, 7-22. Mark Sumner and Barbara Gunderson, 7-23. Debbie Nash, Gordon McIntyre and Wilmuth Devore, 7-24.

Dot and Browne Browne wrote that they have passed the half way mark on their Western trip. They went to the west side of the rockies and crossed back over the mountains through a pass of 11,300 feet. In Loveland, Colorado they stayed at a campground belonging to friends who took them on a tour of all the marvelous sights.

After leaving Loveland they traveled secondary roads through North and South Dakota. The Browne's prefer these as they see more sights although it is sometimes hard to find campgrounds off the highways. In Cogswell, N.D. they found a campground that was a community project and free. The people of the town were very hospitable and invited Dot and Browne to the big fourth of July picnic which they thoroughly enjoyed.

Dream of cruise goes up in smoke

Dreams of taking his 40 foot catamaran on a sailing Cruise up the coast through the Great Lakes and down the Mississippi River literally went up in smoke for Dr. George Martin last Wednesday.

For months, Dr. Martin's boat has been moored in a cove on the Indian River a short distance south of the Holiday Inn Oceanside in Jensen Beach.

Dr. Martin was in California, giving lectures, but was planning to return in a couple of weeks to make final preparations for the cruise.

A friend of Martin, Wayne Cline, had been working on the craft recently to ready it for the trip. On Wednesday, he was painting the interior when he decided to take a break and have a soft drink at the Holiday Inn. According to Jensen Beach Fire Chief Joe Luciano, when Cline returned to the boat, he found it on fire, attempted to put the fire out, then raced to the Holiday Inn to call the fire department when he realized he couldn't extinguish the fire.

As the firemen were headed over the causeway, William Davies noticed smoke across the river from his September.

Luciano said he spoke to Dr. Martin last week and the doctor said the boat, named the Conch Tiki, was insured. "He said he had put about $30,000 in the boat in the last year, buying a new engine and fixing it up," Luciano noted.

BOAT BURNS—The 40 foot catamaran "Conch Tiki" was destroyed by fire last Wednesday in a cove on the Indian River near the Holiday Inn Oceanside. A friend of the owner had been painting the interior of the boat when he left for a soft-drink break and returned to find it in flames. Two boaters cut the anchor lines of the Conch Tiki and towed it close to shore so firemen could douse the blaze. (Photo by Bob Fryer) moored trimaran, "I thought it was a trash fire, but I got my binoculars out and saw it was a boat on fire, so I got in my Boston Whaler and came over," Davies said.

When the firemen arrived, the burning boat was about 100 yards offshore — too far for the firemen to reach it with their hoses. But Davies and another boater cut the anchor lines to the boat and towed it in close to shore. Then the firemen waded into the river and doused the flames. However, by that time, the boat was destroyed.

"My men did a good job. The mud on the river bottom was thick and it was hard to carry an inch and a half hose out to it, but they managed, and kept the boat from exploding. It has two 75-gallon diesel fuel tanks on board and one was about three quarters full and the other about half full. There were also six gallon gas tanks on board," Luciano said.

Cline said the interior work on the boat was nearly completed and that when Dr. Martin returned, they planned to haul the boat for work on the hulls before the cruise was to begin.

Cline also noted that Martin rode out Hurricane David aboard the boat while it was moored in the cove last

Ocean Breeze

BY ERNIE CURWEN

A report from Ernie

Some may have noted that this column has been missing recently, as your reporter went north for a few weeks, to see if the reports of awful to wonderful weather were somewhat correct.

The trip to Hendersonville, N.C. was a bit different this year. Remember last year the Curwens hadn't travel by trailer for five years or more and had forgotten some of the basic rules. First they left their TV antenna extended as they wizzed down the road at 50 miles per hour to find they had a tangled mess of aluminum rods on the roof.

Second, they pulled off on a soft shoulder and after digging themselves in had to shovel themselves out. Third, the refrigerator door was not locked properly and there was a floor full of cooking oil, margarine, jello, eggs, etc.

That lesson was well learned and not repeated, but they did have a worrisome experience. While scooting along U.S.1, and only as far as Port St. Lucie, a concerned motorist waved them over to the side of the road the told them that a little ways back a big heavy piece of metal dropped off the back of the rig. A crawl under both vehicles and a mile walk back turned up no missing big heavy piece of metal (a piece of door trim was found). So, it was decided to proceed cautiously, and to this day the rig has behaved perfectly, in spite of constant worry.

Now, for the weather. It was found to be just as reported awful to wonderful. Good clear hot Florida weather was encountered for the first day and a half, then came the rains, three and a half days of downpours, one after the other, and it was darn cold too, flannel shirts and electric blankets were needed. Then it cleared to day after day of just about perfect weather with wisps of clouds on the mountain-sides to let you know you were in the midst of the Smokies.

However, North Carolina, like Florida does have its late afternoon thunder showers and they are not the simple little crash bang affairs of the flat country, they are a cash-bang, rumble roll, boom, rumble roll, as the thunder bounces back and forth between the mountains. Quiet awe some, at first.

SHUFFLING

There are many OBPers in Hendersonville, as it is the summer center of shuffling in USA, and many Ocean Breezers are true 'died-in-the wool' shufflers, so here are some items on their doings.

First, Frank Runyan, the OBP shuffle reporter, submitted the following item on the recent 'Skyline Doubles' Pro & Amateur Tournament at Tom's Park, Hendersonville. It's a big event, 34 Pro teams, 44 amatuer, making a total of 156 people participating, with the following all from the Florida Central East Coast District winning trophies.

Pro Division, Main Event, 1st place, Oscar Kohlman, Spanish Lakes, 2nd place, Pete Muller, ExOBPer, now Spanish Lake (Riverfront). And, for Consolation 1st place, Ed Travis, Melbourne, 2nd place, Jack Clugstone, Ft. Pierce.

Amatuer Division, Main Event, 1st place, Yvonne Tondreau, Port St. Lucie, 3rd place, Arthur Tondreau, Port St. Lucie, 4th place, Lucy Bierd, Cape Canaveral.

Also, Ocean Breezers, Guy Fusco, Ella Lee and Fran Runyan, survived a few rounds before being eliminated. So, our local shufflers are to be congratulated on such a splendid showing.

RAMBLING

Joe and Ida Wisser are both fine and enjoying the summer at Easler's Trailer Park. Ida is just back from visiting a sister in Rottendam, N.Y., that she hasn't seen for 12 years. She flew to Rotterdam, then was driven by car to Long Island to visit with more of her family.

Guy and Louise Fusco, from Ocean Breeze are staying at the Hendersonville Trailer Park, where Guy is director of Bean Bag Tournaments and a very active shuffler.

Ella Lee, of Miracle Way, OBP, is also staying at Hendersonville Trailer Park and her skill at Bean Bagging, helped her team defeat the Easler's Park team last Sunday.

Fran Runyan of Pepper St., OBP, is fine, except for a stiff finger that doesn't bother shuffling, but does interfere with her bean bagging.

Pete Muller, an ExOBPer is also staying at the Hendersonville Park, along with ExOBPers Larry and Jean Fisher. They are all fine and want to say 'hello' to all there friends.

Charles and Iram Faur of SW Fifth Ave., OBP, are also staying in the Hendersonville area and they are just back from a week's trip to Indiana. Also, Ken Smith another OBPer is staying here for the summer and Ken is still actively shuffling, but not playing in any of the tournaments.

LETTERS FROM OBPers

Lura Fowler of NE Ninth St. writes from Virginia, that she has enjoyed visiting friends there, but is now on her way home to Scenectady, N.J. to catch-up on her square dancing. Says, weather's been wonderful, and getting warmer now.

Veronica Snyder writes from NE 5th Ave. that Pappy is a little better and that she drove him to the doctors and Wuun Dixie the other day and he alone criticized her driving a wee bit (sounds good?).

Winnie Moore of Board and 5th Ave. wrote to Veronica from Boston saying they made it home in 3½ days, with no troubles. Larry has a dozen tomato plants already set out and is working in his shop mornings.

Ellen Nixon, of Center St. wrote from way down Maine, saying that they are having a nice visit with 'mama' (ExOBPer, Vi Alley), and that she is fine and driving her car, like ol' times. They plan to be back to OBP early in July.

COMING EVENTS

There is a lot doing around here: AARP picnics; Park picnics; Pot Luck meals; day tours; nutrition meals (3 miles); blood pressure clinics, etc. So, as soon as we catch our breath, we'll do some investigating and let you know what the seniors are doing and saying up this way.

Fleisher wins PGA tops Larry Rinker

BY MIKE SANDY

One of two errant tee shots in the final 18 holes of play Sunday practically eliminated Larry Rinker in his quest for the Florida PGA Open title as Bruce Fleisher won the coveted honors and top prize of $4,000 by a four shot margin, 16 under par 272 with a closing round of 69.

Rinker, of Stuart, who has been competing on Spaceboat Mini tournaments, fattened his bank account by adding $3,400 of second place money to his year's earnings on the links.

With three of the four contestants in the final foursome going at it nip and tuck for the first 15 holes, Fleisher took the lead by a shot when he birdied 3, the 15th hole. Rinker's rowdy shot came off his two iron on the par 3 sixteenth, the ball hitting just off the left side of the green and into a large palmetto bush. He took a stroke penalty, played the shot to the pin and missed a 10 footer coming back as Fleisher bogeyed the hole. The five was the only five on his score card, all others either three, or fours, as he birdied all of the par 5 holes.

Dave Peoples of Orlando produced many shots that showed why he is considered one of the top amateurs in the nation, finishing one shot back of Rinker for sole possession of third place. He was rewarded with a beautiful silver tray as he outscored a large amateur field in the four-day event.

Fleisher while playing one of his finer rounds was striving constantly to keep his concentration on his game. It has been told that he had mental lapses with his thoughts at home where his wife Wendy is convalescing after more than two months in a Miami hospital. Both her lungs had collapsed and doctors were forced to do a tracheotomy. Their daughter was born healthy, normal and beautiful and Bruce believes the Lord has guided him to this victory.

After winning the U.S. Amateur in 1968 and being named NCAA champion, Fleisher turned pro the following year under sponsorship of General Development Corp. He became widely known throughout the area, having spent much time at the Saints and Sinners courses at Sandpiper for practice rounds. Like the Rinker's of Stuart, Bruce also had his followers throughout the final 18 holes played on the Singer's course.

The total purse of $42,000 was shared as follows: Gordon Jones, Windermere ($2,820), 280; Robbie Gilmore Jr., Atlantic Beach ($2,150), 281; Dallas Apelgren, Pahokee ($2,150), 281; Bob Duval, Jacksonville ($1,900), 282; Rich Bassett, Miami Lakes ($1,300), 283; Sam Trahan, Cocoa Beach ($1,300), 283; James Weeden, Deerfield Beach ($1,300), 283, and Gary Baker, Kendall Lakes ($1,300), 283.

John Pallos, an amateur from Coral Gables tied at 284 with James King, Kip Byrne, Dean Refram and Bill Maxwell with each other than Pallos collecting $435.

Gary Wintz, Orlando, John Darr, Gainesville and Bill Robinson tallied 285 and each collected $650. David Pesacov, a Palm Beach amateur, also finished at 285.

Collecting checks of $500 each for their like totals of 286 included Brad Milan, Lake Worth, Les Smith, Sarasota and Wally Kuchard Amateurs Jay Townsend of Jensen Beach and National Left Handed champion Bob Michaels were also at the 286 figure.

All scores down to 292 finished in the money.

Crane scores ace in open

Huston Crane playing out of the Bay Hill Country Club on Orlando added more prestige to the amateur play in the open when he scored a hole-in-one on the 166 yard 12th hole of the sinners course. He used a five iron for the shot which came during the Pro Am portion of the event. Included in the foursome were Pro Roger Cooper of New Smyrna Beach and amateurs Roger Fleming and George Riley.

Clams and shrimp will get you whiting and croaker in the surf

REALLY GOOD FISHING just isn't in the cards at this time of the year, what with thunder storms and intense heat, but there are sails jumping, some kings and dolphin striking, plenty of bonito, lots of small sea trout on the grass flats, a few snook around the bridges, and plenty of tasty whiting and Atlantic croakers in the surf.

As a matter of fact, if you're bent on catching fish to eat and want some kind of an edge, plan on going to the beach early in the morning for a go at the croakers and whiting. Be sure to take along a good supply of clams and fresh or frozen shrimp, and also insect repellent, because the bugs will wear you out otherwise. The fishing for these good-eating bottom feeders is good up and down the beach, but is probably best north from Holiday Out above the Jensen Causeway off A1A. This is easy fishing with light spinning tackle, close to the beach, usually in the wash around the little dropoffs.

The sea trout are pretty small (12 inches is legal) and are taking mostly trout touts, live shrimp, live pigfish (2 inches) and mirrolures with teasers. A couple of good spots are the Frank Wacha Bridge and the little Mosquito bridge just east of it, and that little bridge on the Stuart Causeway just east of the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) bridge. Possibly the best flats are those around Walton Road on the west shore, Herman's Bay and off Big Mud Creek.

Offshore fishing is mostly bonito but sailfish are reported jumping southeast of the St. Lucie Inlet in about 120 ft. of water, and there are some king-mackerel and dolphin with them.

FRESHWATER FISHING has slowed down with the intense heat and you have to fish very early or just before dusk to do any good at all in the Jensen Savannas or at Lakes Kissimmee, Marian, Blue Cypress or Okeechobee.

FROM OKEECHOBEE FISH CAMP on SR 78 at the Okeechobee River Bridge on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee, Harold Russell: "Fishing is lousy, Dick, to tell it like it is. Bluegill fishing here was simply fantastic in May, but the shellcrackers didn't amount to much this year. We had a bass tournament this weekend and they didn't do too good with that strong west wind and the heat. I think fishermen caught as many crappies (specks) this year as last. The commercial fishermen aren't doing much at all."

RITA FASANO, from the party boat Miss Fort Pierce operating from the Fort Pierce Marina: "Bottom fishing has slowed down. The tide's running too fast and the water's warm and dirty. We've been catching bonito, some kings, sea bass, triggerfish and a few nice cobia. Thursday, we had 6 kings and John Rice of W. Virginia had a 35 pounder. Jerry Black of Okeechobee had a 29-0 (29 lb.) cobia on Monday and Andred Bellina of Spanish Lakes caught an 11-0 king on Saturday. Sundays now we're running a Family Day from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. with discounts for children. Bonito salad is good, Dick. You make it thusly: boil or bake your bonito and remove the meat, add a couple of cans of tuna, some diced celery and onion, a little lemon juice and a little mayonnaise and you'll have a tasty fish salad ready to eat."

FROM THE LADY STUART, party boat docking at the Sailfish Marina just east of Port Salerno and A1A below Stuart, Capt. Marlin Moudy: "That water's a little too warm now and it's a little slower than it has been we're getting some small scamp grouper and a few grays to 15-0, but it's mostly mangrove snappers, sea bass and triggerfish."

MURIEL WEIDEMAN from D&M Bait and Tackle at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S. 1 just above Stuart: "Saturday, the fishing from the bridge was excellent and fishermen using clams and shrimp caught scads of sheepshead, drum and mangrove snappers. Everybody was catching fish. Since then, nothing. You tell me what happens. I can't figure it at all. George Dohman caught a 28-0 king on ballyhoo 7 miles off the SL Inlet."

FROM THE BAIT BOX in Jensen, Chuck Shepherd: "Trout fishing is still good from the Frank Wacha and that little bridge next to the Ernest Lyons. Here are some catches. Conrad White and wife, trolling rigged ballyhoo and squid 120 degrees off the SL Inlet in 300 ft. a 40-0 wahoo, a 33-0 king, 5 bonito, a barracuda, and 2 sails on, one caught and released. Tom O'Neal, a 7-8 flounder, live mullet, east of Bullion Cove. Russ Mitchell, a 29-0" snook, live mullet. W. catwalk. Frank Wacha: Paul Keith, a 19-0 barracuda, rock bass. Lady Stuart: Tom Moriarty, 8 trout, cut bait (how about that?). E. catwalk. Frank Wacha."

DAVE LAMB, from Jensen Bait and Tackle: "I don't have too much for you today, Dick. Dave Smid caught 6 trout to 4-0 on live shrimp, flats north of the power plant. Jay Shank, 18 whiting, clams, Jensen Beach surf. Joe Ianeri, 14 lookdofers, 2 flounder, a trigger fish and 3 grunts, live shrimp and squid, from the north shore near the SL Inlet. Jim Miner, a 12-0 snook, surf, white feather. House of Refuge. Fishing could be pretty good, I think, but there just aren't that many people fishing now."

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK in Jensen, Johnny Crawford: "There's nothing to brag about in the way of fishing. Dick. Whiting are good north of Holiday Out but there are lots of weeds in the surf and the bugs are bad early when the fishing's good. There are a lot of trout on the grass flats, going for touts, mirrolures and small live pigfish. Live shrimp are still very small and soft. Snook fishing is slow. Offshore, they're catching a few dolphin and kingfish, and plenty of bonito."

THE NOOK'S log: Stan Zegarski, 2 trout to 5-12 and a 4-0 blue, mirrolures, wading N. of the power plant. Eric Zessa, Scott Shipes and Bryan Evans, 12 trout, touts, wading below the Outrigger. Andy and Kathy Jorgeson, 65 whiting and croakers, clams and shrimp below the Sheraton. Terry and Steve Yager and Vic Carlson, 41 whiting and 19 croakers, sand fleas, Sheraton. Art Miller, Carmine Gilberti and Frank Romeo, 15 sand perch and 3 croakers, shrimp, Sheraton. Lisa Heller and Cathy

Cornwall, 12 croakers and 2 whiting, clams, Sheraton. Fred Horsley, 2 days, 2 wahoo to 30-0, a king, a dolphin, a sail and 8 bonito, trolling SE of the SL Inlet with ballyhoo in 80 ft. of water. Tony Sago and Bryan Van Buren, a 6 ft. sail and a 12-0 dolphin ballyhoo 60 to 100 ft. of water off the SL Inlet.

Sandtrap

GOLFING NEWS BY MIKE SANDY

IT WAS THE WEEK THAT WAS At Sandpiper Bay Resort in Port St. Lucie when roads from every section of Florida led to this resort area, site of the Florida PGA General Development Open which opened with a Pro Am event and culminated in one of the most exciting and dramatic finishes in Open annals. The 40th Annual Florida PGA will be staged again at Sandpiper next year.

The Open event here proved more than just a tournament where prize money swelled to $42,000. It proved to be a week that has been looked forward to not only by those seeking the pot-of-gold but for most it meant a few days away from the "rat race" of daily chores. It got to be a "vacation" sort of trip where contestants were able to bring their families and get together with many old friends.

It meant competing in the game they know best — it meant socializing with friends before, during and after tournament action. Dining spots throughout the area were jam packed with families and their friends after the heat of battle on the golf course. Youngsters of all ages were around the golf courses. They were fishing, playing tennis and doing their "things." We had the privilege of roaming around the courses through out the five days and were able to meet the contestants and their families. Here are some of our observations.

Julius Boros, a member of Golf's Hall of Fame and a true "legend" of the game, came with an entourage of seven family members. They passed many evenings with the Harry Hendrons, old friends who live on Morningside Blvd. here. The families fished, dined and just had a real time of it. Julius was his usual gracious self, going out of his way to boost the younger lions and paid special attention to the many youngsters who came here just to meet him personally.

The Pro Am event staged Wednesday attracted 56 four man teams and a low tally of 27 under par found two teams deadlocked for top money of $550.00 per team. Gene Burkett, a member of Sandpiper Men's group, figured in one of the top teams.

John Darr, newly appointed golf coach of the FSU Gator team, was on hand playing in the event and also cheering on members of the Gators Golf team.

He had many words of praise for David Peoples, who set a new course record on the Sinners, scoring a 63 including nine birdies and nine pars. He believes Peoples will go a long way in the game and especially likes the attitude of Larry Rinker, a former Fla. star, who should make his presence felt on the major tour before many moons.

Laurie Rinker, who was recently named to the All American Collegiate team and a member of the Gator squad, divided her time following brothers Lee and Larry and also Peoples.

Pam Rinker, mother of the 'Golfing Rinkers', followed both Larry and Lee splitting her allegiance to nine holes for each, while father Laine Sr. did early morning charting at the courses, establishing landmarks for distances to the various greens.

Glenn Teal, a Life Member of the PGA and president of the World Seniors Playing Pros and Amateurs, came with wife Rhoda and were found visiting with the Billy Maxwells. Both Glenn and Billy played many years on the major tour. Maxwell has yet to miss an event in which Billy participates. She just walks every hole and out of sight, but is constantly rooting in her own fashion.

Billy Close, of Ft. Pierce, who figured to be among the leaders suffered a pinched nerve in his neck and was forced to withdraw after the third round. Jimmy DeLarme a former Sandpiper Bay assistant pro now serving with Zeno Bawley at Tam O'Shanter, drove himself to Martin Memorial Hospital the eve of the Open, suffering from a kidney stone attack.

Tony Valentine, who won the 1978 event here, was participating in his first tournament since undergoing surgery on his right hand last December. Tony was supported by his parents from Fort Lauderdale, wife Kathy and month old daughter.

The Baker family was well represented as usual — more than a "Baker's Dozen" were on hand as three Bakers participated, bros. Ron and Gary and amateur brother Darrell. Pa and Ma Baker were here with children and grandchildren.

The Norton Pallet's, owners of Norton Tire Co., were here boosting their 20 year old son John, who scored a record 64 on the Saints layout on opening day.

Jim Custer, head pro at the Hamptons, was accompanied by sponsor Lan Arnold of the Bay Way Chan of Canada. Custer is a descendant of General George Custer, and serves as a part time police officer in Coconut Creek. He got his basics at the same high school in Columbus, Ohio, where the Golden Bear matriculated — Like Nicklaus, he also attended Ohio State.

Buddy Harston, of Stuart, made his first trip back here from his pro job at Deerwood CC in Jacksonville. Buddy worked with Dave Cagle of Miles Grant and Heritage Golf Club Repair.

Charley Owens of Tampa, a former Florida Open winner was on hand with wife Judy and daughter. Believe Owens, one of the better black golfers, to be the only cross handed golfer in the event. He is a decorated paratrooper having suffered major injuries to his left leg following a "jump." He was suffering from internal bleeding Wednesday night and was treated in Martin Memorial Hospital, but did return to action the next day.

Robbie Gilmore of Atlantic Beach, who waltzed off with more than $2,000 in prize money, wants to follow in the footsteps of Billy Maxwell, who has been his "idol" for years. Gilmore also holds the distinction of having tied the Saints course record of 64 with nines of 33 and 31. Harry Hendron will be celebrating his 70th on July 20th.

Father John Ryan, who maintains a winter vacation home here, made a special trip to witness the Open play. He is pastor of the Lady of Magnificent Parish in Kenilon, N.J. While not watching or playing golf, he spends much time with neighbor Jack Dalton, fishing on the St. Lucie River. The two youngest players to play in Open were George Weston 3rd and Toby Chapman. Both are sixteen yrs old and they both gave a good account of themselves.

Making a trip from Meridian, Miss., were Peggy and Charles Gower, parents of the identical twins Dave and Dan Gower, two young pros attached respectively at Med Rivers and Martin County. Peggy said Dan is the stronger of the two. He was born 54 minutes before Dave.

Another amateur of note was Randy Marie, son of Roger Maris of 61 home run fame.

Dave Peoples set record 63 on sinners

Posting nine birdies and nine pars, Dave Peoples of Orlando was emerged as amateur champion of the Florida Open, found his sensational round of 63 to be a new course record on the Sandpiper Bay resort courses. He is the 1979 state amateur champion.

What makes his score most impressive is that the course played by "tough" as could be with the fairways narrowed to minimum widths and the "rough" areas which were at the most difficult stage of any previous event.

Prepare for hurricanes

HURRICANES can come our way, witness David last September, so it's wise for the boating public to be aware of hurricane dangers and to take precautionary measures.

The Coast Guard urges that you work out a hurricane plan with your family. Stay tuned to the radio and TV and keep track of the storm. Bring in all loose gear (garbage cans, fuel cans, chairs, etc.) and board and tape all windows. Act as soon as possible when a warning is issued. Don't wait until the last minute.

For small boats with or without trailers, take the boat to an enclosed shelter (warehouse or garage) if possible. Arrangements should be made with the owner of the shelter beforehand.

If the boat is small enough, it can be turned over and staked down or tied to a sturdy tree or fence in your yard. If you follow this course of action, remove anything from the boat that could be torn off by the wind. A hurricane has steady winds of at least 74 miles per hour and can gust up to approximately 200 miles per hour!

If the boat is on a trailer and can't be turned over because of its size, you might try filling it partially with water. This is not really recommended, however, because of the possibility of cracking or weakening the hull. Still, if you've wanted overkeep, it may be the best you can do, unless it's an inboard or an inboard-outboard.

Remove the drain plug to prevent the engine from being submerged from rain, and for added stability take the wheels off the trailer and allow the hubs to sink into the ground. Stake the boat down and be sure you use heavy duty line!

If your boat is afloat, be sure it's safely moored or anchored. Stow all loose gear and tie down whatever can't be put away in the boat. Keep your fuel tanks full. Batten down all hatches and windows. Above all, do not stay on the boat! It's far too dangerous.

This isn't the whole bit, just something to set you thinking.

AN INTENSIVE study of water related wildlife problems in Conservation Area IIIA of the Everglades has resulted in a list of recommendations from the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission to the agencies which exercise control over water levels — the U.S. Corps of Engineers and the South Florida Water Management District (SFWMD).

Chief among the recommendations is that wildlife and wildlife habitat be considered "water users" on an equal basis with agriculture, development and other users.

Research biologist Jim Schortemeyer who headed up the study committee said, "High water levels in the conservation area over the past two years have brought about a dramatic reduction in the deer population. The water covered the deer's food supply and, as a consequence, thousands starved.

"While deep water has a dramatic effect on wildlife populations, so does low water. In many cases, periods of extremely low water create problems of a much longer and farther reaching nature.

"Muck fires have caused the loss of thousands of acres of soil and the destruction of many valuable tree islands. These tree islands are used by wildlife for shelter and food during periods of higher water.

"The Commission is seeking to manage the area for a wide variety of animal life indigenous to the Everglades and our schedule recommendations are aimed at that. The conservation area has been a haven for wildlife in the past and there is no reason a compromise can't be reached that allows water usage by both man and animal."

DESTIN on Florida's Gulf Coast is a mecca in April for anglers seeking world record cobia and Keith Haines wasn't disappointed last April 22 when he boated a 103 lb, 12 oz. cobia off Destin, to break a 30 lb. line class world record of 100 lbs set at Queensland, Australia in 1962. Two days later, Marty V. Cane reeled in a 100½ pounder on 20-lb. line in those same waters, defeating another 18 year-old cobia record. This one for a 91-pounder taken at Crystal Beach, Florida in 1962.

IGFA representative Joy Dunlap, a resident of Destin, said: "The potential is here for 6 and 12 lb. line class records also, but anglers must be here between April 17-24 as large fish have been landed between these dates for the last 3 yrs."

BASSERS will be more interested in the 21 lb. 3 oz. largemouth bass caught by Raymond D. Easley of Fullerton, California, fishing with 8 lb line in Lake Casitas, Oak View, Calif., on March 4.

The acknowledged all tackle fresh water world record is held by George W. Perry who landed a bass weighing 22 lbs. 4 oz. fishing at Montgomery Lake, Georgia in 1932.

CRUISERS interested in the Bay Islands of Honduras will want to at least peruse Julius M. Wilensky's recent waterproof-covered book on that subject, now available for $17.25 from Wescott Cove Publishing (P.O. Box 130), Stamford, Conn. 06904.

Wilensky reports that due to the lack of charts on this area of water, he made his own "pioneering cruise" to compile sketch charts, navigation advice and more. He describes fishing there and how to get boats and guides.

SOME SAFE BOATING SUGGESTIONS from the U.S. Power Squadrons:

"Don't stand up in a small boat or allow your passengers to do so. If it becomes necessary to move around while underway, do so with caution. education is the road to safe boating, so sign up for a safe boating course. smoking while refueling your boat can be hazardous to your health. have some sort of electronic communication system aboard in case you need assistance. observe the Federal regulations for Personal Flotation Devices (life jackets, etc.) that apply to your boat's size. always anchor from the bow, never from the transom – a boat can swamp in seconds because of current or because the stern is lowered in an attempt to raise a snagged anchor and a wave washes aboard."

AMAZING CATCH—Sonny Dieber of Jensen shows 14 and 11 pound red snappers he caught last week on a light rod using only 10 pound test line. He made the catch in the surf north of the Fort Pierce jetty using live finger mullet. Dave Lamb of Jensen Bait and Tackle says the catch is amazing, considering the light line used. he said he has checked to see if it is a record for the Miami Met tourney, but so far has had no response. McDaniel shoots own fireworks with 73 rockets

Art McDaniel put on an Independence Day show when the Sandpipers competed in a Partner's Best Ball, playing the red, white and blue tees on the Wilderness course. McDaniel scored a sizzling 73-18 hole tally to lead the July 4th celebration parade throughout the route of the difficult and exacting holes. McDaniel's one over par inspired his teammate, druggiest Sid Tanner, as the pair captured the day's top award with a 12-under par 60.

With 108 members competing, the team of Earl Raugher and Even Phillips finished in second place with 62, while Denny Sullivan with Tom Francoline and Pat O'Neal with Fred Schecterle wound up deadlocked in the next slot with like 63's.

Danny Smozanek just returned from his Montana operation teamed up with his "dynamic duo" partner, Oscar Rosett for a 64.

Five combos were tied at 65 and four at 66. Play was transferred from the Saints course due to the heavy rains which saturated the champion shup layout.

MIAMI DOLPHINS

If Dolphins lost the draft, what about the AFC East race?

BY DICK LUNDIN

ALTHOUGH THE EARLY RETURNS seem to favor the Buffalo Bills, New York Jets and New England Patriots over the Miami Dolphins and Baltimore Colts in the annual draft selections last April, it just depends upon how much help those draftees will be come next September, October, November and December when the going's tough and gets tougher every week.

Buffalo's first five picks were all offensive players, showing that Coach Chuck Knox feels the Bills need more offense and hopes he got it, starting with Oakland Trophy winner Jim Richter, center, N.C. State Second rounder Joe Cribbs of Auburn could be the topflight running back for Buffalo that Roland Hooks, Terry Miller and Curtis Brown weren't last season. The Bills will use the shotgun formation this fall for the first time.

Mark Brammer of Michigan State should push Ed Gant for the starting tight end spot with the Bills, and apparently Coach Knox feels that Arkansas State's Gene Bradley will press the veteran Bill Munson for the backup quarterback spot to Joe Ferguson. All-pro guard Joe DeLamielleure says he wants out.

With Ferguson passing to Frank Lewis and super 1979 rookie Jerry Butler, the Bills should continue to move up and perhaps end that incredible Miami hex that saw them lose all 20 of their meetings in the 70s.

The Bills are for real, no doubt about it.

Of course, they have five games against playoff opposition (Miami has just three) and that's some roadblock in itself.

THOSE FAST CLOSING JETS of Coach Walt Michaels chose defensive players in six of their first eight selections, yet emphasized a desire for an even more explosive offense by drafting Texas Lam Jones, a wide receiver, first, and Michigan's Ralph Clayton, wide receiver and running back (both speed burners in the Wesley Walker mold), third.

With the Damocleian sword of Matt Robinson (traded to Denver) no longer hanging over his head, and with targets like Derrick Gaffney, Walker, Jones and Clayton befuddling the opposing secondaries, quarterback Richard Todd should approach stardom this year. He has Clark Gaines and Scott Dierking as strong running backs operating in front of powerful blocking offensive line led by Chris Ward, Marvin Powell, Randy Rasmussen and Joe Fields.

The Jets have beaten the Dolphins four straight times and seem to have Coach Shula's number. But they split with New England and Buffalo and were shocked not once but twice by the Buffalo Bills last year enroute to a 7-9 season that saw them close with a rush by defeating Baltimore, the Patriots and Dolphins down the stretch.

New York should get off winging against Baltimore, Buffalo, San Francisco and Baltimore again, but then must meet toughies like Denver, Houston, Los Angeles, Cleveland and New Orleans, not to mention meeting New England and Miami twice.

Their Achilles heel, if any this season, will likely be the defense that cost them so dearly in 1979. The Jets gave up 31 TD passes last season in allowing 383 points, and have only mustered 44 quarterback sacks and 44 interceptions in the past two years.

If the Jets don't make the playoffs — they are certainly prime playoff if not championship contenders — it will be because that lagging defense hasn't yet attained contending status.

NEW ENGLAND'S PATRIOTS seem to have it all but continue to bear the stigma of "always a bridesmaid, never a bride." They just seem to harbor a death wish each season, like last year when they had the AFC East title all but wrapped up after shellacking the Colts 50-21 on Nov. 18, only to go into a tailspin by losing successively to Buffalo, Miami and the Jets, thus not only missing out on the AFC East championship but missing the playoffs as well. The Patriots are hard to figure.

With quarterback Steve Grogan throwing to Harold Jackson, Stanley Morgan and Russ Francis, and Sam Cunningham, Horace Ivory, Don Calhoun and Grogan himself running the ball effectively, the Patriots scored 411 points in 1979 and ranked 6th in the NFL in team offense. Yet, Grogan was sacked 49 times and that tells the story so far as the loss of Leon Gray in the offensive line (he went to Houston for the No. 1 draft pick that brought Notre Dame's Vagas Ferguson to New England last April).

The Patriots have one of the best secondaries in the NFL and if all of their key performers (like Cunningham) stay healthy, the Pats should return to the playoffs once again. Their schedule is about average. They must meet Cleveland, Denver, Houston, the Rams and Saints as formidable foes outside the AFC East. Like the Dolphins, they meet three playoff teams. One thing they'll have to improve on is their inability to sweep any home and home schedules against the other AFC East teams (they split all four in 1979).

It's hard to pick against the Patriots with all that talent, and therefore I'm tabbing them the team to beat for this year's AFC East title in a down-to-the-wire race against the Jets and Dolphins. It will be interesting to see how much the Pats get from Chuck Foreman, ex-Viking running back.

AS GOES BERT JONES so goes Baltimore. Bert has been more out of than in the lineup the past two seasons and they have been losing years for the once proud Colts. It doesn't seem likely, however, that they can do much more than reach .500 status this season, even if Jones is physically sound all year.

Last year's 5-11 record shows how far the Colts have to go to return to the great years they enjoyed under Johnny Unitas and Jones before Bert's right shoulder put him out of commission.

They have a new coach in Mike McCormick who's been around the NFL a while but never a big winner. He takes a Colt team that ranked 20th in total offense and 15th in team defense, scoring just 271 while yielding 351 points in 1979.

Realizing that their 1979 running game was Joe Washington, period, and Colts used their first No. 1 to draft Texas A&M speedster Curtis Dickey who runs with power but can catch the football also. Their other No. 1 (from Dallas in the John Dutton deal) went for Texas' Derrick Hatchett, a highly regarded defensive back. They're relying on Hatchett to shore up a leaking secondary that was sorely lacking in pass defense last season.

Dickey could become another Lennie Moore or Lydell Mitchell, and Hatchett could bring respectability to that Baltimore defensive secondary, but when all's said and done, the Colts' fortunes in 1980 may hang on Jones' right shoulder and the comeback attempt of offensive tackle George Kunz.

The Baltimore schedule, as befits a 5-11 ball club, isn't too demanding but the Colts still have to face all of their AFC East foes twice in addition to such potent outside contenders as Pittsburgh, Houston and Cleveland.

Baltimore could battle the Bills for fourth in the AFC East.

THAT'S A FAST LOOK at Miami's AFC East antagonists.

The rookies and free agents have reported to the Dolphins' summer training camp at Biscayne College; the first year players will be joined by young pros and vets coming off injuries Thursday, and the remainder of the squad will report July 24.

The rookies and free agents will work out twice daily, at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., on the college practice field. The first practice with pads will be Thursday at 4 p.m. The first year players will scrimmage the Saints' first year players at 2 p.m., July 26, on the college practice field. The annual family day will be at 1 p.m. on July 27. If you plan to visit the training camp, get off the Palmetto Expressway at the NW 37th Ave. entrance to Biscayne College. Bleacher seating is available on that side of the practice field.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBERG
Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

The Martin County tennis boom was the subject of an article in Saturday's P.B. Post by Peggy Gossett and also the Racquet Round-up in Sunday's Stuart News.

Tennis is booming, and as I have said on many occasions, I believe it's still growing in Martin County.

Last Sunday, Ann Marquardt Pro Shop Mgr at I.R.P., and I went to the Trade Mart in Miami for a mid-year tennis apparel show. The number of reps and the number of manufacturers has decreased from several years ago, but the quality and unfortunately the cost, has increased. There are more serious buyers around, being very selective, but seemingly unaware of any recession, depression, inflation or falling off in sports spending.

Another good sign, at least for Martin Countians, we saw several of our competitors also buying.

Last Saturday evening I got home about 7:30, sat down with the paper, and came across the ad Mid-Court Racquetball Club opening today. I got up and said "come on Connie, lets go see the new club." It's a first class operation, and I also got my first taste of playing on a regulation court. Very nice, have a look.

The tennis boom has generally peaked around the country. Tournaments have become scarcer, tennis on TV is off about 75 percent from two years ago. The Avon circuit is much smaller and the American Express mens circuit has been cancelled. But all the news is not bad.

Colgate Co. is still pumping prize money into smaller tournaments, like the minor leagues. Florida Federal Savings is also putting up some loot and running 8 ladies tournaments in Florida. These are open to women of all ages and are designed to give our Florida juniors, amateurs and pros a shot at the biggest tournament schedule in the Southeast.

Sites include St. Petersburg, Daytona, Lakeland, Tallahassee, Jacksonville, Orlando (Winter Park), Ft. Myers (Captiva Island), and Tampa. In 1977 the Florida Federal purse was $35,000, 1978 - $75,000, 1979 $100,000 and the 1980 total purse will be $125,000. The participants will read like Mary who, Jane what, and whats her name. But in several years you will recognize the Everetts, Goolagongs, Wades, and all the rest who have made it through the minors.

The Colgate series is the richest women's tennis circuit in the world. Besides this Florida circuit, they sponsor 38 tournaments around the world with a total bonus pool of $825,000 shared by the eight top singles players and four top doubles teams.

Tennis is fun, unless you go out in 95 plus temperatures and get sick. Be very careful during these extremely hot days, wear a hat, drink lots of water or Gatorade, and if you get tired, be smart and quit so you can come out another day. Also wear some protection like zinc ointment on your lips, nose, face etc. if you plan to stay out in the sun very long.

A lot of the local juniors will be sorry to hear that Ed Foster, pro at Del Ray Municipal courts has resigned to take another position also in Del Ray. He probably ran about 10 junior tournaments a year, but maybe the next pro will do the same.

Have a good game.

Hearing Loss Is Not A Sign Of Old Age

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who have trouble hearing has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

Send for this model, put it on and wear it in the privacy of your own home. While many people with a hearing loss will not receive any significant benefit from any hearing aid, this free model will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It is not a real hearing aid, and it's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 00881, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

FPL reports demand set record

Florida Power & Light reported an all-time high summer peak demand for electricity occurred last Wednesday, July 9, between 5 and 6 p.m. when the utility's system demand reached 8,076 million kilowatts – 223 thousand kilowatts higher than the previous peak set June 25.

FPL officials cited hot weather and lack of rain throughout the utility's service area as the prime reason for the record demand.

A spokesman said that, with all major generating units running, there was sufficient generation to service customers' record power needs and, also, provide limited sales to other utilities in the state, which also were experiencing high demand.

All three of FPL's nuclear units were operating at full power, serving to dampen the high fuel costs associated with oil-fired plants, and particularly "peaking" units – small generating units which burn high-priced distillate oil, and are used only during peak periods and emergency situations.

The company's refueling and maintenance schedules call for the nuclear units to be operational throughout the hot summer months, barring unforeseen problems, the FPL spokesman noted.

This also will be true for the summer of 1981," he said, "which will lead up to the planned replacement of the steam generators for the Turkey Point nuclear unit No. 4, scheduled to begin in October of 1981." Replacement of the steam generators for Turkey Point nuclear unit No. 3 is scheduled to begin in October 1982, and each repair will take approximately nine months.

New directions class starting

It's never too late to set your life in a new direction, and the "New Directions" class offered by the Women's Program at Indian River Community College can help you do just that.

Scheduled to run July 16 through August 20, the class will give you a chance to figure out what you really want to do with your life, teach you ways to build the confidence you need to start anew, and offer support for your choices.

The class will meet each Wednesday from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the main campus. For more information call the IRCC Women's Program, ext. 230.

Stone seeks re-election

Incumbent State Attorney Robert E. Stone has qualified to run for re-election to the 19th Judicial Circuit post he has held since 1973.

Stone became the first, and so far, only candidate to qualify for the office when he filed the necessary qualifying papers and $2,135 fee with the Secretary of State in Tallahassee last week.

"My office has been growing with the area. We've initiated new services and expanded others from consumer fraud to child support, and I intend to see that our office continues to grow with the needs of the people," Stone said.

Voters first chose the 43-year-old Republican over a Democratic opponent in 1972. Stone won a second bid unopposed in 1976.

Stone's recent activities include creation of a task force charged with investigating drug smuggling in the 19th Circuit, which includes Indian River, St. Lucie, Martin and Okeechobee Counties.

During the last legislative session, he lobbied successfully for passage of an amendment to Florida's Youthful Offender statute, changing the sentencing of youthful offenders from mandatory to discretionary.

Stone currently serves as vice chairman of the Florida Judicial Administration Commission and legislative representative for the Florida Prosecuting Attorneys Association. He formerly served as assistant legal advisor to the Third Statewide Grand Jury and legal advisor to the Statewide Task Force on Gambling and Pari-mutuels.

A former member of the Governor's Council for Prosecution of Organized Crime, Stone still serves on the Florida Court Education Committee, the Palm Beach Regional Planning Council and the National District Attorneys Committee on Grand Jury Reform.

Stone was graduated from Union College in Barbourville, Ky., and Tulane University School of Law in New Orleans. He began practicing law in Fort Pierce in 1964.

He lives with his wife Landa and daughter Robyn in Vero Beach, and maintains offices in Vero Beach, Fort Pierce, Stuart and Okeechobee.

A new Watt-Wise Living™ home can save you money on electricity. Because it's built according to FPL's energy saving standards. Sure, a Watt-Wise home costs a little more in the beginning. But you'll get a payoff in extra savings on your electric bills for years to come from the very first month.

FPL's money-saving Watt-Wise homes have features like extra ceiling and wall insulation, solar and heat-recovery units for water heating, a higher-efficiency air conditioner or heat pump, power savers like fluorescent lighting and a microwave oven, and thermally efficient windows and doors, (with glass areas planned to minimize heat build-up).

So before you buy or construct a new home, ask your builder about FPL's Watt-Wise Living Program. Or, stop by your local FPL office and pick up a free information brochure.

The Watt-Wise Living home. It costs a little more now, but in the long run it costs a whole lot less.

Expanded services seen

Phone switch is set for Jensen

BY DICK CAMPBELL

A ditch digging machine began cutting a yard-wide swath along Savanna Road this week in a $155,355 project that is the beginning of a major expansion of telephone service to Jensen Beach.

The end product of the work will be the switch-over of all Jensen Beach lines to the Hutchinson Island ESS (Electronic Switching System) Central Office of Southern Bell. The switch-over is planned for mid-1981, according to Bill Dumont, manager of the Stuart District of the telephone company.

The first phase is laying a twelve duct underground conduit from Trinity Methodist Church on South Savanna Road to Commercial Street to tie into another conduit system. Work is being done by Wright and Lopez a Bell system subcontractor.

"This is our committment to stay ahead of the growth of Jensen Beach, and will enable us to provide the 5,000 customer lines in the community with the most advanced technology available with optional custom calling services," Dumont said.

The services would permit single telephone customers to receive another incoming call during an existing conversation by letting the customer place the first call on hold and answer the second call. This is called "call waiting."

Another service would be "call forwarding," which allows the customer to transfer incoming calls automatically from the customer's phone to any other phone number.

A third service is called "speed calling," which allows the customer to reach pre-selected local or long distance numbers by dialing only one or two digits.

Another service, "three-way calling," allows the customer to place a call on hold, then dial another number to provide a three-way conversation.

Dumont said the services would be available at "a minimal charge." He added that customers affected by the change would be notified as the cutover time approaches.

The project is a part of Southern Bell's $755.5 million 1980 construction budget in Florida.

Construction will be geared to keep disruption to traffic at a minimum, and Dumont said that "the work will be completed in an expeditious manner with the affected surroundings restored to their original condition."

Most owners say yes to bike path request

BY BOB FRYER

Response continues to be favorable from most property owners along Indian River Drive when asked if they will grant an easement for a bicycle path.

That's the [illegible] Sullivan, who is conducting a campaign to get the necessary 10-foot-wide easements granted.

Within the first six months of the year three bicyclists died on local roads in traffic accidents. That prompted many local citizens to call for more bike paths.

Among those getting involved was Sullivan. And, when she heard that the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce had made getting a bike path along Indian River Drive it's number one priority for the year, but needed someone to go door-to-door to ask for the easements, she volunteered.

"There are still some property owners who are out of town and who have not yet responded to my letters, but of those here and those out of town who have responded, the response had largely been favorable. There are only about three possible problem areas," Sullivan said this week.

Among those most recently giving favorable responses to requests for easements are Mrs. Kathryn Senec of Coquina Cottages. Glenn White, owner of a single-family home along the road, and the Martin County School Board for it's land in front of the Environmental Studies Center.

Additionally, a verbal committment to grant easement has been obtained by Chamber executive director Dennis Doyle from Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Loveday.

There are two cottage complexes which are to change hands soon, but Sullivan says she forsees no problems with the new owners.

Others who have pledged easements and who were listed in a previous Mirror story are: Florida Institute of Technology; Wayne Bailey of Bailey Boat Company; C.R. Koast, a single-family home owner; Mark Jordan of Trader Mac's; Ransom Tilton for land opposite the Tilton Real Estate office; and Dwayne Fleesr of The Boat House.

The goal of the Chamber is to obtain the necessary easements so a bike path can be built from Florida Institute of Technology to the Jensen Beach Causeway. Sewall's Point town commissioners have already pledged the money needed to build a path from A1A northward to FIT to hook up with the proposed county path.

MAMMOTH BEAUTY—This hot air balloon, officially dubbed "the Rosegarden", stands seven stories high when fully inflated. From this view, the balloon easily dwarfs the Ford pick-up that carried it uninflated. The Rosegarden is owned by Port St. Lucie balloonist Bill MacDonald. Slate is complete for elections this fall

Last minute filings have made it a two-way race for the Martin County Sheriff's post and a four way race for the Martin County Superintendent of Schools office.

The deadline for candidates to file for the upcoming fall elections passed at noon Tuesday, but not before Democrat Bruce L'Heureux qualified to run against Republican incumbent James Holt for Sheriff and before Democrat Clifford Lynch signed up as the fourth candidate for school superintendent.

The following is a run down of the list of candidates who have qualified for local races:

Incumbent William "Doc" Myers (R) seems to be the only person qualifying for the District 77 state House of Representatives seat. A spokeswoman at Myers office noted that candidates for the post must file in Tallahassee. She said she had no confirmation Myers was unopposed, but believed that was the case. District 77 includes north Palm Beach County, most of Martin County and most of Okeechobee County.

Republican incumbent Charles "Chuck" Nergard is unopposed in seeking re-election to the District 76 seat in the state House of Representatives. His district includes northern Martin County and most of St. Lucie County.

Frank Wacha, the Democrat incumbent for the District One (Jensen, Rio, Hutchinson Island) county commission seat will face the winner of a Sept. 9 Republican primary in the Nov. 4 general election. The two Republicans vying for Wacha's seat are Alex Haynes and James Rowe.

For the District Three (south county) county commission seat, incumbent Lavon "Bud" Bagwell will square off against Sherrie King in the Republican primary on Sept. 9, then the winner of that race will face Democrat Rex Andrews in the Nov. 4 general election.

Republicans A. H. Pitchford and Pamela Bond will face each other in the Sept. 9 primary, with the winner going on to run against incumbent Democrat John Holt in the general election for the District Five (western county) county commission seat.

Clerk of the Circuit Court Louise Isaacs will not have her name on the ballot this year, as she had no opposition and is automatically re-elected.

Incumbent Peggy Robbins (D) will face challenger Linda Pelletier (R) in the general election, while Tax Collector Tom Crook (D) is automatically re-elected due to no opposition.

Incumbent Property Appraiser Augie Malfregot (D) will run against Joan Felton (R) in the general election.

In the contest for Superintendent of Schools, incumbent V. James Navitsky will face fellow Republicans Hazel Watts and Wayne Bowling in the September primary. If none of those three candidates wins a majority of the votes then, a runoff between the top two will be held on Oct. 7. Then, the winner of the Republican slate will face Democrat Clifford Lynch in the general election.

Carolyn Lichty faces no opposition for the District Two school board seat, and is thus re-elected.

In the District Four school board race, incumbent David Crandall will face Rosemary Dressler in the September primary. The race is a non-partisan contest.

Though qualifications for candidacy for the county judge post had to be done in Tallahassee, Martin County Supervisor of Elections Robbins said she believed incumbent Marc Ciasca had no opposition for the job.

Robbins also said she had heard of no opposition for incumbent Public Defender Elton Schwartz or for incumbent State Attorney Robert Stone for the 19th judicial circuit.

The deadline for citizens to register to vote in the Sept. 9 primary is Aug. 9.

Dr. Biel to talk about plans for Treasure Coast Square

Dr. Howard S. Biel, vice president of the Edward J. Debartolo Corporation of Youngstown, Ohio, will be the guest speaker of the Stuart-Martin County Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, July 24, at 7:55 a.m., at the Holiday Inn Oceanside in Jensen Beach.

Dr. Biel will speak on the proposed Treasure Coast Square, scheduled for 1982 north of Stuart, and future company plans for Martin County, and Florida. Handout material will be distributed.

The DeBartolo firm had planned to build the huge mall, near the intersection of U.S. 1 and SR. 707A (Commercial Street) in the early 70s, but those plans were shelved when a recession hit. Since then, there have been several announcements by the firm that plans were being revised, but there have been no plans submitted to local governing bodies since the original plan was turned in.

For more information about the Thursday morning meeting, call the chamber office at 287-1088 or 287-1011.

Island and Jensen to get better protection

BY BOB KRYER

Hutchinson Island and Jensen Beach should be tougher places for criminals to do business soon

Martin County commissioners recently approved a proposal to spend $30,000 in contingency funds to hire four deputies to patrol the island As a result, the island will soon have a Sheriff's deputy on patrol 24 hours a day And, that means the deputies who have been assigned to patrol Jensen Beach and the island will remain in Jensen

Throughout the summer there have been a number of complaints about unruly crowds at the beach, about break-ins and trespassing incidents at island homes and about vandalism to county beach facilities

Those incidents brought cries from local citizens for more deputy patrols on the island

Several weeks ago Sheriff James Holt told commissioners that if they wanted extra patrols, they would have to pay for them He said he was planning to ask for a $400,000 budget increase for the coming fiscal year to pay for hiring four deputies to patrol the island and for assorted other items

However about a week later Holt returned to a commission meeting and told them he wouldn t be asking for so much money He happily reported that his department was going to receive a state grant that would pay for the deputies needed for the island He explained that since I-95 is not built in Martin County it means the county is getting more than it s share of traffic on local roads As a result, the state agreed to grant money to fund more deputies, and Holt said those deputies would be assigned to the island

Holt said four deputies are needed so that at least one deputy can be on duty on the island at all times

When Holt announced that his department would be receiving the grant, the plan we to add the four deputies after October, when the new fiscal year begins and the grant funds arrive However, at at a recent commission meeting, Jensen Beach commissioner Frank Wacha proposed that $30,000 in contingency funds be used to go ahead and hire the deputies as soon as possible "I figured rather than waiting until October to start looking for deputies and waiting until possibly November before they could be hired and on duty, we should supply the funds so the men could be hired right away, then the state grant funds could be used to continue their salaries once that money is available," Wacha said

Commissioners agreed with Wacha's proposal and last week Holt said a hiring board was reviewing applications for the island deputies

"We have plenty of applications so the process now is to review the applicants to find the best men for the job Some may have to give notice to other employers, so I can't pin down the time they'll be on duty on the island, but it should happen pretty soon," Holt said

"This is something we've been needing and I'm glad we can go ahead and start hiring deputies It will be a big help in solving the problems we have had on the island," Holt said

He said it should take about $107,000 a year to pay for the men, their cars, their equipment and all their benefits He said the $30,000 from the county will not only pay for the salaries and benefits for the men between now and the time the grant funds are in, but also will help pay for some of the equipment they'll need

Advantages of Preventive Health Care Program

Patients of the Webb Clinic are appraised of the importance of Preventive Health Care to avoid the consequences of a major or acute physical episode Our health maintenance program relives muscle tensions and daily distresses associated with our modern cultures A relaxed, healthy body weight body and spinal column functions better and is more capable of dealing with stress and strain

One of the most common symptoms of muscle tension is headaches, associated with "tightness" of muscles in the neck and shoulder areas Where a person's work keeps him confined to a desk for many hours everyday, it is almost impossible to avoid this tension without chiropractic treatments to maintain the spinal column in a straight line Fatigue and slouching are the common accompaniment of the misaligned spine

These and other aggravating symptoms can be relieved through a program of preventive maintenance chiropractic care

The Fireworks Committee; 'How do we thank them?'

Chamber directors received the happy news of a surplus in the fireworks fund, after $1,200, with mixed emotions last week at the regular board meeting

"How do we thank them There were so many," said Dennis Doyle, Chamber executive director He was referring to the over 100 volunteers of the Jensen Beach Fireworks Committee who labored over the dangerous fireworks fuses and explosives from January through the thunderous, sky-lighting display on July 4, at the Jensen Beach Causeway

The Chamber board of directors discussed sending a letter of appreciation to Bill Yurillo, titular head of the fireworks committee, but

That just isn't enough," said Art Hansen, director

The problem with the recognition, according to Fred Meeker, a long-time volunteer with the July 4 fireworks celebration, is that the Chamber raises the money to pay for the fireworks, and while the volunteers on the fireworks committee are working in the background, night after night through six months, they receive very little of the publicity

The publicity of course, is in the fund raising activity of the Chamber board Without the money, the fireworks couldn't be held In fact, at one time the fireworks committee thought about abandoning the celebration because it was too much of a chore to raise money and build fireworks at the same time That is while the Chamber stepped in to take over the funding project

"I hope they understand that the Chamber just wants to raise the money for them, and not get any glory over it," said Chamber President Dick Campbell "But, the fund is administered by the Chamber and the funds donated come to the Chamber There is no way to downplay the Chamber role without losing funds and confusing people"

"The fireworks committee is a group of dedicated individuals, and doesn't have a chairman, or secretary They just get together and work hard to do the job of putting on the finest fireworks show in Florida," said Dr Stanley Wampler, Chamber secretary

Chamber directors voted to invite some members of the fireworks committee to the next Chamber forum to express their gratitude for an outstanding community service, a fireworks show that drew over 30,000 people to watch

One of the most frequent complaints I hear from customers is the difficulty sometimes experienced when trying to reach our office by phone. Although we have recently increased our phone lines, there are times when hundreds of customers are trying to call simultaneously. You can help us help you. If you have a question about your bill, call us a few days after you receive it. If our phones are busy when the calls is out, your neighbor has probably already informed us of the problem As office manager, I want very much to keep you satisfied. Please help me help you. Call during off peak phone hours.

No protests from local men as they register for draft

BY BOB FRYER

There were no protests.

Indeed, there weren't even any adverse comments made when 20-year old men trucked to the Jensen Beach and Fort Pierce Post Offices Monday to register for the draft.

Bob Strickland at the Jensen Beach Post Office said about 20 young men came in to register on Monday and said the pace of registrants seemed to be about the same for Tuesday.

"We have had no problems. Most seem to be taking it with very good humor," Strickland said, adding, "If it wasn't for the FIT (Florida Institute of Technology) students here for the summer, we would have very few registrants here."

One of these FIT students, John Glanville, said his main reason for registering for the draft was to avoid a possible five year jail term for not registering. He said, "The way they put it to us, we have to do it."

Glanville said he was not sure the registration would lead to an actual draft, but added that he felt he had a good chance of getting an exemption from the draft if it occurred. However, he said, "If my friends go, I'd go."

At the two Post Offices on Orange Avenue in Fort Pierce, a total of 130 young men registered on Monday. Fort Pierce Post Office spokesman Fred Ankrom said, "It has all gone very smooth. Nobody has demonstrated or protested. They've just been coming in, filling out the form, and going on about their business."

Ankrom said the pace of registrations on Tuesday seemed to be lighter than Monday. He also noted that no registrations are being accepted at the postal contract station at Warren's Cleaners in Port St. Lucie.

At the Fort Pierce and Jensen Post Offices, no women registered on Monday.

The registration form is short, asking the registrant's name, date of birth, sex, social security number, current and permanent addresses, and phone number. It also has a box to check if the registrants want to have their name given to armed forces recruiters.

Though registrations are handled at the Post Offices, postal workers have not had any special training on handling the registration. "We are just acting as a collection agency for the registration forms. If the registrants have any questions about the registration, they are to contact the Selective Service System," said Strickland at the Jensen office.

The registration is for young men born in 1960 and 1961. Those born in 1960 are to register this week, and those born in 1961 are to register next week. It is suggested that those born in January through March sign-up on Monday, those born in April through June sign up on Tuesday, those born in July through September sign-up on Wednesday and those born in October through December sign-up on Thursday. But Ankrom at the Fort Pierce office said persons coming in on days not suggested for them are still allowed to register.

Once the registration forms are filled out, they will be placed in Selective Service System files and a copy of the information supplied will be sent to the registrants so they can check to be sure it is accurate.

The law requires that if registrants move, they must notify the Selective Service System.

If a draft is instituted, there will be exemptions. Students in college will be allowed to finish the semester before being drafted and college seniors would be allowed to finish the year.

High school students would be allowed to stay in school until they graduate, up to age 20, and if inductees would be a hardship on dependents, a deferment may be requested.

Students studying for the ministry may request deferments, members of religion may request deferments, and those who have deeply-held religious, moral or ethical belief against participation in war in any form may request conscientious objector status.

DRAFT REGISTRATION—John Glanville, a student at the Jensen Beach campus of Florida Institute of Technology, was among about 25 20-year-old men to sign up for the draft on Monday. Though there were protests against the registration in some major cities, there were none in Jensen Beach or Fort Pierce on Monday. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Benefit game planned for local state champs

Jensen Beach is the home of a state champion soft ball team.

Last weekend, the First Federal of Martin County ball team battled their way to the state championship in a tournament in Winter Haven, defeating last year's champion, Starke, in the process.

As a result, the team, comprised of 16-18 year old boys, gets the right to participate in the National Champion ship tournament soon in Tifton, Ga.

The First Federal team whipped Starke, which has held the state crown for two years, by a 5 to 4 score.

In a game against Satellite Beach, the local team lost by a 5 to 4 score, but came back from an 8 to 3 deficit in their second game against Satellite Beach to win the crown with a 9 to 8 score.

The team overcame a deficit to win the crown, and now an effort is being made to overcome another deficit. The team needs money to travel to Tifton, so a benefit ball game will be played at Langford Park at 7 p.m. on Saturday, July 26.

No admission will be charged for the game, but donations will be welcomed. So far, several donations to pay for the travel expenses have already come in. They include a $500 donation from Martha Moore, $250 from Martin Downs, $50 from All County Sanitation, and $50 from Ernie Sacco.

On August 29, this man will do everything in his power to make your belt buckle a collector's item.

Endless hours of painstaking craftsmanship went into the creation of the Florida Commemorative Collection.

And in a few minutes on August 29th, the entire series of molds for the Collection will be destroyed—thus assuring that no more of these hand some belt buckles will ever be produced.

With a few blows of a sledgehammer, your buckles become part of a truly limited edition. And the possibility of their increasing in value is enhanced many times over.

The Florida Commemorative Collection consists of three solid brass or bronze belt buckles depicting scenes and events of historical significance to all Floridians. Ponce de Leon's discovery of Florida, our mature alligator and our Indian Heritage.

Originally, these buckles were to be available only through July 31. But has also of the enthusiastic response to this offer, we're extending their availability through August 29th. But that's it. (Our friend above will make sure of that.) Supplies of particular designs may run out before then, so don't wait to be sure you can get the design of your choice.

All you have to do to get one is to make a qualifying deposit at any Southeast Bank. Depending on the amount you deposit, you'll receive the buckle of your choice free or at a reduced price.

After making your qualifying deposit, you can buy additional buckles and three buckle displays sets with a leather-covered hardwood display plaque at special low prices. See chart below for exact requirements.

Come to a Southeast Bank and pick up the buckle of your choice now. On August 29th, you're going to own a collector's item.

Jensen Beach bridge scores

The Jensen Beach Community Bridge Club met recently for a six-table Howell movement game with an average of 67%.

The winners were Margo Schneider and Vivian Cook, 73; Harriet Murray and Charlotte Fleenor, 72; Elinore Marvin and Mildred Skinner, 70½; Hila Boettner and Harry Moore, 70; Jay Ebenger and Dorothy Morton, 69.

On Monday, July 14, the club met for a nine-table Howell movement game with an average of 162.

North-South winners were Sara Clausen and Earl Wagner, 138; Ann Mooney and Hila Boettner, 138; Polly Schumacher and Al Smith, 117½; Bob Garcia and Bill Derbyshire, 117.

East-West winners were Vivian Cook and Ruth Hanson, 138; Betty and Al Dinger, 133½; Charlotte Fleenor and Betty Wehrman, 116; Betty and Dick Champlin, 108.

Game time is 1 p.m. on Mondays and Fridays in the Harry Hoke Community Room of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Jensen Beach.

Cabin slab poured, bike path at park gets okay

A bike path will soon be built along one edge of Langford Park and work is progressing well on the log cabin senior citizen's center at the park.

County commissioners voted recently to equally divide $30,000 in federal revenue sharing funds for construction of bike paths in the five commission districts.

The vote means each district will get $6,000 for paths, and Jensen Beach County Commissioner Frank Wacha says this district's path will be built along SR 707 next to Langford Park.

Wacha said the path will start near a building which was once a car wash and will continue northward, on the west side of the road, as far as it can be built for $6,000.

Wacha came up with the idea to split up the remaining federal revenue sharing funds and use them for bike paths, and won concurrence among fellow county commissioners last week.

He indicated that the path is to be built soon, and that eventually, it will be continued northward to hook up with a future path along Indian River Drive.

In other action related to the park, workers were busy last week pouring a concrete floor for the senior citizen's log cabin.

The floor marks the completion of the county's obligation for building the cabin. The walls are already up, and federal funds will be used to install the roof.

Wacha said bids on the federal part of the job are due in this week and should be approved on July 29th. He said he is hoping the cabin will be finished around the end of September. Once complete, it will serve as a senior citizen's center.

BOB RIVERS—pilots the midnight airways for the Wizard 99 radio station. He says it is a Jekyl and Hyde kind of existence, since his radio personality is not akin to his private, subdued self. But Rivers is still a night worker through and through, who commented that he can better deal with what goes on in the daytime world at nighttime. (Photo by Michelle Nasplnski)

THE HOUR—Workers of the night shift get used to such nights as a clash with the audacity to pronounce the time as 3:30 a.m.

Bob Rivers...

the pilot of the midnight airways

THE NIGHT SHIFT

A Mirror Exclusive
By Michelle Nasplnski

Second in a Series

At 6:30 a.m. when most area residents are either sleeping or just waking up, disc jockey Bob Rivers is fixing himself a salami sandwich and beer, "or something equally absurd", and preparing to go to sleep.

This daily ritual is performed in expectation of the midnight hour, when Rivers heads down to the Ft. Pierce Wizard-99 radio station and plays cuts like the Joe Walsh tune "all night long."

Rivers is a veteran of nocturnal radio employment and has the rare distinction of piloting the Wizard airways through the graveyard shift—2 to 6 a.m.

"We get up early and we work all day. We put our time in 'cause we like to stay up all night long, all night long..." Joe Walsh

Unlike most other night shift occupations in which the services provided after sundown benefit normal nine-to-fivers, Rivers works solely to entertain an audience of new breed individuals who—like himself—are night people.

"Those are definately night people," Rivers smiled, glancing at the Wizard switchboard that still hummed with activity at 3 a.m., "They're all space cowboys—who else would sit up all night and listen to the radio?"

For the music-loving space cowboys of Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie, Rivers, unlike his daytime counterparts, must be more than a mere record-spinner.

The voice behind the radio takes on a new and significant meaning when the sun goes down. And to his nighttime listeners, Rivers is as much therapist as he is disc jockey.

It is Rivers sheer presence—the audible proof that another human being is awake and very likely alone—that lends comfort to the often lonely consumers of mid-night music.

Rivers remembered one incident of a young girl who called into the station while he was working the night shift and threatened to commit suicide. The disc jockey quickly stacked a pile of tapes to play continuously and then kept her on the line until the police could trace the call.

"That girl came back and thanked me for saving her life," he recalled, "she's still walking around today."

"It can be very rewarding. If you can play one record to help someone make it through the night, the whole job is worth it. It's all for that one listener."

But the man behind the microphone survives the long midnight hours quite differently than his listeners.

In a "top 40's" station such as Wizard, Rivers can choose between power, survey and recurrent records, which must be played at intervals of four, five and a half, and 13 hours respectively.

As the songs are often not in accordance with his own personal taste, Rivers will turn down the volume of the music and put on the visual portion of the station's television.

"I flip the t.v. around and lip-read all night long," chided the disc jockey, "sometimes I watch the baseball game and think of clever little witty things to say on the air."

But jokes aside, rerouting one's lifestyle from the day to the night requires a large dose of increased isolation and Rivers believes the transition is one that only certain individuals can be successful at making.

"A night person doesn't want to be bothered with the outside world in the daytime", said Rivers, "he can cope better with what goes on in the daytime at night."

"But whether he pitches mail in a post office or speaks into a microphone, he has to deal with the isolation of doing his thing at night."

What does it take to be a night person?

Strangely enough for someone who must cavort nightly with hundreds of enthusiastic rock n' rollers, Rivers says it takes an introvert.

The disc jockey describes himself as a subdued, serious person who protects and enjoys his privacy. His listeners, however, perceive him to be a hip, hard-rocking, all night partyer like themselves. This is the duality he must maintain.

"I lead a life like a Jekyl and Hyde," said Rivers, "you have to know how to separate your life so that you can leave Bob Rivers the radio person at the station."

The dual existence creates certain problems, Rivers explained, in that he must play music for an audience whose lifestyles are very different from his own.

"Eveyone has this misconception that d.j.'s are big stoners—it's not true," Rivers said, "there are probably more disc jockeys who are anti-drug. They're just into a lot of good music."

As the Wizard station clock crept stealthily past the 4 a.m. mark, the telephone switchboard flashed and dimmed with less frequency—almost as if in time with the slow, steady breathing of night listeners who were now falling off to sleep.

Switchboard activity picked up again at approximately 9:30 a.m. But these were no longer night people. The resurrection of daytimers meant the start of a new work cycle—one in which Rivers would not participate.

For the night shift was over and the time had come for Rivers to don his comfortable alter ego and prepare his salami sandwich.

Daytime Wizard workers yawned their way into the quiet corridors of the station and traffic activity picked up along U.S. 1. In fact, the transition was completed almost instantly.

Morning was breaking out all over. And Bob Rivers was going home to bed.

Next week in this series join the Mirror for a nocturnal tour of Martin Memorial Hospital. We'll visit with those who make health care a 24-hour a day occupation, and talk to the guardians of patients during the sleepy hours of night.

Continue the PGA at Sandpiper Bay

It is no secret that many members of the Florida PGA would like to have the Florida Open continue to be played at the Sandpiper Bay Resort in Port St. Lucie. Next year's event is scheduled again at Sandpiper, however, site of future events beyond 1981 will be decided upon at a meeting of both North and South Florida PGA officials sometime this Fall.

It is also a known fact that the Open's conducted at Sandpiper have been the "best run" events in the history of the Open. Host pro Chuck Johnson and his organization together with the entire Sandpiper Bay community have "opened their hearts and homes" to the visiting pros. Members of the Sandpiper Bay Men and Women's Associations have offered their services as course marshalls, scorers and to every tournament detail, making the events here most acceptable.

The turtle watches were a success

This is the last weekend for the turtle watches, a fitting time to offer our evaluation of the six week experiment in watches.

The history of turtle watches has been to have two a year, usually in July, and invite the public to see the giant loggerhead and green turtles lay over 100 eggs in a carefully prepared nest.

Last year there were objections from the Department of Natural Resources to the Jensen Chamber. The complaint, by leading scientist Ross Witham, was that the turtles were not being protected from the hundreds of visitors, and that some turtles were being frightened away by the large crowds of unruly people.

The solution was a meeting of minds between the Jensen Chamber of Commerce, the DNR, and Florida Institute of Technology's Naturalist Society.

The Chamber organized and registered reservations for turtle watches. They were to be held for small groups of not more than fifty. There would be three watches per week, for six weeks, a total of 18 turtle watches.

The Naturalist Society members planned the turtle watches, took the groups out, and explained the effort to protect the sea turtles from extinction.

The turtle watch booklet prepared by the Chamber and written by the Naturalist Society members, with photographs and makeup by The Mirror staff, was attractive and informative, the perfect information piece to assist the visitors in understanding the turtles and their habits.

If anything, the greatest achievement of the organized turtle watches was that no turtle nests were disturbed, and very few turtles were frightened back into the surf.

The groups of people were well briefed and manageable under the Naturalist format.

What had been a confrontation between the Chamber and the DNR has been resolved into an excellent tourist attraction that is keyed to the protection and preservation of the turtles.

We salute the Chamber of Commerce, FIT's Naturalist Society and Ross Witham's scientific laboratory of the Department of Natural Resources for their combined effort in this, and look forward to the resumption of the watches under the same format next year.

Letter to the editor

Open letter to the CITIZENS of the CITY OF STUART:

The city has gone out to save the St. Lucie River. It is full of contaminates, it is marginal; it will soon be a dead river. We are told the City of Stuart should care about the River and take the first step to save it.

The present City Commission, as those in the past, do care about the River. The City has a sewage treatment plant and spent considerable monies on a deep well injection system. Cost of repairs to that deep well would be approximately the same as the original well price. The cost of repairs, plus the fact that no engineering firm will guarantee a working well after repairs, has led the Commission to study other disposal methods, such as a perc pond, spray irrigation, etc.

The City Commission is committed to a primary method of disposal of treated effluent that will not use or contaminate the St. Lucie River.

There are, however, Department of Environmental Regulation (D.E.R.) rules and regulations that the City must follow. First, we must have a secondary, or back-up system, for our primary disposal method; in this case, an emergency river out-fall. Should anything happen to the proposed primary system, the plant would use the secondary system. Secondly, D.E.R. regulations say the out-fall must be moved to the middle of the River and even though these are State regulations, the State does not fund the cost of these changes.

The St. Lucie River does need help and we must all do our part to save it, but we must be truthful and "tell it like it is." The River is marginal and contaminated far above the Stuart out-fall. It is easy to pick the Stuart sewer plant as exceptional because it deals in wastewater and the figures on its out-flow are public record. But this job will take more than the easy methods. The River contaminates are annual ——— from ——— pesticides from groves and heavy metals, among others. There must be cooperation between all counties and cities draining into Lake Okeechobee and the St. Lucie River and canal. The time to start that effort is now. The Commissioners of the City of Stuart pledge their help to make the St. Lucie River a healthy river.

Respectfully,
STUART CITY COMMISSION
Robert P. Miller,
Mayor

A few words about words

Words are fascinating resource tools
For politicians, wits and fools.
If you would have them last o'erlong
Sum up your deathless words to song.

Remember who wrote that? I did, two minutes ago. Not deathless, but underscoring a point brought home to me the other evening.

Daughter Valerie and I were escaping the heat and the Republican convention over a hot game of Scrabble, with background music from the discriminating library of radio station WRUT, which has the best collection of oldies and goodies to be found around these shores.

What amazed me was that Val and I, a generation apart, were singing along with the music, neither missing a word to most of the old songs out of the 'thirties and 'forties, without any self consciousness about the paradox of the generation gap. We knew those words as automatically as breathing.

I didn't teach her the words. The songs have become a part of the 20th century culture, and will probably be as well known to the next two generations as they are to these two.

Who can say as much for any of your printed words? How many people don't know the verses of the Midnight Ride of Paul Revere, yet sing the breathing when they strike up Yankee Doodle.

How many of you can recite the Rhyme of the Ancient Mariner? No hands. Well, I bet all of you can toot out Popeye The Sailor Man. And you don't know the words of Oh Captain My Captain? Well, how about Mairzy Doats? It goes on and on. And it's the music that does it. Words by themselves can be dead, buried and long forgotten unless we can sing them to something.

Which all leads up to the fact that the time is now, students. The political year is upon us and before election day we've got to learn the language. After I heard my first "mugwump" on the political analysts' tongues, I got out my "Word Origins" as a defense mechanism.

So let us turn to the section on Political Terms and their Origins.

First, let's get to that mugwump, a title someone gave Mr. Ford.

MUGWUMP: "great man, in 1884 there was a split in the Republican Party, and a large number of members refused to support James G. Blaine for president. They were accused by the regulars of assuming a superior attitude, and such epithets as pharisee and mugwump were hurled at them. Mugwump, or Mugumaqu as it was spelled in one of the Massachusetts dialects, was an Algonquin Indian word meaning "great man," or even "chief."

Today the word is applied to anyone who takes a position independent of the party line. Albert J. Engel is reported to have said in the House of Representatives that a mugwump "has his mug on one side of the political fence and his wump on the other."

PROTOCOL: We are landing on the sharp protocol of diplomacy that determines what official shall call on whom first, and where the ambassador's wife shall sit at a formal dinner party. The word protocol itself travels back to the Greek kolla protokollon, which was the first leaf glued to the front of a manuscript with an index of contents to be written on it. The elements of the word protocol "first" and kolla "glue." One word means the first draft to outline an official treaty or document.

CANDIDATE: When [illegible] politicians went [illegible] candidate had to appear in white, so he could make the best impression possible. The Latin word candidatus first meant simply "a person dressed in white" but later took on the meaning of a seeker after office. The root of candidatus can be recognized in our word incandescent, which means "white and glowing," and in the word candid, meaning frank and open.

BALLYHOO — When you mean a bit of ballyhoo, you are making a general fuss and bother. This all is thought to have grown out of a village called Ballyhooly, which lies in Cork County, Ireland. There, the Congressional Record says, the residents engage in most strenuous debate that is without equal in the annals of parliamentary or ordinary discussion. Hence the ballyhoo.

As to democrat and republican, the two great opponents at odds with each other at the polls this year, basically there's not a whit of difference in their meaning.

"The word republican owes its beginnings to the Latin words "res" and "publicus" which can be translated freely as public affairs. The Greek word "demokratia" from demos (people) was the progenitor of democrat.

So take your pick, students. Learn the language, then sit back and be prepared for the republican-democratic double talk from both sides.

Again on the subject of terminology, I have found the Tomorrowness equivalent of Stuart's Confusion Corner. It is Malfunction Junction, where two major highways converge in Kissimmee, Tenn., and very badly so.

Also, like Stuart's landmark, Malfunction Junction has almost as many accidents. People are far too busy and cautious about trying to figure out where to go and how to do it to get involved in wrecks.

Perhaps that's the secret to our highway death problems — either run to a standstill and they'll be creeping too slow to kill anybody.

Dick Campbell

Guides to memories

Starting to plan the 1981 Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Resort and Fishing Guide is always a chore. Inspiration comes slowly, as the first job is to put together previous advertisements and rate sheets and get them out to the prospective customers.

However, this year I decided to take a look at history, and dug out some of the old guides for a look-see.

The guides go all the way back to 1951, but I could only find a historical file back to 1962, when I began saving them.

The cover photo was a colorful picture of a "famous polynesian regatta," held annually on the Jensen Causeway. We read about a dozen pirogues for races, and had other races of sailboats.

The "town on wheels", Ocean Breeze Park, was advertising the addition of 118 spaces and "our new and modern boat basin."

Langford Terrace Villas had a green field where The Outrigger now stands, but the aerial photo showed the Chanticleer at its dock.

Rental units went from $25 to $75 a week, and tourists were urged to register at the Chamber of Commerce to receive messages and phone calls.

C.B. Arbagast was advertising a new subdivision named North River Shores, and a color aerial photo showed barren land laced with waterways awaiting homes.

Hendry Trading Center operated from a quonset hut as a general store, as did Eddie Peeples from Indian River Sales.

Virgil Wilson was pictured getting a haircut from his son, a little tyke then. And, did Virgil look young.

Bert Pruitt's Fishing Ranch was operating on the North Fork, a series of cottages with guides to take visitors for tarpon, black bass, sea trout and snook.

In 1963, Sam Rhodes Construction was just starting Logan Heights, with three bedroom, one and one-half bath homes for $16,990.

Seymour's Inn was a spacious restaurant-night club, the "in" place for all Jensen Beach.

Ah the pictures of activities. Al Hendry was shown going over the ski jump that the local ski club built by the Jensen Causeway, and one picture showed me holding up the mast of a "K" boat that Al Dryer had just sailed into another in a race. Johnny Crawford was showing off a big tarpon.

In the 1964 book, Frank Forsberg was president of theChamber, with Reg Walker manager, and Martin Wahl headed the Samaritan Ambulance. Karl Jarvis held a 10 pound bass caught in the savannas. The new, lighted shuffleboard courts were opened at Langford Park, built by a group that wanted to shuffle.

General Development Corporation was advertising Port St. Lucie lots for $15 down and $15 a month, and homes for $16,990 to $30,000. Tomasu and Yurillo were advertising homes in West Jensen Highlands for $9,800.

The 1965 book featured the new bascule bridge across the Indian River, replacing the old wooden bridge. I was president of the Chamber that year, and the picture of me showed a flat-top Virgil special crewcut.

Where previously the fishing guide dealt only with fishing, the 1981 book [illegible] boating and suntanning. For the first time also, the book featured articles by Commissioner Frank Wacha on local government, Ransom Tilton, president of the board of Realtors, on Jensen as a place to live, and Ross Philbrick as head of the Resources Development Board of Martin County on industrial activity.

It was also the first year that all the Chamber members were listed.

It was the time that Virgil Wilson stopped advertising haircuts "whether you are a resident or a visitor," and started advertising "I need your head in my business."

I would like to get a complete file so that I can go all the way back to 1951, the first guide. If anyone has some copies, please let me know. It's fun to remember those days.

Alteration is aberration

No.
No.
Absolutely not.
I wouldn't even consider it.
I'm not going to answer those questions anymore, because I've already given my answer, and it's no.

The above statements, or comments similar to them, were made by George Bush during the last few months when reporters asked if he would consider running for vice president with Ronald Reagan.

Both before Bush dropped out of the race for president and afterward, he denied the slightest interest in running for vice president. Yet last week when Reagan popped the question, Bush answered with an immediate "yes."

The morning after Reagan announced Bush as his running mate, Bush was having a tough time eating his words. Indeed, he seemed peeved that news reporters would even dare ask him about the discrepancy between his earlier comments and the action he took.

And, had Ford and Reagan been able to strike a bargain, it would have been Ford eating his words about not running with Reagan for vice president, as he had denied any interest in the job prior to the convention.

Eating his words about his disinterest in the vice presidency were not the only ones Bush had to eat last Thursday. As he had been Reagan's stiffest competition in the primaries this spring, Bush had ample opportunity during that campaign to spell out his differences of opinion with Reagan. He didn't like several aspects of Reagan's economic proposals, and he differed with Reagan on ERA.

Yet when Bush and Reagan greeted the press the day after Bush was announced as Reagan's running mate, those differences had mysteriously vanished. Suddenly, Bush was happy with every point of Reagan's platform — including the economic proposals and the fact that the platform did not support the ERA.

I missed Bush's acceptance speech later that night, and missed most of Reagan's. But I did hear a lot of talk about the need in this country for men of great principles. And I recall Reagan saying the time for Jimmy Carter's "Trust me" rhetoric was over.

Now, as I've said in this column space before, I'm not wild about Carter. And, when the Democrats have their convention, I'm sure Carter and many of the other top Democrat officials will give column writers much to ridicule. But it boggles my mind how quickly principles can change in the face of political opportunity. If Bush could so easily change his mind about wanting the vice presidency, or about the measures needed to get our economy healthy again, or about his support for the ERA, how sure can one be of his future statements about anything? Will they also be subject to cinema ——— considerations override principles? Is Ronald Reagan to be trusted to lead a nation when his first decision after his nomination is to pick a man of such flexible principles? Reagan had said prior to the convention that his running mate should be a person with the same political philosophy as his. Apparently, Bush altered his philosophy to match Reagan's, but the alteration seems to defy be an aberration — of principles.

I know I'm being naive about this, as any observer of politics will tell you that what Bush did is standard procedure for politicians. When they're vying for the same post, they're quick to criticize each other, but when they're on the same team, they patch up their differences and act as though those differences never existed. And, any political observer worth his salt would point out that Bush would have lost the thin shread of hope he had for the presidency if he professed an interest in being Reagan's running mate at a time when Reagan was the front-runner in the primaries.

That's all true. But when asked about the vice presidency, could he not have simply declined to answer the question, or to have said he was running for president, not vice president, and wouldn't consider such a question unless he lost his bid for the presidential nomination? Considering how long he has been in politics, he should have surely learned a bit about dodging questions by now. Even our local politicians are adept at that.

Who knows? The way things look now, it's likely Reagan and Bush will win. Maybe they'll turn out to be good leaders. After all, Bush wasn't the only one eating words last Thursday morning. A lot of news reporters were helping themselves to generous portions of crow for reporting so assuredly that Ford was to be Reagan's running mate.

This is the final turtle watches

All parties concerned, including the giant sea turtles, seem to be pleased with the results of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce turtle watches this year.

For the last month and a half, chamber-sponsored turtle watches have been conducted on Hutchinson Island on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

This week-end marks the end of the organized watches, so if you've been putting off attending one, the time is at hand.

Dennis Doyle, executive director of the Chamber, said his records show 60 persons registered for this year's watches, but said the total number of persons participating in them could have been higher, "as some folks just showed up for the watches without registering."

In previous years, the Chamber organized watches for only a couple of weekends during the summer turtle nesting season. However, the crowds at the watches got too large, prompting concern from environmentalists that the turtles might be frightened away before laying eggs. So, this year a new format for the watches was developed.

Instead of having just a couple of watches, the watches were conducted three-days a week, beginning June 12th. By offering more dates for watches and by encouraging registration for the watches, the more persons got to participate in the watches, yet the crowds at watches were smaller.

The Naturalist Society of the Jensen Beach campus of Florida Institute of Technology provided volunteers to conduct the watches this year.

"Everyone seems to be pleased with the way the watches have been conducted this year, and the Naturalist Society is to be praised for the fine job they did in preparing the turtle watch brochure and serving as guides," Doyle said.

Though there were some nights when the giant sea creatures didn't seem disposed to lay eggs on a schedule matching that of the watches, on most nights the turtle watch participants did get to see turtles crawl ashore, dig nests, deposit eggs and return to the ocean. And, Naturalist Society members helped to answer questions about the turtles from participants in the watches.

The watches for the final three days this Thursday, Friday and Saturday will begin at Jensen Public Beach at 9 a.m. If you plan to go on a watch, it is recommended that you register at the Chamber office at 1910 N.E. Commercial Street in Jensen or call the Chamber office at 334-3444. Crowds at the watches will be limited to 50 persons, and those with reservations will get priority over those who show up without registering.

GROWTH OR CASH FLOW? TAKE YOUR PICK

QUESTION: I am in my mid thirties and have saved what I believe is sufficient cash for a down payment on a small apartment building. My question is this: In my search for the right property, should I be more concerned with the cash flow the property generates or with its potential to increase in value?

ANSWER: I do not know the details of your personal and financial circumstances. But generally, the goals of investors your age should favor the creation of equity more than the generation of current cash flow. This is especially true in times when rapid appreciation is anticipated.

Purchasing property which offers this potential for growth in value generally can be accomplished best by achieving the maximum sale leverage. This means that you maximize the financing available, either through an institutional loan or a mortgage taken back by the seller.

You may find that maximizing the financing to the highest safe level leaves you with little or no cash proceeds from your investment. In your position, it's possible that no positive cash flow or a modest negative cash flow is not unthinkable.

Look upon a small negative cash flow as additional investment. And remember that because of this ——————— is building rapidly from the appreciation of your property. If you assume this perspective, I believe you will find your investment financially rewarding.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-6747, or stop by:

Myers explains role in last legislature

Rep Bill Myers was philosophical and pragmatic in explaining his role in the recently ended 1986 legislature to the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club last week.

The Hobe Sound Republican talked more about what he and fellow conservatives in the legislature were able to defeat than the accomplishments of the session.

Republicans teamed with north Florida conservative Democrats to bring "some reason" to many of the bills that were introduced, Myers said.

"The attempt of the Dade delegation to reward rioting" created some problems Myers felt that the riots were a local problem to Dade County and should have been handled by the county.

"The rest of the state was expected to give money to Dade with no control over the grants. We felt that the statewide position was met when we beefed up police standards."

Myers placed the blame for the failure of the legislature to pass a single member district plan on self-serving members who feared that they would lose their seats in the legislature. He said it was "too late" to get the issue on the ballot for this fall, and said that the Common Cause lobby "didn't push it" for a constitutional amendment.

Reapportionment will be left to the next legislature.

Constitutional amendments are planned to be added to the second primary ballot, and Myers bemoaned the small turnout of voters in the second primary, set for October.

"Nobody votes in the second primary. The highest turnout is 30 percent. It is a small number of people to vote on something as important as a constitutional amendment," Myers said.

Some of the issues to face the voters will include a 10 year tax break for economic development, exemptions for inventory taxes, tax breaks for use of renewable energy sources development, a state housing agency and increases in the homestead exemption.

Myers continued his line on the difference between local and state responsibilities, saying that the state has taken too much power from local government.

L'Heureux enters race against Holt

Former Martin County Sheriff's Sergeant Bruce L. Heureux tossed his hat into the ring Tuesday as a Democrat candidate against incumbent Republican Sheriff James Holt.

In announcing his candidacy, L'Heureux said he is running as "a desire to see the quality and efficacy of the Martin County Sheriff's Department brought up to that of number one in the state. I have the utmost confidence in my ability to accomplish and maintain that task."

The challenger added, "The present administration under Sheriff Holt allows corruption to breed and multiply throughout the entire department. His unwillingness and inability to handle the administrative duties has resulted in a severe morale problem among his employees and deputies."

L'Heureux said Holt has waged a "war on out of town drug smugglers "which is nothing more than a continuing publicity campaign. Little effort is made to solve or prevent burglaries, larcenies and everyday neighborhood problems that affect everyone. These basic needs that our taxes pay for are virtually ignored."

L. Heureux was born in Stuart, raised in Palm City, and is a graduate from Martin County High School.

He began his law enforcement career in 1971 under Sheriff Roy Baker, and says a year after Holt was elected in 1972 he was promoted to corporal. In 1975, he was promoted to sergeant, and he served in that capacity until resigning in March to run against Holt.

For several years he patrolled the Jensen Beach area, and he said as corporal and sergeant, he trained and supervised men on his shift, and says he has conducted or participated in investigations ranging from minor traffic accidents to rape and murder "and successfully directed the most massive manhunt in the county's history."

Group to form Y.M.C.A.

A group of men and women in Martin County are currently working to form a Y M C A for Martin County.

Tom Kenney said Tuesday that a press conference will be called on Thursday, July 24, to announce plans for the Y M C A.

"A number of people have been working on this [illegible] a preliminary [illegible] men and women and we are formalizing it into a Y M C A organization for Martin County," Kenney said, adding, "The time is ripe."

Kenney said the Y M C A will most likely be under the wing of the Broward County Y M C A, as local Realtor Richard Gessenger Sr. has been heavily involved in the Broward program and is now working on setting up the Martin County program.

Kenney said there are no immediate plans for a building for the organization, but said that it, the next few years organizers hope one can be built.

He also noted that several family-oriented programs are planned this Fall and that the group hopes to form athletic leagues for persons of all ages. "We hope to get the entire county involved with the program," he said.

Causeway bulkhead boost is sought

The long delayed bulkheading of the Jensen Beach Causeway park, where countless community activities are held, got a boost from the Jensen Chamber of Commerce last week at a meeting of the board of directors.

Fred Meeker, director, asked that the board pass a resolution seeking immediate action on getting the bulkhead built, and damaged bulkheads (from Hurricane David) repaired on the Causeway.

"We need letters of support now," Meeker said.

The directors voted to pass a resolution in support of the bulkheading of the causeway park on the west side of the Frank Wacha Bridge, and to send such letters to the Department of Environmental Regulation and the county commission. The Chamber also sought the support of other civic clubs in writing letters to the DER and the county in support of the bulkheading.

Monterey announces winners

JoAnne Muller of Palm City was the lucky recipient of a solid golf Krugerrand, awarded by Stuart City Commissioner Jean Jefferson on behalf of the Monterey Shopping Plaza merchants on Saturday, July 12.

The one-ounce gold coin, valued at $650 or more, was the grand prize for the annual Rainbow Days promotion held at the plaza. The drawing was the finale of four days of plaza-wide sales.

A roll of quarters worth ten dollars was given to ten other fortunate shoppers. Among those receiving the ten dollar cash prizes were Frank Albrecht, Betsy Donaldson, Bea Hoffman, Judith and Carp Price, H.C. Shirs, and Mariene Rasiuth of Stuart; Robert Hinman of Jensen Beach; Beth Walker of Jupiter; and Barbara Ross and Doug Soule of Port St. Lucie.

A five dollar roll of dimes was awarded to twenty additional contestants, including Pete Timm of Port St. Lucie.

William Campbell returns from sea

[illegible] Coast Guardsman First Class William W. Campbell, son of Thelma P. Campbell of 604 W. Aldes St., Port St. Lucie, Fla., recently returned from a two-week Law Enforcement Patrol of the East Coast.

He is a crewmember aboard the Coast Guard cutter Reliance, homeported in Yorktown, Va.

During the patrol, the Reliance steamed more than 2,800 miles conducting surveillance operations to enforce international treaties and U.S. laws. The cutter assisted in the seizure of a fishing vessel loaded with 30 tons of marijuana, towed another fishing boat more than 100 miles to safety and patrolled a fisheries region involved in an international territorial dispute.

The Reliance is a 210-foot long, medium endurance cutter with a crew of 61. It is the Coast Guard's only reserve cutter.

Campbell joined the Coast Guard in November, 1980.

IRCC Itinerary

Most people know that college classes are available through IRCC, but did you know that the college also offers a complete evening adult high school program? Though the lack of a high school diploma stand in the way of your career and personal goals; the high school program at IRCC is designed to be convenient for persons who hold jobs during the day, and is specifically for students 16 years of age or older. Through the IMT Lab, you will receive all the individualized attention you need to successfully earn your diploma. Whether you need only a class or two to complete high school, or an entire program of study, the adult high school on the IRCC Main Campus will fit your commitments. There is nothing like a high school diploma to open doors for you to higher education and new job opportunities, so why miss out? An entire series of classes is being offered this Fall at the college, and registration is going on now through August 31. Call the Guidance Division, ext. 223, for more information.

Don't worry about it— Do something about it!

"The Cautious Consumer", a course being offered this Fall on Tuesday evenings in Room 8-207 on the Main Campus, will teach you to survive — survive financially, that is, during these inflationary times. Included in the personal and family finance course will be laboratory experiences, guest speakers, and discussions on topics such as "Your Food Dollar", "Your Credit Dollar", "Your Housing Dollar", and others. The goal of the three-credit class is to inform consumers of some money management principles, with hints on practical application. Registration for this class, which will meet from 5:30 to 8 p.m., is going on now in the IRCC Guidance Division. For more information, call the college, ext. 208.

Do it yourself and save

Leading clothing and wardrobe experts contend that a person can save at least half the cost on clothing, and get more stylish and better constructed clothes by sewing the garments themselves. Covering the entire process of clothing construction from planning a pattern-fabric combination through the final pressing, the class will sharpen the sewing skills of experienced seamstresses and beginners alike. Expand your sewing abilities while you increase your savings, enroll in either of the two courses being offered this Fall in Room E-207 on the Main Campus. One of the courses will meet on Mondays and Wednesdays from 11:30 am to 12:30 pm, while the other will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 to 10:30 am. Additional lab time is available for the completion of projects. If you are interested in this three-credit course, sign up now at the IRCC Guidance Office, or call ext. 208 for more information. Many other Home Economics courses are offered at IRCC to make the quality of your life and your family's lives better. Why not check to see what today's Home Ec classes can teach you?

Classes for bank employees

A wide variety of specialized banking courses, taught under the auspices of the American Institute of Banking, are available at IRCC this Fall. The classes are designed to foster the professional growth of bank employees, and the successful completion of a prescribed series of classes leads to various certificates and diplomas which are recognized and honored in the banking profession. Additionally, students who successfully complete the IRCC Banking Program are awarded an Associate of Science degree from the college. Classes will be offered this Fall at all four IRCC sites, and, the scheduled courses include "Principles of Bank Operations", "Bank Seminar I", "Bank Management," Money and Banking", "Bank Public Relations and Marketing", "Trust Functions and Services", and "Teller Operations." For more information on any of these courses or for registration details, call the college, ext. 447.

IRCC basketball camp in August

Boys and girls from ages 8 to 16 will have a lot of fun this summer while they improve their basketball skills at the first annual Mike Leatherwood-IRCC Basketball Camp, to be held on the IRCC Main Campus in Fort Pierce on August 11 - 16. The day camp, to run from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., will emphasize the fundamental skills of basketball, such as shooting, dribbling, and passing, while also giving the participants a chance to swim in the college pool, play racketball and [illegible], see films, and compete in all-star games.

Floral design course offered

The Adult and Community Education Department of Martin County Schools is offering a new course in floral design and sales.

This course will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Murray Middle School for 10 weeks.

This will be a basic course using live and artificial flowers and plants, with instruction in the design principles of rhythm, balance, color and contrast.

Designs will be demonstrated for both the home and business. There will be a materials fee plus a registration fee of $5.00. Interested students are asked to pre-register by calling the Adult and Community Education office 287-6400, extension 131, weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.

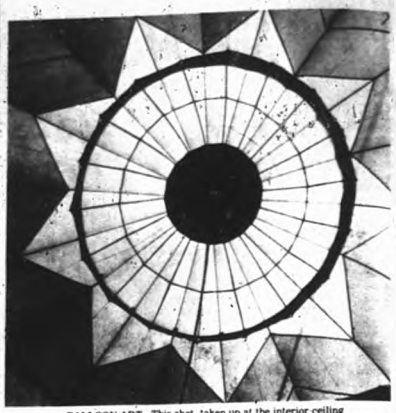
LOOKING DOWN ON WINDMILL POINT—The General Development Corporation subdivision of Windmill Point made a pretty sight from 1,000 feet above. As the ascent was quite gradual, there was no fear involved, but the distant landscape became further and further removed from reality with each upward sweep. The Mirror staffers had the rare opportunity of picking pine cones from atop some of the highest pine trees in Port St. Lucie.



BALLOON ART—This shot, taken up at the interior ceiling of the balloon shows the brilliant patterns that are created with the help of a little sunshine. In the early morning sun, the Rosegarden's colors radiated with warmth and vibrancy and she filled the sky over Port St. Lucie with a sunburst of color.

An incomparable high

BY MICHELLE NASPINSKI

No one hazarded a breath, as the obstinate hot air balloon rushed headlong into a formidable-looking pair of pine trees. The trees stood sentry to Port St. Lucie's outer western regions and as branches came to meet basket, the balloon's occupants were instructed to brace themselves against the expected impact.

But in a last-minute move that combined the adroitness of Houdini, the slick cavalier style of James Bond and the perfect timing of the U.S. Cavalry, the balloon suddenly lurched into the air, just clearing the needle-fringed pine tops that moments before had loomed overhead.

At that moment the warm air that held the balloon aloft had been heated precisely to the degree that it allowed the billowing cloth vessel to surge in a direct vertical motion.

For the "Rosegarden's" unsuspecting passengers it was a rush, an incomparable, natural high, the experience of flying unfueled and unfeathered.

Mirror city editor Bob Fryer and reporter Michelle Naspinski were recent passengers on the Rosegarden, a seven-story high hot air balloon owned and operated by Port St. Lucie residents Bill and Mary Jane MacDonald.

The thirty minute flight over Western Port St. Lucie was actually quite safe and uneventful for an experienced balloonist like MacDonald, but for his newly-airborne castaways, it was a dramatic thrill that will be remembered for a lifetime.

MacDonald, a veteran pilot who has worked with Boeing on Minute Men missiles and is presently employed by Grumman in Stuart, traded in his private plane for a hot air balloon some years ago and applied for one of the city's most unusual home occupational licenses.

Along with his wife and children, who serve as his "chase team", MacDonald operates Balloon Adventures during his spare time. The scope of this enterprise ranges from selling balloons and giving balloon-piloting lessons to providing hour-long champagne flights at a cost of $150 per couple.

It is no small distinction that balloon rides can be purchased in Port St. Lucie. According to MacDonald, there are only some 2,000 hot air balloons in the entire country and only 25 percent of these will sell rides.

But despite the rare opportunity and the fact that he has never had a dissatisfied customer, Floridians' response to the balloon enterprise has been somewhat discouraging to MacDonald.

"You find a different attitude here than in the Midwest," he explained, "once when we were flying in Montana we ended up with 20 cars and an 18-wheeler following our chase vehicle by the time we landed."

Floridians, however, tend to be more skeptical, MacDonald has found. The balloonist mentioned that there is rarely a time he lands in Port St. Lucie that some passing motorist does not stop to see if anyone has been injured.

"Every landing here is a crash landing to them," said MacDonald, "people imagine all kinds of things—like someone coming to rob them in a hot air balloon."

In addition to the attitudes of Sunshine Staters, Florida's mercurial wind conditions and expansive barricaded ranch sites, where a chase team cannot follow to reclaim the balloon, make this a less than ideal location for ballooning.

But for a number of daring area residents including a pair of women in their mid-60's and a young couple who took to the sky on Valentine's Day, Balloon Adventures has been the answer to a life-long dream.

In regard to actual risk, ballooning has a significantly lower accident rate than any other type of general aviation, according to MacDonald.

And in terms of flying, it is the next best thing to sprouting wings.

"Ballooning is a more natural way of flying, it attracts the purist," concluded MacDonald, "some people want to put engines on them for direction—even the mention of that is atrocious to the pure balloonist."

Although the Mirror balloon-riders did not get around the world in 80 days, we did see the aerial loveliness of Port St. Lucie for 30 minutes and by the halfway point in the journey we knew the experience would be difficult to convey.

How does one describe the feeling of reaching down to pick a pine cone from atop one of Port St. Lucie's highest pines?

A BIRDSEYE VIEW—This aerial shot of the Eugene Kavanaugh Bridge that crosses the C-24 canal in Port St. Lucie was taken from the basket of a hot air balloon, piloted by Port St. Lucie resident John MacDonald. The view from above was incredible as is witnessed in this collection of houses, water and trees.

AIRBORNE—As Port St. Lucie balloonist Bill MacDonald heated the "Rosegarden", causing it to rise majestically into the air, Mirror reporter Michelle Naspinski poised her camera to catch a shot of the ground that was falling so quickly beneath them.

TEAM EFFORT—The family members who act as balloonist Bill MacDonald's crew have a key role in the success of every balloon flight. They each have tasks to perform in the inflating, deflating and chase of the balloon. Here the MacDonald crew is pictured harnassing the balloon, while the air is heated for take-off. The Rosegarden was a sight to behold as gracefully ascended into the early morning sky.

Moody predicts smooth waters for River Queen

BY BOB FRYER

When Captain Martin Moody offered cruises on the St. Lucie River two years ago on the River Queen, he encountered so many problems with the Stuart city commission that he gave up.

But those problems are behind him now and this Saturday, the River Queen will cruise again.

The 75-foot paddle-wheel boat was popular among area residents and tourists in 1977, but Stuart city commissioners took a dim view of the parking facilities for persons making the cruises. A city ordinance required that the unpaved parking lot Moody was using be paved. As a result of the falp over the parking lot problem, Moudy gave up on the venture and leased the boat for cruises elsewhere.

"During the time I was having problems with the Stuart city commission, while I was still open for business, I made a survey of about 50 people in Stuart. Most of them had heard of the River Queen, but most said they thought it wasn't running anymore. At the time, I was, but the front-page stories (about the parking lot problems) seemed to get the attention of the readers more than my ad did, which said I was still running cruises," Moody said.

For the last two years, the River Queen has been in Hollywood, Cocoa Beach and Tarpon Springs.

"When the lease expired recently, I returned it here to make repairs," Moudy said. But it wasn't long after the River Queen arrived that arrangements were made to start the cruises again.

This time, River Queen patrons will still be parking in an unpaved lot, just up the road from the parking lot Moudy used two years ago. But a "grandfather" provision of the city ordinance makes that okay, as the parking lot was used for business before the law took effect.

The River Queen will operate from Pier One, north of the Roosevelt Bridge, behind the Thirsty Whale restaurant. It is the same pier used in recent winters for Hy-line cruise boats Cross Rip and East Chop.

The first cruise gets underway this Saturday at 7 p.m. and will feature dancing to the Sternwheelers band, two 20-minute Dixieland shows, and a chicken and roast beef dinner. The cruise will be to the Manatee Pocket and back and lasts about three and a quarter hours.

"We expect our Saturday cruises to be our most popular ones," Moudy said.

On Sundays, the cruises will be from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and are geared for families, with special prices for children. The River Queen will cruise to the St. Lucie Locks and back and Herbie Fenton will provide banjo music.

Friday evening cruises will also be offered, beginning Aug. 1, along the north and south forks of the St. Lucie River. Nickie Denal will serve as a one-man-band "Who sounds like three or four musicians", Moudy said.

Thanks to approval from Stuart city commissioners, Moudy says beer and wine will be available on the cruises.

The River Queen was built in 1949 and has been in Florida waters ever since. It was first used for the Jungle Queen cruises in Fort Lauderdale, but when that firm needed a larger boat, Moudy bought it.

The paddle-wheel is ornamental, but Moudy says it "adds a nice touch and the people seem to like it." The boat has a capacity of 150 persons and a three-foot draft.

Moudy says he will conduct the river cruises from the Pier One dock until the Hy-line cruise boats return for the winter. "Then, we'll just have to see what develops. We may be able to work something out if we don't cruise at the same times they do," he said.

Moudy is no stranger to local waters, though most of his experience in the last five years has been offshore. "I've been captain of the Lady Stuary (an ocean-fishing charter boat) for five years this week," Moudy said.

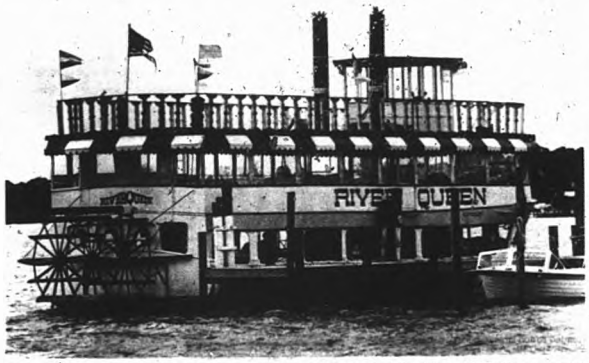
Nasty weather is what prompted Moudy to come to Florida. "I'm a pilot. I used to be with Allegheny Airlines; then had a charter service for Cessnas, but I got tired of the bad weather and decided to come to Florida. With all the water in Florida, I decided to get into boats," he said.

Moudy first moved to Sarasota, but said the abundance of water around Stuart and the location of the airport near the city resulted in a move here after one year in Sarasota. "I used to fly over Stuart and see all the water and the airfield right in town and think it would be a nice place to live, but never really thought I'd wind up here. It's a good town, and I'm glad I came," he said.

Moudy holds all ratings for airplanes and had more than 9,700 hours of air time. He still owns a plane too.

He got his first boating captain's license in 1974. "Each time I go to renew it, I figure I should try qualifying for something different," he said. As a result, Moudy holds 100-ton inland and offshore licenses and just recently obtained a 100-ton sailing vessel license.

If Moudy meets with the same public response to his cruises as he received before his parking lot problems two years ago, he feels they will be successful. "When we had them before, the people really seemed to enjoy them. We even had people pay extra to stay out longer on some of the cruises," he said. He also commented that the River Queen is available for charter.



READY FOR CRUISES—Workers have been sprucing up the River Queen recently in preperation for scenic cruises local waters two years ago, but parking lot problems caused a halt to them back then. The boat holds 150 persons and will make cruises on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

CAPTAIN MARLIN MOUDY will begin piloting the River Queen along local waters this Saturday evening when the 75-foot boat resumes cruises that were halted a couple of years ago. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Rinker family is golf family

BY MIKE SANDY

The Rinker kids continue to "ride the little white ball." That is the three Rinkers who still call Stuart, Florida their home — their home is in the Colony Bay area on the North Fork of the St. Lucie River. Their parents Laine Sr. and Pam Rinker have offered each of their four children the opportunity of "riding the white ball" to every advantage. With the Rinkers, golf is a way of life.

Laine Sr. who came to Stuart from Bloomsburg, Pa. with his parents in 1952 to develop a flower farm in the Stuart area, was married to Pamela Cross here and when not developing a special breed of flowers, Laine Sr. took to golf at the age of 21. He found the game most challenging and vowed should he be blessed with children, he would induce them to learn the game. This he did when they were old enough to swing a "cut-down" five iron, believing if they were shown correctly, the kids could make their way in life "riding the white ball." Laine Jr., eldest, received his education through golf with athletic scholarships to Indian River Community College and Broward. Laine Jr. started riding the little white ball becoming very proficient at the game under the guidance of Pa Rinker. Laine was the first of four Rinker kids to be named as Junior All Americans and was seeded in Florida age category tournaments. Laine Jr., is currently living in California and as coincidence will have it, he married Kellie Doherty a year ago, a lassie he met while boosting the stock of baby sister Lauri in a West Coast tournament. Kelly fits into the Rinker family. At the time Kellie was the Southern California Amateur Women's Champion.

Larry Rinker was next to step into the limelight "riding the ball." He was named to the Junior All America team, was awarded a full golf scholarship to the Un. of Florida where he starred under ex-Gator coach Buster Bishop where he earned an All American honorable mention during his last two seasons. He has since graduated and his most recent highlite was a second place finish to Bruce Fleisher in the 1980 Florida General Development Open here. He has been participating in the J.C. Goosie's Space Coast Mini tournaments from which he has amassed more than $10,000. Larry, who is 22, recently qualified to play in the U.S. Open at Baltrusol earning the berth over more than 5,000 hopefuls who vied for a spot. Many veterans of the game believe Larry will make it "riding the little white ball" in top pro tours. He has many talents and at one time seriously gave thoughts to following the music field. Larry is an accomplished guitarist having studied under the veteran Joe Lindwurn, formerly of the Tommy Dorsey band. It was Lindwurn who advised Larry to become a professional musician and play golf for fun. But Larry decided to follow the little white ball instead and music now serves as an outlet. It is reported that he has written a couple of songs and that he occasionally teams up with Mitch Kemper, another Mini tourist who is recognized for his musical talents. Larry and Mitch often are called upon in entertainment areas to "do their thing" which continues to bring added pleasures to the audiences.

While Larry has specialized with Disco music, he has diverted to music of the "thirties" and Frank Sinatra has become his idol.

Lee Rinker, third child of the Rinkers, has also carved a niche for himself in area and collegiate circles. He is a member of the Alabama College golf team and he too is looking forward to participating in pro events after college. He was one of the best amateurs competing the Florida Open ranking third in that status behind Dave Peoples and John Pallot.

The youngest member of the Rinker family is 17 year old Lauri, a member of the Florida University Gators golf team and recently named to the All American Collegiate team.

The Rinker kids have rode the little white ball from Martin County, Sandpiper Bay and courses wherever a tournament was being staged.

All four Rinkers had a strong desire to play the game, getting their start at Martin County C.C. and later on the Sandpiper Bay courses to which they traveled via an outboard boat from the Rinker home and up the St. Lucie River to Sandpiper. Laine Jr., helped his younger brothers and they in turn tutored Lauri who was usually coming along for the boat ride.

Laine Sr. and Pam recognized the talents of their kids and did everything possible to enhance their desires. The Rinker household could very well be a golf pro shop with clubs of all sizes and makes throughout the 23 rooms. Trophies by the dozens adorn many mantles and an 18-hole putting green has been constructed around the spacious swimming pool area.

Study periods are conducted for the kids when they come home. Laine Sr. has taken movies of the top golfers in the nation. Their swings are studied, complete with stop action. Laine Sr. has photoed the best including Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Lee Trevino, and Gary Player. The Rinkers compare their swings with those of the best. What's more the kids and Laine Sr. enjoy the sessions while Pam also gets her fill of instructions although she doesn't play the game. Who knows what lies ahead of the these Rinker kids if they continue to "ride the little white ball"? One fact is certain, they'll give it their best. They'll continue to adore and respect their parents and above all they'll be forever thankful for all the blessings bestowed upon the family by God.

Lynch enters race for school superintendent

Clifford Lynch, a former school superintendent for seven years in Ohio, has entered the race for Superintendent of Schools in Martin County on the Democratic ticket.

Lynch was born and reared on a grain farm in Seneca County, Ohio. His educational background includes a B.S. in Education from Ohio State University, an M.Ed. from Kent State University and completion of all coursework, oral and written comprehensive exams in the Educational Administration Ph.D. program at Kent State. He has been a teacher, principal and administrator, as well as private business owner. Lynch has served on the Board of Governors of many organizations including the Wooster Community Hospital and the Mental Health and Retardation Board in Wayne County, Ohio.

Lynch, his wife, Linda, and their two children, Brenda and Randy, settled in Martin County two years ago.

Many areas of concern to Lynch prompted him to enter the race for Superintendent of Martin County Schools, he said, adding, "One of the more obvious is the need for someone to initiate an open line of communication between school personnel and the community. The schools belong to the people and their thoughts and wishes must be determined and given due consideration in the development of an overall program that will produce the best possible well-rounded education for the youth of Martin County."

Fidelity Fed to build in Jensen

Martin County commissioners granted approval recently to a zoning change request to allow construction of a Fidelity Federal Savings and Loan Association branch office in Jensen Beach.

The office is to be located on Commercial Street a short distance west of the Sugar Hill development entrance, on the north side of the road.

County Commissioner Frank Wachs said those requesting the zoning change did not indicate how soon they plan to build the office, but did agree to submit a site plan to include turning lanes and a drainage easement.

Sewall's Point holds budget hearing

BY CATHIE FARAGO

Sewall's Point commissioners spent the better part of their recent meeting discussing preliminary figures for the upcoming fiscal year's budget.

It seems like a Catch 22 situation with commissioners unable to fully determine tax millage until voters decide in October about the homestead exemption increase. That vote comes after the town's fiscal year begins.

As it stands, Mayor Ed Gluckler is clearly upset about the current situation saying that "the idiot legislature did some things that are impossible to handle." He added that the town won't receive word until December about any possible tax revenue and added that "it's a bad situation."

Hopefully, property appraiser, Augie Malfregot will have a tentative tax roll by August 30 and one commissioner predicted Sewall's Point property values may increase anywhere from $5 - $25 million.

Commissioner Bill Barton, under whose jurisdiction falls the police department, was opposed to the five per cent increase in the proposed budget. He felt that with inflation, at least a 10 per cent increase was needed. "We need to go 24 hours a day," he said. He backed up that statement by saying that with the current number of burglaries and the way the county seems to be a candidate for incoming drugs, it would be wise to beef up security. Barton added that "I would like to see a boat on the river" to which town attorney Jim Knight replied, "manned by the town attorney." With the present police force, the town cannot be covered 24 hours a day seven days a week. There is talk of buying another police car and chief of police Mac Matiszewski would like to see another person on the force to handle the work load.

If town commissioners are faced with a stalemate regarding taxation, at least they are making headway concerning the much needed Sewall's Point Road bike path. At the meeting, town engineer Dick Hellstrom reported that he had met with members of Gorham Construction of Fort Pierce and all had agreed to start construction within the next two weeks. Hellstrom and building inspector, Joe Mazzucca were appointed watchdogs for the construction, and hopefully, all work will be completed within 60 days after it begins.

When someone asked Gluckler whether or not he intended to supervise the work, he shook his head and said, "I've worked for five years to get that bike path. I'm going to sit back and watch it."

Also discussed on the agenda was the recently made progress by Sewall's Point on the blockage of effluent into the St. Lucie River. According to Gluckler, the South Florida Water Management Board has taken samples of the water and if results show any problems, a special team will take over with further studies.

Recently, Stuart city commissioners inspected the sewage treatment plant and, according to Gluckler, all five are now opposed to dumping the sewage into the river. Gluckler seemed fairly confident that even if attempts were made to put the maximum allowable sewage into the river, they would be aborted and said, "if they get a permit, it will be for only two million gallons per day ... and only after a public hearing."

We'll miss Betty

BY RUTH BOWES

I am very sorry to report that our co-writer Elizabeth "Betty" O'Donnell has left our Park for Pinelake Mobile Park. We all will miss Mac & Betty, their friendship and always ready to aid & assist in every activity that was requested. Her help and kindness to the ill, dog sitting for many in an emergency. I have had a wonderful person to work with on the "Mirror". We all wish Betty and Mac much happiness in their new home. The friendship of years, will still be with all. Do come back often to visit us.

A letter from Pauline & Herb Reagh. They are busy up in Mich. gardening, canning, swimming. Taking short trips to Nashville, Tenn. to visit the "Opryland" the first of Sept. they plan to go to the Ozarks and Texas. Then on to H.Out the first week of Nov. Just a little homesick for H.Out?

News from Director Leonie & Virginia Inman, left June 23 for home, at Knoxville, Tenn. First a visit to an Aunt in Bradenton, Fla. Then up the West Coast to Panama City, Fla. for a short stay. Continuing into Alabama visiting in Montgomery and Birmingham, then home to Tenn. Safe and sound. On arrival they were surprised that son Jack, is to be married on Sept. 27, a formal wedding, so all will be busy planning and preparing for the wedding. They plan to take time out to trailer down to N. Carolina to visit their two daughters and four grandchildren in Spartenburg, and Greenville in South Carolina. Also would like to spend a few days in the mountains, before returning for the wedding.

Another Director wrote Harry & Vergual Smith from Central Lake, Mich. who receives our "Mirror". They are having a most unscheduled summer so far breezy and cool, only the weeds and grass grow. The garden and flowers beds are slow. We learn of their Daughter Margaret, who comes to H.Out every year was hospitalized for surgery. Margaret is out now, but it will be a long slow recovery. Harry is recovering from a sprained knee; he also is impatient for it to heal, properly.

Jim & Martha Lewis entered into the Ohio State Senior Tournament. It is the first ever to be held in the United States. There were about 400 entered. There was an age category, 60-70, 70-80, plus over 80. Of course we were in shuffleboard. I won a gold medal and Jim won a bronze. Ending Saturday night, with a big banquet and presented the medals. It was quite a thrill and fun. Next will be the State and National Tournaments.

Pat Sykora and Del Stam entertained Carole & Al Wright on their anniversary on July 19 at Outrigger. All had an enjoyable evening.

Catty & Lester Ullmanns wrote from Albany, N. York. They had a very pleasant trip from H.Out.

We greet Betty Lester on the North End. She will take over the writing for Betty. Her phone is 229-9580 and lives on lot 513.

Vicki & Mac McKeever writes that the train trip from West Palm to Hartford, Conn. was the worse part of their trip. It was all worth while as Mac attended a high school reunion, enjoyed seeing his old friends. They are looking forward to a week in Maine, to eat their fill of lobster.

The Ray's daughter in law's Mother died on Tuesday following the accident the week prior. The Al Rays, returned to Hialeah for a few days, till after the funeral, held in Tennessee.

Congratulations on Anniversaries— Sarah & George Mellot 7-25, Doris & Harold Barker 7-28, Dorothy & Andy Donnelly 7-29, Mary & Maurice Aharone 7-30.

Happy Birthday Wishes— Jack Smith 7-25, Rita Dubose 7-27, Eleanor Greenough, Harold Butler 7-28, Ethel Prabhuram, Morris Brink, Bill Blair 7-29.

VOLUNTEERS—Members of the Sandpiper Bay men's and women's golf associations gathered for a photo recently. It took this many volunteers to handle the many chores of the PGA tournament recently, indicating the big job of putting together what has become known as the smoothest running tournament in Florida. These volunteers deserve all the praise it is possible to heap upon them for their effort and dedication.

Mimi and Howard shine in appreciation event

BY MIKE SANDY

The volunteers who serve the golfers in many ways during the tournament were honored at a party at the Sandpiper Bay clubhouse. Many awards were presented for their time and services as aides and marshalls during the General Development Florida PGA Open conducted at the Sandpiper Bay resort, had their day Wednesday in an "Appreciation Day" sponsored by General Manager Bill Pullen and his Sandpiper Bay staff.

Mimi Lamont, who has been associated with the game of golf in many aspects came through with one of her better rounds for Low Net scoring honors when she posted a 103 which brought her to a net 71 that tied the Women's Association members Ruth Chase finished second with 73 and Phil Healy wrapped up third place with 74. Mimi Lamont also took closest-to-the-pin award on hole 18 and a bottle of champagne and a card of the day with 73.

Howard Klerk, posting one of his lowest scores a 78 which included an eagle 2 on the Saints 14th hole abetted his low 78 for a net low of 62. Bob Wilson, president of the men's group finished second with gross 75 while Danny Smozanek garnered the lowest gross score of the day with 76.

Wilma Leary won longest drive honors while Sara Hill dignified the score sheet with a gross 127. John Linabury had closest to the pin on 36 and Joe Schultz contributed with the longest drive while Larry Huber scored the "distinct" class with 121.

Whiting, drum, sheepshead lead way this week

FISHING ISN'T THE GREATEST hereabouts but the best of it features black drum and sheepshead from the Roosevelt Bridge and whiting in the surf around the power plant. Right behind are spotted seatrout in the Indian River in Herman's Bay, around Big Mud Creek and over on the west shore in the Walton Road area.

Offshore fishing has been plagued by rain squalls and high seas but there are cobia, a few dolphin and king mackerel, an occasional sail and tons and tons of bonito for the trailers, and pretty good bottom fishing for small species like sea bass, vermillion snappers. Lane snappers and trigger fish, mostly on the inshore reefs near the St. Lucie Inlet.

The whiting seem to be most plentiful in the surf at Normandy Beach just south of the power plant but are scattered up and down the beach clear down to the Martin County Park-N-Fish area below the Jensen Causeway and the Holiday Inn. They will take most anything, like sandfleas, cut bait, or fresh or frozen shrimp, and feed to close to shore around the little dropoffs. You should pick up an occasional Atlantic croaker while fishing for whiting. Both are excellent table fare and well worth the catching, if you get enough of them.

THAT ROOSEVELT BRIDGE, for years a hot spot for black drum, has been in and out for months now, mostly out, but this past weekend it was packed with fishermen hauling in drum in the 5-20 lb class and lots and lots of sheepshead. Claims were the prime bait and if you decide to give the Roosevelt a shot, be sure you have a supply of clams. A good time to fish there would be from 7 to 11 a.m. this Thursday. Those big drum are all right but if you want battey eating, stick to those under six pounds. You either like sheepshead or you don't. Most folks think they're pretty good eating though.

FROM THE KNOOK NOOK in Jensen, Tom Stewart: "Trout are pretty decent but fishing hasn't been good because of the bait. Whiting are still excellent in the surf. Snook are slow and although there are a lot of them at the Evans Crary (16 cent) Bridge, they won't hit anything yet. That Crary bridge is the first one you hit driving east on East Ocean Blvd. out of Stuart. The second is the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge. I hear there are some drum at the Roosevelt Bridge. Other than that, it really doesn't look good at all. The water was just too rough for that small boat tournament and most of the fish caught were bonito anyway. Normandy Beach, just south of the power plant, is good for whiting. Some days the surf is dirty and you have to pack a clear spot.

The Nook's log: Terry and Steve Yager and Don Phelps, 108 whiting and 22 croakers, clams and sand fleas, Normandy Beach; Paul Rutheiser, a 6-8 trout, mirrolure, St. River dock; Bill Ditzel, 8 trout to 6-8, pinfish, Big Mud; Bob Irons, 2 trout, Wacha bridge, mirrolure; Mike Mauer, 13 whiting and 3 croakers, shrimp, surf; Jack and Barbara Prell, 15 whiting, sand fleas, surf; Roy Greenwald, 8 trout to 3-6, 7Mill mirrolure, Walton Road; Paul Brennan, 10 whiting, frozen shrimp, Normandy Beach; Ed Wagner and Harold Egeland, 14 trout, louts, wading well north of the power plant; Chris Longo, 13, a 6-4 (6 lb. 4 oz.) largemouth bass, plastic worm, Jensen Savanna.

BILL KIGHT, Jensen Bait and Tackle: "Sorry, Dick, we just don't have anything to report today."

FROM THE BAIT BOX in Jensen, Chuck Shepherd: "They had a bad weekend for lobster fishermen and the fishing tournament. I don't think anybody got any lobsters at all during the two-day season. That three-foot weather forecast Sunday morning threw everybody off. We just went out far enough to turn around and came back. We wanted to do some grouper fishing but not in six-foot seas. The divers who did manage a dive said it was too dark and murky down there and they couldn't see a thing. Our log: Barry Johnson, a 4-4 tripletail, greenback mixture, north catwalk. Frank Wachs Bridge; Lane Cooper, an 8-4 red snapper, east mollet, off the power plant; Phil and Janice Jorge, 3 kings, 2 cudas, sea witch with bellyhen, Six Mile Reef south of the St. Lucie Inlet."

BRUCE BRIDEMAN, from D&M Bait and Tackle at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S. 1 just north of downtown Stuart: "They made a killing this past weekend on drum and sheepshead. Three little boys from Indiantown caught a big string of drum over 7 lbs. Eugene Davis of Stuart landed four in less than an hour, all over 12 lbs. Everything was caught on clams. They were buying clams by the bag of 108, not by the dozen any more. Needless to say, we sold out of clams but expect some in today (Tuesday). The bridge is loaded again this morning and they're still catching them. Oh yes, Dick, those mangrove snappers are still biting from the river bank just west of the bridge, right across from Mrs. Peters' Pier 4. A good time to fish the Roosevelt would be from 7-11 a.m. Thursday."

FROM THE PARTY BOAT Miss Fort Pierce up at the Fort Pierce Marina, Rita Fasano: "Bottom fishing has been slow but surface action has been good this week. There are lots of cobia around. On Ladies Day Fay Adams had a 6-0 dolphin and Roger Lapenter a 30-0 cobia. There were quite a few bonito caught that day too. On Friday, John Stone had a 7-0 mangrove snapper and Roger Lapenter a 6-0 mangrove NE in 50 ft. of water, also N. Durney took a 28-0 cobia and others caught bonito in the 10 lb. range. Rufus Webb had a 29-0 cobia and a 5-0 king on Sunday, and on Saturday they had a very good day fishing way up north between Vero and Sebastian where Chet Smith of Ft. Pierces caught gray groupers of 22-0 and 19-0, Gary Gillis of Okeechobee a 14-0 red snapper and Verle Norris, an 18-0 gray grouper. The group also had some scamp grouper, triggerfish and 8 gray grouper in the 10-15 lb. class."

CAPT. MARLIN MOUDY AND CAPT. PHIL SHERMAN, from the party boat Lady Stuart (286-1888), going half days from the SailFish Marina just east of Port Salerno off A1A below Stuart: "Fishing's been a bit slow but we've been getting quite a few triggers, Lane's small grouper, vermillions and sea bass on those inshore reefs north of the St. Lucie Inlet. There are a lot of bonito at Six Mile Reef, and a few dolphin. We manage to bring in some fish every day. The seas have been a little rough with some rain squalls. We plan to start running the River Queen again beginning Saturday."

ON THE FRESHWATER SIDE, Trey Barnes from Uncle Jon's Fish Camp on the west shore of Lake Okeechobee just below Moore Haven on SR 720: "The bluegills (breams) have been real good in Mayaca Cut and around the pepper grass out in the lake, and now they're catching shellcrackers with them. There are schooling bass striking very early in the day around the pepper grass and in the Cut. Fishing's pretty good here now."

Driftwood regatta will be held on August 2-3

With the largest sailing race in Vero Beach history less than three weeks away, the field is filling up quickly for the inaugural Driftwood Challenge Regatta, August 2-3, at the historic Driftwood Inn.

According to the race officials, the field of 60 entries is already half filled with entrants throughout Florida and as far away as Atlanta, Georgia, scheduled to compete.

Co-sponsored by the Driftwood Inn and Shannon's Hobie Center of Cocoa Beach, the regatta will be a series of three-mile races governed by the U.S. Yacht Racing Union rules. It is open to both hobie cats and prindle cats in three categories — 13s, 16s and hobie 16s. Trophies will be awarded to the first three finishers in each division.

The auction will begin at noon on Saturday, Aug. 2, with three races. The following day two races will be held, including the feature Challenge Race for hobie and prindle 18s.

Waterfowl season dates may be set Friday

BY DICK LUNDIN

ONE OF THE TOP ITEMS on the agenda for the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission when it meets Friday in Lakeland will be adoption of 1980-81 migratory bird regulations. The meeting will take place at the Hilton Inn, I-4 at 98 north, and is open to the public.

Another important item is one on the research by the Division of Fisheries on a "triploid" grass carp. This cross between a bighead carp and a grass carp is another possible means of achieving aquatic weed control by the grass carp, but with the added advantage of being a sterile fish.

The Division of Fisheries will also present a status report on the recent massive fish kill in the St. Johns River between Lakes Jessup and Harney. The six-mile-long kill resulted in more than 10 million fish dying, among them bass, channel catfish and other species.

The Friday meeting will follow a meeting Thursday at 1 p.m. between the Commissioners and administrative and field staff. This meeting, although open to the public also, will be limited in discussion to the Commission and staff, and will also take place at the Hilton Inn.

QUOTAS ARE FILLING UP FAST for wildlife management area hunts this fall, according to Fred Stanberry, director of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission's Division of Wildlife.

"As of July 3, we have issued 21,751 regular quota permits for wildlife management areas and 11,568 special quota permits for selected hunts," Stanberry reported.

Regular quota permits are required for most sportsmen to hunt on wildlife management areas during the first nine days of the hunting season which begins statewide on Nov. 8. Special quota permits are required to participate in special hunts on selected wildlife management areas.

Stanberry said that the state is now able to have most permits back to the hunters within a week after receiving their applications.

Wildlife management areas which have already reached their regular quota for the first nine days are: Lykes Brothers Fishasting Creek; Camp Blanding; Cypress Creek, the still hunt area of Aucilla; the Bear Island Unit of Big Cypress; Bull Creek; the archery hunt on Citrus and the first two hunts on Three Lakes.

Special hunts which have been filled to date, according to Stanberry, are: Bull Creek; the first archery and both muzzleloader hunts on Camp Blanding Citrus; the archery hunt on Guana River; Osceola modern gun hunt; the first archery hunt on Three Lakes; all the modern gun hunts; the first archery and the first two muzzleloader hunts on Salt Springs; the first two archery hunts and the first three muzzleloader hunts on Joe Budd.

Applications for regular quota permits are available at any county tax collector's office and applications for special quota hunts can be obtained at the Tallahassee office or any regional office of the Commission.

Persons who have questions about the quota permit program can contact the quota permit office in Tallahassee at 904-488-3573 or 904-488-3674.

There's a waitin' if you expect to hunt during the first nine days of the season!

HUNTING on Florida's wildlife management areas is one thing, but hunting on someone else's land is quite another matter. It's a privilege extended by the landowner and is not implicit in the holding of a hunting license!

In a recent study done for the National Shooting Sports Foundation, it was disclosed that 58 per cent of the landowners surveyed were aware of problems landowners had with hunters, and that more than 80 per cent of those surveyed have closed their land to hunting by posting it.

Still, more than a third of those posting their land against hunting said they would allow hunting on their land if only the hunter would ask permission.

A hunting license isn't a key to every farm gate. You have to take the time to show your good manners by politely asking for permission to hunt there. Even if the land is posted, give it a go and ask the landowner. He might surprise you by acceding to your request, and if you don't shoot his livestock or damage the ecology in any way, you will make hunting a great deal more accessible for other hunters.

A little courtesy and consideration can go a long way!

IF BILLFISHING, big time, is your bag, how about a jetliner one pineapple way where they'll be holding the 22nd annual Hawaiian International Billfish Tournament from Aug. 8 through 17 in Kailua-Kona, Hawaii. It will be preceded by its companion event, the fourth annual Hawaiian Billfish Tournament which is a national championship for teams from the Continental U.S. and runs from Aug. 1-8.

Although there are trophies galore for the winners, perhaps the most interesting is the Duke Kahanamoku award, a perpetual trophy presented to the skipper boating the greatest marlin in the tournament. This presentation honors one of Hawaii's contemporary heroes and outstanding sportsman, the late Duke Paoa Kahanamoku, who was an Olympic gold medal swimmer, champion surfer and canoe paddler.

For more information, get in touch with James W. Sutherland (808-623-9708) at the Hawaiian International Billfish Association, 2923 Mahalei Place, Honolulu, Hawaii 96815.

SHELLCRACKER fishermen should get a last crack at the spawning panfish next Sunday, July 27, when there will be a full moon. I would suggest fishing out of such fish camps as Buckhead Ridge Marina just west of the Kissimmee River Bridge on SR 78, or Dirk's Fish Camp at Lake Port, another dozen miles or so farther west, both on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee. You'll find good spawning grounds for the hard fighting crackers, and all it takes is a container of lively red worms and either a cane pole or spinning rod for tackle.

MOON WISE, for what it's worth, there will be a penumbral lunar eclipse (causing only a slight darkening of the full moon) on July 27, occurring before moonrise in North America. Then, if you are a real night owl, stay up for the 1 a.m. Delta Aquarid meteor shower (about 20 per hour) on July 28. I'm sure that all moon watchers know that there'll be a perigee moon (nearest the earth) on July 30.

"BIRD STUDENT," at $15.95 from the University of Texas Press, is the story of George Mikes Sutton, an academic ornithologist and bird artist who is an excellent story teller for all of his scientific lore. If Audubon and Roger Tory Peterson pleased you, you owe it to yourself to at least peruse "Bird Student" if you can find it in one of the local bookstores. It's more or less of a collector's item.

"THE STRIPER'S ODYSSEY, a 31-minute 16mm movie on the plight of the North American striped bass, is now available for organized group showings from Evinrude's free loan film library. Requests for it and other films should be sent to Selmar Schaller, 4388 North 27th Street, Milwaukee, Wisc. 53216.

The movie follows noted saltwater fishing journalist, Spider Andresen in a search for today's best striped fishing, from his lobstrng fields grounds off Martha's Vineyard to Percy Priest Lake in Tennessee. At Percy Priest, Bill Dance, a world class bass fisherman professional, takes Spider for his first try at freshwater stripers. The action is fast, the scenery humorous, the cinematography good. It should make an excellent evening's showing for your group.

MIAMI DOLPHINS

The Dolphins struggled early, came fast in the '70s

By Dick Lundin

THE HISTORY OF THE MIAMI DOLPHINS is, in fact, a two-part story, the struggling Sixties and the Shula Seventies.

The early days, from an expansion start in 1966, to the arrival of Coach Don Shula in 1970, from Baltimore where he rose to NFL fame with the Colts and Johnny Unitas, were typical of an expansion franchise.

George Wilson became Miami's first head coach after coaching the Detroit Lions to a 57-45-8 record over an eight year period, winning an NFL championship in 1957, 59-14, over the Cleveland Browns.

Wilson had the credentials and may have laid the groundwork for the Dolphins of the Seventies, but his winning record in South Florida apparently didn't enchant either the fans or owner Joe Robbie.

His four seasons produced 3-11 (1966), 4-10 (1967), 5-8-1 (1968) and 3-10-1 (1969) records, and that '69 slump after winning four and five games the previous two years, undoubtedly sent Robbie looking and he found his man in Shula who was ready to make a move from Baltimore.

THERE ISN'T A WHOLE LOT to be said for those formative years. Rick Norton was Miami's first quarterback, but the coach's son, George Wilson, Jr., saw a lot of action, as did John Stofa. Stofa might have made it as a starter into the 70s but he broke his ankle against Denver in the Orange Bowl.

Sept. 17, 1967 and was traded to expansionist Cincinnati after the season was over.

Stofa was replaced by one Bob Griese of Purdue who had been drafted No. 1 by Miami in the March 14, 1967 draft.

For the nostalgia buffs, here are a few of the players who toiled for the Dolphins in the pre Shula (1966-1969) era.

Joe Auer (66-67), John Bramlett (67-68), Mel Branch (66-68), Rick Casares (66), Jack Clancy (67-69), Frank "Emanuel (66-69), Earl Faison (68), Cookie Gilchrist (66), Tom Goode (66-68), Kim Hammond (68), Jack Harper (67-68), Abner Haynes (67), Mike Hudock (66), Mack Lamb (67-68), Wahoo McDaniel (66-68), Gene Mingo (66-69), Gene Mingo (66-67), Doug Moreau (66-69), Billy Neighbors (66-69), Rick Norton (66-68), Sam Price (66-68), Bo Roberson (66), John Roderick (66-67), Jimmy Warren (66-69), Willie West (66-68), and Dick Westmoreland (66-69).

Some of those names should bring back wry memories of a franchise struggling to get off the ground.

TO GIVE WILSON HIS DUE, here are some of the blue ribbon players who played under Wilson and were inherited by Shula when he took over the reins after the 1969 season:

Nick Buoniconti (LB), Doug Crusan (T), Larry Csonka (RB), Norm Evans (T), "Manny Fernandez (DE), Bob Heinz (DT), Larry Little (G), Mercury Morris (RB), Floyd Mumphord (CB), Larry Seiple (P), Bill Stanfill (DE) and Howard Twilley (WR).

All of the 12 played important roles in Miami's Super Bowl years of 1971-73, so the Wilson legacy wasn't inconsiderable at all.

All of the Wilson era was during the American Football League which merged with the National Football League for the 1970 season.

TO REFRESH YOUR MEMORY, this bunch of was in 1969 when there was an NFL and an AFL, two separate leagues.

The NFL had Los Angeles, Baltimore, Atlanta and San Francisco in its Coastal Division, and Minnesota, Detroit, Green Bay and Chicago in its Central, both in the Western Conference. The league had Dallas, Washington, New Orleans and Philadelphia in the Capital and Cleveland, New York, St. Louis and Pittsburgh in the Century Division of its Eastern Conference.

The AFL had New York, Houston, Boston, Buffalo and Miami in its Eastern and Oakland, Kansas City, San Diego, Denver and Cincinnati in its Western Division.

When the NFL and AFL [illegible] to become just the NFL again, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Baltimore moved over into the new American Football Conference, and thus was born the National Conference and American Conference, each with a western, eastern and central division, as we have them today, except that instead of 26 teams, the NFL now has 28, having added Seattle and Tampa Bay in 1976.

The new league played 14 regular season and six pre season games and had one Wild Card team in each Conference until the 1978 season when teams were increased to 45 players, each Conference increased its Wild Card playoff spot to two, and the pre-season was cut to four games and the regular season expanded to 16, as it is for the 1980 season.

THE SHULA ERA came in with a bang in South Florida. Fans, disillusioned by the old Miami Seahawks in the post World War II era, and George Wilson's struggling expansionists, didn't know just what to expect at first, but soon started pouring into the Orange Bowl in ever increasing numbers.

It was a topsy turvy start for the Dolphins in 1970, with Shula tinkering with the gears and the refurbished Miami football machine having its ups and downs.

After starting out inauspiciously at New England by losing to the Patriots, 27-14, the rebuilt Dolphins bounced back to upset the Oilers there, 20-10, defeat Oakland 20-13 before 54,412 in the Orange Bowl, drub the Jets there, 20-6, and roll over Buffalo there, 33-14.

There was dancing in the streets in South Florida and visions of playoffs, but Miami's biggest crowd ever, 70,872, was stunned when the Cleveland Browns whitewashed their charges, 28-0. That was bad, but there was worse to come as the Dolphins trekked up to Baltimore where Unitas and Co. blew them right out of Memorial Stadium, 35-0. The following week saw them lose to the Eagles in Philadelphia, 24-17, after being far behind in the early going.

THEY DIDN'T LOOK like a play off contender at that point, not with a 4-4 record and a three game losing streak, but, as one John Paul Jones once commented so drily, "I haven't yet begun to fight," and that was Miami the rest of the way.

Only 41,557 turned out in the Orange Bowl to see them defeat New Orleans, 22-10, but there were 63,362 on hand the next Sunday to see them in a rematch with the Colts and Unitas. They got their money's worth as the Dolphins romped over the Colts, 34-17, building a head of steam for the stretch run, needing [illegible] every game to make the playoffs for the first time ever.

The Dolphins did just that, whipping the Atlanta Falcons up there, 20-7, downing the Patriots in the Orange Bowl, 37-20, overcoming the stubborn Jets in the Orange Bowl, 16-10, before a record crowd of 71,892, and then facing the hapless Buffalo Bills in the South Florida Bowl, 45-6 to clinch a playoff berth.

Baltimore won the AFC East in 1970 with an 11-2-1 record, ahead of Miami's 10-4-0. The Colts went on to beat Oakland, 27-17 for the AFC championship and then won Super Bowl V over Dallas, 16-13. The fledgling Dolphins lost their first playoff appearance out in the mud at Oakland, 21-14, but proved that they were ready to play with the NFL's best despite the disappointing loss to the battle wise Raiders.

THE DOLPHINS had a great record in the Seventies but their meteoric rise to National acclaim and NFL respect really began out in Arrowhead Stadium in Kansas City on Christmas Day, 1971.

Next week we'll re live the '71, '72 and '73 seasons when the Dolphins were 10-3-1, 14-0 and 12-2, winning six playoff games and two of three Super Bowls.

See you then.

St. Lucie Power Squad to give boating course

The St. Lucie River Power Squadron has restructured its boating course to make it the most comprehensive program possible for safety afloat for the neophyte boat handler or prospective boat owner.

Walter M. Maron, Squadron Education Officer, is urging all present and prospective boat owners who have not taken this nine-week program to reserve Tuesday evenings, starting September 30 and running through December 9.

The classes will meet at the Martin County High School from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Instruction and the final examination are free. The only expense to the student is the cost of the course manual and chart.

Each class is given by a different Squadron lecturer who has special expertise in the area being discussed and who has met instructor qualification standards. In addition, small groups of students are helped by qualified "table instructors" who check their work and follow their progress through the entire course.

The boating course is an introduction to the knowledge and skills necessary for the safe operation of pleasure craft. It is offered to the public at large as a service of the St. Lucie River Power Squadron.

Ken Simmons shines in foursome play

Posting a score of 24 under par 120 the team of Ken Simmons, John Schwartz, Wilmer Hyde and John Hudack captured top honors in the Two Best Balls of Foursome play by the Sandpiper Men golfers in play on the 18 hole championship Saints course. Simmons led the quartet with a net 67 round.

A pair of teams carded like 121 tallies of 23 under par to share second place. Howard Klerk racked up another low round of 82 to pave the way for team mates Denny Long, Cal Heathman and Mike Sandy. The other team included Bill Flanagan, Earl Baugher, Miles Zimmerman and a blind draw partner Jack Dalton.

Individual low cards were turned in by a quartet of golfers who managed into the select "Break Eighty" club. They were Dan Simmons at 74, Sam Dewhirst and Jim Oram at 78 with Carl Staruch at 79.

Thursday's action is labeled a Partner's Chapman event with each player hitting the first two alternating shots followed by playing the best ball for the third shot which could very well be a putt.

Racqueteers get awards

The Martin Downs Racqueteers wound up their seven week volunteer summer tennis program recently at the Crane Creek Racquet Club with an awards presentation and a bar-b-que.

Trophy winners from each of the seven teams were selected by their own teammates, and are as follows: Most Valuable Players: Chad Collins, Summer Summerame, Michael Johnson, Cathe Humberstone, Clint Wells, Angie Grass, and Aaron Justi. Most Improved Players: Ken Bajus, Joseph Keating, Mark Read, Michele Johnson, Fred Humberstone, Jr., Shellie Ann Bajus, and Britt Owen.

Local shufflers win in N.C. Pro-am

The latest of local shufflebowlers to travel to North Carolina recently where several hometown shufflers walked off with prizes in the "Skyland Drive Double Pro-Am" of Toms Park, Hendersonville, N.C.

Oscar Kohlman of Spanish Lakes placed first in the pro division, and Pete Muller, formerly of Ocean Breeze but now of Spanish Lakes, placed second. Ed Travis of Melbourne finished first in the consolation round and Jack Klugstore of Fort Pierce was second.

In the amateur division, Yvonne Tendreau of Port St. Lucie was first, Arthur Tendreau was third, and Lucy Bird of Cape Canaveral was fourth.

The local shufflers are members of the Central East Coast District, which extends from Jupiter to Cape Canaveral.

Pro-Am resumes at Sandpiper on Friday

After a lapse of three weeks, the regularly scheduled popular Pro-Am tournament will be staged on the Sandpiper Saints course Friday, July 25th. Many of the pros who have been participating in these weekly events have been busy competing in the recent Florida Opens and have looked forward to the weekly Pro-Ams which have also attracted large amateur fields.

Pro and amateurs are urged to be in contact with the pro shops of either the Sinner's course, Crane Creek or Mariner Sands.

Northport Men's Golf news

John Schwartz again pops up as winner of flight A in golf competition of the Northport Men's Golf association Tuesday. Fred Sheets was second with a net of 61.

Flight B was won by Charles Stallings with a 56. Ray Mink had a 57. A net of 58 won flight C for George Baer. Jim Hensel had a 61 for second place. In flight D Bill Yacinski had a 62. Hal Nowicki had a 63.

Earl Graham was closest to the pin on the eighth hole. Charlie Stallings was closest on the 14th hole.

TRAILERS MOTORS

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG

Director of Tennis, Indian River Plantation

Lots of tennis activity around the world this past week.

In what was billed as the U.S. Nationals, held at Longwood Cricket Club near Boston, Harold Solomon defeated Gene Mayer in the best of three sets. Two things seem funny to me, where are all the good players and how come two out of three in a national championship?

Vitas Gerulaitis was playing Wojak Fibak at the same time, for the German championship. Vitas won, and as usual I am sure the $$$$ forced him to go to Germany instead of U.S. Championships.

Here in Stuart, Crane Creek Racquet Club held their sanctioned senior tournament. Mario Obando defeated Jack Riedenharn 6-3, 6-3 to take the 35 division. Tom Falkenburg defeated Jack Gerner 6-2, 6-0 in the 45 division. Bob Kurlander defeated Tom Falkenburg 7-5, 7-6, (7-4) in the 55 division.

Have you ever had tired feet, sore muscles, or just didn't feel too good? Brad Parks of San Clemente, Calif., unbeaten in 23 wheelchair events, has just won another. He also beats a lot of the local club players in his light weight speedy wheelchair.

Super Seniors continue to amaze spectators, families, and doctors with their great ability to rebound from injuries, operations, and heart attacks. Joe Woolley, suffered a heart attack and subsequently had a quadruple by-pass operation. His long time partner, Frank Cornell who has a handicapped arm, broke it skiing, serves and tosses the ball with the same arm, got together again and won yet another tournament.

Norman Brooks, also of California, started a new division of play. 35 year old men and women vs 18 year old boys and girls, 45's vs 16's, 55's vs 14's, and 60's vs the little 12 year olds. Last year's event was so popular, and even (10-10), that it has been renewed with even more vigor this year. From now on I am only playing you guys who can prove you're not over 14.

My license tag is TOM 108 (from Tennis) and I receive a lot of pictures of other tags around the country. FT. FALT and LOB IT are two new Calif entries.

Hey, left handers, check this out. July 17-19 Santa Rosa Shores Racquet Club in Gulf Breeze, Fla. is having the first sanctioned left handed tennis tournament. The rules, funnily enough, state that you must serve left-handed and play left handed. That must be for guys like Dr. Jim Gross nickal who has been seen to change hands occasionally.

The USTA has adopted the penalty point system. My old friend, Nick Powell, ret. AF Colonel, was the referee for the Middle Atlantic 60-65-70 Clay Court Championships last May and has the distinction of being the first person to enforce it in Seniors competition. He penalized one player 1 game for being five minutes late. Half a doubles team was 15 minutes late. They were penalized three games, and another man who failed to report to the tournament desk, even though he was on the premises, was defaulted out of the tournament.

The first Grandfather Geandson tournament will be held at the Wimbleton Racquet Club in Memphis, Tn. August 7-10. Kemmons Wilson, founder of the Holiday Inn chain will serve as chairman. Scott Oughtierson, try and get T.T. to come out of retirement, and put some fertilizer in your son's shoes so that Bill can have a partner.

Tennis lost a devoted friend in the recent death of Arthur C. Nielsen, 82 year old creator of the nielson market research and radio-TV ratings system. Art was a member of the International Lawn Tennis Hall of Fame and was twice winner of the National Father and Son Grass Court Championship (1946 and 1948) with son, Arthur Jr.

Finally, a sore spot with me. The Olympic sham. I think it was unfortunate that the President felt it necessary to impose the boycott, but unexcusable that he allow it to be shown on American TV. It has to be tearing at all the athletes that couldn't go and re hashing the pros and cons of maybe they should have just gone anyway.

Anyway, you all have a good game, heah.

Sea turtle production could be largest yet

"We could have 80,000 - 100,000 young produced this summer," said Murphy, "but only if no major storms or exceptional tides destroy the nests. Last year two storms washed out 500 nests."

Murphy and his staff monitor the beach daily and keep records on the number of nests and whether the nest is from a Loggerhead or a Green Turtle. Nesting is currently at its peak with 20 - 30 turtles nesting each night.

Sea turtles are having an exceptionally good year with 900 nests currently on the beach at Hobe Sound National Wildlife Refuge. Over 1200 nests are expected by the end of the season in September, stated Assistant Refuge Manager Michael Murphy. This could make it the largest nesting season since records were started in 1973. The 3.5 mile refuge beach is a major nesting area for Loggerhead and Green turtles.

First Fed reports big gains in total assets

Substantial gains in total assets, first mortgage loans and savings deposits were recorded by First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Fort Pierce during the past year, according to Michael J. Brown, President.

Brown said total assets on June 30 were more than $395 million, up 20.9 per cent from the June 30, 1979 figure of $327 million.

First Federal Savings and Loan of Fort Pierce remains the largest mortgage association in St. Lucie County with more than $225 million in first mortgage loans for the year ending June 30, 1980, Brown said.

During the recent months First Federal Savings of Fort Pierce has expanded its market area into Okeechobee County, and also opened its tenth facility in the South Port St. Lucie area with plans to open three more facilities in as five county market area within the next year, Brown states. "First Federal has the financial strength to continue its rapid growth and work towards as goal of becoming a major regional financial institution."

GEORGE R. GRIFFITHS

George R. Griffiths, 68, 5 Conva Lane (Spanish Lakes), Port St. Lucie, died Tuesday, July 8 at Easter Manor Nursing Home.

A native of McKeesport, Penna., he came here from Gary, Indiana 20 years ago retiring as a supervisor for U.S. Steel.

Mr. Griffiths was a member of the Port St. Lucie United Methodist Church. He belonged to Roosevelt Lodge No. 716, F.&A.M., Hobart, Indiana; to the Scottish Rites Valley of South Bend, South Bend, Indiana; to Jappa Chapter No. 38 R.A.M., Tyrus Council No. 36 R.&S.M., to the St. Louis Commandery No. 17 K.T., Port Pierce, Fla., to the Chester Ansara Temple Shrine AAONMS, Lake Worth, Fla., of which he was a charter member, to the Fraternal Order of Eagles Aerie No. 285, McKeesport, Penna., and to the Musician Guild Local 202 A.F. of M., Hammond, Indiana.

He is survived by his wife, Pauline D. Griffiths, Spanish Lakes (Port St. Lucie); two daughters, Ruth Bonnivon of Orlando and Jean Cutting of Aspen, Colorado; one son, George R. Griffiths, Jr., Sheboygan, Wisc.; five grandchildren, one great grandchild; and one sister, Elizabeth Bankey of Los Angeles, Calif.

Funeral services were held Friday, July 11 at The Port St. Lucie United Methodist Church with the Rev. Robert E. May, Pastor of Community United Methodist Church, officiating. Graveside service followed in Hillcrest Memorial Gardens with Fort Pierce Lodge No. 87 F.&A.M., officiating.

ALICE CHALMERS HANE

Alice Chalmers Hane, 78, of 5000 So. Federal Highway, Stuart, died Tuesday at St. Martin Memorial Hospital.

A native of Illinois, she had been a resident of Stuart for three months and was a former resident of Ocean Breeze Park and Mt. Prospect, Illinois.

Prior to retirement, she was a corporate secretary.

She is survived by one son, John R. Hane of Ishley, Michigan, three grandchildren, four great grandchildren, several nieces and nephews including Mr. & Mrs. Fred Castle, Jensen Beach and Mr. & Mrs. Edwin Lowe of Stuart.

Friends who wish may contribute to the Heart Fund.

Arrangements are under the direction of the Aycock Funeral Home in Jensen Beach.

Afraid You're Going Deaf?
Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who have trouble hearing has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.
Send for this model, put it on and wear it in the privacy of your own home. While many people with a hearing loss will not receive any significant benefit from any hearing aid, this free model will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It is not a real hearing aid, and it's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.
These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 00000, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

HELP WANTED 10

LET'S BE HONEST

If you weren't looking for a new position, you wouldn't be reading this ad. If we weren't looking for personnel, this ad wouldn't be here. We are interested in talking to ambitious men and women, who feel that they are presently earning less than their potential, and who are not afraid of a little bit of hard work for their financial independence and security. To these people, our expanding multi-million dollar international fraternal benefit society offers unlimited possibilities through our prompt advance commission system. This is a dignified sales career with an excellent chance for promotion and generous fringe benefits. For interview, please call
848-4426

Bargains galore are offered at M. C. Library's sale

Martin County Library will hold its semi-annual book bazaar from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, July 25 and 26, in the Stokes Memorial Room of the library.

The majority of the books, regardless of size or cover, are only 25 cents each. There are a few exceptions. There are many cartons of books in both hard cover and paperback, with the usual categories of fiction, textbooks, history, sports, biographies, religion, literature, poetry, travel, adventure, etc.

A variety of magazines, covering all sorts of topics of interest to both men and women will be on sale for only 10 cents each. Even though they are not current issues, there are many interesting articles on various subjects.

Proceeds of the book sale will be used to benefit the library by purchasing equipment and new books.

Betty Wilkens, Children's Librarian, will have a special program of stories and puppet shows to entertain the children while their parents attend the book sale. The times for this will be, 9 to 11 a.m. aged 3 to 6 p.m. on Friday and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

The library is located at 701 East Ocean Blvd., Stuart.

Brown painting to be given at Opera Society

The drawing of Don Brown's oil painting will take place Thursday evening, July 24th at 8 p.m. at the new, air-conditioned Treasure Coast Opera Society Headquarters at 1300 Indiana Ave., Ft. Pierce.

Due to extensive remodeling of the studio and installation of air conditioning, the drawing could not take place as originally scheduled.

It is hoped that all opera lovers will take this opportunity to visit the new home of the society. It will also be an opportunity to meet some of the principal singers.

The well known artist, Don Brown, will be present to award the painting.

All opera lovers are welcome. Refreshments will be served. Those who wish to serve the opera society in some way, please call 334-8153, 461-4119, or 465-6304.

Penney's listed for DeBartolo mall

BY BOB FRYER

A Penney's department store is listed among five department stores to be located in the 975,000 square foot Treasure Coast Square shopping center at the corner of U.S. 1 and Commercial Street in Jensen Beach.

Dr. Howard Biel, vice president of DeBartolo Corporation, told a group of about 200 local businessmen last week that the firm is shooting for an opening of the center around September 1984, with groundbreaking planned for early 1983.

Dr. Biel was the guest speaker at a coffee sponsored by the Stuart-Martin County Chamber of Commerce at the Holiday Inn Oceanside in Jensen Beach.

Dr. Biel told the businessmen that the Treasure Coast Square would be "anchored" by five major stores and said two of those five stores have already made firm commitments. He said the company's policy was not to name the major stores for its shopping centers until at least three major stores had been signed up, and added that he expected the third major store to be committed to the center by the end of the year.

However, in a brochure handed out at the meeting, Penney's is listed as one of the five major stores for Treasure Coast Square.

An attempt was made to get confirmation that the brochure is correct, but a spokeswoman at the DeBartolo headquarters in Youngstown, Ohio said Dr. Biel was the only person who could comment and added that he was out of town.

When Dr. Biel spoke last week, he said some major department stores expressing interest in locating at the center are firms well known in northern states, but relatively unknown in Florida.

The center is to be built in phases, and Dr. Biel said three department stores would be included, in the first phase, with the other two added later. In addition to the department stores, a ballboard on the site states there will be 129 other stores, as well as hotels, offices and apartments.

The firm had planned on building the huge center in the 1970s, and had begun the Development of Regional Impact review process. However, the plans were shelved when the 1974 recession hit, and Dr. Biel said last week that those original plans are now obsolete. "We will have to start the DRI process all over again," he said.

"We build functional centers, rather than architectural monuments," Dr. Biel said, and noted that, "We try to create total shopping complexes with a major regional mall and an integrated strip shopping center for convient, one-stop shopping."

Dr. Biel said the firm is sensative to the issue of growth control. You want growth, but want it controlled. A regional shopping center can give it, because without it, you get unbelievable commercial sprawl with countless strip centers.

Of the 1984 opening date, Dr. Biel said "That date comes from our talks with retailers and that's the date they're using. Anything we can do to accelerate the time, we'll do."

The firm owns about 600 acres, with 235 of them on the east side of U.S. 1, south of Commercial Street, and the balance on the west side of U.S. 1, between Britt Road and the Beau Rivage development.

The DeBartolo firm is the nation's largest builder of shopping centers. The first DeBartolo regional center built was the Palm Beach Mall in 1965. Today, the firm has 10 centers in Florida, three more under construction, and five of the 10 existing ones are undergoing expansion.

Throughout the nation, DeBartolo has 43 centers with 25 more planned during the next five years. DeBartolo owns the San Francisco 49ers, a hockey team, three thoroughbred race tracks, and hotel chains. He also owns four banks in Florida.

Dr. Biel said once the Treasure Coast Square is built, the firm will retain ownership. "We're not planning a quick in and out operation. We never sell our shopping center properties; our interest is not short-lived," he said.

Plans for a straw vote this fall, to see if area residents would support a one mill tax hike for bike paths, and purchase of an 80 acre park site, have been scraped.

But a new proposal, to accomplish the same goals, passed the first hurdle today when Martin County commissioners voted to authorize advertising for a public hearing.

The hearing, likely to be held in September, would call for a one mill tax for the paths and park. That tax would be levied through creation of a new municipal taxing unit covering the Jensen Rio area, while a similar proposal for bike paths on Hutchinson Island would call for adding a one mill tax to an existing municipal tax unit that covers the island.

The idea for the new municipal tax unit came from Jensen Beach county commissioner Frank Wacha. It is his third bike path-park site proposal in recent months.

During the first six months of the year, three bicyclists died in traffic accidents in the Jensen Rio area. In the wake of the third death there was an outcry for more bike paths.

Wacha first proposed a referendum on a bond issue to build a network of bike paths on the island and in Jensen and Rio and to buy the park site. The idea was to issue the bonds and to build the bike paths and buy the park site as soon as possible. Then over the years, the extra mill of tax would pay off the bond issue.

Wacha dropped that idea, saying that given the amount of money involved, it would be too costly to issue bonds. Instead, he proposed a straw ballot this fall to see if area residents were willing to support a one mill tax hike to pay for the paths and park site. Under that proposal, bike paths would be built and the park site purchased over a number of years, with only as much money going for those purposes as was raised per year from the one mill tax.

But Wacha decided recently to drop the straw ballot idea and attempt to achieve the same goals through creation of the new municipal tax unit. The provision for paying for the bike paths and park site is the same as under the straw vote proposal-as much money would be spent on the two items as was raised per year through a one mill tax. But instead of having a straw vote, the plan now is to have a public hearing for creation of the new taxing unit.

This way, the public can voice their ideas, and if they have questions, those questions can be answered at the hearing. With the straw ballot, they wouldn't be able to ask questions when voting, Wacha said.

Though Wacha said Monday he wasn't sure how much money a mill of tax in the Jensen, Rio, Hutchinson Island area would generate per year, he had earlier estimated it would bring in $50,000 to $80,000. County commission chairman Maggy Hurchalla said a bike path recently built in her tax district cost $8 per foot. That computes to $42,240 a mile.

In discussing the original proposal of a bond issue, Wacha envisioned the bonds would pay for a network of paths to include the following: a path from Stuart beach northward to the Jensen Causeway, a path over the causeway and down Indian River Drive to hook up with a planned Sewall's Point path which will end near Florida Institute of Technology, completion of a path along SR 707 from Stuart to the crossroads intersection, a path from Indian River Drive up Palmer Road to SR 707, and extension of a path to shopping areas on the western edge of Jensen on Commercial Street. That comes to 10.8 miles of new bike paths, and based on a cost of $42,240 a mile, it comes to a total cost of $456,192. Furthermore, based on an estimated $80,000 per year in revenue from an additional one mill of tax, it would take about seven and a half years to build the bike path network, not counting spending any money for bike path right-of-way or for the park site, which Wacha says he has no cost estimate for yet. Those figures also do not take into account any inflation factor on the cost of building bike paths or buying the park site.

The park site in question is an 80 acre tract on the south side of Commercial Street west of the Pinecrest Lakes subdivision.

Wacha said if the municipal tax unit is approved, and bike paths were to be built annually based on the one mill revenue, his priorities would be to start on the island and try to connect sidewalks between condominiums and beach access strips, from the Rio Civic Center toward Langford Park, and along Indian River Drive where easements are available, filling in the gaps as more easements are obtained. Also one of the first priorities would be to bring the path from the end of the planned Sewall's Point path north to Palmer Road and from there to the Crossroads intersection.

Sembler may lead in race for mall, but "anchors" will determine outcome

Two firms are competing to build a regional shopping mall in this area, both sides agree there is not enough of a market for two regional centers, and both sides feel theirs will be the one to be built.

Last wee, Dr. Howard Biel outlined plans for the proposed 975,000 square foot Treasure Coast Square shopping center at U.S. 1 and Commercial Street.

He said the center should be open around September, 1984. When asked if construction of the proposed 500,000 square foot Fort Pierce Mall by Mel Sembler and Associates would set back plans for the Treasure Coast Mall, Biel replied without hesitation, "They won't get ahead of us."

Biel went on to say that when Edward DeBartolo says he is going to do something, it will be done, and when the question of Sembler's mall came up a second time, he said, "I'll stand by my words."

Sembler, of course, feels differently about the matter. When he was told of Biel's comments, he replied, "That's nice. I wish him luck and I congratulate him." Then he went on to say that while the target date for opening Treasure Coast Square is 1984, the target date for opening Fort Pierce Mall is 1983.

Biel indicated groundbreaking for Treasure Coast Square will be in early 1983. Sembler says groundbreaking for Fort Pierce Mall, located along Okeechobee Road near Virginia Avenue in Fort Pierce, is late 1981.

The DeBartolo Corporation bought the 600 acre tract in the early 1970s and was in the process of having it's Development of Regional Impact (DRI) mall plans reviewed when a recession hit. Those plans were shelved, and last week when Biel was asked if they could be revived, he said, "No, those plans are now obsolete. We will have to begin the DRI process all over."

By contrast, the DRI plans for the Fort Pierce Mall have already been reviewed and approved Sam Shannon, executive director of the Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council, said a development order, giving the go-ahead for construction of Fort Pierce Mall, was issued by St. Lucie County commissioners on Oct. 2, 1979.

Shannon noted that the development order is valid for four years and that within that time, substantial construction must occur. He said groundclearing and laying foundations for the buildings would constitute substantial construction.

Though Sembler seems to have an edge over DeBartolo in the race to build a mall, there is another factor very crucial to the race- obtaining commitments from major department stores to "anchor" the malls.

Biel said two major stores were commited to Treasure Coast Square and that he expected commitment from a third by the end of the year. He declined to name the two committed firms, but a brochure on the DeBartolo mall projects names Penneys for Treasure Coast Square. Phase One of the Treasure Coast Square calls for three major stores, with two more to be added in Phase Two.

Sembler is planning four major stores to anchor his mall, with two or three in Phase One and the balance in the second phase. When asked about major stores commuted to his mall, he said he was not ready to announce them yet, but that he should be making an announcement in the latter part of this year or the first part of next year.

When told this reporter had heard rumours that Penneys might be one of his major stores, Sembler said, "I'm not confirming or denying any stores but you hear pretty good."

Sembler said his firm plans to begin construction on Martin Square Mall on U.S. 1 at Indian Avenue in Stuart within six months. That mall is to be on a 38 acre tract is to have four major stores and a total of about 40 stores. It is to contain 370,000 square feet of shopping space and is set for opening in 1981.

Our schedule calls for the one in Stuart in 1981, one in Melbourne in 1982, and the Fort Pierce Mall in 1983, and we are on schedule," he said.

Sembler later commented, that he has high respect for the DeBartolo Corporation. However he said, "We just build shopping centers. We don't go around putting up signs and changing the opening dates on them. He (DeBartolo) puts up lots of signs and says they are coming (shopping centers). Some do come and some don't."

When asked if there would be enough of a market to support both the Fort Pierce Mall and Treasure Coast Square, Sembler said, "Not in 1984. Maybe later if there is enough growth in Martin County to warrant it, but not in 1984."

First Federal of Martin goes after National Championship

First Federal of Martin County is hoping to turn its recent state championship victory into a national championship win this weekend.

Thanks to generous donations from a number of local citizens and businesses, enough money has been raised to send the team to Tifton, Ga. this week to compete in the national series.

Though coach Frank Hughes said Monday, "I just hope we can make it into the top 10, past performances by the team indicate they just might have a shot of going all the way. In an earlier series of games, the Martin County 16-18 year old slow-pitch softball team defeated the state champs from Alabama, Tennessee and South Carolina.

Hughes says he expects there will be anywhere from 25 to 40 teams competing in the double-elimination series in Tifton.

The local team leaves for Tifton Wednesday morning and the games begin Thursday night. The final games will be played on Sunday.

In the recent state tourney in Winter Haven, the Martin County team beat Starke, state champs for the past two years, then came from behind to whip Satellite Beach for the Florida crown. "The Starke team we beat this year was every bit as good as their team last year, and they came in seventh place in the national championship then," Hughes said.

The team is travelling to Tifton in a bus from the Jensen Beach campus of Florida Institute of Technology, with the Martin County Commission chipping in $450 to pay for the drive and gas.

Results of the local team's play in the national championship games will be carried in next week's issue of The Mirror.

Jaycees barbeque for muscular dystrophy

Tickets went on sale this week at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce for the second annual Stuart Jensen Beach Jaycees Muscular Distrophy Chicken Barbecue set for Sunday, Aug. 17.

The benefit will be held from noon until 4 p.m. at the Tropical Farms Fire Department (Locks Road off SR 76). The menu will include: chicken, baked beans, cole slaw and potatoes. Price for adults is $3.00 and children under 12 $1.75.

The local Jaycee organization supports the M.D. project through the net proceeds from the barbecue. The Florida Jaycees and the nationwide Jaycee organization each year designates Muscular Distrophy as its priority project.

Statewide, last year most Muscular Distrophy fundraisers planned for Labor Day weekend were cancelled due to Hurricane David. Luckily, the Stuart Jensen Beach Jaycees had held their barbecue the weekend before and raised $1,000.

Kenny to chair Wheels for Life

Thomas G. Kenny III of the Sertoma Club of Martin County has been appointed chairperson for the annual "Wheels For Life" Bike-A-Thon in Stuart.

Scheduled for Oct. 18, with a rain date of Oct. 25, the "Wheels For Life" event will benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

St. Jude Hospital is devoted to medical research and treatment of children stricken with catastrophic diseases including leukemia, Hodgkins disease and other forms of cancer. The Memphis facility was founded by Danny Thomas eighteen years ago.

The Hospital is non-sectarian, interracial and completely free of charge to patients whose disease is under study and who are referred by a physician. The Hospital provides transportation and lodging for the child and parent.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is the largest child-oriented cancer research center in the world. Those who would like to volunteer for the Bike-A-Thon should call Kenny at 283-0983.

News from here to there:

Four of five bathhouses are completed on painting of the floor tile. Really looks like new. The palm trimming is starting the second week of August. The dats has been set. The grass cutters have cut the lawns and trimed the roadways. The Park looks good.

Jack McConnell and Al Wright are gaining in the reputation as the fishermen of H Out...on Tuesday & Thursday they go out. The last week's catch of trout were good. The largest was 28 inches long & weighed in at 7 lbs., the rest were about 4 lbs. average.

Many cards & letters have been received this last week. So you will know what your friends are doing while up in the North country.

"Tuck" Schnarre was hospitalized at the University of Alabama Hospital, having open heart surgery. He is improving nicely and we all at H.Out are wishing him well. Those who want to send cards, to cheer Tuck send to 4823 Glen Mar Circle, Chattanooga, Tenn. 37416.

Jerry Titherington's Mother passed away last week in Mass. Evelyn and Jerry had gone up in the winter for her 85th Birthday.

Ruth Bowes visited "Betty" and Mac O'Donnell in their lovely new home in Pinelake Village. It is light, spacious and homey. We all at H.Out wish both "Betty" and Mac much happiness.

Bert and C. J. Ouellette are enjoying Cape Cod with their grandchildren, also enjoying those delicious lobsters.

Alice Perreault reports Ashburnham, Mass. has had some very changeable weather which she is enjoying in spite of it..

Beryle Roy wrote while a tornado was going on in Yale, Mich. And her writing was a little shaky. Yale was lucky, but a short distance away didn't fare as well.

Millie & Chuck Armock love the fresh strawberries and fresh vegets bles they planted when they arrived home in Mich. All that hard work is paying off.

Catty & Lester Ullmann left New York after a nice visit with their niece & family. A card from Lanesboro, Mass. showed them visiting the Roy Lamons. Hops to hear from Cape Cod next.

Ethel & Bob Shilhorn drove to Sebastian Inlet with the Al Rays on last Thursday. Enjoyed a delicious picnic lunch and a good swim in the ocean up there. But was disappointed in the claming tho. they were lucky to have 6 clams.

Art & Betty Nagy, and Mother Allison spent a week of their vacation in the Park. They had a nice visit with friends from Lauderdale. Lisa Spencer entertained all showing some wonderful snapshots she had taken while in Rome and Switzerland. Lisa graduated from high school in Ft. Lauderdale, but will attend Chicago's Northwestern College. Art took Lisa to see the turtles lay eggs one night with Peg Ray but none would come in while they were there.

Bob Long is semi-convalescing for 45 days. Bob had an accident while working, a big door closed on his hand, he received a broken second and third finger on right hand. At first it was believed he only bruised his hand, it was badly swollen. But he finally had to have a cast put on. Now Gert has to take good care of Bob, with only one hand, one can't do much.

Al & Peg Ray enjoyed a weekend visit with their oldest granddaughter Robin and Robin's girl friend Kim Lane. They drove up in Kim's truck so they could bring their bikes. The five mile bike ride around the Park tired them out so they went to bed and missed the turtle watch.

Anniversaries Congratulations—Pat & Dean Bennet, Mildred & Chuck Armock 8-7.

Happy Birthday Wishes— Tim Patrick Stratford, Marguerite Newmann 8-1, Chrissy Stratford 8-3, Nancy Lontz, Geo Doerffel, Richard Scarpulla, Bob & Mildren Griffen 8-4, Trish Hare 8-5, "Vince" Stratford Sr. 8-6, Marie Vallery, 8-7.

EXCHANGING MADE EASY

QUESTION: I have recently heard of the tax technique whereby an investor can exchange his investment property for another and legally avoid the payment of a capital gains tax. I own an apartment building. My problem is that I don't know where to find properties to exchange mine for. How do you go about doing this?"

ANSWER: The use of a tax deferred exchange will allow you to exchange your apartment building for another, or for that matter, for any type of real estate investment of equal of greater value. If the exchange is properly structured, you can avoid paying a capital gains tax on that transaction.

In the field of exchanging the premise is that any property available for sale is also available for exchange. Most tax-deferred exchanges are accomplished by way of a "two-way exchange with a cash out".

To do an exchange, you should take the following steps:

(1) Have your investment broker find a purchaser for your property at an acceptable price level. Then make your acceptance subject to your finding another property.

(2) After you have found a purchaser for your property and established your equity, go into the market like any cash buyer.

(3) Find an appropriate larger property and agree to exchange your building for the larger property. In a simultaneous transaction, the owner of the larger property agrees to sell your property to the party who has agreed to purchase it.

By means of this kind of transaction, you can obtain a larger property and legally avoid the payment of the gains tax. The owner of the larger property can conclude a sale that is satisfactory to him. Finally, the purchaser of your property can obtain a property which might not be available were it not for this device.

If you would like assistance in structuring an exchange transaction, I would be happy to help.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-6747, or stop in.

Roode attends banking school

Jennette L. Roode, operations officer, Jensen Beach Bank, leaves Sunday Aug 17, for Gainesville for a week of study in the Florida Bankers Association Florida School of Banking at the University of Florida.

The three-year school is designed to provide bank personnel at the supervisory and officer level with the opportunity for increasing their knowledge about the banking industry and the economy.

The first-year course of the school will offer lectures in money and financial institutions, bank accounting systems, personnel management, and data processing. The second-year course will be devoted to the Federal Reserve System, investments, and credit policy. The third-year offers courses in credit policy and liability management, and concludes the three-year curriculum with a bank management computer game. The full schedule calls for daily classes and evening "prep" sessions, concluding with the final examination on Saturday, Aug 23.

ARTISTS Ruth Bowman and Ellen Ellis pose with two of the owner-managers of the new Artist's Registry on Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach, Mrs. Charlotte Mikuska and Mrs. Virginia Ray, on the occasion of their Grand Opening July 25th.

Artist showcase opens in Jensen

An unique art gallery has opened in Jensen Beach. Rayben-Close Artists' Registry held its open house last week, with a wide range of art for sale and services for rent.

The gallery is the brainchild of three local women: Charlotte Mikuska, Judy Brinsley and Virginia Ray.

The ladies wanted to offer a showcase for all local artists, and a referral service for all sorts of art needs, from sculptured wood and stained glass windows to poodle portraits.

Artists registered with the firm are available to do free lance commercial work for local businesses or private parties.

The firm also plans to offer advertising, public relations and promotional services to small businesses in the area.

Women's club to meet Monday

The Jensen Beach Women's Association will have its monthly meeting at 1:00 p.m. Monday Aug 6, at the club house on Sugar Hill Road. Dessert card party will follow with door and table prizes.

The public is invited. For more information and reservations call Edna Schwartz, 334-5480. The next dessert card party will be held Aug. 11.

Our open door policy starts here.

It starts with Bonny Turner, manager of our Hutchinson Island office. Her door is always open. If you need help with your banking, come in and talk to her. Or Dave Skiles. Or John O'Neill. Or Charlie Paul. As Stuart National managers, their doors are always open, too.

With five full-service offices all over town, and more coming, no matter where you are, you're near Stuart National. When you bank at one office, you can bank at all. And, you spend less time and use less gas getting there. That's important, with today's skyrocketing gas prices.

People like Bonny Turner make our open door policy work. Like all our managers, she's there when you need her, treating you as a friend and neighbor as well as a customer.

So come to Stuart National. Our doors are open all over town.

YMCA organizers to launch first program in October

Though it may be awhile before the group has a permanent home, officials forming a Martin County YMCA chapter hope to start Y programs in October.

Richard Geisinger of Stuart, who worked for 20 years with the YMCA in Broward County, said, in a press conference last week that organizers of the Martin County chapter are planning a $80,000 budget for the first year of operation.

Geisinger said response to the idea of forming a YMCA chapter here has been very good so far, with many local men and women coming forward to help organize the chapter.

With Geisinger at the conference was Harold Mansfield, director of the Broward YMCA. He pledged to lend support in getting the local YMCA off the ground and said the local Y could offer a wide variety of programs. "It's all up to what the community wants," he said.

Mansfield said the first program planned here would be the Indian Guide program, designed to develop closer ties between fathers and their children and to instill children with a sense of discipline.

He said the local Y "could be in full blossom in five years," if there is sufficient community support.

In the first year, officials hope to raise $25,000 through membership and $40,000 through support from local citizens. Already, $10,000 has been pledged.

By January, the chapter hopes to have a full-time professional director.

As for land and a building, Geisinger and Mansfield said those will be obtained as soon as financially possible. Geisinger said there are tax breaks to be had for donating land to the Y and he said even if the land donated is not in a central location for the Y, the donated land could be sold by the Y for purchase of a more convenient tract. "There are ways to donate the land without it costing the donor much, if anything at all, and I'd be glad to help explain it to anyone," Geisinger said.

He noted that the Y would most likely start with a central headquarters in Stuart, then branch out where needed. A 15 to 20 acre tract is what the Y organizers are hoping for.

The building envisioned would be a multi-purpose one, large enough for meetings and, perhaps use as basketball courts. It could function as a teen center, day-care center, or for most any other program the citizens want.

Mansfield said the thrust of the Y is to involve young people, and he said the Y "chooses to deal with problems rather than wish they'd go away."

He said the Y is no longer just for men and boys, but for women and girls too and that there are no restrictions as to race or religion. When asked about the C in YMCA, he said that rather than pushing a religious viewpoint on people, the Y tried to stress the Golden Rule.

Samaritans Calling

BY NELLIE D. COOK

Since last calling on all our friends out there in the Jensen Area — a number of things have happened, and changes have taken place.

Subsequent to the Resignation of president Bailey on July 2, at our regular monthly meeting, vice president George Krauss moved up and is now president Krauss. His move left a vacancy which has been filled by the appointment of Barbara Stevens, now vice president.

The resignation of Bob & Vivian Heaslip, a director and also day supervisor has been filled with Jim Swindlehurst being appointed a director and Barbara Stevens accepting the office of day supervisor.

Now with vacation time some of our regulars are also away, so, it has made days pretty tight for help. But so far we are hanging in there, and help is on the way.

Samaritans Open House

Although the evening of July 16 was not the best yet otherwise, we had a gratifying turnout of interested persons, and it is the intention of the squad members to have another evening get together on Aug. 13 at 7 p.m. At that time further discussions will be held regarding the organizing of an Auxiliary, and also pinpointing jobs which can be handled by the Auxiliary members, such as running errands, learning to be helpful in the rigs by taking the standard first aid and CPR classes and getting qualified to ride on the rigs as third person.

There will also be a need for persons to answer the phone and relay messages to the proper persons, such as those inquiring about sick room articles, having their blood pressure taken and all kinds of inquiries.

Classes in standard First Aid are to be given by our president George Krauss beginning August 7 and continuing each Tuesday and Thursday evening from 7 to 9:30 p.m. till Sept. 2. No charge for taking the class only for the text book which sells for less than $2.

Defensive Courses Now Available

At the Roschman Sight on U.S. 1, south of Stuart, Defensive Classes are available, the following dates: Tuesdays August 19 and 26, from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. and Thursdays, August 21 and 28, 6 p.m. to 10 p.m.

At 133 A North 4th Street, Fort Pierce, classes are available Tuesday August 5, from 6 to 10 p.m. and classes are available Wednesday August 6, from 6 to 10 p.m.

Also, classes will be available at the same location on Saturdays, August 16 and 23 at noon.

Anyone wishing to take either the standard First Aid or Defensive Driving need not be a member of the Samaritans. The classes are open to anyone wishing to attend.

Felton enters race for property appraiser job

Joan Felton of Jupiter announced her candidacy last week for the office of Martin County Property Appraiser.

Felton and her husband, Bill, have one son, Andy, who attends Murray Middle School. They make their home in south Martin County in Jupiter.

Before moving to Florida, she served three years on the Governor's Staff in Maryland for the Secretary of State, Fred L. Wineland, and gained experience in the Maryland Legislature.

Felton moved to Jupiter in 1974 and graduated with honors from Miami-Dade Community College, a member of Phi Lambda Pi National Honor Society. She will also be receiving her Bachelor's Degree in Business Management from Barry College this year and has successfully completed college courses in Real Estate Principles, Real Estate law, Real Estate finance and Real Estate appraisal. She is a member of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers having successfully completed their Real Estate Appraisal Course I in 1978. She is also a member of the International Association of Assessing Officers and has completed their Real Estate Appraisal Course II.

Felton has five years of real estate experience. She began her career as a secretary. Upon earning her real estate license, she worked as a sales woman for Bay Harbor Real Estate in Jupiter. During this time she acquired experience appraising the market value of homes for the purpose of re-sale and was an active member of the Jupiter-Tequesta Hobe Sound Board of Realtors.

For the past year, Felton has been employed as a field appraiser with the Martin County Property Appraisers Office, appraising residential real estate. Her experience with the Property Appraisers Office has made her very familiar with the day to day operation of that office, she says. She tended her resignation from her position in June.

Felton said, "I'm aware of the problems of challenging an incumbent but feel strongly that based upon my qualifications, I am equal to that challenge and can perform the job to the credit of the voters of Martin County."

Next week, in part four of this series, join the Mirror for a moonlit ride through streets near St. Lucie, with a deputy from the St. Lucie County Sheriff's Department. Night shift law enforcers conduct mid-night patrols in order to guard that day and night people alike are protected after sundown.

SHADOWY CORRIDOR—The corridors of Martin Memorial Hospital dim in the evening hours, but the hospital is still alive with the activity of night shift nurses and restless patients who stroll out for midnight visits to the nurses' stations. (Photo by Michelle Naspinski)

Martin Memorial...

A nurses' world at night

Third in a Series

It is daytime. Midafternoon. And Martin Memorial Hospital is alive with the white coat-tailed flapping of doctors making their rounds, the philanthropic bustling of "pink ladies" dispersing flowers and smiles, the restless chattering of patients who are tired of being confined to bed.

But unlike neighboring Stuart structures that harbor equal concentrations of activity during the daylight hours, Martin Memorial does not fold into a sound state of rest at nightfall.

The familiar red neon Emergency sign on East Ocean Blvd. attests, through the inkiest hours of the night, that the hospital is awake.

It is nighttime. The earliest hours of the morning. And the antiseptic corridors of Martin Memorial gratefully dim with the yellow glow of fluorescent lighting.

The serpentine passages of the hospital's deepest interiors are a vacuum. Soundless. Save for the never-ending drone of machinery, charged with monitoring the life signs of patients while they sleep.

Thump, thump, thump. Somewhere on the floor a guarded heart is beating.

Especially evident is the ironic absence of doctors, those men in white often thought to be umbilically attached to hospitals. But they are not to be found.

In their stead, is a troop of health care professionals who reap far less of the glamour and financial rewards than their medical school graduated counterparts, but assume many doctor-related responsibilities at night.

The hospital is a nurse's world during the night shift, and through the efforts of these dedicated health care guardians, dependent patients can enjoy a good night's sleep.

"Night people in a hospital have a closer bond than any other shift," commented nurse Andy Knepper, "the only doctor around is in the emergency room so it is really a nurses' world."

The added responsibility of being required to make life and death decisions that are usually reserved for doctors draws the nurses of the night shift even closer. Through their combined experience and judgement, the decisions are made and the team, rather than any individual, deals with the consequences.

For nurses on this shift, the hours spent on the floor seem inordinately long, but not so long as they do for patients.

"Pain is more prevalent at night; more medication is often necessary," noted night shift nurse Elvira Adams, "for patients the nights seem so long, the pain so much worse."

It is not unusual, therefore, to find hospital gown-clad patients taking a coffee and conversation break at the various nurses' stations, during the longest of the mid-night hours.

Patients seem able to talk more freely at night, and we have more time to give them," commented nurse Valorie Miller, "some older patients who can be very good during the day become frightened of the dark.

"There are more problems in the middle of the night and fewer people to cope with them," she explained.

But night nurses are accustomed to handling unusual problems and situations, and the majority of those interviewed strenuously maintained that they operate the graveyard shift by choice.

"You can always spot a day person working nights — they are very lethargic," explained nurse Virginia Green. "I'm a night person, and always have been, but living in the world of day people is not easy."

The night nurse explained that nine-to-fivers have little respect for the lifestyle of night shift workers. She said that nocturnal nurses are "a different breed" — one that is very rarely understood by day people.

"I'll get telephone calls in the middle of the afternoon and people wonder what I'm doing sleeping," Green lamented, "sometimes I'm tempted to call friends at the same hours of the night and see how they like it."

While the pace is usually slower and the confusion somewhat diminished during the night shift, night nurses must still be alert for the nocturnal oddities of patients suddenly deciding to check out or visitors sneaking in.

"We were sitting here one night when a guy in blue jeans got on the elevator and went down," recalled nurse Nancy Carangelo. "It turned out the man worked during visiting hours and regularly sneaked in through emergency to visit his wife, who was a patient."

The nurses also reported instances of chasing homesick patients through the hospital corridors, and once as far as the parking lot, in order to return them to their rooms.

No, as the nurses tell it, Martin Memorial does not sleep at night. As in the daytime, the hospital radiates with the energy of it's occupants. But at night, the life signs are more subtle.

Thump, thump, thump. Somewhere a guarded heart is beating.

Or perhaps it is just the throbbing life sound of the hospital itself.

The meaning of business news

"Pan American World Airways reported a loss of $66.3 million, or 93 cents a share, during the second quarter, a loss that comes atop a $74.9 million setback reported during the first quarter...bringing closer to reality the employee layoffs that last week were characterized as 'a probability' by company officials."

"Increasing domestic oil and gas prices and higher profits on petroleum inventories overseas increased second-quarter earnings at Mobil Corp. by 64.6 per cent from 1979 levels to $688 million..."

"The dollar slipped against most major European currencies in trading at home and abroad Thursday, while the price of gold rose $11 an ounce in London and $8 in New York and Zurich trading."

"State tourism officials...got the unwelcome news Thursday that spring auto traffic into Florida slipped three percent below last year's levels."

"Rising U.S. and Canadian oil and gas prices also helped No. 5 Gulf Oil Corp. record a 27.1 percent rise in operating profits to $370 million..."

"The decline of the prime lending rate to its lowest level in twenty months failed to ignite the stock market Thursday as prices sagged in active trading."

"Other oil companies reporting higher profits included No. 9 Conoco Inc. up to 15.7 per cent to $249.6 million; No. 10 Tenneco Inc. up 21.6 per cent to $186 million; and No. 11 Sun Co. Inc. up 48.1 per cent to $247 million."

"Nissan Motor Co. will establish a U.S. subsidiary to build a Datsun pickup truck factory in the U.S."

"General Motors Corp. and American Motors Corp. Thursday reported suffering record losses in a severely depressed second quarter that looms as the worst in U.S. auto industry history...The figure compared with (GM) profits of $1.2 billion in the second quarter of last year."

The above quotes from various news stories in last Thursday's Miami Herald create more questions than information when they are placed together.

If there is an oil glut, why are prices still so high?

Why are the oil company profits again and again reaching record levels, while the users of their products (like Pan-Am) are losing their shirts due, according to the article, partially to "high fuel costs."

Why is it that the Japanese severely limit imports of American goods into their country with restrictive tariffs? And, conversely, why is it that the American government allows dumping of everything from computers and television sets to autos into the American market?

Why is it that the Japanese autos seem to achieve such popular support from the American people? If that support is for a smaller auto with reliability, why is it that American Motors is suffering "major losses?"

The most important question arising from all this is, "Whatever happened to the old American know-how that made the United States great?"

Take me out to the...

I was the first to arrive at Langford Park, a full fifteen minutes before we were supposed to be there. Fran came with me. At 5:30, Peggy drove up. Our girl's softball team was starting.

It was 5:35 when Michelle arrived, radio blaring in her car, bringing Mary B. and Cathie and a six-pack of beer.

"This will be a serious softball team. We are in training," I complained, but no one listened and they opened their bottles of Lite. I shrugged and opened mine.

"Where is Don Wilkie?" they asked.

"I don't know. He was supposed to bring the bats and balls and bases at 5:30," I reported.

A sheriff's patrol car pulled into the parking area.

"Oh, migawd, it's against the law to drink beer in the park," I cried. "Put the bottles away! Hide them!"

"Wait until he leaves," said Bob Fryer, who had just came up with his beer in hand.

The deputy didn't leave. Then another patrol car drove in...and then another.

"They are going to arrest us all," Mary said.

I set my beer in the paper bag.

Another patrol car drove in. The sheriff's department team took the field for a game.

"Quick, get out on the field," I said. We moved to the farthest ball field.

Bob Fryer held the softball bat.

"We haven't got a ball," one said, so I told Michelle to walk over to the second field and borrow a ball until Don showed up.

Once we had the ball we began fielding practice. Girls don't play ball too well, except for Fran and Cathy, who are good in most sports.

About that time, Don came ambling up with a ball bag filled with bases, bats and balls.

We had hitting practice. Mary B., Cathie Fran and Cathy could hit the ball fairly well. Don instructed the girls on hitting. Michelle looked like she would slam the ball over the fence, even when she missed it.

"We have a long way to go," I said to Don. He grimaced as he ducked back from a swinging bat.

Fryer stayed in the outfield to chase down some of the balls that went through and around the girls.

By 6:45 the team was wearing down. There were some awfully sore hands. After all, there was only one glove on the team. I had tried the thrift shop, but all they had were golf clubs.

Their spirits were high, and they were singing "Take me out to the ball game..."

"Let's celebrate. Let's go to the Rio Bar and Grill...that's about the only place we can go looking like this," said Mary B. I rode to the bar in Michelle's car, with the windows open and one million decibels of Jimmy Buffet banging at my ears.

We set up a round of beers, and the girls again began trying to name the team. The Mirrorettes was nixed as sexist. The Reflections was corney. The Mirror Typos, The Mirror Mistakes, The Mirror Mermaids.

What color will the uniforms be? What kind of hats will we wear.

"How about learning to play ball first?" I asked.

Wilkie stabbed me in the back with "I think a uniform will help them learn and play better."

There was Peg Meissner, and her husband, Fred, sipping and laughing over Peg's injured hand.

"We're going out for dinner," Peg said. "It's our anniversary."

We sang "Happy Anniversary to You" and I got a ride home with my equipment manager, Jean Morgan.

The next day, Peg's hand was purple and swollen. Michelle couldn't lift a glass in her hand. Every girl had a sore arm.

Our team has begun. I feel like Billy Martin.

The only way is up.

Bob Fryer

Repackage the Ayatollah

The Shah of Iran is dead.

Had that happened a year ago, we may very well have never had the Iran crisis.

Had that happened shortly after the American hostages were taken, they would probably have been returned unharmed.

But recently when the Shah's health began to deteriorate, the word from Iran was that it didn't matter; that the hostages would still be held.

And when he died, they reiterated that statement.

What seems to have happened is that somewhere along the line, the Iranians realized the trump card they were holding, by holding the hostages, was more valuable than the return of the Shah.

Suddenly, instead of being a nation rich with oil but otherwise without great influence in the world, Iran has become a major factor in world events.

Before the hostage crisis, most Americans, given a world map with no names on it, couldn't have pointed out Iran on it. To us, Iran was just another country somewhere over there in the mid-east, with a name almost as funny as Iraq.

Now, even elementary school kids know where Iran is, who the Ayatollah Kholmeni is, and how many days the hostages have been held.

Though they'd be no match for us militarily, Iran has us backed into a corner, and that makes the rest of the nations in the world sit up and take notice.

Without the hostages, Iran would not be nearly so important, and I think they rather enjoy being in the global limelight. Or, perhaps it's a case of grabbing a tiger by the tail; once you've got it, it's too dangerous to let go.

Maybe it's neither of those reasons, but whatever it is, it seems the Iranians aren't ready to give up the hostages anytime soon.

We've tried a rescue mission, that failed and tried negotiations and threats and economic sanctions. None of them have achieved the return of the hostages.

So, maybe we should try a new tack with the Iranians. If they like the limelight, let's give it to them.

So far, they've gotter a lot of publicity as the heavies of the world, with nearly everyone condemning them for taking the hostages. All we have to do is reverse that--on the condition we get the hostages back.

We could offer them a Nobel Peace Prize. Afterall, we've had a few winners of that prize who didn't seem so deserving.

And, we could give them the 1984 Olympics. It would be a small price for Los Angeles to pay in giving it up. Besides, we could always boycott that one too, if the Iranians let all their good publicity go to their heads.

Speaking of good publicity, we could donate a Madison Avenue publicity firm to Iran, to sort of redo the image the Ayatollah. A little "repackaging" ought to make a new man out of him.

The PR guys could plant rumors that the bearded Ayatollah is really Santa Claus and that he lives in Iran because he got tired of the cold winters at the North Pole. Lots of others leave the cold for warmer climes, so why not Santa?

Sure, it would take some imagination to make over a jerk like the Ayatollah into a good guy, but I have complete faith in Madison Avenue. If they can sell men's underwear with guys dressed up as apples, grapes and bananas, and can sell detergents with fists popping out of washing machines, they could make the Ayatollah a downright saint.

The projections released by Dr. Howard Biel of Debartolo meet the requirements of a major regional mall...150,000 population in a 25-mile area by the opening of the Treasure Coast Mall in 1984.

The 25-miles would include Indian River, St. Lucie and Martin Counties, and that populations is already there, if Indian River County is included in the list.

Latest projections of the census place Martin County at 54,000 and St. Lucie at around 90,000.

Biel added that his projections for completion of the mall in time for the fall 1984 season might be moved up if the company feels it should make the move.

The project, keyed to the growth of Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie, should be a boost to local business by keeping more and more shoppers at home. That it will be in Jensen Beach will mean a lot to the growth of our area.

Even more important is the planning process. Biel said that he was leaving the area to hurry to Jacksonville to meet with the planning consultant firm on the "development of regional impact" (DRI) study that is now being made by Reynolds, Smith and Hill.

Biel stressed the need for proper planning for traffic, safety, water runoff and environmental concerns.

The first step is being taken. We are looking forward to 1984.

Ruth gets dirty hands

It's been said that genius is one-tenth talent and nine tenths hard work. If that's the case, Ruth Bowman is well on her way to genius in the field of art. She keeps four paintings going all the time, to be worked on in their various stages of drying and completion.

I was first introduced to Ruth, an attractive and lovely woman, shortly after I came to Jensen Beach. She'd been a member of the Mirror staff, and therefore a sister under the skin. Naturally, as part of my introduction to my new paper, I took a vicarious journey through back copies, and yes indeed, Ruth Bowman was very much there, with stories on everything from Martin County council to murder, and from cookery to connivery. A very good writer she was, too.

That's why I was a bit surprised, one day shortly after arriving on the scene, to find her teaching a class in oils at the Langford Park clubhouse. And even more surprised to keep running into her name as ribbon winner in competitions at the fair, up in Fort Pierce at the art gallery, over at Ocean Village, and at nearly every other art competition to be found around.

How, I asked myself, did a mundane newspaperwoman get so deeply immersed in art?

"I went over to one of Madeleine Reheiser's classes," she told me. "I was covering it for the Mirror, Madeleine told me I should join the class, but I was reluctant. I always thought of oils as just another way to get your hands dirty."

But, it seems, Ruth had had her "hands dirty" before in the field of art. When she was in high school she won a scholarship to the Woman's School of Design--an opportunity she couldn't afford to take advantage of because the family purse was too thin. She knew, however, she had artistic talent there, with stories on everything from Martin County council to murder, and from cookery to connivery. A very good writer she was, too.

"Two of my uncles were artists," she told me.

The talent lay latent for many years--of following husband Will's career in the Navy and of bringing up son Dick, who now is an architect with a Master's degree from the College of architecture at the University of Florida and working in a splendid job in Denver, Colo.

The Navy brought Will and Ruth to Jensen Beach, in a roundabout way.

They had fallen in love with Florida while he was stationed at Key West and at Tampa during the war, and like so many around here, they decided it had to become home.

"We were looking for someplace between Palm Beach and Vero Beach," she said. "Thank God we found Jensen."

When Ruth Bowman does anything, she pursues it all the way. After Madeleine Reheiser got her involved with the art class, and after she'd sold her first painting for $25, she quit the newspaper to devote full time to art.

Within two years she was invited by the schools system to become a teacher herself. She has now been teaching for seven years. Most recently she's held her classes at Jensen Beach Elementary School, but will soon move to Pine Lake Village. Her influence is being felt all over the area.

And for Ruth, its a whole new way of life.

"Nowadays, my mail, my telephone calls, everything I do is all geared to art," she said.

And why not, when one painting along can bring in as much as $400. Not a bad gear box to be shifted by.

srl srl srl

Adding to the stockpile of misbegotten adages, dear reader and sweet friend Layton Spraker helps out with another one; An artist is not without honor in his lifetime. At least that's the way it came across to him recently.

Layton, whose home is up in Philadelphia where Ruth Bowman hails from, has painted more miles of canvas in his 92 years than I have walked in the past five, and he is pardonably proud of most of them. But each canvas is a baby, to be nurtured and kept track of, no matter into whose hands it falls.

One of them had been giving him unease for several years. It was a scene from the battlefields of World War I, in which he fought so valiantly. Layton painted the large picture and presented it to the high school principal in Wellsboro, Pa., for hanging in the school offices.

The next time he visited the school, principals had changed, and the picture was nowhere in evidence. He sadly gave up his baby as lost.

Quite recently, he heard from an old Wellsboro friend with good news. She'd found the painting stashed up in the attic of an old building, among a stack of memorabilia. The town fathers, seeing it and learning who it was by, were inviting Layton to let it be hung in the gallery of the recently-opened Robinson House, museum established by the Tioga County Historical Society. It was considered important as one of the works of Wellsboro's "most prominent artists."

In being chosen, Layton is doing better than we girls did. My sisters Jeanne, Ruth Anne and myself were the three remaining Robinson relatives of the men for whom the museum was named, and we weren't even invited to the opening.

TO A HOSPITAL BOUQUET
BY SALLY LATHAM

Oh you rows and rows of roses--
Oh you dozen daffodils,
Your intent, I would suppose is
To alleviate my ills.

Oh you beauties and you cuties
With your vagrant, fragrant aura--
Oh you slaves to social duties
You are fine, you're fair, you're flora!

Though you're said to be reviving
As a thousand shots of plasma,
For your exit I'm contriving--
Pets, you aggrevate my asthma.

At best, won't be done until late December

The St. Lucie Inlet improvement project will not be completed in November.

That's the word from Mike Grundy, an engineer from the Clewiston office of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Grundy said Monday that a recent story about the project, appearing in The Mirror, was inaccurate, and that "under perfect conditions, it will at least be the end of December or early January before it is finished."

"I never said the project would be finished in November," Grundy said.

The misstatement arose the quote, Sheskin said Grundy was referring only to the portion of the project involving the construction of north and south jetties and a detached breakwater, and that after the construction firm of Wilkinson and Jenkinsed St. Petersburg finishes that work, a sub-contractor, Trans-State Dredging Company, will begin dredging the inlet.

"Wilkinson and Jenkins will be finished in November, then Trans-State takes over," Sheskin said.

The contract calls for all inlet improvement work to be finished in October, but Grundy says weather related problems have slowed work. "We're building the (north) jetty now and getting initial protection. Once that is in, it will help us finish the north jetty, even if the weather gets bad," he said, explaining that the first phase of the north jetty work calls for installation of boulders to build the jetty to about half of the width called for by the contract. he said this will be enough to calm the waters around the inlet, so final work on the north jetty can be done.

Grundy said that within the next two weeks, the first phase of work on the north jetty should be complete, and that before November, final work on the north jetty and installation of a detached breakwater on the south side of the inlet should be finished. "I just told the contractor to put in more equipment to take advantage of the good weather we've been having," Grundy said.

The Corps engineer said that if weather does turn too sour to work on the north jetty and breakwater, the contractor can still work on the south

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

A LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT.

Congressmen, Senators and All American people it is time we all get off our butts and start fighting for our born American rights.

Our government is saddling us with burdens that we, our children and grandchildren will suffer because our government incurver it's more beneficial to help foreigners than our American people.

We as a country are stronger than any other country. If only the government would help our industries with low interest loans they could employ more people and produce more American made products for our use and shipping to other countries. The government is lending Miami (70,000,000) seventy million dollars. Why didn't the government help the American minorities in Miami before they had to riot and cause all the destruction in order to bring attention to their needs?

We're allowing the Cuban and Haitian immigrants to over run our beautiful Miami and Miami Beach.

Our government is supplying housing, food, clothing, medications and hospital care, even money to help them get a start. They have the nerve to complain. They don't like the waits in long lines and delays they are experiencing. We have to wait for anything we need and we're paying our own way.

I believe any person that doesn't have a sponsor to provide his housing and food should be put on a boat and shipped to his own country. When and, if they do come back into our country they should obey the immigration laws. Our grandparents and great grandparents had to obey all laws and wait patiently to enter this country.

The government has his hand in our pockets and spends our money as if it was his own. The money is ours. The government is elected by the people to work for the people. We have a right to say what should be done with our money.

First: Help our children. Give them cleaner air to breathe, purer water to drink better schools, better medical care than their parents could afford to pay for. We want our children to grow strong and healthy, to be able to run our country and protect our people as we grow older.

Second: Our Senior Citizens. Their Social Security is constantly being threatened, their medical bills run sky high between their medical, hospital, medicaid and medicare they still have to make additional payments to hospitals and doctors. God help them if they have a crisis. They have to sell their homes to pay their bills. Then where do they go? Look in Miami Beach and see if that could be your future. Our people wander the streets while hoodlums rob them and beat them every chance they get.

I believe that any American Senior Citizen that has a limited income, lived and worked in this country for (35 thirty five years and (65) sixty five years old should be exempt from all taxes.

The U.S. Treasury Department is asking Congress to pass a law requiring that 15 percent of the interest you earn on your savings account be withheld and sent to the government before you ever see it. What will that do to the little savings you have in the bank for your old age. We already paid taxes on the money we have in the bank. Do we have to be burdens on our children? We're too proud for that. We want to be independent and live on what we earned. Senior Citizens, stand up and be heard

Our Veterans: What happened to all the promises the government made you during the 2nd World War? The bonus extra monies for overseas duty? The Cubans and Haitians are getting more than you'll ever get. It's all tax free. How about it - don't you have something coming to you? Will we send all our young men to war again for a lot of promises? What happened to the war to end all wars?

This is our Country. Let's keep it ours. We love it and will fight for it. We are not bilingual we speak English, to live here you do it our way. If you don't like it go back to where you came from. Government, take heed hear the cry of your people before we all start rioting and burning. We had enough promises. Whoever the new President is better start taking care of our Country. Make us strong and proud again. We'll be happy to follow you as you lead us back to a strong and powerful AMERICA.

HOPE FOR HEALTH

Keys to Good Health Naturally

By Dr. Jack L. Webb

One of the most common distressing statistics regarding the health of our citizens is that 8 out of 10 of them will sometime be struck down by low back pain. This is a startling figure. It is extremely depressing when you realize that so much of the pain and suffering could be avoided by precautionary spinal check-ups and a program of regular preventive health maintenance.

In many cases at the Webb Clinic, patients acknowledge the presence of symptoms prior to a debilitating back problem that caused them to miss work or disrupt a planned vacation due to distress in the back, neck, joint or muscles. The best manner of avoiding emergencies which cost the patient a loss of money and pleasure, is to consult a Chiropractor before the trouble begins.

It is prudent to know the person who will care for your condition. He will have necessary facts to guide him, whether this is an attorney, clergyman or member of a health discipline.

Emergencies are costly, time consuming and most frequently deal only with presenting symptoms rather than primary causes as opposed to preventive spinal care.

In many cases a single spinal examination would be adequate precaution to avoid a later emergency.

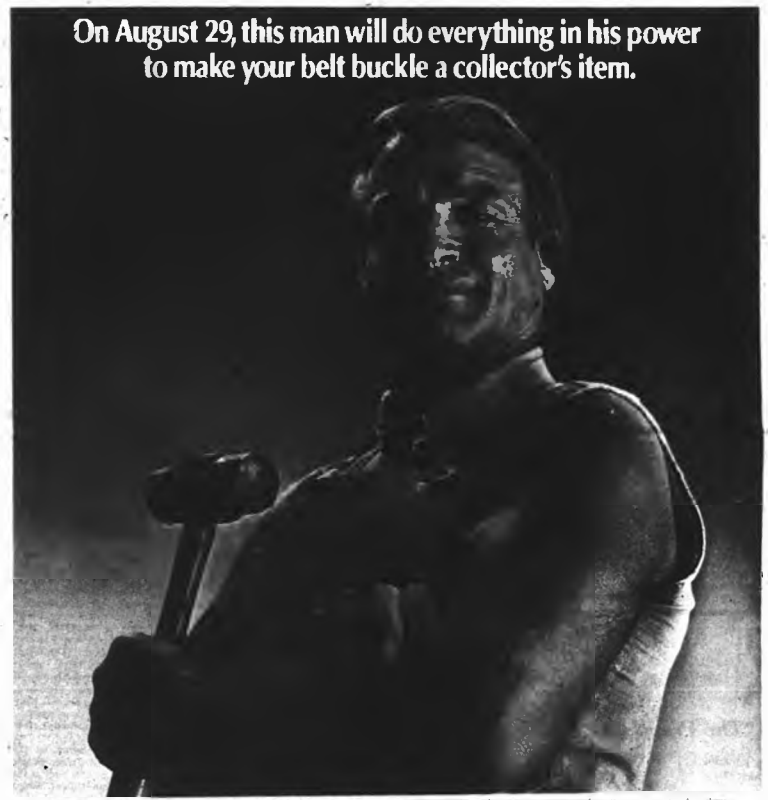
On August 29, this man will do everything in his power to make your belt buckle a collector's item.



Endless hours of painstaking craftsmanship went into the creation of the Florida Commemorative Collection.

And in a few minutes on August 29th, the entire series of molds for the Collection will be destroyed—thus assuring that no more of these hand some belt buckles will ever be produced.

With a few blows of a sledgehammer, your buckles become part of a truly limited edition. And the possibility of their increasing in value is enhanced many times over.

The Florida Commemorative Collection consists of three solid brass or bronze belt buckles depicting scenes and events of historical significance to all Floridians. From de Leon's discovery of Florida, our native alligator, and our Indian Heritage.

Originally, these buckles were to be available only through July 31. But because of the enthusiastic response to the offer, we're extending their availability through August 29th. But that's it. Our travel abuse will make sure of that. Supplies of particular designs may run out before then, so get in soon to be sure you can get the design of your choice.

All you have to do to get one is to make a qualifying deposit at any Southeast Bank. Depending on the amount you deposit, you'll receive the buckle of your choice free or at a really special price.

After making your qualifying deposit, you can buy additional buckles and three buckle display sets with a leather covered hardwood display plaque at special low prices. (See chart below for exact requirements.)

Come to a Southeast Bank and pick up the buckle of your choice now. On August 29th, you're going to own a collector's item.

Bowling program for physically handicapped

A bowling program for the physically handicapped is being organized through the cooperation of Jensen Beach and the ACE (Achievement Through Community Experience) Club.

The program is designed for those in wheelchairs and those who can not push on bowling balls, and will be in operation twice monthly starting in November on Sunday afternoons. Specially designed ramps will be available to bowlers unable to handle bowling balls. Fred Emery, program supervisor, will have able bodied volunteers to aid bowlers.

Those interested in participating in the program are urged to register soon by calling Jan Elko at 334-3020. Elko says he needs to know soon how many persons will join the program.

CAPTAIN GEORGE VAHSEN

Captain George M. Vahsen, USN, Deputy Director of Athletics at the U.S. Naval Academy, succumbed to a heart attack last week in Port St. Lucie.

He had served as Deputy Director of Athletics and Director of the Physical Education Department at the Naval Academy since October 1978.

A 1952 graduate of the Naval Academy, Captain Vahsen was born in Port Chester, New York and graduated from high school in Greenwich, Connecticut in 1945, where he was a member of the National Honor Society and Senior Class President. He enlisted in the Navy in 1945 and served in various assignments as an Aviation Electronics Mate prior to attending the Naval Academy Preparatory School in Bainbridge, Maryland in 1948.

Following graduation from the Naval Academy Captain Vahsen first served in the destroyer USS CONWAY (53-53) prior to volunteering for submarine school in New London, Connecticut. After completing submarine school in 1953 he served in numerous assignments within the submarine force including the USS TRIGGER (53-57); the Nuclear Power School (57-58); USS SHIPJACK (58-60); USS ROBERT E. LEE (60-61), and the USS THOMAS JEFFERSON (63-65). He also served on the Staff of Commander Submarine Squadron 14, in Holy Loch, Scotland (61-63). Staff, Commander, Submarine Force, U.S. Pacific Fleet, Honolulu, Hawaii (69-72), in addition to two tours of duty on the Staff of the Chief of Naval Operations, Washington, D.C. (72-73, 76-78). During the latter tour he served on Deputy Coordinator of the Trident Submarine Program. In 1973 he reported for duty as Commanding Officer of the U.S. Naval Submarine School in New London, Connecticut and served in that capacity for three years.

During his naval career Captain Vahsen was awarded numerous medals and awards including the Meritorious Service Medal for his performance while on the Staff of the Commander, Submarine Force, U.S. Pacific Fleet and two Legion of Merit awards, one for his duty while serving on the Staff of the Chief of Naval Operations and the second while Commanding Officer of the Submarine School, New London, Conn.

Captain Vahsen is survived by his wife, the former Miss Penny Fradd; 38 Upshur Road, Annapolis, Maryland, the daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. J.E. Fradd, USN (retired) of Port St. Lucie, and five children: David, Cathleen, Sharon, Steven, and James. He is also survived by his father, Charles G. Vahsen of Rainbow Lake, New York and his mother Mrs. Edith Ondayko of Bridgeport, Connecticut.

Memorial funeral services will be held at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland.

Funeral arrangements are under the direction of the Aycock Funeral Home in Jensen Beach.

EDDIE M. SCHAUBACK

Eddie M. Schaubach, Sr., 80, of Crewe, Virginia, and a former resident of Jensen Beach for many years, died earlier this month.

Schaubach was a former Crewe town councilman and retired owner of Schaubach Buick, Inc. in Crewe.

He was a native of Crewe, was president of the town's Chamber of Commerce for a term more than 30 years ago, and opened the Buick dealership, now operated by his son, in 1936.

He was one of the original organizers of radio station WSVS and served as its director from 1966 until his retirement in 1979. He was also director of Crewe Industries Corporation and Crewe Industrial Realty Corporation at the time of his death.

He was one of the oldest members of the Crewe Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Flora; one daughter, Mrs. Alice Joy Richardson of Roanoke, Va.; one son, Eddie Jr. of Crewe, one stepdaughter, Mrs. Beth Jordan of Virginia Beach, Va., one stepson, Frank Herring of Richmond, Va.; one brother, Elmer Schaubach of Crewe; one sister, Mrs. Pearl Craine of Crewe; and nine grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at Crewe Baptist Church and burial was in Crewe Cemetery. The C.J. Jennings and Son Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

RUSSELL S. WALTERS

Russell S. Walters, 76, of 1641 N.E. Maureen Court, Jensen Beach, died Saturday, July 26, at a local nursing home.

A native of Joplin, Missouri, Walters came to Jensen Beach in 1963 from Lexington, Missouri. He was a retired repair owner and operator, a member of the Emulation Lodge 255 F&AM in Clinton, Iowa, where he served as past pastor and was a 50 year member. He was also patron of the Order of Eastern Star 85 in Clinton and was a member of the Jensen Beach Christian Church.

He is survived by his wife, Irma Ruth Walters of Jensen Beach; one son, Russell S. Walters III, South Burlington, Vermont, and two grandchildren.

Memorial services will be held on Sunday, Aug. 10, at 2:30 p.m. at Jensen Beach Christian Church, with the Rev. Milton Fromme, pastor, officiating. In lieu of flowers, a memorial bequest may be made to the Jensen Area Samaritan Ambulance Fund. Hanley-Hobbs Funeral Home in Fort Pierce is in charge of arrangements.

ROBERT CROWDER

Robert Hardin Crowder, 57, died Monday afternoon in Glendale Springs, N.C. Crowder was a long-time resident of Stuart, and he and his wife, Caryl, were active in community affairs before moving north.

He was the son of the late Robert and Kate Hardin Crowder, a veteran of World War Two and a member of the Jefferson United Methodist Church.

He was formerly with the Air Force Systems Command in security and retired in that position with andrews Air Force Base. He was a retired Lt. Commander in the U.S. Navy.

Survivors include his wife, Caryl Lewis Crowder, and three sons, Robert L. Crowder, sheriff's department captain in Stuart, Gary S. Crowder, Atlantic City, N.J., and Charles Crowder, Laurel, Md.

Funeral services were conducted 9 a.m. July 30 (today) at Jefferson United Methodist Church, with burial following in Shelby, N.C. The family requests that memorials be sent to the Heart Fund.

JAY J. KENDALL

Jay J. Kendall, 55, of 3052 S.E. Hawthorne Street, Stuart, died Sunday, July 27, at the Veterans Hospital in Miami.

A native of Reading, Pennsylvania, he had been a resident of Jensen Beach for 28 years.

Mr. Kendall was employed as a glazer for Stuart Paint & Supplies for 15 years.

He was a veteran of W.W.II, a life member of V.F.W. Maurice Langbert Post No. 10068, Jensen Beach, and a member of the American Legion Post No. 126, Jensen Beach for 25 years.

Survivors include his wife, Diane Kendall, Stuart, 3 daughters, Mrs. Linda Mitchell, Newberry, Florida, Mrs. Robin Campbell, Tequesta, Florida, has mother, Mrs. Mable Kendall, Reading, Pennsylvania, 2 brothers, Louis Kendall, Reading, Pennsylvania, Warren Kendall, Jensen Beach, one sister, Nancy Kendall, Reading, Pennsylvania, and 7 step-children.

Services were conducted by the V.F.W. Post No. 10068, Jensen Beach, Tuesday, July 29, at 8:00 p.m. at the Aycock Funeral Home Chapel, Jensen Beach.

Graveside committal service will be held Wednesday, 2:00 p.m. at All Saints Cemetery, Jensen Beach.

Friends called Tuesday, 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. at the Aycock Funeral Home, Jensen Beach.

Maybe it's high time we saved our snook

BASED ON REPORTS filtering through from the C-24 Canal, rumors of gamefish being sold, and the great number of big snook taken during the spawning period from May 15 to June 15, time may be running out for Old Lunkerdom here in Florida, unless the State is successful in developing hatcheries for snook before their decline becomes too steep.

The current C-24 Canal incident involving anglers wantonly keeping eight under the legal limit of 18 inches in flagrant disregard of the law, is just one example of our cavalier attitude toward Florida's fishery resource.

The Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission has Wildlife Officers patrolling this area, but there aren't nearly enough of them to keep violators in line everywhere.

You can help! Call, toll-free, 1-800-432-2046 in West Palm Beach whenever you observe wildlife law violations in progress. like keeping under-sized snook at the C-24, or having more than four in possession. Obtain as much information as possible about the incident, including names, addresses, descriptions of individuals involved and vehicles, tag numbers, when and where it occurred.

When such a report is received at the dispatch center in West Palm, it is immediately flashed to the nearest Wildlife Officer who moves in for an investigation.

So don't just shrug your shoulders and deplore what you are observing that violates Florida's game laws, make some notes and head for the nearest telephone!

The state did much to halt rapidly depleting snook stocks when it legislated the 18-inch, four snook limit, but now it may be necessary to take one more step – a closed season on snook during their early summer spawning season.

Remember that number! It's 1-800-432-2046. Put it in your wallet right now before you forget.

WITH THE HUNTING SEASON just around the corner and the need for antlerless deer permits, you can still get information by calling the quota hunt permit section of the Division of Wildlife at either 904-488-8873 or 8574. The 16 Wildlife Management Areas involved in antlerless deer hunts are:

Avon Park, Camp Blanding, Osceola, G.U. Parker, Joe Budd, Ft. Regis, Bull Creek, Citrus, Ocala Salt Springs and Three Lakes.

The closest one is Three Lakes Wildlife Management Area off U.S. 441 just north of Kenansville where there will be archery hunts from Sept. 13-14, 20-21 and 27-28, and Oct. 4-5, 11-12. The general season is from Nov. 8 through Jan. 4. Each period had 40 permits available.

If you're a muzzleloader, they have hunts for you at Avon Park, Oct. 18-19 and 25-26; G.U. Parker, Jan. 19-25; Bull Creek, Oct. 25-26; Citrus, Dec. 6-7 and 20-21, and Ocala Salt Springs Unit, Nov. 15-16, 22-23 and 29-30.

THE NATURAL FEATURES PROGRAM of the state's Department of Natural Resources has registered eight more natural features. They are, according to Ney Landrum, director of the DNR's Natural Resources Division of Recreation and Parks:

The Blackwater River (segment) and associated uplands in Santa Rosa County; the Falling Waters sinkholes in Washington County; the Ichetucknee River in Columbia County; Devil's Millhopper in Alachua County; Gold Head Branch Ravine in Clay County; Blue Spring in Volusia County; Highlands Hammock in Highlands County; Lignumvitae Key in Monroe County.

Landrum said that the Natural Features Program was initiated to give recognition to the important and unique landscapes found throughout the state. "By recognizing these features through a registration program, we hope their preservation can be encouraged, thus establishing a living record of the natural history of Florida."

IF YOU CATCH a tagged lemon shark, don't kill it, release it. That's the word from the University of Miami engaged in a program of catching, tagging and releasing a thousand lemon sharks for a study of the role sharks play in the ecology of tropical waters. The study, conducted with the National Science Foundation and the National Parks Service, is under the direction of Dr. Samuel H. Gruber of the University's Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Science.

When you do catch and release a tagged lemon shark, Dr. Gruber asks that you give them a call (284-2211, 350-7338, 864-8161) to tell them when and where you caught it, what conditions it was in, and the tag number and colors of all the tags on the shark.

As an incentive to fishermen to report such a catch, caller's names and addresses will be recorded for a drawing to be held in December when the lucky angler will win a new Fin Nor reel and a Hurricane rod.

Sharks, Dr. Gruber points out, are well-known predators at the top of the marine food chain, but very little information is available about how many there are, how much they eat, how fast they grow, or how far they range.

At the time each fish was captured by Dr. Gruber and his associates, it received a shot of tetracycline. The tetracycline will be incorporated by the shark in its cartilaginous backbone. Because the tetracycline fluoresces under ultraviolet light, a released shark caught again after a few years have passed will have a telltale ring in the vertebrae of its backbone that will give researchers valuable clues to the shark's age and rate of growth.

A lemon shark can be readily distinguished by its yellowish-brown color, the broadly rounded snout, and the two dorsal fins of about equal size, both of which are placed rather far back on the body. It reaches a length of about 11 feet and is predominantly a shallow-water shark. It has been known to attack humans.

GIRL BASSER Fran Wade of Texarkana, Texas won the Cotton Cordell-Bass'n Gal Arkansas Invitational bass tournament on Lake Millwood near Saratoga, Arkansas with nine bass totaling 34 lbs. 3 oz. There were 143 contenders from 18 states in the all-woman event held out of the Millwood Inn and Saratoga Landing.

Next stop along the Bass'n Gal tournament trail is the Skyline Bass'n Gal Texas Invitational on Toledo Bend Reservoir, Sept. 13-15. The Texas tournament will be the last stop on the 1980 women's circuit and will determine the top 25 gals who'll fish in the Bass'n Gal Classic in October.

Women interested in fishing with Bass'n Gals should write to Bass'n Gal, P.O. Box 1686, Grand Prairie, Texas 75051.

SOME ENERGY SAVING TIPS from the United States Power Squadrons: Reduce speed – every engine, boat and correct propeller combination has a specific speed at which it operates most economically under differing sea conditions. Tailoring speed to conditions and this optimum engine speed saves fuel. Reduce weight – every pound of weight presses the boat deeper into the water and adds to the load the engine must move. Every boat's interior houses a collection of stuff the skipper decided he must "save." Pounds and pounds of it can be left shoreside, much to the relief of the engine and the fuel tank. Reduce friction – the tuned engine gets the most from every drop of petrol. Clean spark plugs, proper oil pressure, sharp timing, optimum engine heat, all make the boat go better and with less fuel. Reduce amenities – the luxuries on a boat are primarily electrical and the electricity is generated aboard that very boat. Brilliant interior lighting, refrigeration, power hungry stoves, hot water pressure systems, all use gobs of electricity. Forego what you can!

120 to attend Uniflite dealer meet August 3-6

More than 120 men and women representing marine dealerships from coast to coast in the continental U.S., industry guests and company executives will participate in the annual dealer meeting and preview of 1981 Uniflite yachts at Sandpiper Bay here, Aug. 3-6, conducted by Uniflite, Inc., fiberglass yacht manufacturer of Bellingham, WA, and Swansboro, NC.

On display for the dealers at the resort's marina will be six twin diesel-powered 1981 Uniflites: a 48 ft. Yacht Fisherman with the new 450 hp John son & Towers 6-71TI engines; a 38 foot Convertible fully rigged for sport fishing with 310 hp J & T 6-71 diesels; a 37 foot Coastal Cruiser with new interior layout featuring larger master stateroom and special writing desk area amidships, powered with Volvo 230 hp TAMD-60B engines; a 36-foot Double Cabin Sedan with 210 hp 3208 Caterpillars; a 34 foot Sport Sedan and a 28 foot Salty Dog sport fisherman, both with a pair of 124 hp Volvos.

Hotel guests and the public are welcome to view the new yachts from the dock.

Marine finance expert Thomas S. Carroll, vice president of First Pennsylvania Bank in Philadelphia, will discuss "The 1981 Financial Outlook and The Economy." Robert O. Currie of Neville & Currie Associates, management consultant of Wellesley, MA, will conduct seminars on financial management of marine dealerships and yacht salesmanship.

James J. Doud, Jr., of Bellingham, Uniflite president, will present an analysis of "The State of Uniflite and The Boating Business." Al Hill, vice president marketing, will detail new models and improvements for the '81 line. Doreen Hamann, Olympia, WA, and Barbara Davis, Elkhart, IN, decorating consultants, will present several new interior decors for the '81 line and discuss accessorizing of yachts on display for maximum appeal.

Achievement Awards for the 1980 model year will be presented to winning dealers during the closing award banquet and dinner Aug. 5.

This is the fifth consecutive annual gathering of Uniflite dealers. Prior meetings were held in Wilmington, NC, San Diego, CA, Sarasota, FL, and last year, Berkeley, CA.

Uniflite is a leading manufacturer of luxury cruisers and sport fishing yachts, 26 to 48 feet, commercial vessels and special purpose patrol boats. It is the largest supplier of fiberglass boats to the U.S. Navy and contract builder for the full line of Valiant and Esprit offshore cruising sailboats.

CHAPTER 8 590 AARP

334-9756

BY ERNIE CURWEN

Seniors are seniors no matter where you find them, and even though Sally Capt. Joe, Grumpy Pete and Lil Immogene are not up here in North Carolina there are plenty of others and WOW! are they talking. In fact there are two distinct groups: the displaced Floridians, who you meet in trailer parks, at the shuffle courts and in the markets, then there are the natives who you meet at AARP games and at the congregate meals. And, here's what they are saying.

There is no doubt about what most of the first group are saying right now. It is, "One more day of this awful heat and I'm going back to Florida to cool off." And, they can't be blamed, as often the TV weather reports show lower temperatures in Florida, than our day after day of 95 to 100. Then, others are comparing thunder storms. Martin County has its late afternoon rip snorters and so does North Carolina. But, there is a difference, rip snorters and so does North Carolina. But, there is a difference, to the normal crash boom bang, each echo seeming louder than the first, as the booming bounces off the mountains.

Many talk about how it feels to be on the other end of the stick, as they encounter a bit of resentment for crowded streets, no parking places and the increases of prices to take advantage of all the Florida dollars pouring into the economy.

The seniors of this group are complaining as usual about the food prices, saying they are quite a lot higher than Martin County, but when tied down to items, only cashe up with blueberries $1.29 per flunt here and advertised in the Mirror at '79 rents in Jensen. However, it is the consensus, that prices are really higher, not just inflation. But, one pessimistic senior remarked, "Don't worry, Florida prices will be equal to these when we get back next fall, as old inflation goes rumbling along."

These seniors do chew on national problems the same as when back home and the proposed solution to drop in car sales got a good working over. It bothered them that TV networks, in order to find out why Detroit sales were down 25 percent, were asking the $45,000 per year auto workers, the $250,000 per year labor leaders, the $1,000,000 per year company presidents and the $100,000 per year government officials, but never once asking the consumer who does make the bottom line decisions. Unanimously, they said, they'd buy Detroit even if they cost a bit more, if they had good ol' prewar USA quality. Now the first 10,000 miles are murder', one defect after the other has to be corrected, the constant smells until the car finally rusts away.

The other group of seniors couldn't have been more uninterested in the Convention. Even the possibility of Senator Jesse Helms for V.P. didn't get much comment. However, the Ford-Bush performance did get them talking about the president's job being too big for one man, at least too big for the men giving it a try in this day and age.

The North Carolina Seniors are very loyal to the area, feeling their elected officials may not be world beaters, but they sure are keeping the taxes low (and they are very low). Also, they don't seem to be taking sides in the Stevens Co. Labor Unions controversy, feeling that it will all work out for the best. Perhaps, all this complacency, is due to the fact, that all is well, when there is a good apple crop and this year it looks like a bumper, if the rains come in time.

HENDERSONVILLE AARP CHAPTER

This is an old chapter (no. 61), almost as old as National AARP. It has 500 members (Martin Co. 800) with a 20 percent turn over each year (same as Martin Co.). Also, the same as Martin County, 10 percent are active and the same 5 percent have to run the chapter. They are not active in the summer, but they do have an annual picnic in July.

The Bunts, Henry and Stel, of Stuart and the Ernie Curwens went to the picnic, Wednesday, July 16, at Holmes' State Park, 10 miles southwest of Hendersonville. A very pleasant drive on mostly mountain roads. A huge pavilion with walk-in fire place in the dense woods on a mountain slope had been reserved for the AARP Chapter from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and by 12:30, 31 AARPers had assembled for the buffet style home cooked pot-luck meal, with tea tea supplied by the chapter.

The extremely friendly group apologized for the small turnout, as they usually have 60 or more, but this extreme heat (very unusual, of course) must have kept many home by the air-conditioner. However, as there was a slight breeze and deep shade, it was the coolest spot for miles. It may be hot as 'heck' here, but they say the low humidity makes it quite bearable (50 percent highest) and there are NO PESKY BUGS at all. And, that is a fact, unless you venture unprotected into the brush for blackberries, then you be eaten alive by 'chiggers', making you look like you had the measles, and itchin' all night.

Congregate meals are similar to the Treasure Coast Senior Service Nutritious program, having about the same menus. But, there are a lot of other differences, for instance. The Dana site has 6 men to the 20 women, which is normal, but they are completely segregated for some reason. The 6 men get in a group to talk before and after the meals and eat at a separate table, while the gals' sit around their tables talking, playing games or singing gospel songs. It's a very friendly group of farmers and their wives or widows, but as it is a new group, they don't have many recreational programs, so Ernie C. once a week shows slides of travels throughout Latin America.

The AARP chapter although an old one is still very active. Helping 590 with income taxes (Tax Aide) last winter, supplying drivers for the FISH medical transportation project; collecting magazines and paperbacks for the local hospital, helping to obtain legal information on Wills and Trusts; but they don't have the 55 Alive Mature Driving program yet, so they are waiting on fall, Defensive Driving classes.

Let me know if you find this type of information on senior activities interesting, if so, there will be more next month.

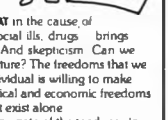
ENERGY CONSERVATION AND ENERGY RESOURCES... THE PUBLIC'S VIEW

Increasing concern about the energy crisis is evidenced in a recent opinion survey which found that 56% of the American public believes that conservation will have to be an essential element in any coherent national energy strategy. And about three out of every five Americans indicated that they have cut down on driving in response to rising gasoline prices.

This new commitment to conservation has not lessened the public's desire for new (non-oil) energy resources. People's favorable attitudes toward various forms of energy development (sunfuels, coal, nuclear, etc.) have increased dramatically during the past year.

LET'S AGREE... neither you nor we like "estimated" bills. Sometimes they are necessary when a meter is inaccessible due to a locked gate, over-zealous guard dog or what have you. Any difference in actual electricity usage is corrected on the next meter reading and is adjusted on the bill. Even-steven.

It seems that everything's going up! Ten years ago, the minerals and chemicals in the human body were worth only 98 cents. Now they're valued at $7.28.



LOOKING FOR A SCAPEGOAT in the cause of inflation, the energy crisis, social ills, drugs... brings about a sense of frustration. And skepticism. Can we handle the problems of the future? The freedoms that we cherish will survive if the individual is willing to make sacrifices. Our personal, political and economic freedoms are all intertwined and cannot exist alone.

Historian Edward Gibbon wrote of the tendency in ancient Greece to sacrifice individual freedoms so that social institutions could rule society.

In the end, Athenians wanted security more than they wanted freedom. They wanted a comfortable life and they lost it all — security, comfort and freedom. When they finally wanted not to give to society but for society to give to them... when the freedom they wished for most was freedom from responsibility... it was then Athens ceased to be free.

Let us learn from their mistakes.

Santa comes by lawnmower to post office Christmas party

Christmas in July?

That's just what members of the Jensen Beach Post Office celebrated last Sunday when they got together for a party at postal worker Pat Grove's home.

Though most folks hold Christmas parties during the weeks leading up to Christmas, that's something postal workers are deprived of each year. "The Christmas season is our busiest time of the year. We're all working 60 and 65 hour weeks during the season. So, when people around the office started talking about having a party and someone suggested we make it a Christmas party, the idea just grew," said postal worker Bobbie Hargett.

In addition to a fireplace with Christmas decorations and a huge table with traditional Christmas foods, the party even featured a visit by Santa.

In the sweltering heat, Santa came motoring up to the Grove home on a riding lawnmower.

Postal workers exchanged gag gifts and sang songs, though most of the songs were not of the Christmas carol variety.

Obviously, in Jensen Beach it's hard to have a white Christmas even on Dec. 25. A white Christmas on July 27 was out of the question. So, instead of cooling off in snow, the postal workers took to Grove's pool for a refreshing dip.

The party was a smashing success, but not the first of it's kind. Grove said several years ago the Post Office did the same thing. Judging from the fun they all had, it could turn into an annual event.

Story and photos by Bob Fryer

STRUMMIN ALONG—John Humble provided musical entertainment for the Jensen Beach Post Office Christmas in July party last Sunday, and Ann Blue was among the many who listened and enjoyed the festivities.

HO HO HO—The gang from the Jensen Beach Post Office is too busy to do much celebrating during the Christmas season, as that's the busiest time of the year for mail deliveries. So, last Sunday they decided to hold a Christmas in July party, and gathered around Pat Grove's pool for this group photo. Those standing, from the left, are: Willie McClure, Harold Salzler, Norman Hodges, Joe Roberts, Postmaster Al Kovar, John Ross, Loretta Josie, and Santa, also known as John Humble. Seated along the edge of the pool are, from the left: Jack Myers, Jackie Rhodes, Lee Sanders, Bobbie Hargett, Irene Olson, and Pat Grove. In the pool, from the left, are Lowell Sasser, Randy Blue with son Jason, and Jeanie McGregory.

CHRISTMAS IN JULY—Three-year-old Jason Blue got an unexpected visit from Santa on Sunday afternoon when he attended a Jensen Beach Post Office party in Rio. Since postal workers are busy with everyone else's mail during the Christmas season, they decided to hold a Christmas party in July. Santa arrived aboard a riding lawnmower, and instead of having a white Christmas, the postal workers had a wet one. They cooled off from the July heat by taking a dip in postal worker Pat Grove's pool.

Too weedy for whiting, better try for trout in river

BY DICK LUNDEN

THOSE WHITING and croakers are still there in the Hutchinson Island surf but the water's just too clogged with weeds for any successful fishing. There are spotted seatrout in the Indian River above the Jensen Causeway, and channel bass on the east shore above the power plant. Snook are close and most of them are under-sized (legal limit is 18 inches). Drum and sheepshead fishing at the Roosevelt Bridge is shower now. Offshore fishing is apparently being affected by cold water, just a few kings, lots of bonito, an occasional cobia, some bottom fish on the inshore reefs and some scattered sails.

Probably the best fishing would be for seatrout along the west shore of the river above the power plant and around the spoil islands north of the plant. Trout tools and sinking mirrolures are the most effective lures left been now.

There were bluefish to 4-5 lbs. in Big Mud Creek a day or two ago.

You might catch a big snook fishing the Evans Crazy (10 cent) Bridge after dark with live bait like bunker (menhaden), but watch out because almost all of every seven snook you hook will be under the limit. There was a real flurry of snook activity last week up at Fort Pierce's South Jetty when many anglers limited on bucktail jigs.

There has been some excellent snook fishing at the C-24 Canal spillway in Port St. Lucie, but most of them are less than 18 inches. Unfortunately, according to reports, anglers have been keeping all too many of those under-sized snook.

FRESHWATER FISHING should be good now for largemouth bass in the Jensen Savannas as the water recedes and the big bass settle down in the deep holes. Over at Lake Okeechobee, panfishing was good during the full moon period but has cooled off.

Ken Hodge from Calusa Lodge on the north shore of the big lake, a few miles west of the Kissimmee River Bridge on SR 78, had this to report:

"Panfishing was good on the full moon for bluegills (bream) and shellcrackers on live worms, but it's winding down now. The best bluegill fishing is south of the Monkey Box area and in Harney Pond Canal. Bass fishing has been mediocre mostly but we had a bass tournament here last weekend and the top boat had 17 lbs. of bass which wasn't too bad at all."

FROM THE LADY STUART, party boat going half days from the Sailfish Marina just east of Port Salerno on A1A below Stuart, Capt. Marlin Mondy (286-1868): "The water's green and cold and fishing'll be better when it warms up some. Bottom fishing is not too good but we're making some pretty good catches of vermillion snappers and sea bass on the inshore reefs. There are a lot of bonito, a few kings and a cobia now and then out at Six Mile Reef east of the St. Lucie Inlet. We catch them drifting with sardines or anchored with squid and cut bait. This is just normal summer time fishing. It'll be better when the weather cools and the snappers move back onto the reefs."

MURUEZ, WEIDEMAN from D&M Bait and Tackle at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S. 1 above Stuart: "It was not such an exciting weekend on the Roosevelt, not like the one before when the bridge was really jumping with excited fishermen catching sheepshead and black drum, and buying clams like there was no tomorrow. There are still some being caught, and those mangrove snappers are still along the shore west of the bridge and opposite Peters' Pier I. Some small snook are being caught here at night but they have to release most of them."

FROM THE BAIT BOX in Jensen, Chuck Shepherd: "The only hot spot I know of was the South Jetty last Wednesday morning when a lot of snook were caught on bucktails. We tried to go outside again and this time we blew a manifold right outside the SL Inlet and had to return. Conrad White went out Sunday and all they got was one bonito all day long. He said it was really slow out there. Jeff Irons caught a 7-0 (7 lb.) snook on a panfish at the little Mosquito Bridge just east of the Frank Wacha Bridge on the Jensen Causeway; Tom Moriarty, a 6-0 blue and a 3-0 mangrove snapper on cut bait, same place; Sonny Dieber, a 10-0 snook on a red tail hawk jig at the South Jetty."

JOE IANIERI from Jensen Bait and Tackle: "Trout fishing is getting better, especially up in Big Mud Creek where we've been fishing with live shrimp. Monday night, Dave Lamb, Jeff Issaci and I caught 4 trout to 6-0, 3 bines to 4-8, a 5-0 jewfish and some jacks, ladyfish and mangrove snappers fishing with live shrimp in Big Mud Creek. Tuesday night, we got 2 trout, 2 blues to 4-0 and more ladyfish and jacks, but there was a hole in our net and most of them were lost before we got back to shore. There are tarpon rolling around in the river. As we were finishing up the other night a net boat pulled in and now I don't know what's left in there. I think those net boats really hurt fishing."

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK in Jensen, Johnny Crawford: "The trout are good and a little bigger this week, Dick. The best action is on the spoil banks north of the power plant and on the grass flats north from Walton Road on the west shore. There are channel bass too and waders are catching them on plugs and touts casting in toward the west shore. The live shrimp are getting bigger now. We're getting a few snook now but not too many. Whiting and sand perch fishing in the surf has fallen off because of all that fine grass that continually fouls up the lines of fishermen. You can catch whiting if you park onto a clear spot in the surf. We're getting a few snook now. But not too many of keeper size. There are tarpon to 100 lbs. rolling in the surf, the river and Big Mud Creek. There is some good largemouth bass fishing in the deep holes in the Savannas. There are some wahoo, kings and lots of bonito and also a few sails offshore. A blue marlin was caught and released out in 125 ft. of water off the SL Inlet this week. Work on the new jetties is really coming along now."

The Nook's log: Steve Pinney, a 200 lb. blue marlin, ballyhoo, released in 125 ft. off the SL Inlet; Pete Dinelli, a 30-12 snook, live bunker (menhaden), Evans Crazy (10 cent) bridge; Gary Winner, a 26-0 snook, same place, same bait; Ross Parsons, a 5-8 trout, mirrolure, wading near FIT; Bob and Dave Mulawa, 3 trout to 10-0 and 7 snook (6 released) on plugs and nylure jigs, wading in SL and Indian Rivers; Joe Rauch, a 5-6 largemouth bass on a blue plastic worm, Spanish Lakes canal; Bill Ditzel, 18 trout, 2 days, live shrimp, river; Pete Peterson and Stan Lappinesti, 5 channel bass and 3 trout, mirrolures, west shore of river; Charlie Arens and Pat Patterson, 22 trout on tests with a tenner rig, spoil banks, north of power plant; Bob Baker and Jon Bean, 3 trout and 2 tarpon, live shrimp, Big Mud Creek; Tom Hargrave, 15 whiting and 10 sand perch, clams and sand fleas, near the Sheraton.; Howard Byers, Aaron Johnson and Marvin Marmar, a 30-0 wahoo, a 10-0 king mackerel, 4 bonito and a cuda on 100 ft. off the SL Inlet trolling strip baits.

Kathy Rinaldi wins title in tournament

Bjorn Borg and John MacEnroe aren't the only ones who stage long battles for tennis championships.

Last weekend, Kathy Rinaldi of Sewall's Point had her own see-saw battle with tennis opponent Lisa Bonder of Saline, Michigan, before emerging the winner of the National Girls 14 and under Clay Court Championships in Raleigh, North Carolina.

Rinaldi lost the first set of the match 4-6, came back for a 6-0 second set win, and had the battle of her life before taking the third set 7-5.

She held a 4-1 lead in the third set before Bonder rallied to win four games and make it 4-5. And, in the next game, Bonder was up 40-15, with three chances to claim the set and match.

"Rinaldi didn't give in though. She fought back to deuce, and before the game was over, it was knotted at deuce three more times.

"Finally, Rinaldi scored two straight points to win the game and tie the set score at five games apiece. Then she reeled off two more games to win 7-5.

At 13, she is the youngest girl to win the championship, and in doing so, she had to defeat top seeded Joni Urban of Middletown, Ohio, in a semi final match. She did so in convincing fashion, with a 6-4, 6-1 victory.

Earlier in July, Rinaldi had lost to Bonder in the National Hardcourt Championships in Oakland, Calif. in a very close match.

Last year, Rinaldi pulled a tennis first by winning a grand slam in the girls 12 and under division when she captured all four national championships.

I OUGHT STRAIN TOO if you were trying to heft a black drum (8 lbs.) that weighs nearly as much as you do on the Roosevelt Bridge. It's little Rodney Crawford, 5, of Belle Glade who had just lost a gallant battle with another drum but offered to hold up this one caught by Dad Jim. Those drum and some nice sheepshead are making fisherman's lives a bit happier these days at the Roosevelt where clams are the bait of the day on an outgoing tide.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG

Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

Golf has it, and tennis has been trying to get it for several years, a working handicap system for tennis.

At last there's a plan that has a fighting chance of solving the old riddle of how to rate tennis players accurately enough so they can meet and play opponents of equal, or near-equal ability.

It's called the National Tennis Association (NTA) which worked closely in its development with the U.S. Professional Tennis Association (USPTA) and the United States Tennis Association (USTA).

The best thing about the program is its positive approach to helping players rate themselves, or helping pros rate their club members and students. Specific guidelines have been established, ranging from a rating of 1.0 for someone just taking the game up to a 7.0 for a tournament toughened player with a USTA ranking.

In between there are 11 other categories and each clearly defines the things a player must be able to do to qualify for that category. For example, a player can't achieve a 4.0 rating until he or she has a dependable forehand and backhand, along with an ability to hit reliable lobs, overheads, approach shots and volleys as well as an ability to position oneself in doubles. Among additional skills needed for a 4.0 to move up to a 4.5 are sound footwork, an ability to move opponents up and back, which means controlling the depth of shots, and at least the first signs of mastering spins and power shots.

By defining the requirements for each category so specifically the new program goes far beyond the A B C system where tennis is generalities and often encourages players to overrate or, if they want to win some hardware, underrate themselves.

Tennis players know what they can and cannot do and, when they see the requirements laid out in black and white, they know they can't bid anyone about their abilities. If they try, the new program also has an optional provision for verification of the self-rating by the club pro, teacher or other qualified person. Obviously, players whose ratings are verified are more believable.

Another plus factor is that the program is not static. Once a player attains one rating it's easy to move up in class by learning to do the things stipulated for the higher rating. Conversely, if certain skills diminish or disappear the player will fall to a lower level of play. In that sense the program offers an incentive and also a viable means of checking abilities. A player who starts double taunting too often will soon have doubts about a 3.5 rating.

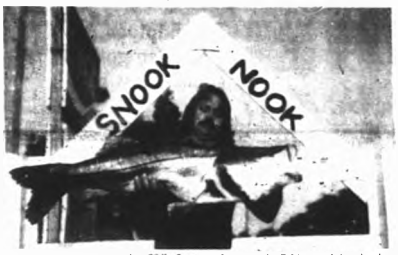
Still another attribute is that the program is easy to administer, is not taxed by any commercial sponsorship and, best of all, is free to anyone who wants to participate.

The NTA has published a pamphlet containing the requirements for all 12 categories between 1.0 and 7.0. The booklet also contains a wallet-sized identification card, with spaces for the optional verification of their self-rating which players may use when visiting another club, along with instructions on self-rating like "if you are uncertain between two categories, place yourself in the lower one."

We are putting the new National Tennis Rating Program into effect at the Plantation and the pamphlets mentioned are available in the Pro Shop.

There's nothing mandatory about signing up, but those who do are going to get a lot more enjoyment out of the game.

This coming weekend, Indian Spring tennis club in Boynton Beach, is hosting the Florida State Seniors Tournament. If you have nothing better to do, come on down and watch a lot of 5.0, 6.0, 6.5 and 7.0 old guys running around the courts in 90 plus temperatures.



GARY WINNER holds a fine 26 lb. 6 oz. snook he caught fishing with live bunker (menhaden) just north of the Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge.

Q: How do you get a $3 Rebate at Ft. Pierce Jai-Alai?

A: Have a delicious dinner at our Courtside Club Restaurant.

Chef Roy Hiatt says that each person who comes to taste his delightful dishes will get $3 deducted right from his or her dinner check. That means you're really getting a free show for the price of your dinner. And what a dinner! Lobster Fra Diavolo, Veal Oscar, Steak au Poivre – or one of Roy's daily specials, like super Prime Rib. It's an evening of total fun and excitement. Dine as you watch the games. Try a trifecta at the restaurant's private betting windows. It could be a very profitable evening. Come see for yourself. Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday from 7 pm. Reservations: 464-7500. Toll free: 800-432-6147. King's Highway, one mile north of Florida Turnpike Exit 56.

WHOPPER—Pete Dinelli of Jensen Beach caught this 30 and three-quarter pound mook last week off the Evans Crary Bridge on a live bumker, and said the day before he caught a bi'd man even bigger mook under the bridge. Though most mook are caught at night or early in the morning, Dinelli hauled this one in at 9 a.m.

Jay Pyle leads pros in Pro-Am event

BY MIKE SANDY

Stuart's Jay Pyle, head pro at the Martin Downs Crane Creek golf facility turned in an even par 72 card to waltz off with the top money award among the 10 pay for play swingers who competed in the Pro Am golf event staged on the Saints Sandpiper Golf course Friday.

A trio of aces pros tied for second with bike scores of one over par 73's including J. D. Murchison, a newcomer among the pro ranks from Stuart, Sandy Sharian, another Stuart pro, and the Sandpiper assistant pro Rob Crusse who continues to do his best on Fridays.

In addition to topping top money among the pros, Pyle also paved the way for his amateur partners in the two best ball of a foursome test when his team recorded an 18 under par tally of 126. Included on the top team were Bob Quackenbush, Realtor Doug Swanson and Bill Warner. A pair of teams finished the 18 holes deadlocked in second place with 18 under par 128. Heading the pros were J. D. Murchison and Chuck Knebels. Mariner Sands head pro with amateurs Cam Harlan, Frank Perry, Mike Douglas, Dan Smoyanek, Ray Knipe and Ernie Sandow.

Pros David Graham and Rob Crusso led their respective teams to the next money rung with like 129's with these amateurs contributing to the position Bill Meyers, Ozzie Kiekby, Tony Franza, Gary Wirth, Bill Caldwell and Jim Furst.

Sandpiper Bay Women's Golf

The Sandpiper Bay Ladies played a Rblay tournament Tuesday on the Saints golf course. It was a partnership effort in which seven(!) two players participated with each partner playing alternating holes

Taking first place with a net 71, was the team of Mary Kuhn and Alberta Crofoot, while second place produced a tie between the teams of Bea Jahn and Lee Bonne and Lands Migel and Betty" Nardone, each carding 73's. Just one stroke back at 74's were the teams of Emma Hofmeister and Hein Porteous and Marge Simmons and Marge Kennedy for third place winners.

Ginna Leyda and Mimi Lamont placed fourth with their 75's net, while fifth place was won by Jackie Fiscus and Eleanor Flanagan who carded a 77. Fay James and Marion Cole toured the course with a net 77's for sixth place and Ginny Ellsworth and Kay Scott shot 78 to take the seventh place slot. Gerry Beckman and Kay Bond scored 79's to be the eighth place winners.

Sandpiper Bay women golfers play best ball

Best Ball of each cart-foursome was the tournament played Tuesday, July 22, by the Sandpiper Bay Women's Golf Association. Seventy-one players competed on the Saints golf course.

Placing first with a net 134, was the foursome of Kay Boaz, Wanda Lundin, Bea Jahn, and Jerry Bowrosen. Just two strokes back at 136, was the team of Angie LoBrutto, Edith Huber, Ginny Hickman and Audrey Decos.

Third place found a tie between the teams of Dorina Tanner, Doris Harvey, Edna Kessler and Ernie Schwarz and Anne Thatcher, Kay LaFlair, Roz Vroman and Barbara Caldwell, each carding a net 138.

Mary Maney, Iva Dean Bouck, Irene Heimer and Fay James took fourth place with a net score of 140, while fifth place produced another tie at 143 between the teams of Cora May Lunabury, Marge McChesney, Marge Simmons, Mary Jo Bate and Joan Olivera, Doris Muller, J Farnsworth, and Carolynne Wilhelms.

Next week, the ladies will direct their efforts towards "beating the Pro" shop 286-3808 or file an entry with your own pro shop.

Entry fee for pros is $60 and $40 for amateurs, which includes cart and guest fees for Saturday and Sunday, plus guest fees for the qualifying round. A gala "eat feast" will culminate all the activity with a Bar B Que on Sunday following the golf. Amateurs who want to participate in the pro-am event only will be assessed $20. However, should an amateur qualify for the "Open" play his fee will be $40.00. Amateurs will be flighted according to their scores in the qualifying round.

Since many of the contestants will be accompanied by wives, sweethearts or friends, Martin Downs has opened the Bar B-Que to these guests for $12.

Martin Downs Pro-Am will be August 15,16,17

BY MIKE SANDY

Entries are now being accepted at the Crane Creek Golf course pro shop for the Second Annual Martin Downs Open to be played on one of the finest 18-hole championship layouts along the Treasure Coast of Florida. The tourney will be inaugurated with a Pro Am test August 15 followed by "Open play" on Aug. 16 and 17. Host pro Jay Pyle urges those who have a desire to participate to contact the Crane Creek pro shop as early as possible since there are indications that many of the leading area pros and amateurs will be among the early entrants.

Pyle added that last year's event proved popular with the contestants and all have asked to be included in the next such tourney. Those interested in competing (both amateurs and pros) can call Crane Creek pro

While the Ranker kids continue to make hay "chasing the little white ball", Lane Ranker Sr. and wife Pam find it most exciting and rewarding to follow the kids this week it'll be a trip to Kansas for Pa and Ma Ranker who will be meeting their 17 year old daughter Laurie in Kansas City. The talented All American will be competing in the U.S. Women's Amateur in Hutchinson, Kan. The following week they'll travel with Lauri to Lincoln, Neb. where she will be playing in the Trans National Women's tournament. Lauri will be one of the youngest in the field of both events.

The following week Lauri will be in competition with those her own age when she tees off in the U.S.G.A. Junior girls event at Wichita, Kan. In her most recent action, Lauri lost out on the 18th hole in a match play finals at the Western Women's Golf Assoc. Junior Tournament, losing one down to JOanne Prochillo of California. Lauri was the medalist in the stellar event and reached the finals through a field of 32 who had qualified.

Many of you readers recall the results of the First Annual "Meet and Beat the Press" day staged by the Sandpiper Bay golfers a couple weeks ago. You recall that three of the day's guests were rewarded with trophies showing the back end of a horse. The trio included Bob D'Angelo of the News, Dick Campbell, publisher of The Mirror and St. Lucie County Sheriff Lanny Norvell. At a recent meeting, officers of the association decided to stage a similar event next season and each of the three will have the opportunity of winning the front half of the horse (without a horse's laff!

See where several of our area pros took home some cash in the recent Dodger Pines Pro Am in Vero Beach. Top money went to Rodney Morrow of Melbourne, Fla with Larry Ranker taking home $400 for second place. Charley Owens of Tampa was third followed by Steve Cunningham of Port St. Lucie. Steve Opperman, fifth, followed by Jay Pyle of Stuart, Henry Scott, and a pair of Stuart stalwarts Sandy Sharian and Chuck Knebels.

Incidentally did you folks know that Sandy Sharian's dad, Herman Sharian is considered one of the top teaching pros in the nation? Story is that Daddy Herman has worked as assistant to the famed Tommy Armour for more than 35 years and spent much time with Armour when his first book "How to Play Your Best Golf All the Time" was edited and printed. More than 3 million copies of that publication have been sold. Herman Sharian who is hugging 70 is still actively engaged at a leading mid western Country Club and spends most of the winter months in Stuart and looks forward to participating in the weekly pro ams.

A couple of newcomers to the area have been busy making new friends and enjoying every minute of it. One family is that of Leo Bottari who with wife Pinky and son Richard moved into a new home on the Saints course. They were recommended to the area by Rick and Nancy Vernosa.

Leo who hails from Hoboken, N.J. and once was engaged in the insurance business working under Vernois who served as vice president of Sears All State Insurance division.

Another new arrival in the family of Frank and Audrey Welch who are temporarily quartered on Italy Street here. They hail from Providence, R.I. where Fred was a regular among the area's golfing fraternity. He was initiated into the host of fire here over the weekend subbing for Howard Hickman in a foursome which included yours truly, Vernois and Al Lorenzo.

Heard through Russ Miller that Don Lesher has been hospitalized in Lehonon, Pa with "the shingles". Wish him speedy recovery so that the gin games may resume following weekly golf. The entire Rossetti family made an invasion of Port St. Lucie recently for the christening of Andrea Rossetti, newly born daughter to Theresa of Port St. Lucie Bank and Andy of the St. Lucie County Sheriff's Department.

Reports have it that the Martin Downs Pro Am Second Annual tournament will include one of the largest fields of such event not only for its attractive features but because the course at Crane Creek is being ranked as one of the finest, most challenging layouts in South Florida. Jay Pyle and assistant Phil Campoli will be hosting the tourney and are urging entrants to sign up as early as possible.

Two of the areas ardent golfers made special trips from the North to play in the Pro Am portion of the Florida Open. Gene Burgett came down from Decatur, Ill. only to team up with Sam Zinaich and feels he was "sandbagged" as Sorry Sam missed several putts from no more than two feet away. R. C. Cook and wife Chris trekked from their Georgia home and visited with many friends while R. C., fresh from more hospitalization looked "fit as a fiddle."

Great defense, a rugged offensive line produced three Super Bowls

BY DICK LUNDIN

IT TAKES a stout defense and a powerful offensive line to win consistently in the National Football League, and the Miami Dolphins had both of those during their glory years of 1971-73.

Coach Don Shula structured the Dolphins to his liking in his first year in South Florida, 1970, when Miami surprised the AFC East by making the playoffs for the first time.

Monte Clark, offensive line coach, was head coach of the Detroit Lions, had the job of building a topflight offensive line for the Dolphins in the early Seventies and how he did the job is history.

With Wayne Moore and Norm Evans at tackles, Bob Kuechenberg and Larry Little at guards and Jim Langer at center, and Irv Goode, Doug Crusan and Ed Newman as backups, Miami's offensive line soon gained recognition as the equal of any in the NFL.

Running behind it, fullback Larry Csonka and running backs Jim Kiick and Mercury Morris piled up rushing records year after year, with Csonka battering the middle, Morris swinging wide behind the awesome Little and Kiick, the third back, running the ball inside and coming out of the backfield to catch passes on third and long.

BILL ARNSPARGER, whose association with Coach Shula goes back to 1963, was largely the architect of Miami's fabulous defense during the Super Bowl years. His 1973 Dolphins gave up just 150 points, allowed only 2,800 passing yards and five TD passes, sacked quarterbacks 45 times and shut out the hated Colts for the second and fourth straight times.

That defense looked like this: Starring do Jake Scott at free and Dick Anderson (one of the best open field tacklers in the NFL) at strong safety; Curtis Foley and Curtis Johnson (spelled by Floyd Mumphord) at cornerback; Nick Buoniconti (a ferocious roving middle linebacker); Mike Kolen, Doug Swift and Bob Matheson at the linebacking spots, in the defensive front were Bill Stanfill and Vern Den Herder, defensive ends, Manny Fernandez and Bob Heinz (backed by Vaulty Moore) defensive tackles.

AN OFFENSE has to have balance and the Dolphins had that as well with quarterback Bob Griese throwing to wide ends Jim Mandich and Marv Fleming and his wide receivers, Paul Warfield (certainly one of the NFL's all time greats), Martin Briscoe and the veteran Howard Twilley who always seemed to get open in the end zone when the chips were down. In the backfield was the veteran quarterback Earl Morrall who stepped in when Griese was hurt in 1972 and carried the Dolphins unbeaten into the Super Bowl.

The 1971-73 Dolphins not only had everything they needed to sweep to three straight division championships, two playoff victories, and two Super Bowl championships in three tries, but they were a close knit organization dedicated to the business of winning.

Still and all, despite making the playoffs for the first time in 1970 (and losing to Oakland first off), and then moving up again as the AFC Wild Card in 1971, few gave them much of a chance to defeat Coach Hank Stram's AFC West champion Chiefs out in Kansas City on Christmas Day 1971. The Chiefs came into the game with a similar 10-3-1 record but Schram's men had been there before and seemed used to swallow up the upstart Dolphins.

NEVER HAPPEN! It did take a little help from Lady Luck though to send the Dolphins back to Miami 27-24 in sudden overtime winners over the stunned Chiefs. Kansas City seemingly had the game won late in the fourth quarter when Jan Stenerud attempted a field goal from inside the 40 but he missed it and after 22:40 of sudden death overtime Garo Yepre mian kicked one from about the same spot to send South Florida into pandemonium.

Miami had to face the formidable Oilers, with whom they had split during the regular season, in the AFC title game in the Orange Bowl, and that was the start of four straight shutouts of the Colts by Miami's lightening defense. The defense shut down Johnny Unitas, and intercepted three of his passes, one returned 62 yards by Dick Anderson in a picture perfect blocking performance. Warfield caught a 75 yard TD pass from Griese and Csonka bulled over for the final touchdown.

That 21-0 win over the Colts sent Miami into its first Super Bowl, and, like their first playoff experience against Oakland after the 1970 season, this one was another lesson from battle-wise opponents. The defense-minded Dallas Cowboys were the opposition in Super Bowl VI and they held the Dolphins and their touted rushing game to 80 yards while Duane Thomas literally ran Miami's ends ragged all day long. Roger Staubach's passes posted an easy 24-3 victory, and Miami, like the aftermath of the Oakland defeat in 1970, went home to lick its wounds and make plans to be back for a measure of revenge in 1972.

WHAT A SEASON THAT WAS! Kansas City (20-10), Houston (34-18), Minnesota (16-14), New York Jets (27-17), San Diego (24-10), Buffalo (24-23), Baltimore (23-0), Buffalo (30-16), New England (52-0), New York Jets (24-23), St. Louis (31-10), New England (37-21), New York Giants (23-13) and Baltimore (16-0), they all fired and fell back as the vengeful Dolphins swept to an unbeaten 14-0 regular season AFC East championship!

Miami ousted Cleveland from the playoffs 20-14 and then came from behind in the fourth quarter to eliminate the Pittsburgh Steelers up there 21-17. That put them in Super Bowl VII against the Washington Redskins in Los Angeles, and it was actually no contest although the final score was only 14-7 in favor of the delirious Dolphins. Garo Yepremian's ill-fated passing attempt gave the Redskins their only score, and a Briscoe motion penalty cost Miami a Warfield touchdown. Billy Kilmer had absolutely no success passing against Miami's now renowned "No Names Defense."

No other NFL team has ever gone all the way like that, and Miami's 17-0 season in 1972 is emblazoned in NFL records.

1973 WAS ALMOST ANTICLIMACTIC. By now a business like machine, a household word nation wide, the turquoise and white-uniformed Dolphins lost for the first time in 17 regular season games when they were upset by the Raiders out in Oakland in the second game of the season, 12-7. Defeated another time when at Baltimore in the next to last game of a 12-2 season, as they geared up for the playoff run at Super Bowl VIII.

What a mismatch it was as the Dolphins roared through Cincinnati, 34-16, Oakland, 27-10 and then Minnesota, 24-7. They were positively awesome out in Houston as they turned Fran Tarkenton and the Vikings every way but loose in winning Super Bowl VIII, 24-7. Csonka rushed for 145 yards as the Dolphins were able to stay on the ground most of the way.

Miami has never been able to regain those heights since the 1972 season although the Dolphins have had a winning record every year since then, except 1976 when injuries and the World Football League had decimated the Super Bowl championship cast.

BACK TO THE PRESENT, here is Miami's 1980 schedule:

The preseason: Aug. 10, Detroit here 4 p.m.; Aug. 18, Seattle there, 7:30 p.m.; Aug. 23, Minnesota here, 8 p.m.; Aug. 29, New Orleans there, 8 p.m.

The regular season: Sept. 7 at Buffalo; Sept. 14, Cincinnati, here; Sept. 21 at Atlanta; Sept. 28, New Orleans here; Oct. 5, Baltimore here, Oct. 12 at New England; Oct. 19, Buffalo here; Oct. 27, New York Jets there; Nov. 2 at Oakland; Nov. 9 at Los Angeles; Nov. 16, San Francisco here; Nov. 20, San Diego here; Nov. 30 at Pittsburgh; Dec. 8, New England here; Dec. 14 at Baltimore; Dec. 20, New York Jets here.

If you want season or single game tickets for Dolphin games, call 843-4700 or go to gate 14 of the Orange Bowl. Season tickets are $110 and $90 and individual games are $11 and $9.

Jim Meador to show paintings

Displays on the "Artist Balcony" at First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Fort Pierce are that of Jim Meador, one of the states leading painters, working almost exclusively in oils.

His early years were spent in [illegible] and he served as art and copy director until 1970. Also, during the 70s, he owned and operated an art gallery and school and was called on frequently to judge art and photo exhibits.

Meador has only brought five works with him for exhibit in Florida and says that his management responsibilities at his job have not allowed him to pick up his brushes, although he has tried. When he is able to produce works again, the subject will be the sea, which he has been photographing for reference material.

The public is invited to view Meador's works at First Federal, Orange Avenue and Second, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday and until 6:30 p.m. on Friday.

FIFTY YEARS OF SHOPPING PLEASURE 50 1930-1980

Publix

where shopping is a pleasure

When you're on the run, let Publix feed 'em!

A revolutionary event occurred in the sixties: women discovered pantsuits! The world of women's fashions would never be the same, and the freedom brought on by this new apparel spilled into the kitchen. Florida women turned Publix Delis and Danish Bakeries into smash hits! Ladies could stop by Publix and pick up dinners for one or for the whole family. And a full array of taste-tempting desserts was waiting at the Publix Danish Bakery. Today, the Deli has an even bigger variety of foods to feed on-the-go families, and the goodies from our bakery just can't be beat!

LET'S BE HONEST

If you weren't looking for a new position, you wouldn't be reading this ad. If we weren't looking for personnel, this ad wouldn't be here. We are interested in talking to ambitious men and women who feel that they are presently earning less than their potential, and who are not afraid of a little bit of hard work for their financial independence and security. To these people, our expanding, multi-million dollar international fraternal benefit society offers unlimited possibilities through our prompt advance commission system. This is a dignified sales career with an excellent chance for promotion and generous fringe benefits. For interview, please call

Census shows 13,065 live in Jensen and Rio

BY BOB FRYER

According to preliminary figures from the U.S. Census Bureau, the Jensen Beach-Rio area has a population of 13,065

Though there is no 1970 Census figure available for the Jensen-Rio area, it would be hard to find anyone who would not agree that the two communities have experienced rapid growth in the 10 year span.

The figures for Jensen and Rio are part of the preliminary Census figures released last week for all of Martin County. The Census Bureau estimates the 1980 total county population at 50,757, up 113 per cent from the 1970 population count of 28,035.

Assistant County Planning and Zoning Director Joe Banfi noted Monday that the Census Bureau figures will likely be challenged, but he said the total count didn't seem too far off-base from projections made by the county planning department. In fact, he expressed pleasure that the U.S. Census Bureau count helped to vindicate the county planning department "in a running battle we've had with the University of Florida for the last seven or eight years."

Banfi explained that during those past years, county planners have argued with University of Florida population counters that the university estimates for Martin County were low. "As all the dust settles, it (the Census Bureau county total) shows us with a population about identical to our estimate."

Banfi noted that the county has 10 days to challenge the U.S. Census Bureau preliminary figures.

"A local review committee is to meet Thursday and we've been working the last few days to check and recheck our information to see if we agree with their counts," Banfi said. He added that Census Bureau workers are still working on their figures, "and some numbers are still dribbling in." Because Census figures are still coming in, Banfi said it is very likely the challenge will be filed.

Banfi urged anyone who feels the Census Bureau has not yet counted them to call the Census hotline at 283-8780.

Getting the highest count possible for the county population is important, as it will mean more revenue sharing funds, and more funds for many other governmental programs. It may also mean more of a voice in state government when legislature district boundaries are redrawn next year.

"They did not break down their population count in the 1970 Census into little cells like they did this time, so I can't tell you what the Jensen Beach-Rio area population was then. But their figure of 13,065 seems to be pretty accurate. In 1975, we had estimated the Jensen planning area population at 12,162, Banfi said.

Banfi said a 1970 population figure for the Martin County portion of Hutchinson Island was also unavailable, but again said he felt the U.S. Census Bureau count of 855 residents was correct. "They counted 1,126 housing units on the island, with 785 vacant or just seasonally occupied, and that seems to be in line with our figures," he said, adding that during the winter season, the island population is probably around 2,000 to

As for other area population figures, the town of Sewall's Point shows a jump in population from 298 in 1970 to 1,108 in 1980, according to the Census Bureau. That represents a 271 per cent jump in population.

Surprisingly, the population count of 472 for Ocean Breeze Park in 1980 shows a 33.9 per cent decline from the 1970 Census Bureau figure of 714. Mayor Gene Hoke said he could not figure any reason for the smaller figure this time, as the number of mobile home units in the town has remained unchanged for the past 10 years.

Hoke said he spoke with Luciano Martinez, district director for the Census, and said Martinez "wasn't a bit surprised. He said he has had similar responses to population figures in our area and said he'd recheck the figures."

Hoke said he heard that some Census forms sent to absent Ocean Breeze Park residents were not forwarded by postal workers.

The City of Stuart population rose from 4,820 in 1970 to 9,380 in 1980, according to the Census Bureau.

The average number of persons per household declined over the 10 year span for Martin County to an unusually low figure. In 1970, Census figures showed 2.72 persons per housing unit, and 1980 figures show 2.36 per household. And, the Census Bureau counted a jump from 12,403 to 34,344 housing units in the county in the last 10 years. No vacancy rate is available for 1970, but the 1980 Census shows 7,080 vacant units.

Southern Bell eyes exchange for Jensen

BY DICK CAMPBELL

The possibility of a separate Jensen Beach exchange, with a Jensen telephone book, cropped up in the Tuesday Jensen Chamber presentation of Bill Dumont, Stuart district manager of Southern Bell.

In answer to a question by Bob Mayer, a Jensen businessman, Dumont said that he couldn't address the question because "the decision has not been made."

However, the possibility that Jensen Beach would have its own exchange was indicated in the map of a planned "switchover" of Jensen Beach lines from the Stuart office to the Hutchinson Island office.

Dumont's map indicated the area to be switched to include all of Jensen Beach and Rio, from the St. Lucie River to a point one mile south of Walton Road, and from the island to the proposed bisecting north-south road through the Savannas, about a mile and a half east of U.S. 1.

The present 334 exchange covers Jensen Beach and south Port St. Lucie. If the telephones were switched over, an exchange number change would have to be made for either Port St. Lucie or Jensen Beach numbers.

Dumont said that no decision had been made on which would be changed, but "we should have some information on that soon, as it would have an impact on businesses."

The switchover from Stuart to Hutchinson Island offices next May will provide more services to Jensen Beach residents and businessmen. The island office is "the most modern we have, fully computerized," Dumont said.

He added that the change would make 5,000 lines available to the service area of Jensen Beach and Hutchinson Island.

With Southern Bell putting $10 million in the Stuart district to update service and cables, Dumont said that the district was the fastest growing in southeast Florida.

"Boca Raton was our fastest growing area, but the Stuart district surpassed Boca in April with a higher number of new hookups," Dumont told the businessmen.

An indication of the amount of work being done by Southern Bell was Dumont's comment on the renewal of cables along Skyline Drive. It cost the telephone company more than $139,000 to replace cables Dumont said before the work, the area had the highest number of problems in the district.

Summer doldrums nibble at Jensen, PSL businesses

BY SALLY LATHAM

The summertime doldrums are upon us, a survey of several tourist-related businesses shows.

Tourism is down from last year at the same time, according to Dolphin Motel owner Bill Keel III.

"There are very few families traveling together," he said. "It's worse than last year. The economy and the gas are quite a problem."

The drop-off in business, which began in late July, is general all over the area, it was determined by those who were checked.

Sandpiper Bay, which usually does a good year-round business, is one of the hardest hit, according to spokesman Ken Benjamin.

"Last year we were running 68 per cent full. It's been 28 to 30 per cent this year," he said.

The Outrigger, one of the most popular resorts on the Indian River, is closed until November, with the exception of its marina facilities.

Some of the smaller motels are depending on their annual returnees for their summer trade.

Ruth Nethery, at the Driftwood in Jensen called business "slow, but just about the same as last year."

"We get a lot of the same people back year after year," she said.

Also hurt by the slump have been the smaller specialty shops, some of which have closed their doors for "doldrum month." But other businesses which get the year-round trade aren't hurting so badly.

Kenneth Plyler, manager of the True Value Store Sunrise Home Center in Port St. Lucie, says he hasn't found it to be as bad as claimed by other businessmen he has talked to. The comparatively new store, open for shortly over a year, has been "doing better than last year."

"We're climbing, though possibly not as much as we should because of the slump," he said.

Bob Mayer, owner of The Tiger Touch in Jensen Beach, says he's "just a few dollars off" from last year at the same time. Nonetheless, he's admitting the situation by running a "dog days" sale through the month of August.

Summer doesn't seem to frazzle the fashion market. The Paris Inn Shoppe on Hutchinson Island is doing a little better this year than last, according to owner Marg Paris.

"Things are definitely up from last year at the same time," she told the Mirror.

Equal optimism was expressed by Sandy Pazey, at the Village Corner in Jensen.

"Some days we're really moving," Pazey said. "We're doing fine, over and above last year. And we're seeing a lot of new faces."

Only one businessman contacted said he found his business brisk.

Jim McManeman, manager of the Holiday Inn Oceanside said: "We're having a very good summer, and it hasn't let up. We're way ahead of last year."

Voter registration closes on Saturday

If you're not a registered voter and living in Martin County, the time is drawing short if you wish to cast your vote in the Sept. 9 primaries, county supervisor of elections Peggy Robbins is reminding everyone.

Saturday is the final day for registering, and the office in the county courthouse will be open all day, until 5 p.m. to accommodate last-minute registrants.

If you are not registered before the deadline, you'll be prevented from voting in either the Sept. 9 primaries or the Oct. 7 run-off election. The books close on Oct. 4 for voting in the general election in November.

Robbins' office has been a hive of activity in preparing for what now appears to be the heaviest election in Martin County history. As of last Thursday, the voter registration count stood at 36,554, as opposed to the 27,680 at the same time in the presidential election year of four years ago, an increase of some 25 percent. Robbins is hoping to hit the 37,000 mark by the end of the day on Saturday.

The only requirements for registering, the supervisor stated, are that one must be 18 years of age or older, a resident of Martin County and a United States Citizen.

Absentee ballots are obtainable from the county office all this week, Robbins said. Copies of the ballot will be made available at the office, at banks and supermarkets.

Among the key local issues on the ballot are the elections of three county commissioners, and the U.S. Senate seat held by Sen. Richard Stone. Six Republicans and six democrats are running for the latter seat.

PAT KENNY, right, helps position the Albert Blaisdell aboard a boat trailer for a trip to the Chapman School of Seamanship in Palm City. Students at the school will practice rowing it, then a mock rescue in the surf off the House of Refuge is planned for Saturday, Aug. 30. Kenny built the boat in about two and a half months. For more details, see story inside. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

NICE LINES - Boatbuilder Pat Kenny, in hat at right, steps back from the Albert Blaisdell to observe the beautiful lines of the boat. He spent two and a half months inside the Elliott Museum making the boat, then loaded it on a trailer last Friday for transport to the Chapman School of Seamanship. 25-foot surfboat readied for House of Refuge rescue

BY BOB FRYER

Presuming this coming Labor Day weekend won't be as wild as last year's, when Hurricane David struck, local boaters are in for a gala celebration.

So too, are lovers of history.

On Saturday, Aug. 30, the Martin County Historical Society plans to launch the Albert Blaisdell for a mock rescue in the surf off the House of Refuge museum.

The boat, a 25 foot lapstrake craft built by Historical Society jack of all trades, Pat Kenny, is a replica of the type used about 100 years ago for fishing and making rescues in the surf.

"This is the final item in the restoration of the Gilbert's Bar House of Refuge," commented Janet Hutchinson, Historical Society director.

The House of Refuge, on Hutchinson Island, was commissioned in 1875 and completed in 1876. It is one of only five structures of its type to be built along the east coast as havens for ship wrecked sailors, and it is the only one still standing. As a Bicentennial project, the House of Refuge was restored to its original design.

Albert Blaisdell, for whom the boat is named, was the builder of the House of Refuge. Once the surf rescue ceremony is over, the boat will be kept on display at the House of Refuge.

The rescue ceremony will begin at noon on Saturday, Aug. 30, with the firing of a Lyle gun from the House of Refuge. The gun was once used for propelling lines of rope through the air to rescue sailors in distress, but has been out of use for so long that it took quite a search to find anyone who knew about the gun and how it works.

After the gun is fired, the Blaisdell will be christened, on a sandy beach about 500 feet south of the House of Refuge. Then the mock rescue will take place. About 200 boats are expected to join a parade during the ceremony.

The Blaisdell will be rowed by a crew from the Chapman School of Seamanship in Palm City. Last Friday Kenny rolled the boat out of the Elliott Museum, where he had been constructing it for about two and a half months. He placed it aboard a boat trailer, then it was towed to Palm City, where it was launched and will be kept so the Chapman students can practice rowing it.

Kenny had to remove the double doors at the back of the museum to get the boat through, but when it was rolled out to the trailer on logs, it drew oohs and aahs from a crowd of bystanders. "It's a beautiful boat, just beautiful," commented Rosa Philbrick.

And, when the true test came and the Blaisdell was slipped into the St. Lucie River in Palm City, it didn't leak a drop.

Kenny has been known more recently for his nautical paintings, but when he was a youngster, he helped his grandfather build boats in a boat yard on Prince Edward Island, Canada. To build the Blaisdell, he used tools from the Elliott Museum of the vintage boatbuilders would have used 100 years ago, and he built his own steambox to mold the planks for the boat. The planks are overlaid and fastened with copper nails ordered specially from Lincolnville, Maine. No caulking was used to make the boat watertight.

The plans for the Blaisdell came from Mystic Seaport, Mystic, Conn., but Kenny had to make the boat a bit narrower than the plans called for, so it would fit through the museum doors.

Kenny beamed with deserved pride as the boat was placed on the trailer for its trip to Palm City, but it's not the first big project he has done for the Historical Society. A few years ago he built the tall ship's mast at the House of Refuge. It withstood Hurricane David last Labor Day, but he's hoping we don't get another Labor Day weekend hurricane to test it again. If we do have a hurricane or bad weather, the surf rescue ceremony will be postponed until Saturday, Sept. 13.

Those interested in participating in the boat parade for the ceremony should call Ed Benedict at 287 9122.

What $100 would buy in 1967 costs $432

Florida's highway construction costs reached their highest point ever during the second quarter of 1980 (May July) with a record 432.6 composite price index. This means it now costs $432.60 to purchase what $100 would buy in highway construction in 1967.

According to figures compiled by the Florida Department of Transportation, construction costs increased 11.6 percent from the first quarter of 1980, going from a composite index of 387.8 to 432.6. This followed a decrease of 6.9 percent, between the fourth quarter 1979 and the first quarter 1980.

Reinforcing steel had the largest increase of the six construction components included in the quarterly price trend summary. Reinforcing steel costs were up 19.2 percent, the majority of usage being in the more expensive "epoxy coated" reinforcing steel.

Bituminous concrete cost increased 12.6 percent, due in part to an increase in liquid bitumen cost and to a low volume of use. Only 177,093 tons of bituminous concrete were used in the second quarter of 1980 as compared to a quarterly average of 1979 of 972,632 tons.

Earthwork, another major factor in highway construction, rose 8.2 percent.

Structural concrete was the only individual component to decrease, down approximately 2.6 percent, and structural steel and portland cement concrete had no activity.

First Federal eliminated in thriller at national tourney

Though the First Federal of Martin County slow-pitch softball team didn't win the national championship last weekend, their coach says, "just being there was an experience they will never forget."

The hometown team, which earned a trip to the national tournament in Tifton, Georgia, by winning the state championship a few weeks ago, may be one of the top five teams in the nation.

"That's what Bob Simpson, the director of the tournament, told me," said coach Frank Hughes.

"On the official list, we were in 15th place of the 34 teams there, but some were listed ahead of us because of the time they played their last game, even though we had beat them," Hughes noted.

The First Federal team was knocked out of the double-elimination tournament in a thriller that saw the score see-saw and went 10 innings before it was decided.

"We lost to the Hales, the Georgia state champions, 13 to 12, in the bottom of the 10th inning. The game was really exciting. There were throwouts at home plate, double plays, and it was an up and down battle all the way," Hughes said, adding that a Tifton radio station announcer said it was the most thrilling ball game he could recall being played in any tournament there.

The loss to the Hale team came Saturday evening and the team left Tifton before the championship game was played on Sunday. "I'll have to call to find out, but I figure either the Hales team or another team from Georgia, the Flames, won it," Hughes said.

The First Federal team drew a bye for the Thursday night opening games, and on Friday, beat a Detroit, Michigan team by an 11 to 8 margin.

In their second game, First Federal lost 9 to 8 in the final inning to the Ohio state champions. They bounced back from that loss to trounce the Mississippi state champions by a whopping score of 19 to 3. Their final game of the tourney was the loss of Hales.

"The best thing about it all was the fellowship the boys had. It was a great experience for them to participate in a national tournament and to meet players from all over the country. And, each team was assigned hosts. Ours were great. They baked a big cake that said 'Good Luck' on it, took one of our boys to the hospital, and just made us feel very welcome," Hughes said.

He noted that the injury to the boy sent to the hospital was a torn ligament in his thumb. "He wore a cast one day, then the doctor took it off, it was taped up, and he played a great game."

Hughes said there were 11 knee injuries during the tournament, seven of them serious. However, none of those injuries befell First Federal players.

The First Federal team Hughes took to the national championship is in the 16 to 18 age bracket. "We'll lose a lot of boys from the team for next year, so I'll really have to be out looking for new ones, but I hope next year to take both teams, the 13 to 16 year olds, to the nationals," Hughes commented.

EQUAL RIGHTS—What I want to know is why you humans make such a fuss over the sea turtles. You call this place the Sea Turtle Capital of the World. Well, what about us land turtles? I make my home here too, you know, but I don't hear anyone making such a big deal over me. You gotta become an endangered species before you get any respect around here? (Photo by Bob Fryer)

WHAT IS LEVERAGE?

QUESTION: I have heard the term leverage used in discussions about financing investment property. Could you tell me what this term means?

ANSWER: Leverage is created by using borrowed funds. For example, suppose you purpose a $100,000 apartment building which is down payment of $20,000. In this case the use of $80,000 in financing creates leverage. And by utilizing financing, the scale of ownership is enlarged.

Upside leverage is created when the cost of this borrowing (the debt service) is less than the income generated from the investment. Upside leverage magnifies the cash returns from an investment.

Downside leverage occurs when the cost of the borrowed funds exceeds the operating income available for debt service. This situation is often referred to as reverse leverage and can create a negative cash flow.

Leverage is also important in investment planning because its use enables an investor to purchase a property which is experiencing rapid appreciation. And because of the investor's leveraged position, the appreciation on his investment can grow dramatically.

For example, a $100,000 apartment building, which is purchased free and clear (without any mortgage) and which is experiencing a 5 percent growth rate will appreciate $5,000 in the next year. However, if the purchase is leveraged by buying with $10,000 down and $90,000 in financing that same $5,000 worth of appreciation will represent a 50 percent return on the $10,000 down payment.

The use of leverage in real estate investing is the rule rather than the exception. My only warning is to weigh the after-leverage cash flow carefully. If there is a negative case flow, make sure that it is within the bounds of your investment criteria.

Naspinski leaves The Mirror

BY SALLY LATHAM

A youthful spark will fly up out of the Mirror this week, after brightening the Port St. Lucie scene for the past years.

She is 18-year-old Michelle Naspinski, whose reportings on the Port St. Lucie scene you have been enjoying for the past several months. Naspinski is leaving the newspaper to continue her education, hopefully preparing herself for the life of a full-fledged reporter. She has printer's ink in her blood, and intends to make the most of it.

When she leaves, she leaves with the mark of professionalism achieved only by experience. And she is approaching her new studies at the University of Central Florida in Orlando with a great deal more confidence then she had with her first approach to college. A year ago, she enrolled at the University of Florida in Gainesville, and flew the coop after the first day.

Home for Michelle, at 2340 Sapphire Terrace, Port St. Lucie, Daughter of Michael and Josephine Naspinski, she grew up in New Jersey, and she is only now getting over her homesickness for that northern state.

She got bit by the newspaper bug early on. In Paul IV High School of Clifton, N.J. She served as editor in chief of the Patriot, the school's monthly publication.

"The kids seldom read it," she recalls. "They didn't know what was going on and didn't care. We kept turning it out, anyway."

But it must have been good, because, during her term as editor, the paper won the national Columbia Scholarship Press Association Award for general excellence.

While in school, Naspinski also worked with local elementary school children in producing a student newspaper, and she was primary scriptwriter for a theatrical class production aired on a New Jersey cable television station.

Michelle's education has been enhanced considerably by her experience since at 17, she first walked into the Mirror office looking for work.

"I'll do anything, windows, floors, just to be in a newspaper office," the pretty dark-haired teenager told General Manager Peggy Meissner.

She hasn't had to do any windows or floors, but her year has been filled with everything else but--from taking pictures of endless drainage problem areas in Port St. Lucie to being an oarsman in the Great American Raft Race.

Her assignments have ranged from the dullest routine planning and zoning meeting to the dramatic battle which culminated in the firing of PSL city manager Leonard Silvia, and the formation of a police department in that fast growing city. Few public spirited citizens have failed to come under the careful scrutiny of her observation--and her typewriter.

And she has been the light-hearted brunt of PSL's city hall humor.

"Everytime I go up there, they have another Polish joke for me. I don't like them, but I guess everyone has learned that we Polish people are easy to get along with."

Naspinski has two major goals--one is to study as much law as she can while in college, with the goal of becoming a political writer, and that dream trip across the country.

"I'd just like to get in my car with my typewriter and free-lance my way across," she said.

HEADED FOR SCHOOL--Michelle Naspinski, who has been reporting the news for Port St. Lucie during the past year, will leave the paper to continue her education at the University of Central Florida. This is her final week with The Mirror.

NEW OFFICERS for the Jensen Area Samaritans ambulance squad were recently selected. They are, from the left: Jim Swindlehurst, director; Barbara Stevens, vice president; Nellie Cook, secretary; Eve Wagner, treasurer; and George Krause, president. One of the first things Krauss did as new president was to appeal for more volunteers, especially for the day shift. Anyone interested should call 287-1652, he said. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Stuart National is now Florida National Bank

Richard E. Ehlis and Jack T. Williams signed the papers, shook hands and announced that Stuart National Bank and Port Salerno National Bank had officially become Florida National Bank of Martin County.

Ehlis, president of Florida National Banks of Florida, Inc., accompanied by Robert M. Ulsch, executive vice president and secretary, and Williams, president of Stuart National Bank, formally completed the merger that brings the seven offices of Stuart National and Port Salerno National into the Florida National family.

Florida National reported assets of approximately $2.2 billion June 30, 1980. Paying $95 per share the company purchased Stuart National for more than $17 million, and paying $31.67 per share, purchased Port Salerno National for more than $3 million.

At a special meeting of the stockholders, which took place June 2, 96 percent of Stuart National's shares outstanding were voted, and all were cast in favor of the merger, showing overwhelming approval of the move. On the same day, at a special meeting of the stockholders of Port Salerno National, 92 percent of shares outstanding were cast in favor of the merger.

"Essentially, only the name on the outside of our offices will change," stated Williams, who will serve as president and chief executive officer of Florida National Bank of Martin County. "And we will continue to provide the finest financial services available anywhere to our customers."

According to Williams, customers will continue to deal with the same people they have come to know and trust over the years. Charles R. Harris, formerly president of Port Salerno National, will assume the position of executive vice president for administration. Howard Shields will retain his position as executive vice president, with responsibility for operations.

Williams will serve as chairman of the board of directors, while Harris and Ulsch will become board members.

Ehlis stated that Florida National is striving toward its goal of becoming the most profitable and dynamic bank holding company in Florida. He also said that the addition of Stuart National brings to the Florida National organization a bank recognized by "Florida Trend" as one of the best managed in the state.

The greater assets of the holding company will mean the availability of more diversification in the local bank's loan portfolio and the opportunity for larger commercial loans. In addition, trust services will benefit from Florida National's extensive experience and breadth of services. Florida National Banks administer more than $2 billion in state wide trust activity. John R. Simpson, senior vice president, will continue his present role at head of the trust department in the new bank's organization.

Florida National customers bank at 86 locations state wide, including 82 offices of 27 banks and four free standing automatic teller machines. Also included are the main office of Florida National Bank of Martin County, located at 301 E. Ocean Boulevard; the offices at Monterey Plaza, Indian River Plantation, 1500 E. Ocean Boulevard, and U.S. 1, just north of SR A (Northside Branch); as well as offices in Port Salerno on A1A and U.S. 1 at Salerno Road.

Customers of Florida National Bank of Martin County will have the convenience of banking at any one of the seven offices in the Stuart and Port Salerno areas.

25 cents dividend declared by Florida Steel

Nocturnal patrol

St. Lucie County Sheriff's deputy Harvey Sharpe is pictured here preparing to embark on a mid-night patrol of sleeping Port St. Lucie. The Sheriff's Department rotates offices between the shifts of day, evening and night, so Sharpe is only responsible for nighttime patrols approximately one week out of every month. But the deputy is no stranger to the seemingly deserted streets of Port St. Lucie after sundown. The Mirror rode along with Sharpe recently on one of his midnight to eight patrols.

Harvey Sharpe...

Patrols sleeping city

Last in the series

Port St. Lucie is considered a relatively quiet, "bedroom" community even during the most active hours of the day.

But at night it is a ghost town.

At least that is how it must appear to a stranger who exits the Turnpike for a midnight cruise through town. Port St. Lucie Blvd. entreats drivers to follow a beeline path to U.S. 1 and out of the city. Port St. Lucie's back roads are sparsely lit and wind uninvitingly back into nowhere.

THE NIGHT SHIFT

A Mirror Exclusive by Michelle Naspinski

The houses are dark, the cars few, the undeveloped land vast and forbidding. People are virtually nonexistent.

There seems to be little to protect and nothing to protect it from.

But Harvey Sharpe knows different.

The St. Lucie County Sheriff's deputy regularly patrols the streets of Port St. Lucie during the graveyard shift and he has learned to see through the city's sleeping cover. He knows where trouble hides.

At midnight, Sharpe slides in behind the wheel of his green and white Sheriff's Department patrol car and lights a cigarette–the first of many.

The car and the cigarette are familiar allies during the long, restless hours between twelve and eight.

A shotgun rests peacefully on the floorboard of the passenger side of the vehicle. Just in case.

Another standard Department firearm prods him from its holster, strapped easily around his waist. A pair of slightly scratched and tarnished handcuffs dangle from the gearshift.

In the backseat, an assortment of various complaint and arrest forms create a mountain of paper.

Like a magnetic St. Christopher medal and high school graduation cap tassle complete the interior of another vehicle, the law enforcement weapons and apparatus know their place in this one. They must be handy.

Once adequately satisfied of this, Sharpe switches on the ignition and proceeds to patrol an area of some 70 square miles–to safeguard a sleeping population of nearly 15,000.

"This shift really does get tiresome; you don't sleep right, don't eat right," confided Sharpe, "I don't see how anyone could work it all the time."

As the Sheriff's Department operates on a rotating shift basis, Sharpe only has to work the night shift one week out of every month. The other weeks he alternately works days and evenings.

"There are more trouble calls at night, more fights, more domestic problem calls, more drunks," Sharpe explained, "but at least it is real police work at night, not like the nit-picking calls you get during the day."

As the patrol car glided down Port St. Lucie Blvd. to Floresta and on through Northport, the deputy's police radio chattered on with endless reports of possible criminal activity in Ft. Pierce and other parts of the county.

Overheard was a report of a wandering "undesirable" on the median strip that divides U.S. 1. Later, a deputy was heard calling in to report that the undesirable had been safely deposited on the Martin County side of the Martin-St. Lucie line.

Sharpe chuckled at the call and explained that as it is no crime to be "undesirable" or even drunk (unless also disorderly), the deputies have no alternative but to leave them alone or keep them moving south.

"When we get an undesirable, we just take him over the Martin County line," said Sharpe, "but they (Martin deputies) do the same to us–it works out about even."

The deputy reported that most nocturnal calls are in regard to domestic battles and that these are mostly in Midport and Windmill Point, but rarely in Sandpiper. For Sharpe, they are among the most thankless of his night shift duties.

"When a man and his wife are fighting, no matter what you do it's going to be wrong," Sharpe said with a grimace, "you just try to quiet them down and get them to talk–but you're never going to please both of them."

Sharpe turned the Sheriff's vehicle onto U.S. 1 and proceeded to check on the local businesses along Federal Highway.

"You're likely to see anything walking along this road at any hour of the night," the deputy commented, "Jesus freaks, hitchhikers, you name it."

After a thorough check for possible breakins, Sharpe headed back into the dark interiors of the city. While any night shift deputy is more isolated than his daytime counterparts, the feeling of separation is especially strong in an area with the land expanses of Port St. Lucie.

"There is no way one car can patrol this city the way it should be done," Sharpe said, as he followed Prima Vista Blvd. back into Port St. Lucie's barren western lands, "you always have on your mind that you could get into a situation where you have no help for five or ten minutes or more."

That was said at about four in the morning.

There were a few scattered vehicles heading north on U.S. 1. A young couple that had just come off the Turnpike flagged down a deputy for directions. Across town, at the bottle club in the Mangrove Square shopping center, 48 cars were parked.

And Harvey Sharpe was off to answer a call. Possible burglary in progress, the voice from 911 had said. The destination was especially isolated.

Maybe the coffee and cigarettes had begun to take effect. Or maybe the call had produced a resurgence of adrenalin.

Whatever the cause, Sharpe raced through the blackened streets of Port St. Lucie-turned-ghost town. But written on his face were the words that he could not afford to forget.

Help was five or ten minutes away – or more.

Where does it stop

A good businessman would not waste money. Government is not a good businessman, that is certain.

In government by the judiciary, Judge C. Clyde Atkins has continued the legislation-by-judges in demanding that the students in Port St. Lucie be bused so that racial balance can be maintain in St. Lucie County schools.

In recognizing that over 9,000 students are already being bused in the county, Atkins shows the insensitivity of the judicial branch, and the fiscal irresponsibility of the laws.

Nine to fourteen additional buses will have to be purchased by the county taxpayers (not the county...the county taxpayers). An untold number of gallons of precious fuel will be consumed in the folly of busing children out of their home town to another home to attend school.

We would have no objection to the busing if there was no school in Port ST Lucie. That is the case for high school students. It is much more economical, with the present population, to have just two high schools in Ft. Pierce, where the greatest number of students live.

But we do object to busing just for the sake of racial balance.

We doubt very much that the congressmen and senators who drafted the civil rights act had any notion that billions upon billions of taxpayer dollars would be spent in forcing students to travel billions of miles in search of education.

However, it was the courts of this land, the judiciary, that made the decision to bus. They call it "interpretation of the law."

We call it legislation by the judiciary, and fiscal irresponsibility.

Municipal taxes bode well for future

As the needs of a community grow, the community seeks more and more services. For those services, that community must be willing to pay the price in taxes.

Usually, a mayor and councilmen decide what services are to be provided, set the tax rate, and let the people approve or disapprove at the polls. Going in, most councils have a pretty good idea of how much the people will allow themselves to be taxed.

However, Jensen Beach has no municipal government, relying instead on one county commissioner who is elected county-wide, to set the tax rate and provide the services. The District A tax bill has been held low by the county commissioner, and the services rendered the people have been adequate.

The plan of county commissioner Frank Wacha, to hold public hearings on the creation of a municipal tax unit for Jensen Beach to levy one mill for bike path construction and park acquisition, points up again the need for municipal government in Jensen Beach.

Wacha is trying to find the best course to provide bike paths for the people of his district. In the municipal tax unit, there is a vehicle to get the paths constructed.

The Mirror supports any plan to provide construction of the bike paths now.

However, the people of this taxing district should give serious thought to what has been an overriding backdrop to the needs of the community...incorporation. One man should not have the total responsibility for a city, no matter how well he represents that community.

Ocean Breeze count

If ever there was a truism, it was Mayor Gene Hoke's comment, "The whole thing sounds screwed up in my opinion."

The Census Bureau had the Town of Ocean Breeze Park losing one third of its population, down in ten years from 714 to 472.

In those ten years, there hasn't been a vacancy in the popular mobile home village. The homes are at a premium, and the waiting list is long.

There is bound to be a recount. Our only concern is that if the same persons did the census for Jensen Beach, how wrong is the count?

The pieces begin to fit

Individual news stories are just that, but a bunch of news stories put together will provide insight into what is happening and what is going to happen.

The census figures just released show what has happened over the past ten years in Martin and St. Lucie Counties.

Martin County has grown 113.2 percent in the past ten years, from 28,000 to almost 60,000. Jensen Beach has kept up with that growth, and the Jensen-Rio-Sewall's Point areas is now over 11,000 persons.

Port St. Lucie has had phenomenal growth, 4,250 percent. The city had 330 residents in 1970, and now has 14,330. There were only 435 homes there in 1970, and there now are 6,331 homes.

The recent announcement of the Edward Debartolo firm of a 975,000 square foot regional mall in Jensen Beach is just one step in the fantastic growth of the area. The mall, to be in operation by 1989, will have five major department stores and 129 smaller shops.

The Village Green, now under construction, will open in the fall of this year. It will have a department store and many small shops to service the growing market in Port ST. Lucie.

Port St. Lucie's growth is further impressive in the proposed Sharrett development in the north end of the city. The 1,873 acres will play host to 1,548 single family homes, 850 town houses and 2,940 multi-family units in condominiums, for a total population of 13,600.

Also planned is 46 acres of office and retail stores.

While the state unemployment rate was an impressive 6.6 percent, Malitin County registered an impressive 4.9 percent. St. Lucie's 10.7 percent was reflective of Ft. Pierce population, as Port St. Lucie has felt no effect of unemployment.

All of this continues to indicate that northward movement of the Miami-Jacksonville megopolis has reached Martin and St. Lucie Counties.

Two major developments in commercial activities include the Smithport Mall in Port ST. Lucie and another Smith-related mall in Stuart. The newly opened Smithport Mall in Stuart provides complimentary development data to the East Ocean Mall across the street.

Out on Hutchinson Island, more and more condominium developments are adding to the island's housing units. The plush Sailfish Point with units in the oceanfront starting at $310,000, is nearing construction with many units already sold.

Joe's point was sold out in ten days of announcement. There will be major expansion of Ocean Village. Indian River Point is a few units shy of being sold out.

In Jensen Beach, the major developments are getting off the ground with Pinecrest Lakes and Jensen Park Estates building several thousand units in the $50,000 to $100,000 range.

The next few years should be hectic as development tests the mettle of communities and governmental authorities. Larger developments of regional impact will have the guidance of state authorities and should provide the best growth.

Smaller developments will be a problem, because there are just so many of them. City and county commissioners will have to be certain that the smaller developers properly handle the impact their combined units provide the areas.

Over the past twenty years in Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie we have had growth that has been well planned and thought out.

In 1960, few thought that Port St. Lucie would be more than another subdivision. It is destined to surpass Ft. Pierce in population and political power. The day of the old-line families being the power in the county, and controlling development and jobs, is over.

It is people who will hold that power in the future.

The same is true in Jensen Beach. Rio and Sewall's Point. The benevolent dictatorship of the landed gentry has given way to numbers of people who decide how things are run.

Thank goodness, though, both areas are in good hands.

People are the key to everything in the jigsaw puzzle of life here. And people will make the pieces fit.

Sally Latham

The old order changeth

A couple of weeks ago, an old friend from Oak Ridge dropped by to say hello. With her was another woman I'd never met, and with all the intervening years since I've been estranged from the Atomic City — except for my brief visit this spring, I was a little afraid that we would probably find little in common to talk about.

I shouldn't have worried. The conversation was just barely getting underway when the stranger said, "Why, you must be our Bruce's mother."

I admitted to mothering Bruce, and the conversational ball was rolling. And I, personally, was delighted. The shoe had finally been laced firmly on the other foot.

Ever since I fell into this business of newspapering, some 30 years ago in Oak Ridge, the kids have complained about being identified as "Sally's son" or "Sally's daughter." They pleaded the right to an identity of their own.

It's not that I had any reason for prior recognition, but when you're writing for a newspaper, you do get by-lines, and as some anonymous sage once said, "by your by lines ye will be known."

And on a small city daily, it doesn't take long to get the name and have it stick, especially when you have a managing editor who believes in personalizing columns and frequent stories with one's photograph. You don't make much money, but you're the best known mug in town.

The same thing has held true for all those other newspapers I worked for. I never dared go out and bust loose with a heluva yell, because every cop on every beat knew who I was. The only time I ever got arrested, it was by one of the policemen in Pompano Beach whose name I had maligned for failure to patrol an area properly.

Thus, wherever I have been, the kids have been "Sally's kids" to the public. And they got a little tired of it.

But now I can rest easy, in the happy knowledge the stigma has been broken. I can sit back and enjoy life in the reflected glory of being "Bruce's mama."

Bruce, as you may have guessed, is my "baby," the youngest of four and the pet of the family. A few years ago, after his marriage to tall, statuesque and beautiful Marilyn, Bruce decided he would go home again, for all of Thomas Wolfe's warnings.

They pulled up stakes (he had a good job with an electrical company in Pompano) and landed in Oak Ridge. One thing lacking in the Atomic City at the time was a good electric service company, and Bruce proceeded to fill the gap. He got a lot of his goodwill by answering home calls at improbably sucky hours. Although his business has grown and most of it now is in the larger commercial contracts, he still has a special truck to go out and take care of my little old ladies.

Yes, I'm happy to settle for my seat as "Bruce's mother." It's a pretty honored spot to occupy.

The Mirror has again proven itself one of the best places around to be associated with. Friday afternoon, the whole crew took the afternoon off for a special honor event — a farewell party for ad salesman Nancy Klein and for Michelle Naspinski, who will be leaving soon for the halls of higher education.

Looking at the size of the "mansion" where the Mirror conducts its daily business, one wouldn't believe the number of people there are involved, up here one was or another. But they are aplenty and they all — or nearly all — turned out for the farewell picnic.

There's always something a little extra special about Mirror picnics because they are held on and off shore. The fun and games, and the cooking, all take place on the beautiful point beside the (hat)rigger. But the central conversation over in the deck of the Sally, boss man Dick Campbell's 27 foot yacht. It is here where the sea stories are swapped (Dick always comes out on top with his limitless supply) and where the bar is open.

The afternoon is hot, but breezes off the Indian River turn down natures airconditioner from sweltering to bearable. Half the party goers are up in the park playing a somewhat lethargic frisbee tournament. The other half are either out on the sea wall watching the boats and counting pelicans as they drift aloft in lazy formation or sharing the creature comfort of the Sally.

Then the Captain suggests a boat ride. It's like a magnet for several of the frisbee players. Not everyone can go at once, but Capt. Dick sorts out the most avid and keeps the others happy with promises of a later trip. I set my ground on the back deck, dead center where I won't have to move.

The boat takes off, out of the marina and over the rippling golden waters of Indian River. It is sheer magic. The motor is too loud to talk over, so no one has to make conversation. For al all too brief few minutes I am Ariel at one with the wind and the water. There is no way to describe the feeling of a water lover on returning to his or her soul's natural habitat. In essence its ingredient is freedom, a curative elixir no pharmacist ever mixed a prescription to match. It is cure for all the ills of the soul.

Back on shore, and it's time for the food. Fred Meissner is cooking the hot dogs, but someone forgot to bring mustard. Nonetheless, the chow is good, enhanced by the flavor of the outdoor air.

It is a good picnic. It is time to say goodbye, especially to Nancy Stein, who will be teaching school in Hobe Sound with the opening of the fall term. It is also time to welcome aboard Pat, who will be taking her place.

Yes, the Mirror is a wonderful place to work. None of us would have it any other way.

Bob Fryer

It's not all Buffett

In the newspaper business, you can have a lot of fun and do some pretty unusual things.

You can also have more than your share of miserable times.

Some of the fun things I've done include getting a free hot-air balloon ride, free houseboat, motorboat and cruise boat rides on the St. Lucie River, free airplane rides, free food at countless events, and free admission to plays, fairs, and boat races. I've also gotten free admission to Sea World, to a bunch of auto races at Sebring and Daytona, and even free admission to a Jimmy Buffett concert.

I once nearly got a free ride to the Bahamas, but missed out because of our news deadline. I also just missed out on a ride in a Goodyear blimp when a county commissioner, who is no longer in office, took my seat. Maybe that's why he's a former commissioner.

Among the unusual things I've done include donning a hospital gown and mask to cover a story in the delivery room at Martin Memorial Hospital. One of the first couples in the county to use the Lamaze method of childbirth had just had a baby, and I was there to cover the story.

I had to swim for a few stories and twice I've stayed up all night long to cover Sheriff's Department manhunts for the same guy.

On two occasions, I've been called on to crew hopelessly non-nautical Mirror rafts in the Great American Raft Race in Port St. Lucie. The first time, we wound up putting on flippers, hopping in the water, and kicking for nearly an hour to get the sluggish craft to the finish line. We crossed it about 45 minutes after all the other rafts did. The second time, we stayed in the raft, but finally gave out after the river current began carrying us backwards faster than our weary arms could paddle forward.

Though I suppose most folks wouldn't relish the raft race experiences, there are a number of them listed above that I imagine would appeal to a lot of persons.

But before you take crash writing and typing courses and go knocking on the doors of newspaper editors for a job as a reporter, consider some of the other, less glamorous, duties you may face.

Far outweighing the hours I spent on free boat rides are the hours I've been stuck in governmental meetings, listening to politicians, members of the public, and paid consultants drone on and on about zoning variances for swimming pools and dog sheds; about drainage problems, road potholes, budget transfers, and other equally earth-shattering topics.

And, at a lot of those functions where you get free food, you also get to hear long-winded speeches about the glorious deeds of the outgoing officers of whatever organization it is that invited you, not because they like you, but because they want a story and photo.

So you go, smile and be as pleasant as you can, even though you had other plans for the evening before the last minute call from publicity chair person cancelled them. And you try to be friendly, though you don't know a soul and don't feel comfortable.

Those aren't the real bad experiences though. The bad ones are when you can't eat lunch for fear of losing it, because you just saw a 12 year-old kid lying dead in the parking lot of a small grocery store, his middle blown away by a shotgun blast. Or you just saw a man crying over the lifeless body of his wife, shot with a bullet intended for him.

Traffic accidents are also part of the job, and they can be worse than the knifings and shootings, especially when the broken bodies are those of children.

No, it's not always fun and exciting, and there are times when there is just no adequate answer to the question, Why am I doing this?

Fortunately, the really miserable parts of the job are about as rare as the Balloon rides and Jimmy Buffet concerts.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

My partners and I are most grateful to The Mirror for its support of our new Artists' Registry. The pictures and the article in your last edition depicted very well what we hope to do.

Thank you again for helping to encourage support for the many very fine artists in the area.

'Charlie Brown' is family fun at Barn

BY MICHELLE NASPINSKI

Area residents who have grown weary of filmed entertainment and caused summer may find a pleasant alternative in the Barn Theatre's summer production of "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown."

The Clark Gesner musical based on the "Peanuts" comic strip by Charles M. Shulz opened at the Stuart theatre on Friday and will show until August 16th.

"Charlie Brown" brings the much-beloved Peanuts characters of Linus, Lucy, Snoopy, Schroeder and Patty to life on the Barn stage and makes for a fine evening's entertainment for the entire family.

The stage portrayals of most of the play's main characters were quite good and should bring a smile to fans of the Peanuts strip.

In particular, Eileen Miraglia gave a convincing performance as the ill-tempered, chronically crabby Lucy, who dominated the stage with boisterous protestations and teeth-clenching apologies to unseen adults.

Miraglia's stage presence could hardly be rivalled except, perhaps, by an irrepressible Charlie Red, who portrayed Charlie Brown's precocious pet beagle, Snoopy.

"Here sits the World War I flying ace in search of the villainous Red Baron," the beagle-outfitted Red said, as he mounted his sopwith camel doghouse.

Red's interpretation and characterization of Snoopy, probably the most difficult of the Peanuts characters to portray, was believable and left patrons of the cartoon beagle satisfied.

Also worthy of mention was Michael Carruthers' adaptation of the thumb-sucking, blanket-toting Linus character in the musical number "My Blanket and Me." Carruthers' brief dance sequence with his security blanket may not have been the envy of Ginger and Fred, but his comic enactment of Linus's devout attachment to the cloth was superb.

All the "Charlie Brown" players made an admirable showing in the "Book Report" sketch, which musically detailed the childhood frustrations of schoolwork.

Despite the obvious efforts of the cast and wonderful, light-hearted quality of the play, however, "Charlie Brown" was not without its technical flaws.

Most distracting among these was the spare set design, which compared poorly with some of the past Barn Theatre sets.

Due to the unstructured style in which the play was written, the Barn's production of "Charlie Brown" could have been better served by a somewhat more elaborate set and backdrop than the symbolic over-sized children's toys and background light designs that were used.

Also noticeable was the lack of any strong vocalist in the cast, who could have carried other characters through the thirteen musical numbers. This was an especial shame, as no amount of good characterization can make up for poor singing ability in a musical production such as this.

But as the Barn directors are quick to admit, Stuart is not Broadway, and local theatrical efforts cannot be expected to have the polish of those produced in a large metropolitan center.

Minor flaws aside, the Barn's "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown" is good, clean family-style entertainment and provides an enjoyable diversion for a warm summer's evening.

Those interested in seeing "Charlie Brown" can call the Barn box office for ticket information at 287-4884.

HOPE FOR HEALTH

Keys to Good Health Naturally

By Dr. Jack L. Webb

Have you been in an accident lately? We hope you have not, but if you have, the following words may be of the utmost importance to you.

Statistics prove that more accidents happen in the home than any other single place. Perhaps, during housecleaning you fell off a chair or ladder, or one of your children fell down the stairs or hurt himself while climbing. Usually, in such cases not involving serious injury, you don't give it a second thought.

Time passes. Meanwhile, those little bones of the spine, jarred out of position by the accident gradually close atha intervertigral space pinching the nerve roots until they can no longer withstand further decrease in their size. A sudden movement may set off an irritative response to the nerve roots which may result in pain and disability.

Prevention pays great dividends!

Have your spine examined before serious symptoms occur.

GOP women to hear Senatorial Candidate Rubin

Republican candidate for U.S. Senate, Ellis Rubin, will be in Fort Pierce Tuesday, August, 12. The Women's Republican Club welcomes Republicans from St. Lucie, Martin, and Indian River Counties to come and meet Attorney Rubin at its monthly meeting beginning at 11:30 a.m. Elks Lodge, 615 S. U.S.1, Fort Pierce.

Also invited to appear are local Republican candidates for St. Lucie County Sheriff, superintendent of schools, board of public instruction, and county commission.

Candidate Rubin will speak before lunch served at 1:00 p.m. For required luncheon reservations, call Edna Burk at 878-2840, or Eunice Ellsworth, 465-3978, by 6:00 p.m. Sunday, August 10.

Attorney Rubin is a well known lecturer in high schools and colleges on juvenile delinquency, drug abuse, right-to-life, and TV violence and has appeared on world wide TV network programs. As former Special Assistant Attorney General in Florida in charge of anti-subversive activities, he was the first state official to recommend required course - Americanism vs communism - for high school students.

Rubin's representing mobile home tenants in revising leases and rights against park owners led to a Mobile Home Bill of Rights. He has served as organizer and state chairman of Parents Against Forced Busing in the 1970's, forced lifting of TV blackouts of National Football League home games and super bowl, presented last case leading to Florida adopting TV cameras in courtrooms. National president of attorney group representing those victims of malicious and unjustified lawsuits. He is a retired commander, U.S. Naval Reserve, and former Americanism chairman, Dept. of Florida, American Legion.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

As of today, January 1, 1981, you can earn interest on your checking account. That's right, your checking account can earn interest just like your savings account has been doing for years. It's a revolution in banking.

You may very well be reading the above headline in January. Banking regulations are changing. One change, effective the first of the year, will be the introduction of checking accounts that pay interest. They will be called now accounts. N.O.W. for negotiable order of withdrawal.

The law presently prohibits banks in Florida from paying interest on checking accounts until January first. But First National can show you how to get similar benefits right now, with a First National PRE-NOW ACCOUNT.

We'll show you how to earn interest, right now, on funds normally idle in your checking account. We'll show you how to enjoy the convenience of checking and at the same time obtain the maximum earning power from your savings. We'll show you how to automatically transfer money from savings to checking. All right now without going to the bank or making any phone calls.

We'll show you how to do all of this when you ask about First National's PRE-NOW ACCOUNT. But do it right now.

Warner Creek dredging, River Club docks are approved

Martin County Commissioners voted last week to grant a letter of no objection for plans to build 28-slip boat docks at the River Club condominium project along SR 707 in Rio and to dredge a sandbar in the mouth of Warner Creek.

Lloyd Dutcher, owner of River Club, said he has already received a state Department of Environmental Regulation's permit for the work and is expecting an Army Corps of Engineers permit "anyday now."

Dutcher noted that the boat docks will be built in the St. Lucie River, and said the dredging to remove a sandbar at the mouth of Warner Creek is being done primarily to benefit boaters at the Reserve, 21 project who have had some trouble getting in and out of the creek. He speculated that the removal of the sandbar should improve the flushing action in the creek.

"I'd like to stress that we are going to do no dredging in the river at all," he said.

The boat docks will mostly be for small boats, but Dutcher said some boats as large as 35 feet long could be accommodated. He noted that there will be about five feet of water depth at the docks.

Construction of the docks and the sandbar removal will begin as soon as the permit arrives.

In other county action last week, commissioners ordered two sets of plans to be prepared for erosion control on the Jensen Beach Causeway.

Commissioner Frank Wacha said one plan will be for vertical seawall and one for a sloped revetment.

The plans will be drafted by the county planning department, then commissioners will weigh the pros and cons of them, as well as the costs of implementing them, before selecting a plan.

Commissioners decided to designate the county as the general contractor to finish building the log cabin senior citizen's center at Langford Park. County Engineer Ed Grassmeyer will serve as project engineer, a project superintendent will be hired, and sub-contractors will be used.

A bid of $188,000 was approved for realignment of Seaview along A1A at the county fairgrounds. The bid was from Dickerson, Inc.

Permission was granted for the American Red Cross to use the recreation hall at Langford Park, as well as the county courthouse, as emergency shelters.

Adult and Community Education of Martin County Schools is planning a basic photography class at Murray Middle School to start the first week of August.

This course is designed to teach beginning skills in portrait and commercial photography and will involve the student in theory, laboratory and studio work, including composition and color as it relates in all phases of camera dynamics. The use of meters and other photographic equipment will be discussed.

This class will be meeting on Wednesdays for 10 weeks. Pre-registration is required. Interested students may register by calling the Adult and Community Education office 287-6400, extension 131, week days between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Junior Football sign-up

Summer isn't over yet, but it's time to sign up for the football season.

Boys 10 to 14 years old who would like to play in Junior League Football should report to Langford Park at 10 a.m. Saturday, August 9, for registration.

A Special Request

We know Jensen Area has grown tremendously in the last few years, and that has added a problem with so many housing developments, mobile home parks, etc. duplicating names of streets, avenues and terraces with those already existing.

Also, newcomers may not realize this is the case.

So, for everyone needing our service, we would appreciate it very much if when making a call you would give your name, house number, street name or number and add your location such as Rio, North River Shores, Palm Lake, Hutchinson Island, etc. It will help us reach the patient much sooner. An added thought, please, if possible, have some one outside to flag us down. Thank you so very much for your help.

A big thank you to the men from Pine Lake Village and Ocean Breeze Park who keep our rigs sparkling through the heat of summer and the cold days of winter. We really appreciate your loyalty. We get so many compliments from the public. A comment recently was, "I see you have a new ambulance. It was in fact our oldest, 610. Now five years old.

IF YOU CATCH 'EM-you have to clean 'em and that is just what Tony Paternella, (right) and Michael Ullman, both 14 of Port St. Lucie, are doing at the fish cleaning station near Poor Bob's on the Jensen Causeway. They had just caught 20 panfish from the little bridge where the cleaning station is located.

Two Jensen students at N.C. program

Two Jensen Beach residents were among 350 elementary, junior high an high school students who attended "The Cullowhee Experience", a summer enrichment program for intellectually gifted students, at Western Carolina University in Cullowhee, North Carolina, recently.

The local students are Philip Laidlaw, a seventh grader of 2947 N.E. 14th Drive, and eighth grader Daryl Aderhold, of 3708 N.E. Melba Drive, attended the program.

The four week program, which just completed its 23rd year under the sponsorship of WCU's School of Education and Psychology, offers a balance of academic, cultural, social and recreational activities to gifted students in grades five through 10.

Most of the program participants are from North Carolina and the Southeast, but some represent states as far away as Illinois and Ohio. They were selected to attend on the basis of having individual IQ scores of 130 or better and achievement records indicating a two-grade placement level above the class to which they belong. Admission also was based on recommendations from school principals and guidance counselors.

NOW to have booth at mall

On Saturday, August 23, the Indian River Area Chapter of the National Organization for Women will observe the 60th anniversary of the ratification of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The 19th Amendment gave women in the United States the right to vote.

The NOW chapter will set up a booth at East Ocean Mall between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 23, and will distribute literature and answer questions. Chapter members will wear white and green in symbolism of suffragist and Equal Rights Amendment colors, and will travel through the mall with ERA NOW balloons.

The East Ocean Mall is on East Ocean Boulevard in Stuart.

Small business course is set

For Dee and Morris Brink traveling is one of life's greatest pleasures. After their extensive tour of the Scandinavian countries in June, climaxed by a 12 day cruise of the Norwegian fiords, Brinks spent several days in London. When they left London they flew to Canada to join two Canadian couples, winter visitors in Holiday Out, at a fishing lodge. They caught some small mouth black bass.

Then they drove to Michigan to visit Doc and Marian Asline, former Holiday Out and Venture III lot owners. The Brinks finally reached home in Harrisburg, Pa. the last week in July in time to celebrate Morris's birthday with several parties with friends.

Now Dee says she is working hard in her garden trying to lose some of the wight she gained during their travels!

Bagwell seeks re-election to Martin County Commission

Lavon "Bud" Bagwell has announced his bid for re-election to the Martin County Commission, District 3. He has served on the commission for the past two years. The 48 year-old Republican has devoted himself full time to the role of county commissioner dedicating his efforts to control the area's growth although sensible planning.

A retired U.S. Army Lieutenant Colonel Bagwell has been a permanent resident of Hobe Sound since 1972. He has "22 years" military experience and extensive work with political and civic organizations.

I would like to continue the work I have started, said Bagwell, explaining his reason for reseeking the office. I feel good when I can accomplish things that help people.

As county commissioner he has served on numerous committees including comprehensive planning, veterans service, beaches and parks, emergency services and Loxahatchee Council of Governments. He represents Martin County on the Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council and prior to his election was a member of the Martin County Zoning Board of Adjustments.

Other positions include past commander of the VFW Post 10132 in Hobe Sound and member of the Hobe Sound First Aid Squad, Acacia Masonic Lodge in Stuart, Lake Worth Amara Shrine Temple, The National Historical Society and the Martin County Anglers Club.

Public service is a way of life for the Bagwell family His wife, Betty, is an emergency medical technician, working at least two 12 hour shifts each week with the Hobe Sound First Aid Squad She is also treasurer-book keeper for the group and helps run their Thrift Shop, and is corresponding secretary for the Republican Women's Club of Martin County.

Bagwell and his wife reside at 9064 S.E. Pelican Island Way. The Soundings, Hobe Sound They have eight children and 12 grandchildren

Ernie gets OBP letters

The cardinals are singing joyfully every morning up here in North Carolina, telling us how glad they are that the awful heat wave has finally broken, but no matter how joyfully they sing, they don't have the repertoire of the Ocean Breeze mockingbirds Now, it's mid-80s days and low-60s nights with plenty of rain thrown in for good measure

Florida weather is almost a mystery up here. TV reports gloss over it with, "88 in Jacksonville" or something similar. Maybe, it's because Florida has mostly good weather and only hurricanes make news Anyway, letters from OBPers, say in general, hot days, good sleeping nights, plenty of rain, but not much wind or hail, so again that shows summering in Florida is 'AOK', especially as there have been reports of no mosquitos so far

PARK EVENTS (From Letters)

There was a great pot luck on the Fourth with 85 or more attending Then many went down on La Bat Lane to see the Fireworks, reported to be better than ever this year

The 'Night Patrol' is still effective with some of the patrolers saying such things as: these summer nights are quiet, peaceful and uneventful as we walk or ride in the 'black chariot' around the park watching the homes of our sleeping friends and neighbors

The shuffle reports are skimpy Only comment, lately, no one at all shuffling at night However, probably the morning foursome of Bill Jones, Claude Berks, Ray Stewart and Earl Burbanks is going strong

HOSPITAL & OBITUARY (From Letters)

Ada Baum, 2 Pepper St., says she is back home now in St Williams, Ont after minor surgery in the London Ont hospital

Earl and Irwin Sheehey of Oak St. wrote to Dot Beck saying they both had been in the hospital, but were now home recuperating

Ed Heinold of NE 10th St., has had some minor surgery up in Mass according to a letter from Dot Beck His wife Ethel who has had some illness at home said, "So, where's those Golden Years"

Ray Stiles, 7 NE Fifth Ave has had problems with his arthritis, recently, but Ray Stewart has been handy to drive him to the doctor s per letters from Veronica Snyder

Ed Schaubach, 11 NE Fourth Ave , died recently at his home in Virginia Veronica Snyder's 84 year old sister died June 21, up north Raymond Kitchen, 16 Bay Dr died recently (according to letters)

HENDERSONVILLE OBPERS

Ida Wisser of Banyan St , is active shuffling at Toms Park, nominated for president of Easler s Park Assoc

Fran Runyan, shuffle reporter, didn't have an item ready as she was busy in a tournament at Tom s Park, but says she'll have the OBP winners for next week She was addressed often last week as Mr. Runyan as a typographical error called her Frank Also, she helped defeat the Easler bunch at Bean Bag last Sunday when she led the Pompon girls in cheering her side to victory.

Ernie and Marion Curwen, along with Henry and Stel Hunt, ExOBPers are also quite acitve, learning to 'Bean Bag' (so, so) and participating in all the Easler's Park shuffle events (learning fast, now when the shot is worse than usual, they know enough to blame it onto the 'drift' or 'slow court' or 'too much wax', so soon they'll even be scoring some points.)

LETTERS FROM OBPERS

Ada Baum, 2 Pepper St., writes from P.O. Box No. 21, St. Williams, Ont. that she misses her Mirror that gets held up at the border and is only forwarded, "As the spirit moves them". She visited with her son and daughter-in-law in London, Ont. and enjoyed the visit, but now would like to hear from some of her OBP friends.

Dot Beck, Banyan and Sixth, writes that she is back in Beverly, Mass after many stop-offs on the way north to see her relatives and one of them was her first great grandchild, Now, Dot is getting into the summer swing and seeing the local 'sights', one of which is the marvelous Urban Renewal of 'Ye Olde Historic Salem'. Deedee Mertz wants her to come out with Evelyn Figueiredo for a visit, but she had to say, no. Then, Dot ends with, "I'll be back in Oct. or early Aug." (?).

Ellen Nixon of Center St. writes that she has heard from the following: Rains of Pine St. say it is even too hot to go camping; Bygds of South Sixth St. are both fine and so is their garden; Aumillers of 1 Indian River Dr., from up there in Pennsylvania say they had a big Fourth, with Dick playing in a band with his daughter, granddaughter and family, then regards to themselves. Ellen says they are going back to square dancing before it's too late

George and Belva Dean of Broad St came back recently from Penna with a great big U-Haul The Brunts, Chases and the Mertz are on a cruise and the Cumpatys are back from a 2 week jaunt that lasted five (these tidbits are from various letters)

Ocean Breeze

BY ERNIE CURWEN

Lura T Myer of 8 Arborvitae writes from 504 E Columbus Ave., Bellefontaine, Ohio, 43311, that she visited ExOBPer, Carrie Teal, who was seriously ill last October, at her home in Ottumwa, Iowa Carrie is a little thinner, but looks good and feels good much of the time The red carpet was rolled out for Lura and they had a wonderful time playing a lot of bridge, even though the temperature was over 100 at times It's beautiful farm land was Lura's final comment

FROM LETA KEITH

Sweet little Betty McNab will certainly be missed in Ocean Breeze Having served as a graduate nurse for years she was always willing to help neighbors and other friends My experience with Betty was if she couldn't say something good about someone she wouldn't say anything

She never recovered from the shock of her daughter's death last month After the funeral, she accomplanied her other daughter home to California, where she died She was buried in Pennsylvania Jack Jr is expected soon to handle her affairs here

Eddie M Schaubach Sr., 80, of Crewe, Virginia, died in the earlier part of July in Virginia He has spent many winters in Ocean Breeze Park and we extend our sincere sympathy to his wife Flora.

Luther and Mary Weeks of Sixth happened to be visiting in Crewe at that time and attended Ed's funeral. They said we can expect to see Flora this fall when she returns to their mobile home

The daughter of Rose Goodman called to say that her mother had died. She had not been able to come here for several years Rose was a master of Marie Beck

What good cooks we have here 60 people enjoyed the pot-luck or carry in dinner Friday evening at the Club house

Here are a few quotes from Nettie Christie from her daughter Winnie's home in LaJolla, Cal "Sister Mabel, and I are on our own for a week. Winnie and George have gone on a camping trip with their tent and trailer. Their 4 grown children, 3 married, 2 single, all live close by in their own apartements. We are responsible for the CARE of their dog and 2 birds plus some plants to water. We have a well stocked refrigerator plus a pool and jacuzzi 200 feet from the front door, which we can make use of whenever we feel in the mood.

Ray STiles is to have one of his knees operated on real soon.

Mr. & Mrs. Len Schneider are still entertaining in Northern, Illinois, and wrote the Sheeby brothers that he was making a large case out of wire fencing, painting it gold for Juanita to stand in as she whistles, "The Bird in the Gilted Cage".

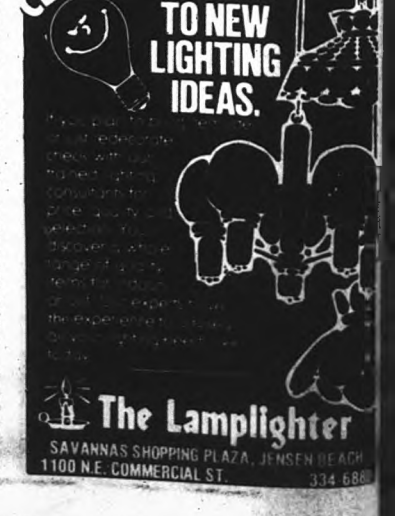
First National declares quarter dividend

First National Bank and Trust Company of Stuart has declared a second quarter dividend for fiscal year 1980 of 40 cents per share, according to Dennis S. Hudson, Jr., Chairman

The dividend was approved by the bank's Board of Directors and was payable to shareholders of record as of June 23 It was the bank's 118th consecutive dividend payment and was issued June 30

According to Hudson, the American Banker listed First National Bank in the top 7 percent of all banks in the United States according to 1979 deposits "We are large enough to handle the financial needs of the community, and yet by being locally owned and operated we are more sensitive to our customers' needs." he said

When questioned on the holding companies moving into Martin County, Hudson said, "We are proud of the fact that our policies and decisions are made in and for Martin County with our area residents' best interests at heart. We have the most updated and innovative services in the area, including our network of 24-hour automated teller machines and our combined checking and savings statements Our trust department, managed by the area's most highly educated trust officers, operates with assets in excess of $100,000,000."



Seatrout and channel bass best bet

BY DICK LUNDIN

BOTTOM FISHING in the river is down a bit this week, the surf is way off, offshore action features cobia, bonito and mangrove snappers, snook fishing is slow horseheads and the bridges and jetties aren't too productive. The best fishing seems to be for spotted seatrout and channel bass (redfish) in the Indian River north of the power plant where the water is somewhat cleaner.

I tested it out a bit Monday morning at the east catwalk of the Frank Wacha Bridge on the Jensen Causeway. My grandson, Wade, had never been fishing and the six-year-old had importuned me to take him, so there we were early on with a supply of fresh shrimp and two light spinning rods. Things were really slow and about the only strikes we had were from small fish nibbling away the shrimp. Wade just couldn't seem to tell when he had a bite and was continually hauling up his hook to show me that the shrimp was gone, again.

We stayed with it, anyway, and at long last, when it seemed he would never have any luck, I was electrified by the ecstatic scream: "Grandpa, grandpa, I've got one, I've got one!" Fortunately the little six ounce mangrove snapper had hooked himself and the little angler, cranking away furiously and excitedly, finally swung the helpless mangrove over the railing onto the bridge. If it had been a 1,000 lb blue marlin he couldn't have been more pleased with his catch.

After that, it was all anticlimactic and about all Wade really wanted to do was to go home and show his catch to his grandmother. We stayed another hour as his span of attention really waned, and finally went home where our now seasoned fisherman proudly displayed his catch.

Taking a kid fishing is all that they say it is. Try it soon!

ON THE FRESHWATER SCENE, if you haven't fished in the Jensen Savannas, why not get in touch with guide Earl Gasner (334-5696) and let him take you in there. They're catching some nice largemouth bass in the Savannas now, and there are giant bream (bluegills) there too.

FRANK DOBSON from the Buck Head Ridge Marina on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee off SR 78 just west of the Kissimmee River Bridge (813-763-2826): "Fishing's not really too bad, Dick. They caught some really super big bluegills in Tin House Cove on live worms this week. Bluegill fishing is very good in the Rim Canal near the Marina. Bass fishing is just average but several have limited out on live shiners. There aren't too many shellcrackers around, but those in were in previous years. There are better bluegills being caught this year than I've ever seen."

FROM THE PARTY BOAT LADY STUART, going half days from the Sailfish Marina just east of Port Salerno off A1A below Stuart, Lou Fronimore: "We've been getting some nice snapper, bonito, triggerfish and a few sea bass out on Six Mile Reef in 80 ft of water. It's been fair but no kings this week. We had a sail last Sunday, a live looter. We're seeing a few kings skyrocketing but very few sails are out there now."

RITA FASANO, from the party boat Miss Fort Pierce going full days from the Fort Pierce Marina: "Fishing's picking up. We're getting cobia, some really nice mangrove snappers and other bottom fish species. Saturday past, we had 20 mangrove snappers in the three to five pound class, also four 5 to 10 lb. mutton snappers. They got a few 20 lb. amberjacks too. Some catches: John Martin of Port St. Lucie, a 42-0 cobia; John Stone, Ft. Pierce, a 9-0 mangrove snapper; Annette Fasano, a 25-0 125 lb. cobia and a 6-8 mangrove; Bob Fehl of Miami, a 32-0 cobia and 3 mutton snappers; Alice Nealand of Ft. Pierce, 2 mangrove snappers of 6-0 and 8-0; Richard Albee, a 18-0 red grouper."

FROM D&M BAIT AND TACKLE at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S. 1 above Stuart: "I don't have too much for you today, Dick. There's a lot of mangrove snappers being caught in the river. Sunday, I went fishing for the first time since coming here from Pompano four years ago, taking my little 4-year-old grandson. We fished from the seawall at Pier 4 and I caught two nice mangrove snappers and the little one got a small catfish. Fishing just isn't too swift here now. It isn't the way it was two weekends ago but could heat up any day. They're still catching a few sheepshead and black drum though."

CHUCK SHEPHERD from the Bait Box in Jensen: "Fishing doesn't seem to be the greatest. Conrad White had 2 wahoo of 20-0 and 35-0, 3 kings, 4 cudas and a 6-ft. shark, trolling with ballyhoo and rigged squid NE of the inlet in 200 ft. of water; Robert Irons, a 3-0 bluefish, 2 trout, on a mirrolure at the spoil island near the power plant; Norman Soyka, 2 trout to 4-0 and 10 mangrove snappers on live shrimp drifting north of the Cross Roads."

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK in Jensen, Johnny Crawford: "There are a lot of trout in the river and some channel bass are showing up there again. Bottom fishing is slow. The surf has loads of bait fish and rolling tarpon but nobody is catching any whiting or croakers to speak of. Bridge and causeway fishermen are getting only a few sand perch, mangrove snappers and croakers now. It just seems to be a dead river except for the seatrout and the channel bass. I hear that they caught a couple of blues at the Roosevelt this week. Some big snook are being caught in the Fort Pierce Inlet on live shrimp. Bass fishing back in the Savannas is pretty fair now. The water above Walton Road in the Savannas is still up. The best trout fishing is north of the power plant where the water is much cleaner. The channel bass are up there too going for mirrolures in the 21 and 27 series. The trout are running a little bigger. There are fish out there if you can get the spooky devils to hit for you, Dick."

The Nook's log: Hal Kelsey and Tom Deedats, 10 channel bass, a snook and 5 trout, aggregate of 100 lbs., and a 18-0 cuda, all on 7M series mirrolures wading close to the power lines in the Indian River; Pete Peterson and Stan Lippincott, 6 channel bass and a 7-0 trout on trout touts drifting north of the power plant along the west shore; John Heyburn, 6 croakers and a 7-12 trout, nylure jigs, below the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge; Kevin Atkinson, 3 trout, live shrimp, Frank Wacha Bridge on the Jensen Cause way; Jim Finizio, a 31-12 snook on live shrimp, Fort Pierce Inlet; Roger Meldrum, a 31-0 African pompano and Dan Henning 10 bonito, trolling off the beach using live bunker (menhaden); Lee Whipple and Scott Gallivan, 3 sails hooked and one 6-footer landed, a cuda, a king and 2 bonito, ballyhoo trolling in 150 ft. of water due east of the St. Lucie Inlet; Tony Longo, 3 Florida largemouth bass on a plastic worm fishing in the Savannas; the Brennan boys, 6 sand perch, 4 mangrove snappers, a jack crevalle and a croaker, fishing with clams and shrimp from the Frank Wacha Bridge.

BY MIKE SANDY

BY MIKE SANDY

Proof that the Treasure Coast of Florida is fast becoming the "Golf Capital" of the world is evidenced in a pair of recent announcements and others in the "rumor" stage.

As we mentioned in previous columns, Mariner Sands would plan an additional 18 holes. This became factual this week when Erling Speer, president of Mariner Sands Development Corp., said design and completion of the second course has top priority in the development of Phase 2. It is reported that golf course architect Tom Fazio has been retained to design the second 18-hole championship course, which should be ready for play in the Fall of 1981.

Word also came to us this week of the newest of the area's golf facilities with the official opening of Heritage Ridge Golf Club, situated just a few hundred feet south of Mariner Sands on U.S. 1 in Stuart. This is a "dream-come-true" for a pair of golf-loving guys, Al Farina and Terry Keathley, developers of the project. Designed as an 18-hole Par excellent executive course, Heritage Ridge opened its first nine for play this month with ribbon cutting ceremonies.

County Commissioner Bud Bagwell did the honors with shears. The Commissioner was accompanied during the ceremony and succeeding round of golf by Heritage Ridge developer Keathly and Farina, builder Larry McDonald, Director of Sales R. V. Johnson, land planner Tom Kenny, and golf pro Tom Cioffi. Also on hand for opening day was Mrs. Jean M. Weidt, the first purchaser of a home at Heritage Ridge.

Earlier in the day, the Sarno Brothers (Bill, Mike Pete and Tony) became the first foursome to play on the back nine in the fall, with completion set for September or October of 1981. At that time, golfers will play the front nine, then tunnel under Heritage Blvd. to the back nine, make the loop there from A1A to U.S. 1, and come back to the clubhouse, which includes a full-service pro shop. The first nine holes include numerous lakes, bunkers, dogleg holes, and a par 5 hole; along with a practice range and putting green.

Upon completion, the Heritage Ridge community will be offering single family homes, townhomes, duplexes, tennis courts, jogging paths, a shopping center and professional offices. In all, nine residential communities are planned for the Heritage Ridge Community. Two of those, Lexington Wood (single family homes on the golf course) and Jamestown, (townhomes overlooking a lake and the golf course) are now under construction. Models are now open for inspection. A Grand Opening for the entire community is planned for the Fall.

Those of us who couldn't find golf action on TV this past weekend, will be treated through the tubes with action of the PGA championship from Oak Hill Country Club in Rochester, N.Y. Golf Digest's expert panel makes Tom Watson a 5 to 1 favorite to win the coveted title with Lee Trevino and Jack Nicklaus as their second choice. However, I'm going out on a limb to predict that little-known Terry Diehl will be among the leaders. Terry is a native of the Kodak City, and Oak Hill is his home course. There has been a face change on the prestigious course with actually four new holes. Oakhill brought in the famed team of George and Tom Fazio to "toughen" up the course. Each of the new holes can be intimidating where a player could make a big score. Oak Hill, site of three national championships including the 1968 Open won by Lee Trevino, never had a hole that offered a double or triple bogey. Now, with the newly constructed holes, players can face disaster on either of the new holes. Remember them when you're watching. They are holes 5, 6, 15, and 18. There's no doubt that the Fabio names will be uttered in "under the breath" expletives by those whose shots go slightly astray on these holes.

Adding more impetus to claim this area as the Golf Capital comes in the form of an announcement that two courses of the newly completed PGA National on PGA Blvd. are ready for play. With this report comes word that PGA National will host the world's largest all-professional golf championship since the PGA's creation 12 years ago. Officials report a record-setting nation-wide qualifying field of 1382, according to Frank Cardi president, who is also golf director of Jonathan's Landing in Jupiter. He reported that included in the field are at least 25 club professionals who have been past winners on the PGA Tour. This year's field includes 17 exempt players competing in the $125,000, 72-hole stroke play event Oct. 23 to 26. Four of the 17 are past PGA Championship winners--Julius Boros, Doug Ford, Jerry Barber and Dow Finsterwald who own a total of five major championship crowns. Ford also is a former Master's champion and Boros a two time U.S. Open victor. Plans call for competition over three courses, two at PGA National and the north course at Frenchman's Creek County Club. After all players have competed once over all three layouts, the field will be cut to the low 90 scorers for the final round.

We also got wind of some strong rumors that developers of the now famous Quail Ridge Golf courses have taken options on land adjoining the South Fork of the St. Lucie River where plans call for two championship courses. We'll know more about that soon...we hope.....

DORIS WILSON--says she has been coming here since 1950 to fish on Hutchinson Island, all the way from Belle Glade once or twice a month. "The fishing has gone down hill steadily. There was a time when we could cathe all the fish we wanted from any of the bridges or seawalls over here, but now it's hard to catch more than a blenny now and then. It's so beautiful around here though that I still enjoy coming. Where can you find a more beautiful scene than right here?"

It's illegal to kill or molest gators

BY DICK LUNDIN
Outdoor Editor

ALTHOUGH THERE ARE TIMES when it seems we are literally up to our posteriors in alligators, it is still illegal to kill or molest them in Florida.

The Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission reminds us that despite the seeming abundance of the big reptiles, gators are listed by the Federal government as a threatened species and are therefore protected by both state and federal authorities.

There are some, however, who just haven't gotten the word.

Over the past month, according to the Commission, state Wildlife Officers have arrested five people and seized three dead alligators in the Everglades Region. These individuals face stiff fines or even jail sentences.

Gators have also been found with their tails hacked off, further evidence of poaching activity.

Up until the mid Sixties, alligators were illegally killed for their hides and so many wound up as handbags or shoes that they were placed on the endangered species list.

Laws that made the sale or possession of hides illegal dried up the market and the gator began a comeback that is one of the success stories of wildlife.

Alligator meat is sold legally under strict regulation at certain restaurants in Florida. In these restaurants, tight controls are maintained by the Commission on the meat, which is obtained through alligator farms or from licensed alligator trappers.

These trappers are under contract to the Commission and are assigned to handle complaints from citizens about alligators that pose problems. Most of these complaints, the Commission points out, originate in urban areas where big gators reside in neighborhood canals, even invading private swimming pools.

A trapper is dispatched by the Commission to handle these complaints and, in most cases, it means catching the reptile.

Only gators that are over four feet in length and represent a clear threat to the populace are handled in this manner.

Should you have a problem with an alligator, you are encouraged to call the Commission at 1-800-432-2046. When the trapper comes, he will identify himself to you before attempting to capture the phosphor gator.

Ever seen a poached gator?

If you see someone killing, catching, feeding or harassing alligators, and who does not positively identify himself as a Commission employee or agent, call the Commission promptly.

Remember, under the state's "Wildlife Alert" program, citizens making reports that lead to arrest and convictions for wildlife violations may be entitled to a reward.

Most of the problems with alligators originate when people feed them, according to the Commission. The gators lose their wariness of man and may become dangerous.

Keep in mind that in Florida it's against the law to feed alligators!

Alligators are one of the hold-overs from a bygone era of big reptiles now long extinct. They are one of the keys to the survival of other species of wildlife in many areas, and most will never cause a problem if left alone by man.

To ensure their continued active participation in Florida's natural world, the present rules and regulations will be strictly enforced by the Commission's Wildlife Officers.

THE WATERFOWL SEASON for 1980-81 in Florida will begin one half hour before sunrise on Wednesday, Nov. 26, according to action taken recently by the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Under the migratory bird frame work approved by the board, duck and coot season will again be in two phases. The first will be Nov. 26 through Dec. 7 and the second from Dec. 13 through Jan. 19.

This fall, steel shot will be required in all gauge shotguns in areas where steel shot is required.

Dove season will begin Oct. 4 and continue in its first phase through Nov. 2. The second phase will get under way Nov. 8 and run until Nov. 23, with the last phase Dec. 13 through Jan. 15.

Shooting hours remain from noon until sunset.

Other migratory bird seasons adopted are rail and Florida gallinule from Sept. 1 through Nov. 9, woodcock from Dec. 6 through Feb. 8; snipe from Nov. 8 through Feb. 22.

In addition to action taken on the waterfowl season, the Commission heard a report from the Division of Wildlife about a proposed research study on the whooping crane. The Division is slated to begin a project to establish a non migratory population of this endangered species right here in Florida. Eggs from the whoopers will be placed in the nests of non migratory sandhill cranes for rearing. This type of project has proved successful in Idaho.

In two other actions, the Commission established bird sanctuaries in Brevard, Escambia, Pasco and Santa Rosa counties, and declared Myakka River State Park from those areas where hogs are considered legal game.

CHECK STATION OPERATORS are wanted by the GFWFC for the J.W. Corbett Wildlife Management Area west of West Palm Beach.

Two people are being sought, according to biologist Bruce Bowman, to man the stations. The duties will include collecting biological data from sports hunters and being alert to possible wildlife violations.

If you're interested, get in touch with Bowman at the Everglades Regional Office in West Palm Beach (305 683-0748).

CRUISING WORLD magazine is out again and the August issue is another delight for sailormen and women. Like all the rest, this issue is chock full of interesting and informative articles, but it'd be more than worth the $2 it takes to acquire a copy from your news stand just for the article by Christopher Wain, "A Hurricane's Coming. Now what?"

The big point Wain makes is that if preparations begin at first notice, you may come through unscathed.

Here's a sample of his caveats: "Except in very rare instances, leaving your boat tied up and unattended is an excellent way to assure its loss, while tending it could be an extremely dangerous task. Shallow water, seawall reflection, other boats, shoddy docks, tide-covered pilings and wind driven shorecide debris all will conspire to drown or pound a boat into an irrecoverable hulk.

"The first decision, then is fairly easy. When possible, get to open water, preferably in the lee of a high headland to deflect the wind's force. Try to select a line based on the hurricane's most likely wind direction at landfall. This "forewarned and forearmed" tactic should have as near complete protection as possible, with good holding ground.

"When you move into open water, the hazards are reduced to wind, waves, high tides and drifting debris, and these can be reduced further by hauling out and trucking inland."

Another interesting article is "To Breakfast With Porpoises" by Frank Bestwick, and many will appreciate "The Shellfish Gambit," in which Don Spoor tells "the real story behind the $650 masterpiece."

Seafood lovers will find tips to their liking in "a seafood catching and preparing primer by Charles Wood under "Freshly Caught Cuisine Like Is A Taste Treat."

I think you'll enjoy reading Cruising World even if you aren't a devotee of sails.

Scharlau and Harkness tie for top pro awards

Sandy Scharlau, an unattached golf pro of Stuart, and Tom Harkness, head pro at Jonathon's Landing in Jupiter, finished in a tie for top pro awards in the weekly Pro Am event staged at the Mariner Sands Golf course Friday.

Both turned in cards of 69, three under par, to lead a contingent of 23 area professionals. Both Scharlau and Harkness fattened their pocketbooks with $90. Bruce Harrison of Sandpiper Bay wound up in third place with a one under 71, followed by Joe Kazen of Vero Beach at 72, and Steve Cunningham of Sandpiper, 73.

Harkness also contributed to his team's first place finish of 22 under par in the Pro Am division. Play in this bracket is a two best of four ball contest. Amateur members of the winning team included Dick Pfer and Charlie Pfister of Jupiter with a first time starter in the event -- Katsuma Hosaka who took time-out from preparing dishes at the famed Benihana eatery.

Greg Cerullo of Sandpiper paved the way for his team's second place which had amateurs Lee Rinker, Bob Madyda of Crane Creek and Dr. Bill Caldwell of Mariner Sands.

Veteran Joe Lopez of Palm Beach had his team at 20 under par for the next position and included amateurs Jim (Cart Man) Negron, Mariner Sands; Lou Merlano, Sandpiper and Earl Husnander, Martin County.

One of the Gower identical twins, Dave, who assists at Mid Rivers, got his game together to bring his team to a 20-under tie with the Lopez combo. His amateur partners provided stellar rounds. They are Gary Wirth, Sandpiper; Bill Gombas, Mariner Sands; and John Hennessey of Stuart.

The next Pro-Am will be at Sandpiper Bay on Friday, Aug. 8.

The next Pro-Am scheduled at Mariner Sands is set for Friday, Aug. 29th and once again those wishing to participate are urged to be in contact with either the Mariner Sands or Sandpiper pro shops.

PSL women's golf scores

The Port St. Lucie women's golf assoc played at the Sandra Course, Sandpiper Bay on July 30, for three worst holes out. The winners are: Flight A, Marie Parsons; Flight One, Dorris Rose; Flight Two, Ruth Kretsch; Flight Three, Anne Fisher; and Flight Four, Pat Hyde.

Northport men's golf scores

Northport men's golf association scores showed Earl Graham winning flight A with a net of 57. John Schwartz had a 61. In flight B Ray Mink had a 56. Jim Larsen netted a 61.

Bill Sweditsch took flight C with a 54. Al McIntyre had a 60. Hal Nowicki scored a 58 for flight D. Bill Yacinski had a 68.

Graham was closest to the pin on the third hole. Roy Black was closest on the 14th.

Eagles, Chargers good Super Bowl XV parlay

By DICK LUNDIN

SUPER BOWL XV will be played by the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Los Angeles Rams if you would believe the oddmakers, but there are really six teams. Steelers, Chargers, Cowboys, Oilers, Eagles and Rams with gilt-edged credentials and a few long shots like the Dolphins, Redskins, Bears, Patriots, Broncos, Browns and Bucs, all with some kind of a chance at NFL glory come next January.

The Steelers could have motivational problems this season. The Rams slipped through on the nail to make the Super Bowl last year but don't figure to repeat. The Cowboys will be tough even without Roger Staubach but may not have enough steam to take the ever-improving Eagles. Snake Stabler will improve the Oilers but there only way to the Super Bowl is through Pittsburgh and it seems unlikely that they're ready to dethrone the champions.

THE TWO BEST BETS, therefore would seem to be Dick Vermeil's Philadelphia Eagles and Don Coryell's San Diego Chargers.

This crystal ball sees these two in Super Bowl XV and in such a hot instance predicts that the explosive Chargers will prevail.

Call that mid-summer madness if you will; or call it wishful thinking, or call it just a desire to see some different teams in the Super Bowl that's how it looks from here, now.

To see how that line of reasoning developed, here's how the NFL races seem to shape up before the pre-season.

IN THE AFC EAST, make it Miami, New England, Buffalo, the New York Jets and Baltimore. That's partly wishful thinking because on paper the Patriots figure to win, yet nearly always find a way to self-destruct down the stretch.

IN THE AFC CENTRAL, Pittsburgh is the bellwether, followed by Houston, Cleveland and Cincinnati. It's tough on the Oilers and Browns to be in there with the potent Steelers.

IN THE AFC WEST, those high scoring, defensively adequate San Diego Chargers appear to be a shoo-in. They'll be chased by Denver, Seattle, Oakland and Kansas City. Those Seahawks may be ready to make a playoff move.

IN THE NFC EAST, the race among Philadelphia, Washington and Dallas should be a good one, and the Redskins could be real sleepers this time around, but the Eagles should win it, ahead of Dallas, Washington, the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Giants.

IN THE NFC CENTRAL, a tough schedule should dish off those defense-minded Tampa Bay Bucs enough to let the Chicago Bears win the title this year. The Bucs should beat out Billy Sims and the Detroit Lions for second, with Minnesota and Green Bay bringing up the rear.

IN THE NFC WEST, the Los Angeles Rams have what amounts to a mortal lock on the championship. The big battle will be between the New Orleans Saints and Atlanta Falcons for second, with the Saints having more firepower. The down-trodden San Francisco 49ers will be taking the dust of the others, but should win a couple more than last season when they were 2-14 with the Lions.

Just in case you don't remember offhand how the 1979 races wound up, this is how:

Miami, 10-6, New England, 9-7, N.Y. Jets, 8-8, Buffalo, 7-9, Baltimore, 5-11, in the AFC East.

Pittsburgh, 12-4, Houston, 11-5, Cleveland, 9-7, Cincinnati, 4-12, in the AFC Central.

San Diego, 12-4, Denver, 10-6, Seattle and Oakland 9-7, Kansas City, 7-9, in the AFC West.

Houston and Denver were the AFC's Wild Card teams.

Dallas and Philadelphia, 11-5, Washington, 10-6, N.Y. Giants 6-10, St. Louis, 5-11 in the NFC East.

Tampa Bay and Chicago, 10-6, Minnesota, 7-9, Green Bay, 5-11, Detroit, 2-14, in the NFC Central.

Los Angles, 9-7, New Orleans, 8-8, Atlanta, 6-10, San Francisco, 2-14, in the NFC West.

Chicago and Philadelphia were the NFC's Wild Card teams.

TO FURTHER SET THE STAGE for the upcoming 1980 NFL season, let's see how AFC stats wound up in 1979.

In kicking, Smith, N.E. (115 points); Bahr, Pitt. (104), Frutch, Hou. (104). Herrera, Sea. (100), von Schamann, Mia. (98) for the AFC.

In passing, it was Fouts, S.D. (an 82.6 rating), Stabler, Oak. (82.2), Anderson, Cin. (80.9), Zorn, Sea. (77.8) and Gregan, N.E. (77.5).

In receiving, it was Largent, Sea. (66 catches for 1,237 yds.), Stallworth, Pitt. (70-1,183), Jefferson, S.D. (61-1,090), Lewis, Buff. (54-1,082) and Joiner, S.D. (72-1,008).

In interceptions, it was Reinfeldt, Hou., 12 for 205 yds., Barbaro, K.C., 7 for 142, and Hayes, Oak. 7 for 100.

In rushing, it was Campbell, Hou. (1,697 yds.), M. Pruett, Cleve. (1,294), Harris, Pitt. (1,186), Gaines, N.Y. (905), Washington, Balt. (864), P. Johnson, Cin. (865), Cuoma, Mia. (837), van Eeghen, Oak. (818), Smith, Sea. (775), Dierking, N.Y. (767), McKnight, K.C. (755), Williams, Mia. (703).

In punting, it was Grupp, K.C. (a 43.6 average), Guy, Oak. (42.6), McInally, Cin. (41.3), Evans, Cleve. (41.2), Ramsey, N.Y. (40.8), Parsley, Hou. (40.6), Colquit, Pitt., Roberts, Mia. and Weaver, Sea. (40.2).

In punt returns, it was Nathan, Mia. (a 10.9 average), Smith, K.C. (10.8), D. Hall, Cleve. (10.2), Upchurch, Den. (10.1) and Morgan, N.E. (10.0).

In kickoff returns, it was Brunson, Oak. (a 25.9 ave.), Matthews, Oak. (24.9), Owens, S.D. (22.6), Nathan, Mia. (22.5) and Gleason, Balt. (22.5).

Team offense and defense stats have some significance too.

On offense, Pittsburgh led, piling up 2,603 rushing yards and 3,655 passing, for total yards gained of 6,258. Cleveland had 3,491, San Diego, 3,915, and Seattle 3,590. The Pats led the AFC East with 3,218, with the Jets second with 2,598 and Miami third with 2,763.

On defense, Pittsburgh was on top with 4,270 yards allowed rushing (1,709) and passing (2,561). New England was second with 4,334 and Miami third with 4,439 yards allowed overall. Those up and coming Chargers were tough with 4,456 yards given up in 1979, and with their big play offense seemingly getting better every year, why shouldn't 1980 be the Year of the Charger in the AFC?

JOHN CAPPELLETTI, the ex-Ram, could give the Chargers the running threat they got to a degree with Clarence Williams last year, and almost not at all from Lydell Mitchell and Mike Thomas. Fouts threw over 500 times in 1979 to such sterling receivers as wide-outs John Jefferson and Charlie Joiner, and tight ends Kellen Winslow and Bob Klein. With an excellent offensive line and a strong defense, San Diego looks like the team to unseat Pittsburgh.

BILL BERGEY, All Pro Eagle linebacker will be back and that should set up an ironclad Philadelphia defense to go with a Phils attack led by quarterback Ron Jaworski throwing to wide receivers Harold Carmichael and Charlie Smith, tight end Keith Krepfle and premier running back Wilbert Montgomery. The Eagles have a top flight offensive line led by Pro Bowl tackles Stan Walters and Jerry Sisemore and talented center Guy Morriss. Coach Vermeil, a bit worried about his secondary, drafted defensive back Roynell Young from Alcorn State No. 1, and provided some backup support for Montgomery by making fullback Perry Harrington of Jackson State his No. 2 draft pick. The Eagles seem to be the class of the NFC.

THAT'S HOW IT LOOKS FROM HERE — the Eagles and Chargers in the Super Bowl and Miami in the playoffs again but a Super Bowl bridesmaid once more.

THAT MAY LOOK LIKE a little mangrove snapper to you but it looked as big as a whale to young Wade Landon of Caxuelberry when he hauled it up from the river waters beneath the east eatwalk of the Frank Wacha Bridge on the Jensen Causeway. It was his first fish ever and his youthful enthusiasm knew no bounds from the time the snapper hit until it was bouncing on the deck of the eatwalk.

Papsidero and Alfrey win IRP golf tournament

Indian River Plantation's monthly men's Scramble Elimination Tournament was played last Sunday, July 27, on the Plantation's 18-hole golf course.

After 16 holes the team of Carl Alfrey and Lou Papsidero were three holes up with two to play over Bill Kendell and Terry Peters to capture first place in the scramble event.

Ann Voorheis cops first in IRP tournament

Indian River Plantation's Junior Round Robin Tournament was held at the Plantation on Sunday, July 27, for Advanced Juniors and Intermediate-Beginners Juniors.

The tournament was a six round, switching partners event, and 22 junior contestants from the tri-county area entered.

Ann Marie Voorheis captured first place in the Advanced Junior Ladies division with a total of 18 games won. Second place went to Shannon Lowry with ten games to her credit. In the Advanced Junior Men's division, Matt Ziehl took the top prize with 16 games won. Eddie Justice came in a very close second with 15 games won.

In the Intermediate Beginner Junior Ladies division, Kelly Lips won a total of 16 games to take first place, with Laurie Henry coming in second with 13 games. MacLowry narrowly defeated John Jochem in the Intermediate Beginner Junior Men's division, 17 games to 16.

Many of these contestants are enrolled in the IRP Tennis Camp, which runs from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. on weekday afternoons through Aug. 15. Due to the success of this first tournament, the Plantation will hold a second competition on Aug. 17. If you are interested in either the tennis camp or the upcoming Junior Tournament, call 225-3700 extension 2240 for more information.

McDonnell and Docos take win at Sandpiper Bay

The two-man team of Bert McDonnell and Jim Docos gathered 74 points in a Stableford scoring agree to waltz off with the "leading lady" honors among Sandpiper Men golfers Thursday with play on the rain-soaked Saints course.

Scoring in the event offers each player with 4 points for eagles, three for birdies, two for pars and a loser for a bogey.

The team of Lenny Appel and Carl Staruch finished in second place with 72 points while the John Downing and Dr. Fred Carter pairing nailed down third place with 68 points.

These duosome combinations wound up the day's play deadlocked with 67 points with Bill Aram teaming with Mike Sandy; Bob Crane and Bill Arnaldi; Bill Crane and Councilman Mike Reeb; Roy Rutherford and Joe Schulte.

Five teams were tied up at 66 rounds as Col. John Hunchurch led the solo scoring parade with the lone under tally of 70.

LET'S BE HONEST

If you weren't looking for a new position, you wouldn't be reading this ad. If we weren't looking for personnel, this ad wouldn't be here. We are interested in talking to ambitious men and women who feel that they are presently earning less than their potential, and who are not afraid of a little but of hard work for their financial independence and security. To these people, our expanding multi million dollar international fraternal benefit society offers unlimited possibilities through our present advance commission system. This is a dignified sales career with an excellent chance for promotion and generous fringe benefits. For interview, please call

IRCC Itinerary

Registration and Orientation

Fall classes are set to begin Monday, August 25, at IRCC, and registration and orientation for Fall Term will be held Thursday and Friday, August 21 and 22. Any student who plans to register for Fall should do so by 8:30 p.m. on August 22, and registration is not considered complete until all fees are paid. A series of 40-minute orientation sessions for new students will be conducted by the Campus Coalition Government throughout registration. The orientations, to take place at, 10 a.m., noon, 2 p.m., 4 p.m., 6 p.m., and 8 p.m. on both Thursday and Friday, will include information on the steps to follow to complete registration, an overview of the Student Handbook, advice on how to read class schedules, a campus tour, and refreshments. New students may select the orientation session most convenient for them; each session will convene in the Martin Room of the Kobiegard Student Union on the Main Campus. All students are encouraged to come in and pre register; even if you wait until the registration period to pay your fees, you can select your classes and set up your schedule at any time. The Guidance Office is open from 8 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Fridays.

The Performing Arts Series

Eight major productions are scheduled for the initial season of the McAlpin Fine Arts Center, and IRCC's full-time students will be given the first opportunity to purchase season tickets. Season ticket books will go on sale, at a cost of $40 per book, in conjunction with Fall Registration, and there is a limit of one ticket book per student. If the tickets do not sell out to full-time students, the general public will have an opportunity to buy them beginning September 15.

The first season's events include: Jean Michel Cousteau, October 21; "The Fantasticks", Nov. 5; Bill Russell, Dec. 15; American Dance Machine, Jan. 23, 1981; Charles Kuralt, Feb. 28; Count Basie and his Orchestra, March 11; Harry Blackstone, Jr., March 19; and "Ain't Misbehavin'", date not yet confirmed.

Legal Assistant Program Expanded

Several specialized legal assistant (paralegal) courses will be offered on the Main Campus this Fall, along with the general core courses required for the completion of any degree program. The available courses include: Law of Domestic Relations, Introduction to Paralegalism, Legal Research and Writing, and Legal Assistant Seminar. All are scheduled as evening classes for the convenience of law office employees. For more information and registration details, call the college, ext. 447.

Women's Program Schedules Events

The IRCC Women's Program has scheduled an interesting, varied, and beneficial assortment of classes this Fall at the Mueller Center in Vero Beach. First on the agenda is "Stress Management and Creative Living", a course designed to help you deal with the stress in your life through relaxation techniques, diet, and exercise. The eight week class will meet each Tuesday from 8 to 10:30 p.m. beginning August 26 in Room 8 of the Mueller Center.

Also scheduled to begin August 26 at the Mueller Center is a "Consumer Know How" class, to be taught by consumer writer and editor Shirley Wagener. The 7 week class will meet at 8 p.m. each Tuesday in Room 7, and will focus on governmental services available to consumers in Florida, and how to avoid consumer problems in the marketplace.

Beginning Sept. 4, the Women's Program will also offer "Assertiveness Communication" each Thursday from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Mueller Center, Room 6. The nine week course will teach you practical methods of asserting your rights without offending others, of taking control of situations, and of communicating your ideas more openly and effectively. These classes all are open to everyone; for more information call the Mueller Center, 569-0333.

Nursing Class Offered on Main Campus

Nursing Class Offered on Main Campus

"Basic Pharmacology for Nurses", a two-credit course designed to provide nurses with the skills necessary for the administration of medication, will be held on the Main Campus this Fall. To meet in Room J 124 on Wednesdays from 6 to 8 p.m., the course will include 32 hours of instruction. Registration for the class can be completed Aug. 21 or 22 at the IRCC Guidance Office. An IRCC Certificate of Attendance will be issued to those who successfully complete the course.

IT'S NATIONAL SMILE WEEK, and all over the area, people can be seen exemplifying that week's theme. Pictured here is a man who feels he has every reason to smile. It was a beautiful Florida day, and he was out peddling his bike around town.

NEAL COOK (left) AND KEVIN DALY (right) were all smiles as they came up from Miami for some week-end fishing on Hutchinson Island. When asked what made them smile Neal answered, laughing. Kevin however, decided it was definately chocolate sundays.

A smile

A smile costs nothing, but gives much. It enriches those who receive without making poorer those who give. It takes but a moment, but the memory of it sometimes lasts forever. A smile creates happiness in the home, fosters good will in business, and is the countersign of friendship. It brings rest to the weary, cheer to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and is nature's best antidote for trouble. Yet it can't be bought, begged, borrowed or stolen, for it is something that is of no value to anyone until it is given away.

Some people are too tired to give you a smile. Give them one of your's as none need a smile so much as he who has none to give.

Speedreading may hold key to sucess in college or at work

In a few weeks a new crop of high school graduates from our area will be venturing off to college and the world of higher education.

Many will drop out before completing their freshman year, and if they regional of others throughout the nation, only four in 10 will graduate, says George Chenault, operator of the American Reading Academy in Stuart.

Chenault says a lot of those students could make it in college, if they could read faster and comprehend what they read better. And, he says his academy offers a $295, 12 session course that can help them do just that.

Perhaps one of the most common complaints of college students is the overwhelming burden of material to read. It is not unusual for students taking a full course load to be assigned as many as half a dozen books a week to read. For many, that is asking too much.

Chenault says the problem is that most folks today "are still reading at the same speed as folks did in the Civil War days." And, he says his academy offers dramatic improvements in reading speed and comprehension.

"There are two major blocks to speedreading to be overcome. One is the left to right habit, where a reader moves his eyes across the page from left to right, focusing on three or four words at a time. A lot of time is wasted in shifting the eyes. We teach students how to increase their eye span and read down the middle of the page, taking in words on both sides," Chenault says.

"The second obstacle is that most persons utter words under their breath as they read. The true speed reader ties his eyes and mind together and reads with his mind, not his vocal chords," he added.

Though speedreading is a great asset in college, Chenault says it has also proven successful to many persons in the "outside" world. "It is very helpful for professional people, as well as persons in other fields. The average American only reads one and a half novels per year. But graduates of the course could pack up a novel and read it in a night," he said.

How fast do graduates of the academy read?

The answer varies with the graduage. Charles Herber, a ninth grader at Martin County High School, went from 184 words per minute to 8,333 and his comprehension went from 58 per cent to 90 per cent.

Chenault has operated the academy in North Palm Beach for four years, and has operated the one in Stuart for just over a year. He said a profile of 82 graduates from his North Palm Beach academy showed a beginning average speed of 207 words per minute with comprehension averaging 54 per cent. The average speed at the completion of the course was 8,200 words per minute with an average comprehension of 74 per cent.

Debbie Dowling, one of two teachers at the academy in Stuart, says most students at least improve to 2,000 words per minute. "Especially in the case of kids. They do much better," she said.

Chenault says that is because the younger academy students don't have so much to unlearn before learning speedreading.

Most classes consist of eight to 10 students, and classes are open to persons nine years old and up. A minimum of 10 sessions are taught, but Chenault says in most cases, 12 sessions are given. "And, if they still need help, we give it at no additional cost," he said, adding that refresher courses later in life are also given at no extra charge and that two college credits can be earned for the course.

Most of the classes are offered at night, but during the summer there have been classes for school age children.

All classes are taught by certified teachers, and the American Academy of Reading is a franchise operation with headquarters in Dallas, Texas. Chenault says the academy has been offering speedreading for 22 years. "It's tried and proven. It works," he says.

The local academy office is located at 256 Osceola Avenue in Stuart.

Chain business letter illegal

Don Wilkie, owner of Florida Nursery, received a "chain" letter with an unique twist last week. The letter offered him a chance to collect $500,000 in cash for a $25 investment.

The Jensen Beach Post Office says that the scheme is illegal.

Lotteries are forbidden by U.S. Mail. To have a lottery, two elements must be present, consideration and chance.

The chain business letter has both. Though the letter professes that the scheme is "legal, affordable and simple," it offers a chance to collect the $500,000 by paying five dollars in the name on the top of the list, and $20 to the firm promoting the chain. The $20 is for 200 copies of the letter that Wilkie received with his name printed in the fifth position, the bottom of the list.

As the name moves up the list, so does the multiplication table that leads to the magic $500,000. It is based upon five percent of the 200 letters that are mailed being followed up by the persons the letters are sent to.

However, even the names are provided. Along with the 200 letters are 200 "names an addresses of fresh mail order buyers on gummed labels."

The Jensen post office is following up the letter to stop the circulation of the illegal lottery.

New offices and studios for Sound Image

Two Stuart advertising firms, Sound Image Advertising Agency and Commercial Graphic Center, Inc., have moved into new quarters at 5534 South Kanner Highway (S.R. 76).

"Since Sound Image's inception eight years ago, we've quadrupled in size, developed an impressive client list, and evolved into a full service agency. Our new facilities allow for further expansion and is ideally located to service our clients from Vero Beach to West Palm Beach," said agency co-owner Jackie Hartman.

The move has also enhanced the production capabilities in the areas of print and broadcast. "We built a special soundproof studio for the production of radio commercials and TV voiceovers," said Ed Shoemaker, agency co-owner. "This, along with our copyrighted music service, sound effects and pool of professional broadcast talent, gives us the capability of providing unique in-house services for our clients."

Jim Baker, president of Commercial Graphic Center, heads up a team of artists who design and produce brochures, technical manuals, newspaper and magazine ads and other print material in the new facility. "Our growth has been far greater than expected," he said, "so our new offices and studios give us the much needed space to expand."

The building which now houses the two firms is the first of several more planned for Westland Professional Park, a 3-acre site located 1½ miles west of the S.R. 76, Indian Street intersection.

TERRITORIAL RIGHTS—Ior pelicans often include guarding pilings in the river. This pelican seems to have a firm grip on the post and doesn't seem ready to leave. However, the only constant in life is change, and no doubt when hunger calls, the bird will abandon the piling for a fish dinner.

Water district sues Tilton on Savannas

BY DICK CAMPBELL

A suit seeking temporary and permanent relief for alleged violations of state laws has been filed against Ransom Tilton, Jensen Beach Realtor, for his development of property in the Jensen Savannas near Walton.

The property was developed in 1970, when permits were not required to fill or dredge areas of the Savannas.

The suit seeks temporary relief to halt further construction, fill activity, additions and other construction on a 27-acre tract of land owned by Tilton near a larger piece of property.

There will be a hearing on the suit before Judge Phillip Nourse in Ft. Pierce at 8:45 a.m. on August 28.

Later, at an unscheduled time, a suit for permanent relief for no further addition to the project, removal of newly placed fill and removal of a fifty foot section of a causeway and a dam will be heard by Judge Charles E. Smith.

The property in question is located about a mile south of Walton Road, just west of the Florida East Coast Railroad. Tilton bought the property and, in 1970, dredged an area next to a pre-formed design of the property, deepening the water alongside the property.

The Realtor said the Savannas went dry many times, and he thought he was serving the best interests of fishing by deepening the area so that the fish would be able to live.

However, the project was done at a time when there was not county, state, or federal permit needed.

Since that time, the Tilton property has been divided among the Tilton children, with ten acre parcels being given to Ren, Randy, Robin, Joyce and Susan Tilton.

Under St. Lucie County agricultural zoning, ten acres are needed before a mobile home can be placed on the property.

Tilton says that he built the roadway to his land in 1970, and disputes the fact that it is an "earthen dam." He added that before the roadway was built, his attorneys checked all county and state laws and governmental bodies to be certain that he would legally be able to connect the land by a roadway.

In the recent state purchase of the Savannas as endangered lands, Tilton served with the land acquisition agent without commission in an effort to expedite the state acquisition of the lands.

Tilton said he had offered the 27 plus acres of land to the state in trade for a parcel with 175 feet of frontage on west Commercial Street by 250 feet deep in 1978, but the state did not act on his request. He withdrew that request in May, 1980.

The suit followed.

A solution to the problem of Savannas water flow was suggested by Tilton to Major Richard Domreski, chief of the South Florida Section of the State Park Service and others. The plan would have Tilton paying to cut a relief channel through state park land just south of his property.

The state did not act on his suggestion.

The Mirror toured the area, and found the roadway intact, with some new marl fill on the roadway leading to the site of Ren Tilton home. Tilton said that he reinforced the base of the roadway.

At the alledged dam site, Tilton had installed a culvert to handle water that might be moving into the eastern slough.

That was my mistake," he said. "If I'd just let the thing along it would have never come up. I was just trying to cooperate with Dr. Stokes request to get water moving'll it ever gets up that high again."

The marshes and Savannas lakes were well away from the culvert installed by Tilton, and the ground-level approaches to the culvert were dry.

In his original planning for the overall property, Tilton gave the St. Lucie County Commission a sixty-foot strip of road right-of-way along the north side of his land, and the entire east side of his property on the edge of the railroad, in exchange for abandoning a thirty foot right-of-way at the Savannas end of Riverside Drive.

He then subdivided the land into ten acre parcels, giving one to each of his children and retaining the north and south parcels of the property.

Tilton was skeptical of the suit, saying that the construction was done legally, and adding, "It seems to me that all parties could sit down and settle this amicably without wasting a lot of money on courts and lawyers."

Some bike path construction is due to start in Jensen

BY DICK CAMPBELL

Construction of a sidewalk from Jensen Beach Lanes north to Fisherman's Haven will add to the bike path list of the area soon, it was announced by County Commissioner Frank Wacha Monday at the Jensen Chamber of Commerce board meeting.

Also, Wacha said that a bike path sidewalk would be constructed from the Sewall's Point town limits across the Frances Langford's Outrigger Resort property on Sewall's Point Road.

The path will tie into the FIT bike path along Palmer Road, and meet the proposed bike path being constructed by the town of Sewall's Point.

Wacha added that signs denoting the bike path sidewalk system were on order to indicate to people the proper route already in existence from Indian River Drive west on Commercial Street to Skyline Drive, north to Sunview, west again to South Savanna Road, and then south to the VFW Post home.

Wacha also told the Chamber directors that he had received a favorable response in his effort to hold a public hearing on setting up a municipal taxing district for the construction of more bike paths and acquisition of a park south of Commercial Street and a mile west of South Savanna Road.

"We want to know if the people are willing to be taxed a mill to provide those services," Wacha said.

In other actions, Wacha said that the Department of Transportation was due to let bids on the signalization of the intersection of Commercial Street and U.S. 1. The project will involve building left and right turn storage lanes and the signals to handle the traffic.

The Chamber ddirectors voted to send a resolution of concern to the Department of Transportation over the DOT's plan to close the north road to Jensen's public beaches. The plan is supposed to lessen traffic build up of eastbound autos on the Jensen Beach Causeway at A-1-A.

Chamber directors pointed out in the resolution that the traffic buildup is due to left turning autos into A-1-A, and not to the autos crossing the road, and proposed left and right turn storage lane to solve the problem.

The directors also urged that all citizens write to William Fowler, district engineer, Florida Department of Transportation, Ft. Lauderdale, expressing their concern.

A committee of Fred Meeker and Marg Parrs was appointed to look into the problem of police protection on the St. Lucie County side of Hutchinson Island. The committee will invite property owners and island organizations to a meeting at the Chamber office to discuss the "failure of the St. Lucie County's sheriff's department to provide security to the island residences and businesses.

Directors also agreed that the director of Civil Defense will be invited to the next Chamber forum to discuss disaster preparedness.

APPRECIATIVE—Larry Vogel, center, and Daniel Saskowsky, right, received honors from the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Monday at the Chamber's board of director meeting. The Chamber asked the representatives of the Florida Institute of Technology Naturalist Society to accept the thanks of the Chamber for the work they did on the turtle watches. Dennis Doyle, executive director, made the presentation.

Did withdrawal cause the suit?

On May 22, 1978, Ransom Tilton offered to trade just over 27 acres of land in the Jensen Savannas "for a tract of land of equal value, located on State Road 707A (Commercial Street) in Martin County."

The tract in Martin County was part of one sold to the Division of Recreation and Parks by W. B. Tilton and A. J. Wiegand, and measured 175 feet of frontage by 250 feet deep.

For two and one-half years, the Department of Natural Resources failed to move on the request, despite urging by Tilton and Dr. Walter Stokes.

On May 20, 1980, Tilton withdrew his offer to trade the land, or sell it.

The 27 acres in question contains the roadway that Tilton built in 1970, a roadway to the high ground on which Tilton's son, Ren, has constructed a home.

Dr. Stokes calls the roadway a dam, and accuses Tilton of impounding Savannas water; Tilton says he has offered an acceptable plan to allowing the Savannas to flow south through a cut in state park lands, a plan approved by state officials, and to be paid for by Tilton.

Dr. Stokes outlined, in a letter to the South Florida Water Management District that during a high rains time in 1974, the waters of the Savannas breached Tilton's roadbed; Tilton said that a foot of the road was washed out then, but that most of the time the surrounding property is marshy and dry. He added that he did not repair the roadbed because he hoped that the state would take the property as part of the Savannas wilderness project, a project that Tilton was prominent in serving as commission.

Chamber honors Naturalists

Two members of the Florida Institute of Technology Naturalist Society were honored Monday by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce. Larry Vogel, president of the society, and Daniel Saskowski, public relations chairman of the group, attended the luncheon meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber.

The directors voted to present a resolution praising the work of the Naturalist Society in handling the Jensen Beach turtles watches this year.

The FIT students conducted six weeks of three-day turtle watches, held each Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Jensen beaches. Two or more students were on hand each night to conduct the turtle watches.

The students also prepared the text for the Chamber's turtle watch folder, which was produced by The Mirror and sponsored by Southeast Bank of Jensen Beach.

Chamber executive director Dennis Doyle presented the resolution to the students.

Vogel credited the cooperation of the field office of the Florida Department of Natural Resources, the Chamber handling of reservations and distribution of materials, and the excellent coverage of area media for the success of the program.

He said that next year the program might be shortened, as few turtles were seen in the final two weeks of the season. He also said that there should be some coordination between St. Lucie and Martin Counties, as St. Lucie sheriff's deputies almost arrested Saskowski for driving an "ATV" (all terrain vehicle) on the beach. The ATV is designed to do no harm to the beach, and access is not on the dunes.

Vogel said he planned to hold the watches two nights a week next year unless there could be more volunteers to serve the watches. Saskowski said he was working on getting a short film on turtle watches to brief the visitors when they arrive for the watch.

NO SMOKE—Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen were called to the new Hardee's restaurant on Commercial Street Sunday afternoon. Someone smelled what was thought to be electrical smoke and turned in the alarm. The firemen checked through the restaurant, but found nothing.

Sewall's Point parking ordinance flares again

BY CATHIE FARAGO

The stage is set for what looks to be a confrontation between Sewall's Point residents dissatisfied with existing town ordinances and those wishing to retain the status quo, however enlargened.

The incident that brought the issue into focus is one in which a resident was told by a police officer that he must close his garage door because it exposed a 1978 Ranchero. According to the town's parking ordinance, any nonconforming automobile must be kept totally concealed. The owner of the car felt that the demand was not only an infringement on his privacy but harassment as well.

The resident, Richard Trevisan, is now attempting to gather other dissatisfied residents on his side in his grievance against not only the town ordinances, but against the officer that issued him the citation, Sergeant Louis Savini.

At a recent Sewall's Point town meeting, various residents showed up to vocalize their objection to what some think is a personal vendetta against Savini by Trevisan. They not only upheld the validity of the ordinances, but backed Savini in his duty to enforce them.

The case will reach court on Aug 15 Trevisan will plead not guilty to the citation issued him.

Also brought before the commission was the problem of what to do over two lots that had been partially stripped of trees in Rio Vista. Allegedly, developer Roger Morgan had numerous trees taken away from the tracts without first obtaining permits.

Commissioner Gilbert Strubell, who witnessed the removal, said at the meeting "we have the teeth to stop something like this, but we need the eyes to see it fast enough." According to town attorney Jim Knight each tree removed constitutes a separate offense and the owner can be charged with a $500 fine. Chief of Police Frances Maluszewski reported at least five trees are known to have been removed so far.

The controversy arose not over what to do with the problem but how to do it. Mayor Ed Gluckler feels that Morgan has pleaded ignorance once too often, considering at one time he too was mayor of the town. "My inclination is to go ahead with the prosecution. I don't have any sympathy for him at all. I think it's about time we stopped him."

Commissioner Dana DeWindt and others felt it was more in the town's best interest to save the estimated $1,500 in court costs and deal with Morgan directly. DeWindt suggested making any subsequent permits for Morgan contingent upon the agreed payment, as one alternative.

Gluckler, who still maintained that Morgan had gotten away with it once too often said "if you want to compromise at $500 a tree, I'll go along with it."

A sigh of relief was breathed at least by Sewall's Point Commissioners when Hurricane Allen took a left turn towards Texas. Although clean up crews were on stand-by as a precautionary measure, how they would have been paid is a still remaining question. $37,543 was spent in the aftermath of David and Gluckler admits "we can't afford another one this year."

Candidates will be at Tuesday meet

James Navitsky, Superintendent of Schools; Sherry King, candidate for County Commissioner, District No. 3; Pam Boswell, candidate for County Commissioner, District No. 5; Linda Pelletier, candidate for Supervisor of Elections.

Also attending this meeting will be previous speakers, William "Doc" Myers, Florida House, District 77; James Holt, Martin County Sheriff; Joan Felton, candidate for Property Appraiser; Hazel Watts and Wayne Bowling, candidates for Superintendent of Schools; Alex Haynes and James Rowe, candidates for County Commissioner, District No. 1; Lavon "Bud" Bagwell County Commissioner, District No. 3; Sherry King, candidate for County Commissioner, District No. 3; and Pam Boswell and Arthur Pitchford, candidates for County Commissioner, District No. 5.

All interested men and women are invited to attend.

South Street dilemma takes resident action

South Street offers a challenge to the Martin County Commission. The road is substandard, and too narrow, and has never been accepted by the county, Frank Wachs told the board of directors of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Monday.

Traffic on the road has increased a great deal with the Southern Bell construction on South Savanna Road, and more and more motorists are using South Street as a cutoff to down town Jensen Beach via Skyline Drive.

"If the people petition the county to solve the problem," Wachs said, "we might do something, like making the road one way, perhaps."

Asked if the county could maintain the road, Wachs said that the county cannot until the road is accepted. The residents along the road would probably have to work out a joint county property owner cost sharing agreement to bring the road up to county standards.

Samaritans Auxillary forming

An meeting to organize a Samaritan Auxillary will be held at 7:30 p.m. Fri., Aug. 15, at the Samaritans Building. All interested welcome to attend.

Red Cross manager

A class for people interested in becoming Red Cross disaster shelter managers will be offered at Martin County Red Cross Headquarters, 9 East 5th Street, Stuart, on August 26 and 27.

The class will be given by Judd Wood, new Red Cross Disaster Preparedness Director for the state. The two free three-hour classes will be conducted from 7 to 10 p.m. both nights. Attendance is required both nights.

Anyone interested in helping at a Red Cross shelter is urged to attend, said Bill Jackson, Martin County Red Cross Disaster Chairman. Shelter managers and other volunteer staff are needed in the county, especially from Jensen Beach and Indiantown areas, Jackson said.

Membership in the Red Cross is not necessary to become a shelter manager or helper.

For further information, call Bill Jackson at 287-9207 or Red Cross headquarters at 287-2002. Registration closes Friday, August 22.

Art foundation fund raiser is in planning

The social and fund raising committee of the Arts Foundation of Martin County met last week at the home of President Dorothy Nabutovsky to make plans for a large fund raising event to be held in November at Sandpiper Bay Resort.

Guest speakers and entertainment are being lined up for the event and more information about it will be announced at a later date.

Anyone interested in joining the foundation should call Nabutovsky at 287-6476 for information on the foundation and plans for a new facility in Martin County.

John Gear heads the fund raising committee and Barbara Sutter is in charge of the social committee.

Turtle T-shirts to be available

The Jensen Beach Turtle Watch T-shirts, created by the Florida Institute of Technology Naturalist Society, will again be available in area stores. The shipment of shirts was due Tuesday.

Proceeds from the sale of the multi-colored shirts go to the Naturalist Society, and they are sold at participating area stores, including the Village Corner, Paris Inn Shopp, Turtle Crossing and the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Leif Erikson Day planning continues

Members of the Gulfstream Lodge of the Sons of Norway gathered Sunday for a picnic on the Jensen Beach Causeway to continue planning for the tenth annual Leif Erikson Day celebration on October 3-4-5.

Dick Hummel is the chairman of the event, which is the effort of members of the Sons of Norway to recognize the contributions of Norwegian Americans to the country and show the cultural heritage of the Scandinavian countries.

The Friday and Saturday events are just for the members of the eleven lodges that will be gathering at the Holiday Inn Oceanside. There will be a Friday night disco dance preceded by a champagne party in the Gulfstream Lodge hospitality room.

On Saturday, S-N members will see movies of Norwegian festivities held in Decorah, Iowa. That night there will be a banquet, with entertainment by the "De Glade Norske" band.

On Sunday, the Viking queen will be selected after the annual parade through Jensen Beach. Many Norwegian floats will be in the parade.

Sunday the S-N women and men will wear their "bunads", quaint costumes of the native regions in Scandinavia. There will be the Leif Erikson pageant, and sailboat races. There will also be music and folk dancing.

Flotilla 58 will host Sandpiper rendezvous

Flotilla 58, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, will be the host flotilla for the annual District Five rendezvous at Sandpiper Bay Resort from Friday through Sunday, Aug. 15 to 17.

Approximately 12 Coast Guard Auxiliary vessels will meet at Sandpiper Bay for the festivities, coming from a territory covering Vero Beach to Riviera Beach and including Lake Okeechobee.

The highlight of the event will be a cookout and social program in the Captain's Lounge at the resort's marina. The program is under the direction of Division Captain Arthur L. Berlheuser. In charge of local arrangements are Auxiliarists Edward and Rebecca Christophers of Flotilla 58.

IT'S YOUR MOVE

question: I think I am ready to make the move and purchase a small real estate investment. Before I start looking, I would like your opinion. What is the best type of investment for novices?

ANSWER: There is no pat answer to your question but there are a few guidelines which might help. I will assume that it is your intention to manage your own real estate investment.

If this is the case, then you might start your search by investigating one or more single-family homes which can be leased and held for appreciation. A small multi-unit residential property, such as a 2-4s or 12-unit apartment building, also might fit the bill.

Other options available to you might be a small strip-store block containing local retail tenants. This type of property is generally easily managed. So long as it does not develop a severe and prolonged vacancy problem, a strip-store block can provide an attractive way to hold and control a modest real estate investment.

Remember that because of the potential leverage available in the real estate investment market, you can often control a significant amount of real estate with a down payment of 10 percent to 30 percent.

Work closely with your real estate investment broker. Your broker is close to the market and has a good understanding of the types of investments which are or will become available. Your investment broker will be able to match your cash and financial requirements with the appropriate property.

I would be happy to discuss your needs at any time convenient to you.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-8741, or stop by

On August 29, this man will do everything in his power to make your belt buckle a collector's item.

Endless hours of painstaking craftsmanship went into the creation of the Florida Commemorative Collection.

And in a few minutes on August 29th, the entire series of molds for the Collection will be destroyed—thus assuring that no more of these handsome belt buckles will ever be produced.

With a few blows of a sledgehammer, your buckles become part of a truly limited edition. And the possibility of their increasing in value is enhanced many times over.

The Florida Commemorative Collection consists of three solid brass or bronze belt buckles depicting scenes and events of historical significance to all Floridians. Ponce de Leon's discovery of Florida; our native alligator; and our Indian Heritage.

Originally, these buckles were to be available only through July 11. But because of the enthusiastic response to this offer, we're extending their availability through August 29th. But that's it. (Our friend above will make sure of that.)

All you have to do to get one is to make a qualifying deposit at any Southeast Bank. Depending on the amount you deposit, you'll receive the buckle of your choice free, or at a reduced price.

After making your qualifying deposit, you can buy additional buckles and three buckle display sets with a leather-covered hardwood display plaque at special low prices. (See chart below for exact requirements.)

Come to a Southeast Bank and pick up the buckle of your choice now. On August 29th, you're going to own a collector's item.

Supplies of some designs are running out, so get in soon to be sure you can get the design of your choice.

WHICH IS THE PAN?—What appears to be a Volkswagen bug swallowing one small girl is actually Liberated Woman attacking Car. Mary Beverly Meissner decided if a man could change the oil in her bug, she could, too. The first go-around wasn't too successful. Mary B. put the pan in upside down, and all the oil ran out. But practice is making perfect, and with a few more lessons she hopes to be ready to free herself of all those high mechanics' bills.

Vandals still at work

Vandalism on the beaches continue to be a problem, in spite of the additional patrol put to work at Jensen's beach, according to a spokesman for the Martin County Sheriff's Department.

"We've had a lot of auto breakins," the spokesman said Tuesday.

The force was increased some weeks ago, after vandals did extensive damage to the public facility. Rest rooms were torn up, and part of the steps was destroyed.

The sheriff placed four men around the clock on special detail along the beaches, and since that time there has been no more vandalism.

But the culprits are still at work, according to Sgt. Bill Case of the sheriff's office. People who visit the beaches are being warned to lock their cars, and to park them in the patrol area.

ONE WAY—to catch bedding bluegills (bream) in the Rim Canal at the locks near the J&S Fish Camp off U.S. 441 about eight miles above Port Mayaca on the northeast shore of Lake Okeechobee, is to walk along the shore and deftly drop a live cricket in front of a bedding 'gill. Virginia's Chris Hilbert is doing just that with the locks in the background.

PECK'S LAKE—Serene, peaceful, with deep water that allows boaters to pull right up to the beach. Most visitors to the Jupiter Island picnic area walk the few hundred feet to the beach, a white sand beauty studded with driftwood. Another reason that this area is so beautiful.

Jemison enjoys spec

When R. A. "Dick" Jemison designs and constructs a spec home, it reflects the age-old adage "a man's home is his castle."

It is a philosophy that has made Jemison, president of R. A. Jemison & Associates, Inc., in Stuart, one of the most successful "spec" home builders on the Treasure and Gold Coasts.

Jemison is a state licensed general contractor, and a graduate civil engineer.

"Each home is my brainchild from conception to completion," said Jemison. "The challenge is to mold my design of the ideal home, with what I think a potential buyer hopes to find."

Jemison chose Crane Creek at Martin Downs in Palm City as the location for his spec homes. "After careful research, I decided the developers at Crane Creek have done things the way I would do them. The community has good access, is well maintained and has the proper restrictions." He added that his homes are particularly suited to buyers who enjoy a country club lifestyle.

Jemison explained the element of risk in building homes on speculation. "It requires a tremendous amount of confidence in my judgment — confidence that the design and location are good, that it is a sound financial venture and that the end product is saleable.

His newest home at Crane Creek is referred to as the Blue Heron, in keeping with the communities' avian theme. Located on one-plus acres overlooking the 18th fairway and green, the 2,600 square foot home has 3 bedrooms, 2½ baths. A massive sunken great room with a complete wet bar, brick fireplace and a unique beamed cathedral ceiling is the focal point of the home. It leads to an expansive screened wood deck and free form pool.

The exterior finish is a combination brick and vertical cedar siding with a ribbed batten. The roof features hand split cedar shakes. Blue Heron is priced at $265,000.

Jemison says that spec home building is very rewarding when a potential buyer says, "it's everything I ever hoped for in a home."

BLUE HERON—The latest spec home built by Dick Jemison is the Blue Heron, a 2,600 square foot home at Crane Creek. Jemison says he enjoys melding his ideas with what he hopes the potential buyer wants.

Mirror cooking show is set September 5-24

The annual Mirror Cooking Show, one of the popular social events of the year, is planned for September 5, it was announced this week by Dick Campbell, editor.

A new format for the cooking show is being tried this year to make the entertaining and educational event available to more readers of The Mirror.

There will be two shows that day, the afternoon show at the Port St. Lucie Community Center at 2 p.m., and an evening show, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Hoke Hall of First Federal Savings of Martin County on Commercial Street in Jensen Beach.

The show will be sponsored by The Mirror and Publix Market.

Outboard "Open House" at F.I.T.

The Outboard Mechanics Program (OMP) is sponsoring the September meeting of the Marine Industries Association on September 9, 1980. Members of this organization have helped in establishing the Outboard School by donating time, effort, and material. Of particular value has been the cooperation in planning the curriculum to include the technical, economic, and business aspects of this profession.

The group will be welcomed by Dean Tealey and thanked for their participation. A tour of the Outboard Facility - One of the finest in the country - will be conducted by Robert Chester, head instructor. All motors, training aids, test fixtures and instrumentation will be shown. Chester will discuss the plans being made with ex-military personnel, Veterans Administration and CETA as part of the student body.

The Association business meeting will then be held. Upon conclusion, refreshments will be served. Copies of the latest Outboard Brochure and resumes of the latest graduates will be distributed.

Thomas Shortell is Navy graduate

Navy Electronics Technician 3rd Class Thomas J. Shortell, whose wife, Vicki, is the daughter of Phyllis Tyson of 800 N. Fork Road, Stuart, Fla., was graduated from Basic Electronics Technician School.

The course was conducted at the Navy Service School Command Great Lakes, Ill. Students received introductory instruction on electronic circuit concepts, radar principles, and the duties of radio transmitters and receivers. In addition they studied the procedures for repairing amplifiers, transmitters, receivers and power supply lines.

He joined the Navy in August 1979.

Bell defines Jensen

Once upon a time, the people of Jensen Beach considered themselves a community unto themselves.

After all, in the late 1800s, Jensen Beach was the largest city between Titusville and Key West...yes, larger than Miami, larger than Ft. Lauderdale, larger than Ft. Pierce, Vero Beach, West Palm Beach, Jupiter.

Jensen Beach was a rail head then, for Flagler's southward march of glimmering steel rails.

R. R. Ricou was in his heyday, and his fishing business spanned both coasts of Florida. But the home office was right here in Jensen Beach. Barrel upon barrel of fish was loaded on Flagler's railroad to be sent north.

Pineapples were crated for the northward bound freight cars, and Jensen Beach was the center for that shipment. The hill that now holds The Mirror building was covered with the sharp-pointed blades that grew atop the pineapples.

John Jensen really didn't know the metropolis he was creating when he received his government land grant.

The incorporated city of Jensen Beach was preceded by the town of Eden on early charts of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

The Cubans had glutted the markets of America with cheap pineapples, and Flagler's railroad contributed to the economics of low cost by having his railroad all the way to Key West. The fishing also went that way with modernization of commercial fishing, and the Indian River, once covered with the beautiful white sails of fishing boats, became a beautiful waterway, instead of a commercial highway.

Jensen Beach went the way of Atlantis when the 1929 depression hit, as did Palm City.

Jensen Beach, the town that migrated into a gentle sleep for many years, was dormant. It was no longer the commercial power of this area. Stuart arose, and in 1925, when Martin County was created from parts of Palm Beach and St. Lucie, that city, named for a man who sold whiskey from a boxcar on a siding, became the county seat.

Even though the community had lost its incorporated identity, the people who lived in Jensen Beach held a fierce loyalty, and the competition between Jensen Beach and Stuart grew. The loyalty included the communities of Eden and Walton, both in St. Lucie County.

Efforts to incorporate Jensen Beach into a city again were doomed by the frustrations of people who would accept the benevolent dictatorship of the county commission over the unknown of city government.

Movements in 1960, 1965, and again in 1970-71 received mixed reaction, from the absolutely violent rejection of well-meaning citizen's groups in 1960, to the successful, but powerful rejection in 1965, to the well-reasoned presentation (and the first time the issue came to a vote) that failed in a reasonably close vote in 1971.

Problems persisted in the definition of the boundaries of Jensen Beach. Always, the proposals for incorporation included all area from the St. Lucie River (and the Stuart city limits) to the county line, and from the Atlantic Ocean to U.S. 1.

Incorporation supporters sought to include those areas because they felt that it was a geographic entity, easily identifiable.

For governmental service, the Jensen Beach Post Office serves from Walton Road to the St. Lucie River, and from Hutchinson Island to U.S. 1. For telephone service, Southern Bell serves that same area, minus the island, and the southern part of Port St. Lucie. Florida Power and Light Company lumps all of the area into a service district, so that there is no way to easily unwrap what really is served by the power company.

So, in the census (where Jensen Beach is included in the so-called "Stuart Area"), and in the various agencies (post office, Southern Bell, Florida Power and Light), there is no way to really develop the demographics of what is Jensen Beach.

The latest effort to identify Jensen Beach comes from Southern Bell. The phone company operates on highly sophisticated research data related to growth patterns.

Those patterns identify that Hutchinson Island, between the Florida Power and Light Nuclear Power Plant (St. Lucie 1 and II) and the St. Lucie Inlet, and west to a mid-point between the Indian River and U.S. 1, as a major growth area, even more potent in growth than the burgeoning Boca Raton area.

Southern Bell wants to set up a telephone exchange for the area of growth so that it can centralize services for that area. Thus, a potential "Jensen Beach" market area can be identified, and served.

The planned Debartolo Regional Mall, to be built and in operation by 1984 in Jensen Beach (but west of U.S. 1), is not included in Southern Bell plans for Jensen Beach. It would be included in planning for the development of telephone service to the southern area of Port St. Lucie, or in the Stuart channel of service.

Thus, the Beau Rivage area, which identifies strongly with Jensen Beach (but is west of U.S. 1 in north county) is left to itself, to go with the master plan of Southern Bell. As is North River Shores, hostile to Stuart in expansionist plans, but not totally tied to Jensen Beach, though its residents love their children going to Jensen Beach Elementary School.

While the people of Jensen Beach continue to resist the fact that a city is growing in their midst, they must sooner or later wake up to the fact that their city is a city, and its boundaries must be defined.

Southern Bell has just about defined where those boundaries will be...as far as their growth is concerned.

Taxpayers embarassed

Members of the Martin County Taxpayers Association were a little embarrassed recently when one of the members of the board dragged the always non-political group into the fall primary election for county commissioner of District One.

The Taxpayers have, for years, worked diligently, usually behind the scenes, to improve the county. The studies for various county projects have been hard-hitting and very well researched.

Taxpayers have often hired high-priced consultants to do in-depth research on various county projects, all with the purpose of the group in mind: "To study the tax situation in Martin County, Florida, to work with public officials and boards toward economy and efficiency in the operation of the government of Martin County and other political bodies in the county."

The members of the board of directors have generally been chosen for their non-political background, and all are financially sound and socially well accepted in their circles.

As a measure of the non-political status of the Taxpayers Association, the Summer 1980 newsletter to members contained a one-paragraph statement that: "A member of the board of directors of the Martin County Taxpayers Association is a candidate for a Martin County Commission seat." The newsletter didn't mention the name of the member of the board.

"However, the members of the association received a letter last week from board member Alex Haynes, Republican candidate for county commissioner district four."

Haynes wrote that while the Taxpayers Association could not endorse a candidate, he assured all the members that he had individual support of all the members of the board of directors. And, he asked for the support of the members of the association.

One member of the board of directors assured me that the action was taken without the knowledge of the board, adding that the board certainly would not condone the use of its name or of the use of names of individuals identified as being on the board, for partisan political purposes.

The board members can be active as individuals in helping candidates, but not as board members.

In fact, while Haynes said the entire board supported him, one board member disputed that, saying he was supporting Haynes' primary opponent, James Rowe.

As additional part of the gaffe him in the use of the mailing list of the Taxpayers Association. Would the association make the list available to Rowe, or incumbent Commissioner Frank Wacha, who will face the winner of the Rowe-Haynes primary contest in November?

And, if they did, would this open the door to indiscriminate use of the mailing list in the future?

It is a dilemma that the Taxpayers Association should not have to face. The group is too hard-working, too dedicated, to face criticism for an action that it had nothing to do with.

Sally Latham

Good neighbor

Somebody once said "One's community is only as good as one's nearest neighbor." If that's true, it explains why Jensen Beach is such a lovely place to live in. It is full of wonderful neighbors.

I found out just how wonderful early on, when I first moved into a little house on the Drive shortly after arriving on the local scene. Irma and Joe Capra were right next door, and a kinder, dearer couple never lived. Things are always going wrong with that little house, which I rented from an absentee landlord. Irma and Joe could be counted on to figure out my problems and just what to do about them.

The little house always chose to go haywire on holiday weekends, when no electrician nor plumber could be located. I'm thinking back to one particular holiday when the electricity went off. Joe and his tenant Bert crawled in and out of the hot little utilities shed, sweating and steaming over the balky conglomerate of ancient wiring until they came to the seat of the problem. They wouldn't even take a cold beer for their help. That's good neighborliness.

I found the same type of tender loving care at the Palmetto Drive apartment I rented from Joe and Dorothy Luciano. Where else would you find a landlord and landlady who would come in and move your furniture for you when you wanted a piece of carpet laid? That one was only one example of their kindness and thoughtfulness to their tenants.

But the neighborhood I now live in is the epitome of hospitality. It is a little cul de sac off Indian River Drive, with landlord and landlady Bob and Lois Rieflé as lords of the manor.

Lois and Bob share ownership of the gorgeous expanse of acreage with Lois' brother, Don Wagner. They previously lived in the house I now occupy, but much to my good fortune they decided to build a large and handsome brick home in the front, overlooking the ever-changing panorama of the river. That's where I came in.

It didn't take long to discover how lucky I was in becoming a tenant. A far cry from the absentee landlord situation, where frustration reigns supreme, life with the Rieflés is like living with a built-in gardener and mother superior.

Nearly everyday, Bob can be found outside mowing, cutting, trimming or planting in the big lawn or on the "back 40." This retired accountant accounts for every blade of grass, palm frond or fruit tree on the huge tract. But he's never too busy to give immediate attention to the needs of his tenants.

When my television set began giving me trouble, he was on the spot to fix it. When my car wouldn't start, he was ready with a push. When my bathroom drain clogged up, Bob was right there to come to my rescue by digging out the culprit and repairing it. There seems to be no limit to his talents.

And Lois is equally as accommodating as well as talented. When I needed an evening dress shortened, she took on the job with professional ease refusing any recompense. She's a beautiful cook, and I'm no longer surprised if a yummy piece of cake appears at my door. Lois is also an avid for bridge as I am, and a game is inevitable every time we can whip up a fourth.

She also introduced me to another good neighbor, Vi Henninger, who lives just a few doors up the drive. Vi is a story in herself, if she'd let me tell it. She lives in a comfortable old 100 year-old house, remodeled with all the modern conveniences.

Vi, too, has some seven acres of land, which she and her late husband bought 13 years ago. And these hot days, she's the most popular kid on the block. She has a swimming pool which she shares generously with all her neighbors.

Vi's late husband was a brilliant engineer. He invented the first electric radio, and was responsible for developing many of the vacuum tubes now in wide use in radio sets. He was also an outstanding photographer, his works having appeared in numerous publications. When he died, it left a sorrowfully gaping hole in Vi's life, but she makes up for it in her goodness to those about her.

For a while, it began to appear that The Mirror was about to take over our little cul de sac. Moving into the cottage next to mine were the beauteous twosome Mary Beverly Meissner of the Mirror's ad department and her lovely cousin Kathy Farago, a valued part time member of the Mirror's staff. And of course Mary B.'s five year old son Aaron, the office mascot.

Then came Bob Fryer, our city editor, who took over another of the cottages. It was rapidly becoming the Mirror Manors, what with Rose Washburn, head of the classified department living right next door. All of them are beautiful neighbors, thoughtful about running errands and saving me many extra trips to town.

Yes, when you have good neighbors you have a good community. Thank God for mine.

POETIC INJUSTICE

Who favored not even a few,
I was highly elated
To find that I rated

"His policy's radically new!"

So my manuscript

Evacuating the island

Hurricane Allen missed us, and for that, we're thankful.

But Allen was just the first cane of the season, and it's likely there will be more this year.

And, if history has taught us any thing, it's that the question is not if a hurricane will hit here, but when.

Next week we'll carry a special section on hurricanes in The Mirror. It will tell you what to do before, during and after a hurricane.

One of the points to be stressed in the special section is that the key to survival in a hurricane is to prepare for it well in advance of it's arrival.

Even for the relatively puny David last year, disaster preparedness officials ordered the evacuation of Hutchinson Island.

Though some folks didn't comply with the order, most did and it went smoothly.

But there is a real fear that since David was not such a big blow, especially compared to a major hurricane like Allen, folks who rode out David will take the next one too lightly.

That could be a deadly mistake.

Consider, for instance, this scenario.

A hurricane packing winds of, say, 125 mph, rips through the Caribbean and appears headed south of Florida and into the Gulf of Mexico.

But as it approaches Cuba, it turns northward, then picks up forward speed and draws a bead on Jensen and Port St. Lucie, moving at about 20 mph.

Because at first it was thought to be headed away from here, many folks neglected to get ready.

And, because it shifted course at night, after many had gone to bed, it was only a couple of hundred miles away by the time people were getting up and tuning into radios the next morning.

As evacuation order was issued, but outside, it was sunny and calm. And, new reports indicated the hurricane may be turning west. So instead of leaving immediately, many people began gathering lawnchairs and other outdoor items to secure them from the winds. And, the chore of packing up clothes and loading valuables into cars took a lot of people longer than anticipated. During that time, advance squalls began blowing over the island, bringing increasingly heavy rains.

With the hurricane still 160 miles away, winds were reaching 40 mph and island residents began clogging A1A, headed for the causeways to get away.

In the case of Hurricane Allen, a tornado hit Brownsville, Texas a full day before Allen arrived. The same thing happened as the evacuation of Hutchinson Island took place, falling an australian pine across A1A near the St. Lucie Martin County line. By the time a chainsaw was located and the tree was removed, winds were hitting 50 mph and rain was coming down in buckets. Those still waiting to get off the island began to worry as they heard radio reports that the hurricane had again made a slight change of direction and was once more headed their way.

The going was slow over the causeway, as water puddled on the road and the driving rain reduced visibility. A motorhome from Holiday Out, with a high center of gravity, was blown into a spin on the slippery metal grating on the Frank Wacha bridge. As it careened out of control, it hit a palm vehicle headed the other way, enroute to the island to make a final appeal for residents to leave.

The wreck was cleared within half an hour, but during that time traffic backed up even more. When cars could move again, drivers did so at a quickened pace, frightful that if they didn't get away soon, they never would.

The evacuation route for folks taking the Jensen Causeway off the island calls for them to go north on Indian River Drive to Walton Road, then out Walton to U.S. 1.

Even during moderate summer showers, Indian River Drive between the causeway and Walton develops puddles of water. As to be expected, the puddles were deep as cars were fleeing the approaching hurricane. A motorist hastening to get away drove through one of the puddles too fast. Water splashed on the car engine's distributor, stalling it out, and further slowing traffic.

The winds and rain increased, and finally another wreck occurred along Walton Road. Some persons turned around and proceeded slowly up Indian River Drive, headed for Midway Road. But by then it was too late. The winds toppled several trees along the narrow road and the cars were stranded.

The hurricane marched on, but even before it arrived, several persons were killed as trees fell on their cars. Others made it to homes along the drive, but as many of the homes were old, wooden frame homes, they didn't stand up to the winds. And, as the storm surge from the hurricane hit during high tide, some of the homes in lower lying areas were flooded.

When it was all over, 30 persons had died.

Sound unreasonable?

Maybe it is. But some of those events are too unlikely to happen — unless people make hurricane preparations well in advance and leave for safer places as soon as they are told to do so.

Tax rolls will be late; legislature overreacted

The statewide move to 100 percent valuation on assessments has thrown the entire taxing picture out of focus and into panic, according to Augie Malfregeot, Martin County Tax Appraiser.

"Governor (Bob) Graham overreacted. He said 'go and do your constitutional duty . . . 100 percent assessment.' Malfregeot said. "We asked the Department of Revenue how to do it. They won't tell us," he told the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club Thursday.

The effect of the action of the Florida Legislature in passing 100 percent valuation assessment is to throw the tax roll in just about every county back to a late October date, instead of an August delivery.

This means that most Florida counties won't have the tax revenue to operate on until far after money runs out.

County commissions and school boards will probably have to borrow money, unless a tedious interim budget is prepared based upon the previous year budget.

Malfregeot said that the assessment would be based upon 1979 sales of property in the county. Documentary stamps would indicate a false figure, however, as most property sales include furniture and other personal property that should not be included.

A tentative roll should be ready by the end of this month. Governmental agencies will set their budgets and then set the millage to raise the money to pay the bills.

Malfregeot blamed the legislative problems on "North Florida Democrats and the Republicans, who banded together to kill a proposal by the property appraisers of the state that would have set appraisals at 65 percent of value.

Thirty-five residents of Jensen Beach turned out to a meeting of the Jensen Chamber's community affairs committee where forms of government were discussed in anticipation of a drive for incorporation.

The Martin County Commission passed a resolution limiting developers to fifteen units per acre in the county, with the exception of Hutchinson Island. The amendment was a stop-gap measure in anticipation of the master plan passing "within a year."

County commission candidates debated. They included Republicans incumbent commissioner Bill Hussey and Paul Bryant, district four, and Democrats Andy Zglinicki and Bob Bryant.

For the first time, Jensen Beach got full-time deputy service from the sheriff's department.

HOPE FOR HEALTH
Keys to Good Health Naturally

By Dr. Jack L. Webb

Very rarely does a patient come to us initially unless they are in pain. Pain is a warning... It is nature's way of letting you know that your condition is severe and that nature can no longer cope with your health problem without help. Pain is nature's "Red Flag" system within the body. In many severe spinal conditions pain is the last thing to appear.....
Pain is the last thing to appear
Pain is the first thing to leave
However, when your pain is gone this does not mean your spinal condition has been corrected!

Do not be mislead just because your pain is better or gone. You are only safe and your health secure when your spinal condition causing your pain has been corrected.

Any pain will come back again, and again, and again... each time getting worse and more severe; sometimes reaching the point where it cannot be corrected if your spinal condition which is causing the pain has not been corrected.

Do not become careless with your health care simply because your pain is gone. Listen to your doctor and follow his advice. Only he knows when the internal spinal condition which caused your pain has been corrected.

When it comes to jai alai, she's in a class by herself

BY BOB FRYER

There are no professional women jai alai players in the United States or in Spain, where the sport originated, and there are probably none in the entire world.

But if Michele DesFonds of Jensen Beach had been born a few years later, or had been exposed to the game sooner, she might well have changed that.

DesFonds, 23, is one of few women amateur jai alai players in the state, and perhaps one of few in the world.

"My aunt (Sharon Stancato of Jensen) got me into it. I was a little over 18 and had never heard of the game until she took me to Fort Pierce Jai Alai. I was fascinated by the game from the start and knew I just had to try it," she explained.

"I used to come and bet and I got to like it so much I bought a cesta. I started playing when I was around 19," DesFonds said.

The opportunity to play jai alai isn't available to most persons, but the Fort Pierce Jai Alai fronton offers a special program to get folks involved in the sport. On Sundays, amateurs can play at the fronton from 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., and the fronton also sponsors an Explorer Post for jai alai, with playing hours from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sundays. In the past, the fronton has also offered high school and college courses in the sport.

DesFonds participates in both the Explorer and amateur programs, and while she concedes she may never be good enough to turn pro, she is thoroughly hooked on the sport. And, when local jai alai amateurs competed to qualify for tournament play against amateurs from other frontons in the state, she just missed out by qualifying fourth. That's not bad, considering there are about 16 amateurs who turn out for games at the fronton each Sunday.

"Michele's problem is that she got into the sport too late. In Spain, the kids start around eight or nine years old, and if they show potential, they get into a serious program by the time they're 13 years old. So, when they turn pro, they're still young but have a lot of experience. By the time Michele has the experience she needs, she'll be past her physical peak," explained Ron Landy, director of public relations for the fronton.

Landy said one reason why the United States produces so few professional players is because most persons do not get first hand exposure to the sport until they're 18 and legally able to watch the sport. "By that time, if they start playing immediately, they're still going to be too old to play professionally by the time they have the skill to do so," he said.

That may change though, as more and more persons learn about the amateur program at the fronton. It is open to anyone of any age. And Explorer Post 426, the only one in the nation involved in a professional sport, is open to persons 14 to 21 years old. Landy says already one local amateur player, Corky, has turned professional. And, he says there are a few others in the program with potential to become pros.

After paying a $5 fee to join the Explorer post, the time on the court at the fronton is free. In the amateur program, the fee is $2.25 per hour. In both programs, players must buy their own cestas.

"The new ones cost about $135 to $150, but you can usually negotiate with a pro to buy one for $35 to $40. A pro can't use one too long before he'll need a new one, but even then, his used one is still good for hours of play by amateurs," Landy said.

The average yearly income for jai alai players may not match that of major league baseball or football players, but it's still attractive — at about $40,000.

DesFonds says she wished the amateur program was open more than once a week, but considers herself lucky just to live near a fronton offering such a program. And when she's not playing, she's watching. "I come here a lot. In fact, one year I came every night. Even without betting, it's fascinating," she said, adding that last year when she did bet, she made, "a lot of money." So far this year, she says her luck hasn't been as good.

"I have played baseball, softball and soccer, but this is the best," she said. When not playing at the fronton, she gets in practice at local racquetball courts.

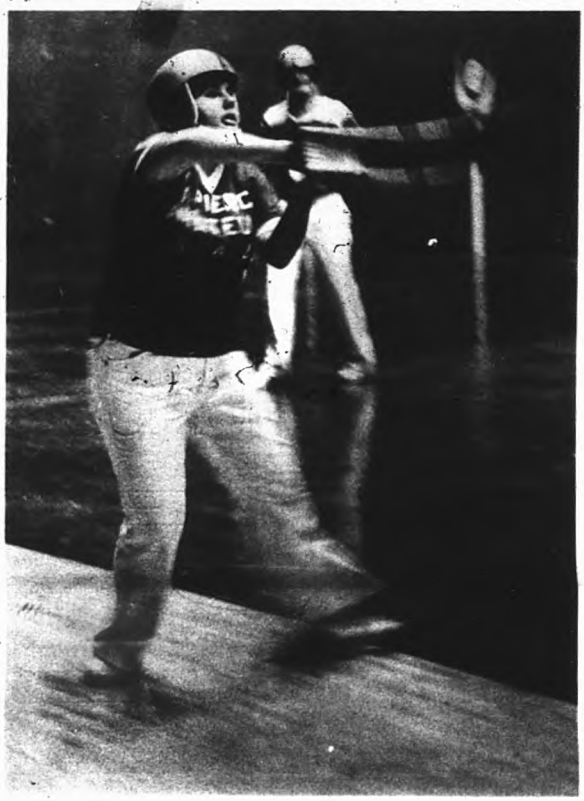
DesFonds and Landy agreed that the game is about 40 per cent physical and 60 per cent mental. "That's the attraction. It's like a human chess game. Instead of having a lot of other persons on a team, you are in control, and you have to anticipate where your opponent will hit the pelota, and where you should be to return it," Landy said.

DesFonds said that although the pelota travels fast, speed is not necessarily the key to success. "It's not really how fast you are, but how smart you are. You have to get your opponent in a spot where he thinks you'll hit the pelota, but hit it somewhere else, and you have to be in the right place to return the pelota when your opponent hits it," she said.

Landy said that just as baseball pitchers have a variety of pitches, jai alai players have a variety of serves and returns. "The more you play, the more you learn how to control the pelota," he said.

Though she has suffered a fractured wrist and still has a spot on her knee from a pelota that struck her three months ago, DesFonds says it's not a sport too dangerous for women.

DesFonds says she dreams of being a professional jai alai player, but says if she never makes it, she doesn't see any reason why another woman couldn't do it someday, provided she got an early enough start. "You have to think when you play, and since women are smarter, I think they could play better," she quipped.



CONCENTRATION—Michele DesFonds concentrates on the approach of a fast flying pelota ball at the jai alai fronton in Fort Pierce. She knows better than to take her eye off the pelota, as she has fractured a wrist and received a bump on her knee in learning to play the game. Michele is the only woman jai alai player locally and one of few in the country. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

As of today, January 1, 1981, you can earn interest on your checking account. That's right, your checking account can earn interest just like your savings account has been doing for years. It's a revolution in banking.

You may very well be reading the above headline in January. Banking regulations are changing. One change, effective the first of the year, will be the introduction of checking accounts that pay interest. They will be called now accounts. N.O.W. for negotiable order of withdrawal.

The law presently prohibits banks in Florida from paying interest on checking accounts until January first. But First National can show you how to get similar benefits right now, with a First National PRE NOW ACCOUNT.

We'll show you how to earn interest, right now, on funds normally idle in your checking account. We'll show you how to enjoy the convenience of checking and at the same time obtain the maximum earning power from your savings. We'll show you how to automatically transfer money from savings to checking. All right now . . . without going to the bank or making any phone calls.

We'll show you how to do all of this when you ask about First National's PRE-NOW ACCOUNT. But do it right now.

Pellitier seeks post as elections supervisor

Linda Pelletier, a registered nurse at Martin Memorial Hospital, announced recently that she is running against incumbent Democrat Peggy Robbins for the post of Martin County Supervisor of Elections.

Pelletier, a Republican, says if elected she pledges "to assure each person who comes into my office courteous, impartial and friendly treatment."

She said taxpayers hold the purse strings and "I pledge to give them the best return possible for their dollar."

She has been a registered nurse for 16 and is employed on Pediatrics in charge of the 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. shift at the hospital. She says her career has provided her with the necessary skills to maintain accurate and concise records and has given her skills in the art of interpersonal relations.

Pelletier noted she has owned and managed several successful businesses in Massachusetts, and was secretary for the Gun Owner's Action League in that state. She said the league helped to defeat a strict gun control bill. She added that she is a member of the Massachusetts and Federal Transportation Advisory Group.

Pelletier is married, the mother of two daughters, and resides at 1408 S.W. Seahawk Way in Stuart.

"I have worked in behalf of the citizens of my home community for many years, organizing and educating the public and encouraging greater citizen participation in the election process," she says.

Newcomers to MCHS to meet on Thursday

The Martin County Guidance Student Service Department would like to invite all new students and parents to "Newcomers Night", August 14, 1980 at 8 p.m.

The program will allow all new students and their parents to meet Mr. Cryan, principal of M.C.H.S. and the Guidance Staff.

A tour and slide presentation of the school will help new students learn about the school they will be attending.

Newcomers Night is designed to familiarize new students to our county, with M.C.H.S. procedures, and most important to the many OTHER NEW STUDENTS that have just moved into Martin County.

The new students will also get to meet the Counselors, Occupational Specialist and the Registrar whom they will be working with during their stay at M.C.H.S.

Mrs. Gainey, Director of Guidance will be available to answer any questions the parents may have about M.C.H.S.

Mrs. Flynn, Volunteer Coorindator, will explain to parents how they can get involved in the M.C.H.S. Volunteer Program.

Newcomers Night will be held in Room No. 19 which is just right of the flag pole in front of the school's main entrance.

Thomas Scott in maneuvers

Navy Sonar Technician 3rd Class Thomas G. Scott, son of Harry B. and Beatrice A. Scott of 2216 NW Fork Road, Stuart, recently participated in exercise "Multiplex I-80" in the Indian Ocean.

He is a crew member aboard the destroyer USS Hewitt, homeported in San Diego.

The two-day multi-threat exercise placed emphasis on U.S. and British Royal Navy joint anti-air and anti-surface warfare tactics. The exercise was the first of a series conducted with the British force during his ship's deployment to the Indian Ocean.

The Hewitt is 563 feet long and carries a crew of 250. Designed primarily for anti-submarine warfare, his ship is armed with two lightweight five-inch guns, torpedoes and rockets.

A 1976 graduate at Martin County High School, Scott joined the Navy in October 1977.

Jensen Beach bridge scores

The Jensen Beach Community Bridge Club met recently for a 10-table Mitchell movement game with an average of 108.

North-South winners were Ellie and Dr. Quirk, 124; Jean Matrisian and Peg Wagg, 121; Elaine and Skip Mast, 118½; Mildred Skinner and Nelle Seiple, 117.

East-West winners were Margaret Hamilton and Marie Furlong, 125½; Jay Ebenger and Tom Walker, 122½; Lois Christman and Vivian Cook, 118; Alice Sturgis and Sara Classen, 118.

Game time is 1 p.m. every Monday at the Harry Hoke Community Room of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Jensen Beach. All players are welcome. On Monday, August 18, there will be a Grand National Pairs Contest. This tournament is open to A.C.B.L. members only and will award half "red points". Kay Monroe is director, phone 334-2468.

Fishing's slow but seatrout are holding up

By Dick Lundin

OFFSHORE, the water's too cold and inshore it's a mite too warm. As a result, fishing's generally slow. Spotted seatrout in the Indian River on the grass flats and around the spoil islands are providing the best action inshore and bonito, dolphin and king mackerel offshore.

Bridge fishing isn't that bad but you have to pick your times and spots because it isn't predicable. Take the Roosevelt Bridge for instance. Last Thursday and Friday anglers were elbow-to-elbow on the Roosevelt hauling in black drum and some sheepshead. The next three days, fishing there was extremely poor.

If you're a snook fisherman, try fishing the Jensen surf early in the morning with a spoon like a Krocodile or a Tony Accetta, or use live bait from that Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge over the St. Lucie River, preferably after dark.

Anglers fishing in the St. Lucie Inlet with small bunker (menhaden) have been catching good strings of mangrove snappers to three and four pounds.

JOHNNY CRAWFORD from the Snook Nook in Jensen: "There are a few snook in the surf going for spoons and plugs, also some big tarpon there early in the morning. There are very few catches of whiting and other bottom fish in the surf now. Trout fishing is holding up well in the river and there are some snook here and there in the river for waders. Some dolphin and bonito are hitting trolled babbyhoo along the weed lines in 180 ft. of water offshore. There's nothing great anywhere right now, Dick."

The Nook's Log: Lou Smitten, a tarpon lost and 2 snook to 12-0 (12 lbs) on plugs in the surf; John Santiago, a 10-0 snook on a Tony Accetta spoon in the surf; Joe Tyniniski, a 15-0 snook on a Krocodile spoon in the surf; John Fullerton, a 10-0 snook, trout tout, surf; Dennis Newman, an 8-0 trout, Frank Wacha Bridge, red tail hawk feathered jig; Jim Watkins, 5 trout, shrimp, Wacha; Mike Mauer, 3 trout and 3 Mangrove snappers, live shrimp, Wacha; Charlie Kessler and Jack Prell, 13 trout aggregating 36 lbs., live shrimp, wading close to the power plant; Pete Navaretta, an 18-8 snook, Evans Crary, live bait; Scott Gallivan, 3 trout to 3-0, Wacha; Paul Bemis, 4 channel bass and 4 trout, trout touts, wading in the river along the west shore near Walton Road; Lake Lytal, Jr., 4 trout to 2-0, trout touts, wading; Pete Dinelli, a 26-8 snook, live bunker, Evans Crary; Ronnie Parsutee, 3 tarpon on jigs in the mosquito ditches north of the power plant; Jim and Lynn Savastano and Dori Gaydos, 3 dolphin to 19-0 and a bonito, SE of the SL Inlet, ballyhoo; Tom Riley, 30 mangrove snappers to 4-0, live bunker, close to the SL Inlet.

FROM D&M BAIT AND TACKLE, at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S. 1 north of Stuart, Ellen LeBron: "It was great here for black drum on Thursday and Friday. I thought that the bridge would collapse. I've never seen so many people fishing on it before. It's been dead ever since, though, just a few mangrove snappers and croakers. Dave Batignani and Jim Barton caught 19 trout to 2-0 on live shrimp drifting off Lord Chumley's."

CAPT. PHIL SHERMAN from the party boat Lady Stuart (286-1860) going half days from the Sailfish Marina off A1A below Stuart: "We're doing a lot of sailing but the bottom fishing is slow because of the cold water, just a few grouper, snapper and trigger fish. Surface fishing is better for bonito and kings to 35 and 40 lbs. It's not too hot because the water's too cool. The current's been running real strong though for a couple of days so there's a good chance things will be getting back to normal again soon."

CHUCK SHEPHERD from the Bait Box in Jensen: "Not very much for you today. There's a lot of action on tarpon in that little creek above the power plant, some real tackle busters up there. Jim Haller caught 2 sharks, one of 25 lbs., wading right behind Bullion Cove with live bait."

FROM JENSEN BAIT AND TACKLE, Dave Lamb: "Dick, I've sold my business here to Keith Deering from St. Louis but may stay on until the end of the month. Jay Shank caught 4 trout to 4-0 on pinfish north of the power plant; Joe Brianni, a 17-0 snook on a red tail hawk, surf; Pete Stilton, a whiting and a pompano on clams and sand fleas, Jensen surf."

GUIDE EARL CASTNER reporting on the Jensen Savannas: "It's been pretty damn good, Dick. The big lake (Eden) must have had 30 big bass taken from it this year, to 11 lbs. That water's 87 degrees out there now. They're catching quite a few specks and bream now, mostly trolling with beetle spins."

HAROLD RUSSELL, from Okissimmee Fish Camp on SR 78 at the Kissimmee River Bridge on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee: "The fishing's really slow now, just a few bluegills in the river and out in the lake and some specks under the bridge. There just aren't any bass fishermen here any more. The wind's been blowing every day and there's not a damn thing going on."

SETTING THE HOOK—is what it's all about and you won't catch too many fish if you don't do it firmly and quickly, especially when you're fishing for panfish from a bridge catwalk (Frank Wacha Bridge) as Outdoor Editor Dick Lundin is doing here. You'll catch more panfish if you'll use light line and small hooks, but woe is you if something big decides to go for your bait and take off with your terminal tackle, which happened to this angler on the east catwalk a few minutes later.

JACK PRELL (L) and Charlie Kessler hold a string of 13 seatrout in the 3-4 lb. class they caught on live shrimp wading in the Indian River

LOU SMITTEN holds a nice 12 lb. snook he caught while fishing in the Jensen surf with a reflecto spoon.

Wildlife alert rewards reports

THE WILDLIFE ALERT PROGRAM of the state's Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission is paying off, not only for the GFWFC but also for many who have reported fish or wildlife law violations in Florida.

Major Ken Stivers, director of the Office of Informational Services of the Commission, reports that 20 rewards in the amount of $3,175 were made in the past three months to citizens who had made reports leading to the arrest of violators of games and fish laws, except endangered and threatened species which require a conviction pursuant to Florida law.

The Wildlife Alert program is designed to foster citizen cooperation and participation in Florida wildlife protection. Rewards are disbursed through the private association, which is made up of 13 Florida citizens, according to Major Stivers. On that score, if you wish to make a contribution to the fund, get in touch with the Commission's Regional Office in West Palm Beach (1-800-432-2046) for details.

"Many citizens calling violations declined rewards. The total number of Wildlife Alert calls in the three months ending June 30, totaled 453 with 359 persons stating that they did not want compensation. The calls led to 46 arrests with 20 concerned citizens receiving rewards. We are pleased to see such a fine response from citizens throughout Florida," Stivers said.

Remember, don't just shrug your shoulders and inwardly deplore the actions of those who keep under-sized snook or more than the daily limit of four 18 inches or longer, or commit other equally serious violations of the state's game and fish laws. Make notes of what you see and then head for the nearest telephone to dial a Wildlife Alert (1-800-432-2046) so that the nearest Wildlife Officer can home in on the scene quickly!

We can make this program work if we all work at it.

CELESTIAL EVENTS interest many folks and here are a few choice tidbits from Tom Nicholson and "Natural History," a magazine that is both entertaining and highly informative:

The moon will be rising after dark and setting in daylight in early August and September, with the evening crescent appearing just before the middle of each month. August phases are: first quarter on the 18th and full on the 25th. In September it's: last quarter on the 1st, new moon on the 9th, first-quarter on the 17th and full (harvest moon) on the 24th.

Venus is the spectacular morning star in August and September, rising about 3½ hours before the sun and visible in the east until daylight.

From Aug. 10-14 in the morning from 1 a.m. on, look for the Perseid meteor shower, the most reliable and productive (as many as 50 meteors per hour) of the year.

Thee will be a penumbral lunar eclipse on Aug. 25, producing a barely perceptible dimming of the full moon early in the evening.

TERRY BRADSHAW, Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback and 1979 pro football Player of the Year, will fill the role of Honorary Chairman of National Hunting and Fishing Day this year.

Sept. 27 will make the ninth annual observance of NHF Day. It was established by Congress in 1972 as a way to recognize sportsmen for their many contributions to conservation.

Since then, NHF Day has continued to grow both in size and impact. Millions of Americans participate in an estimated 2,500 separate NHF Day activities each year.

"Last year, NHF Day received the support of the President, governors of all 50 states and millions of Americans. This year, I hope that National Hunting and Fishing Day will receive the support of every person in the nation," Bradshaw said.

Additional information about National Hunting and Fishing Day is available from NHF Day, 1075 Post Road, Riverside, Conn. 06878.

Bob Henderer and that active Martin County Anglers Club might be interested in looking into the possibility of doing something here on the subject of National Hunting and Fishing Day – if they aren't already making plans for its celebration locally.

THE 1980 Wild Turkey Stamp is now available for tax-deductible donation of $5 per stamp or $50 per sheet of 10, along with a free souvenir brochure from the National Wild Turkey Federation, Edgefield, S.C. 29824. The stamp shows two turkey gobblers taking flight from a cornfield and is titled "Explosion in Corn" by artist Walter Wolfe who won the 1980 NWTF Stamp Contest.

Revenues from the sale of the stamps are used for education, restoration and research to benefit wild turkeys.

In addition to the limited stamp issue (only 50,000 printed), a signed and numbered limited edition of art prints (6½ x 9") has been produced and is available through most reputable wildlife art dealers.

If you want to help what is reported to be the only nonprofit organization working to preserve the wild turkey as a part of America's heritage, get in touch with the NWTF, Inc., Wild Turkey Building, P.O. Box 467, Edgefield, S.C. 29824 (1-803-637-3106).

FLORIDA'S STATE PARKS continue to draw heavily. Bill Baggs Cape Florida State Recreation Area, Key Biscayne, John U. Lloyd State Recreation Area, Dania, Hugh Taylor Birch State Recreation Area, Ft. Lauderdale and St. Andrews State Recreation Area, Panama City were among the most popular this summer. Others well patronized were Sebastian Inlet State Recreation Area, south of Melbourne, Anastasia State Recreation Area, St. Augustine Beach, Jonathan Dickinson State Park, Hobe Sound, T.H. Stone St. Joseph Peninsula State Park near Port ST. Joe, and Bahia Honda State Rcreation Area, Florida Keys.

How many of them have you visited?

BASSERS will be interested to know that the Thousand Islands region of New York's St. Lawrence River will be the site of the biggest event in bass fishing, the 10th BASS Masters Classic tournament, Sept. 24-26.

Contenders will vie for shares of the $70,000 prize fund, including $30,000 for the angler catching the most pounds of bass in the three-day competition among the nation's 41 top bass fishermen, based on a series of 1980 BASS tournaments throughout the country.

FISH CAMPS usually stay around for a long time, under one management or another, and for that reason it was disconcerting to visit the J&S Fish Camp on the northeast shore of Lake Okeechobee, some eight miles north of Port Mayaca on U.S. 441, only to find that it is closed down tight.

We (my son-in-law, Jim, and grandson, Chris,) arrived there at 6:30 a.m. Saturday, expecting to find the normal hustle and bustle of a fish camp on weekends, but everything was locked up and quiet. Rather than casing around the lake to the Taylor Creek Marina of Cabrin Pye, we launched anyway and fished up and down the Rim Canal with gratifying success, finally returning to the marina around 2 p.m. By then the little trailer with soft drinks and beer was open and I asked the two women operating it just what had happened to J&S.

"We've been closed down tight ever since we were flooded out last Halloween when that FP&L dike broke. Mrs. Lewis is waiting until she gets a settlement before opening again," they informed us.

So, don't sashay over to J&S without checking it out in advance.

Incidentally, in trolling up the canal several miles, we found gas at Barlow's, a fish camp that needs quite a bit of work to make it acceptable to the average fisherman. They told us they're working on it and will be spruced up soon.

YOUNG CHRIS HILBERT, 12,—of Hampton, Va., holds a nice mangrove snapper he caught while fishing from the sea wall at the southwest end of the little Mosquito Bridge at the east end of the Jensen Causeway.

Lauri
Fresh from Junior Title

Laurie Rinker, fresh from a magnificent victory winning her first U.S. Girls Junior Amateur Golf championship in Wichita, Kan., is in the thick of battle in the 80th U.S. Women's Amateur Golf championship where she is competing against the finest women amateurs in the nation.

In winning her sixth attempt for the national junior title, Laurie defeated Libby Akers of French Lick, Ind. 5 and 4 in the 18th hole, finale on the Crestview Country Club course. In her semi final round Miss Rinker scored over Heather Farr, the 1980 Junior World tournament finalist.

Laurie's victory was "sweet" and places her in a category of "Most Promising Woman Golfer" at the age of 17. Her participation in the U.S. Amateur will serve as a springboard of experience as she goes up against the best in the land, as one of the youngest to compete in the prestigious event.

THIS BIG SNOOK—an 18¼ pounder, was caught by holder Pete Navaretta while fishing from the Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge with live bunker (menhaden). The 10 cent bridge yields many snook like this to live baiters, fishing mostly after dark.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG

Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

Tennis clothes talk. They say a lot about how long a player has been playing, how good he or she is, whether a person is considerate and thoughtful, whether he or she is out to play tennis or just out to be seen.

Take shoes, for example. Maybe you've noticed how many tennis pros, after being introduced to someone, almost immediately cast a downward glance toward the floor.

They are not shy, because shy is not present with tennis pros. Rather, they are looking at the newcomer's feet, specifically the shoes, as the first step in sizing up the person they have just met. I do it so often I have been accused of being a "shoe freak."

But there's a sound reason for the downward glance. Tennis shoes are made for playing tennis and they differ greatly from basketball shoes, topsiders, jogging shoes and even ordinary sneakers.

Tennis shoes have a herring bone pattern on the soles that provide traction, yet permit a slight amount of sliding which is especially important on clay courts. Basketball shoes have small indentations on the sole. They are great for starting and stopping on a wood floor, but the cups act like a vacuum cleaner on clay tennis courts and will quickly tear them up. Joggers are the reverse, with little pimples on the soles that punch holes in the courts. And sneakers are just too slippery for tennis play.

Thus, a quick look at the shoes tells the pro (1) whether the player knows much about the game and (2) whether he cares about how he treats a court.

Sox say something, too, especially among men. A man wearing his sox high, hiking up the calf, probably is more interested in looking like Jimmy Connors or Ilie Nastase or playing a tough game, for those characters are the only ones who consistently wear their sox high. With women it's different, especially on outdoor courts. They seldom wear sox at all, preferring shoes with the special interiors. The reason has to do with vanity. Sox dance sun tan and create a white space around the ankle that does not blend with a well tanned leg when the lady is dressed for something other than tennis.

When it comes to shirts, blouses, shorts and tennis dresses, anything up a player gets a little tougher. Lots of good public court players don't have to be as dressy as their private club counterparts, so it's easy to jump to a wrong conclusion. One generality is valid, however. Good player's clothes, dressy or not, generally show signs of frequent laundering which, in turn, says they are worn a lot.

In addition to being experts on tennis wear, most pros can tell after a few minutes of watching play how good a player is, even to the point of categorizing the player as A, B or C level.

One tip-off is running. Just because one player is doing a lot of running and even making some spectacular shots, does not mean he or she is the best. In fact, the reverse is true.

The better player runs less not because he is better at anticipating where a return will land, although that helps, but because he has better depth perception. Depth perception enables a player to pick up the ball coming off the racket more quickly and judge where it will land. It may be only a matter of a second or two, but it's enough to let the player get into position for a return instead of having to chase the ball.

Unfortunately, depth perception isn't something you can teach. It comes only from experience, so pros don't fault one whose depth perception isn't very deep.

They will, however, mark an "X" after the name of players showing up wearing the wrong kind of shoes. Most of us really "X" shoe freaks.

At the age of 40 Jack Nicklaus refused to be counted among the "has beens" of golfing greats. He never let the "demise" occur. He did something about his game, should we say, to assure of about a possible flaw in his swing...about his putting stroke that had escaped him. He did, however, have the will to come back after two years of almost obscure listings in PGA tournament results.

The Golden Bear consulted his good friend and adviser Pro Jack Grout who taught Jack the fundamentals of the game when he was eight years old. The two Jacks got together. Slight flaws were detected and all the "Bear" had to do was practice. This he did for hours until he knew exactly what could be done with every club in the bag.

He didn't need to win more money because Jack Nicklaus is a millionaire several times over. It was pride and a love for the game that brought him back to the practice range. He did not want to bow out of the game as a "has been".

If anything, he was determined to prove to his public, to the press and to himself that he could win several more "majors" before hanging up his "spikes".

Now Jack has come off with two majors in less than five weeks, winning the U.S. Open and just this week, the National PGA. His recent win enabled him to tie Walter Hagen's record of five PGA titles.

He became only the third man in history to win the PGA and the U.S. Open in the same year. The others were Gene Sarazen (1922) and Ben Hogan (1948). Jack's win at Oak Hill was dramatic in many ways as he ran away from the field. He improved his record in 76 major championships to 17 firsts, 15 seconds, nine thirds and was listed in the top 10 in 58 other tour events.

Jack feels that he is a better player now than he was 10 years ago. He was determined to win a fourth Open and a fifth PGA this year to tie existing records. He said, "I accomplished that, and my next objective is to break that record. So my new goal is next year at Muirfield to win a fifth U.S. Open." He's like the sleeping bear, who has awakened after a long slumber, stretched his muscles, put his mitts on the hands of Jack Grout and continues to keep it. Trust in God for guidance.

(I learned from someone at Oak Hill by phone Sunday night, following his win, one of the first things Jack did was call home to learn how son Jack had done in the 94th Annual Metropolitan Amateur Golf Championship at Frenchmen's Creek in North Palm Beach. Jack struggled to an 88 for a 166 total as Rick Pearson, a U of F student from Bradenton, capped a win with a 141 tally. John Pallot and Warren Jurkatis of Miami were second with 144 while Lee Rinker of Stuart carded 148.)

Understand the Miles Grant Golf facility is looking for a new pro to replace Dave Cagle who resigned that he might spend more time at his Heritage Golf Club repair shop in Stuart. Chuck Knebels, pro at Marina Sands, is still accepting plaudits for his record-breaking 64 during a tournament at North Palm Beach C.C. where he finished second to Joe Lopez Jr for top money. Knebels had up and down rounds of 64 and 78 but came off the course with a $500 purse. In setting the record "Chortling" Chuck carded eight birdies including a half dozen on the back nine. He said his short game left him on the second day. Third place in that event was shared by Fred Harkness of Jonathan's Landing and Donnie Tollin of DelRay Beach while Sandy Scharlau of Stuart continued to be among pro leaders, finishing a close fourth.

See where Larry Rinker of Stuart took away top prize money in J.C. Gonsse's most recent mini-tour Space Coast event scoring 65-68 for 133 on the Walden Lakes CC course in Plant City. He took down top money of $3,700 winning by five shots over second place finisher Larry Mowry. 1980 Florida PGA champion.

Money winner figures released for Space Coast tour 1980 summer events shows Rinker in third place with $5,145 behind Charles Krenkel $5,537, and Dick Mast $5,148. Larry Mowry is fourth with $4,961. Others in the money list, names familiar to many in this area include: Kip Byrne $4,208; Wally Kuchar, $2,433; Dallas Applegren, $2,256 and recently turned pro Eric Slevenkay, $1,071. Learned also that J.D. Murchison, assistant pro at Martin County, who will be getting his PGA apprentice card in December, has designs of competing in the next Space Coast events believing his game is sharp enough to bring him sizable purses. All of us wish you well J.D.

They won't be match: The gals who make up this Sandpiper Bay Women's Golfers Association want a rematch against Bruce Hanson, Sandpiper Bay pro against whom they played in a "Beat The Pro" event and the best the gals could do was to produce two players who tied. Bashful Bruce at even par 70. Bruce took its lumps against the Sandpiper Mo a couple months ago and worked on his game intently, not to be outdone by the women against whom he shot with full handicaps. A total of 76 distaffers competed against Bruce and some of the ladies were claiming "foul" as

Huncharek steals Sandpiper show

The ring belonged to Col. John Huncharek among Sandpiper Men golfers Thursday when he scored the first hole-in-one in his career as a golfer...he led the solo scoring parade with a blistering 76 and led his foursome to first place in the day's event which was labeled "Best Ball of Each Can".

The winning team included the foursome of Charley Hyde, Ed Searles and John Crossey. Their score of 136 was a lone shot better than three other teams deadlocked in the next position. The colonel's ace lost a bit of its Glamour when it was learned he had failed to join the association's "hole-in-one" club which would have brought him the entire player's pool.

The trio of foursomes which ended in a virtual second place tie included Ray O'Grady, Dr. Gordon Castiglione Tom Rathbun and Seymour Fleming. The other team had Chuck Heiden, Fick Fickinger, Jim Waldie and Dick Landin while Jim Docos, Al Seidman, Ed Gaudette and Les Goodrich rounded out the winners field.

Breaking the "Eighty" barrier in addition to Huncharek were Tom Bonne, 78 with the following in at 79, Dr. Castiglione, Dan Smozanek, Jim Cram and Charley Brown. Play was on the 18-hole Saints course.

Huncharek's shot was made with a six-iron which sailed 140 yards off the tee, bit the green and rolled into the cup.

Next week's play will be an individual Stableford event.

Williams, Woodley bright spots for Dolphins

BY DICK LUNDEN

THAT FIRST EXHIBITION game of the pre-season is seldom very exciting and last Sunday afternoon's game in the Orange Bowl between the Detroit Lions and Miami Dolphins was certainly no exception to the rule. Neither side showed too much offense, and the defenses were about a stand-off, but Miami came out ahead by virtue of some heroics by veteran Delvin Williams and rookie David Woodley, 17-7.

Although the pre-season exploits of the young LSU rookie, an eighth pound draft choice, fired the imagination of the sparse crowd of 31,660, possibly the most significant performance of the afternoon was that of the veteran running back Delvin Williams, hobbled by injuries the last half of 1979, but apparently back in 1978 form against the Lions.

Williams carried twice for 13 yards and looked like the Williams of old, and then provided the game's one electrifying moment when he took a pitchout from Benjamin in the third quarter and passed 33 yards downfield to Elmer Bailey, rookie wide receiver from Minnesota, to set up a 23-yard field goal by Uwe von Schamann.

The Dolphins had all kinds of trouble mounting a running game in 1979 but if Williams is sound again and can once more turn the corners, the Dolphins could be far more formidable than anticipated — especially if the Miami brass can come to terms with veteran offensive guard Bob Kuechenberg this week. An offensive line with only one veteran (Ed Newman) would be hard pressed to get the job done in the NFL, but with Kooch and Ed in there anchoring the line, rookies and second year players like Jeff Toews, Mark Dennard, Dwight Stephenson, Cleveland Green and Joe Giesler (when he returns in October) might well do it. Of course, there's still the veteran Larry Little on hand to advise, exhort and instruct the young offensive linemen.

WOODLEY is the No. 4 quarterback on the depth charts and hardly figures to make the final 45-man team, but his play against the New Orleans Saints in that scrimmage a week ago and now against the Lions stamps him as a contender at least. He gives the Dolphins more trade bait for a fullback and an offensive lineman, whatever.

His credentials against the Detroiters included eight of 10 passes for 108 and no interceptions, a one-yard touchdown on a rollout, and the engineering of both of Miami's touchdown drives, in the second and fourth quarters.

The LSU star has been impressive, that's what.

THAT HOPE SPRINGS ETERNAL was never more evident than in the case of one Nick Giaquinto, 25, U. of Connecticut, a running back who has flunked tests with the New York Giants and Jets and the Ottawa Roughriders during the past three years, but still persisted in showing up in Miami's 1980 summer camp as a free agent. Nick had quite a game against Monte Clark's Lions Sunday, carrying the ball 14 times for 30 yards, playing on the special teams, and recovering a fumbled punt set up by Miami's No. 1 draft choice, Don McNeal of Alabama. It's just possible that Giaquinto might stick if he continues to impress on the special teams, with which Coach Don Shula was not impressed Sunday, or so he said after the game.

BILLY SIMS, the fabled Oklahoma running back who was the No. 1 draft choice in the 1980 NFL draft in April, didn't get much of a chance to run with the ball because of the poor field position the Lions experienced most of the first half. He carried just three times for 11 yards against a Miami defense that is one of the best in the NFL. Trying to run against Miami's defensive line and formidable corps of linebackers led by Steve Towle, is like meeting that immovable object, Detroit could muster but 83 yards on the ground all afternoon.

Rick Kane did most of the running for the Lions, coming up with 55 tough yards in 10 carries.

LARRY CSONKA is now out of the Miami fullback picture, and the pretenders to his throne are Steve Howell, a second year player from Baylor, and Bob Torrey of Penn State, also in his second year. The 6-3, 235 Torrey got the call Sunday and managed 20 yards in six rushes. If Coach Shula isn't able to trade for an experienced fullback, it'll have to be either Torrey or the 6-2, 230 Howell. Howell has carried 10 times for 19 yards and caught five passes for, 45 yards in his brief NFL career. Torrey has carried 13 times for 61 yards and caught two passes for three yards. They appear to be even stat-wise.

Many Dolfans feel that the Dolphins should have yielded to Csonka's demands and signed the big fullback who defected to the World Football League in 1975 when the Dolphins needed him most, played with the New York Giants from 1976-78, and then eagerly rejoined the Dolphins for the 1979 season when he had a good year with 837 yards gained rushing. Unfortunately, he declined to come to summer camp and steadfastly refused to accept Miami's offer of a $100,000 raise from 1979. It's my personal opinion that Owner Joe Robbie was eminently fair in the offer he made to Csonka and that probably Miami will be better off in the long run that the big fullback defected once again when he could have helped the Dolphins.

Greed seems to be the name of the game in professional sports these days. Get all you can while you can get it is the theme song of professional athletes and their agents. It's a battle of wills and wits between owners and agents, with the owners trying to make all they can and the players ditto. In Csonka's case it would appear that the big fullback thought he had the Dolphins over a barrel but was nonplussed when all of the other 25 NFL clubs passed waivers on him. It looks like the end of his career and that's truly unfortunate, but he could have avoided it by bending just a little. There are times when it's better to go with the tide.

THE SEATTLE SEAHAWKS will provide the Dolphins with their second taste of pre-season competition when the two meet out in the Kingdome at 10:30 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 18.

Back to the subject of signees, linebacker Larry Gordon is still outside the fold and his loss would be a grievous one for the Dolphins. If Miami can sign Gordon and Kuechenberg and trade for a battle-wise NFL fullback, the playoff hopes of the Dolphins would be considerably brighter.

GETTING BACK to Sunday's fracas in the Orange Bowl, one of the highlights of the game was the off balance pass that Woodley tossed downfield to tight end Joe Rose of California. The play gained 31 precious yards and set up the clinching touchdown for Miami. It was obviously a busted play but the alert Woodley turned it into pure gold with his desperate toss down the south sideline. Similarly, the LSU rookie set up Miami's first touchdown by rolling out and hitting wide receiver Eugene Byrd of Michigan State, Miami's No. 6 draft choice, with a 31-yard completion.

It's hard to discuss young Mr. Woodley without getting into superlatives.

Both Byrd and Bailey acquitted themselves well against the Lions. One could conceivably make the 45-man squad along with Nat Moore, Duriel Harris and Jimmy Cefalo, with the other being trade bait for that sought after fullback or offensive lineman.

That's the name of the game in pre-season, to find a rookie or two who can make the big team, and showcase those who barely fall short for trades to other NFL teams needing their talents.

ALL IN ALL, except for putting a lot of points on the board, Miami looked pretty good against Detroit on Sunday. Let's see how well they contain quarterback Jim Zorn and that high-powered Seattle offense.

Stottlemeyer wins Northport men's golf play

Tuesday scores for the northport men's golf association had Clyde Stottlemeyer winning Flight A with a net agore of 57.

Stan Kazan had a 59.

Jim Vanderbyde won Flight B with a 58 until Ray Mink came along and tied him with the same score. In Flight C, Al McIntyre had a 57 and Stan Vick a 59.

Al Nowicki had a 58 to win Flight C. Herb Bowers had a 60. Closest to the pin on the third hole was Stan Kazan. Tom Cole was closest on the 12th hole.

Murchison and Larsen in Heritage Spotlite

Little time was wasted for two marks being set on the new Heritage Ridge golf course in Stuart when J. D. Murchison, assistant pro at Martin County established an 18 hole mark that should be a target for the name pros in the area when he carded a 61. J. D. played both nines twice utilizing the blue tees. His tally, which was five under par, was garnered while playing with Lou Sleat and Earl Husander. J.D.'s record round erased an earlier low set by Heritage pro Tom Cioffi who has an even par 66 on the 4700 yard layout, opened for public play two weeks ago.

Jim Larsen of Stuart will have his name engraved in the record books at Heritage showing he had scored the first hole-in-one when he aced the 135 yard second hole using an eight iron. His "dream shot" was recorded while playing with Earl Graham.

Cioffi reported many veteran golfers in the area have played the course and have found it one of the most interesting to play.

Daily green fees are $3.50 for nine holes and $5.00 for 18 holes with cart fees at $4.50 for nine holes and $8.00 for 18 holes.

It is also reported that several attractive tournaments are being planned by Heritage for both men and women players.

P.G.A. stars to compete in Martin Downs Open

With the deadline for entry for the Martin Downs Open tournament at Crane Creek set at 6 p.m. Aug. 14, the field of professional competitors takes on the aspects of a miniature Florida PGA Open. Already assured to play in the stellar event Aug. 15, 16 & 17, which includes both pros and leading amateurs, are former Florida Open champion Tony Valentine of Plantation; Zeno Rawley and Jim DeLarme of Tam OShanter C.C.; Chuck Koehnle, Mariner Sands, who just came off of North Palm Beach Country Club with a record 64 score; Jay Pyle, host Crane Creek pro; Bruce Harrison, Sandpiper Bay; Fred Harkness, Jonathans Landing; Lou Sabo, retired noted pro from Chicago, Ill.; and other area notables Steve Cunningham, Steve Castiglione, Jerry Sedelbo, Chip Fair and Joe Kasun, Vero Beach; and Sandy Scharlau, Stuart.

Defending amateur champion John Smith of Fort Pierce who won the amateur event last year with a 36 hole round of 148 will be on hand to defend his title as will many leading amateurs of the Treasure Coast including Dale Anderson, former mayor of Stuart; Grant Wurtz, Ron and Barry Allison, the father-son combination of Stuart Doug and Don Campora; Tim Beegle, Jim Clute, Sam Zinaich, Orne Kirkby, and Tony Franza of Sandpiper Bay; Bob Salley, and a pair of amateurs from Vero Beach — Skip Horne and Jim McCoy.

Host pro Pyle added that entries will close at 120 players and that applications will be accepted on a first-come first-serve basis. Pros will be assessed $80 per can and amateurs $40 for the Open competition while amateurs who compete only in the Pro Am division will be charged $30. A gala barbeque will follow the final tabulations with friends of competitors invited to participate in the "eat-feast".

Course superintendent reported that Crane Creek course is in excellent condition and that an even par score should take home the "bacon".

PSL women play F & T tourney

Martin Memorial survey shows local support

The results of a health survey sent to 16,000 residents in Martin County and the Port St. Lucie area by Martin Memorial Hospital indicate a high level of satisfaction with the services provided by the hospital and a strong desire by area residents for additional services, especially in the Port St. Lucie area.

On April 3, Martin Memorial Hospital sent 8,000 questionnaires to households in the Port St. Lucie area, and on April 21, sent 8,000 households in Martin County, a questionnaire asking residents to judge the services of Martin Memorial Hospital and identify the need for new services. Martin County and the Port St. Lucie area are considered the primary service area of Martin Memorial Hospital and encompass a population of approximately 25,000 in the Port St. Lucie area and 65,000 in Martin County.

Of the 8,000 surveys sent to the Port ST. Lucie area, 1,704 were returned or 22.3 percent. Based on an average of 2.6 persons per household, Martin Memorial Hospital estimates the survey covered slightly over 4,000 persons, or 18.6 percent of the population of the Port St. Lucie area. Of the 8,000 surveys sent to Martin County, 1,056 were returned, or 13.3 percent. The hospital estimates that the Martin County survey covered approximately 4.3 percent of the population of Martin County. Hospital officials feel that the higher response in the Port St. Lucie area was due to the continuing awareness of the residents in that area for the need of additional health care services.

Both Martin and Port St. Lucie residents felt a strong need for additional emergency treatment and outpatient diagnostic services, while the Port St. Lucie area residents also indicated a strong need for inpatient hospital beds and general care physicians. In contrast Martin County residents rated radiation-cobalt therapy (cancer treatment) and hospice care as additional services desired in their area. With regards to the new services which area residents would like to see offered by Martin Memorial Hospital in the future in Stuart, residents identified open-heart surgery, newborn intensive care, a burn unit, and additional nursing home beds as eventually needed.

Both Martin County and Port ST. Lucie residents indicated a very high level of satisfaction with the overall services at Martin Memorial Hospital. Nearly 94 percent of the Port St. Lucie residents and 84.8 percent of Martin County residents indicated they were very satisfied or satisfied with the overall services. Specific services which received especially high levels of satisfaction were nursing-patient care; courtesy and attitude of employees, and comfort and cleanliness of patient rooms. The hospital Administration and the Board were very pleased with overall results of the survey, and indicated that they are looking into those areas with which former patients were not totally satisfied.

The majority of the respondents indicated that they were permanent residents with slightly over 48 percent of the Port St. Lucie area residents and 37 percent of the Martin County residents indicating they were over 65 years of age. Eighteen per cent of the Port St. Lucie residents and 29 percent of the Martin County residents indicated that they had children under the age of 18 living at home.

Nearly 55 percent of the Martin County respondents and 38.5 percent of the Port St. Lucie area respondents indicated that they had been previously hospitalized at Martin Memorial Hospital with the majority indicating surgery as the reason. A similar percentage of the respondents indicated that they had received emergency room or outpatient services at Martin Memorial Hospital.

Due to a recent news coverage with regards to insurance coverages in Martin County, hospital officials were especially interested in the outcome of the survey question dealing with health insurance coverages. In response to this question, "Are you or your family covered by any health insurance plan?", 96.4 percent of the Port St. Lucie residents and 95.1 percent of the Martin County respondents indicated that they had some type of insurance coverage. The remaining did not respond or indicated that they did not have insurance. The majority of those indicating they have insurance coverage said they are covered by a commercial insurance, such as Blue Cross-Blue Shield or Medicare.

The final question in this survey allowed residents to comment on what they attribute current health care costs to. Hospital officials indicated the comments ranged far and wide, but the most common reasons stated were inflation, professional fees, and the high cost of medical equipment, supplies, and technical personnel.

Mr. William Oughterson, Chairman of the Board, indicated that he was very pleased with the high rate of response to the survey, especially from the Port St. Lucie area. He indicated that the information received will be very valuable in planning for new hospital services and improving the services currently offered at Martin Memorial Hospital.

Oughterson went on to state, "I think the results of the Port St. Lucie area survey firmly indicate that the majority of Port St. Lucie area residents depend on Martin Memorial for their hospital care, and because of the high level of satisfaction with the services they have received, they want Martin Memorial to continue serving the area by building The Port St. Lucie Medical Complex as soon as possible. He wishes to thank all those who participated in the survey.

Oughterson stated that while the Board of Directors, employees and Medical Staff often feel they are doing a satisfactory job, it is always encouraging to know that those beliefs are substantiated by those who have actually received the services which the hospital provides.

Obituaries

JANET SPAUGH FISCHER

Janet Spaugh Fischer, 75, of 2101 Pyramid Street, Port St. Lucie, died Wednesday, Aug. 6 at Martin Memorial Hospital.

Born in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, she was a resident of Port St. Lucie for three years coming from Pittsburgh, Pa., Lake Worth, and Hendersonville, N.C.

Prior to retirement Mrs. Fischer was a Music Teacher with the Thornburg and Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania Public Schools. She also served as Minister of Music for the Calvary United Methodist Church and Choir Director for the Thornburg and Pittsburgh Public Schools, both in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mrs. Fischer attended the Salem Academy in Winston-Salem, North Carolina and the Brenau College in Gainesville, Georgia. She was a graduate of the Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh, Pa. Mrs. Fischer was past president of the Southern Club of Pittsburgh and the Thornburg Women's Club; former member of the Fellowship of United Methodist Musicians and the American Guild of Organists; and a member of the Alpha Chi Omega social sorority and the Alpha Iota honorary musical sorority.

Survivors include her husband Mr. Delmar A. Fischer of Port St. Lucie; one son Delmar A. Fischer Jr. of Parkersburg, West Virginia; grandson Kurt D. Fischer of Parkersburg, West Virginia; brother Walter T. Spaugh of Lake Worth, Fla.; and sister Mrs. Elizabeth S. Smith of Jellico, Tenn.

Funeral services were held Saturday at the Aycock Funeral Home Chapel in Jensen Beach with the Rev. Paul O'Higgins, the Reverend Timothy Smiley, and Mr. Evans Crary Jr., officiating.

Interment was at the Palm Beach Memorial Park in Lantana.

Visitation was Friday at the Aycock Funeral Home in Jensen Beach who was in charge of arrangements.

Reduce pain, tension with 'Touch for Health'

A series of three classes designed to teach persons how to use acupuncture touch and massage to reduce pain and tension will begin tonight (Wednesday, Aug. 13) at the First Federal Savings and Loan building in Jensen Beach.

The series of classes, titled "Touch for Health" is free and is offered by the Health Awareness Center of Stuart. The center is a chiropractic applied natural health center.

The classes will start at 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 13, 20 and 27. They are designed as a layman's guide to applied kinesiology technique, using acupuncture and massage. The series is designed to teach persons how to work with and balance the energy system of their body.

The First Federal building is located at the corner of Indian River Drive and Commercial Street. For more information, call 286-3650.

Porch will be expanded

Indian River Plantation Resort's General Manager F.I. (Pete) Nebhut has announced the renovation and expansion of The Porch Restaurant, to begin August 17.

The project includes the addition of a 60 seat formal dining room and a 40 seat cocktail deck overlooking the Pro tennis court. The original restaurant will be renovated, and will remain the same size.

The additional dining area will also be used for buffets and banquets, and can be converted into an additional meeting room if need be.

This functional room will give us greater flexibility in handling group business, and can be used for private parties as well," Nebhut explained.

The expansion is expected to be completed by November 1. During this period, a Plantation style continental breakfast will be served from 8 a.m. until 11 a.m., and the popular Soup and Sandwich Special will be available during the lunch hours. Both meals will be served in the Back Porch Lounge.

LET'S BE HONEST

If you weren't looking for a new position, you wouldn't be reading this ad. If we weren't looking for personnel, this ad wouldn't be here. We are interested in talking to ambitious men and women, who feel that they are presently earning less than their potential, and who are not afraid of a little bit of hard work for their financial-independence and security. To these people, our expanding multi-million dollar international fraternal benefit society offers unlimited possibilities through our prompt advance commission system. This is a dignified sales career with an excellent chance for promotion and generous fringe benefits. For interview, please call:

Bafalis questionnaire

Residents of Florida's 10th Congressional District will get a chance to express themselves on a host of important issues, ranging from the Iranian hostage crisis to budget-cutting, when U.S. Rep. L.A. "Skip" Bafalis' annual questionnaire begins arriving at homes soon.

Other issues on which public opinion is being sought include the future of all-volunteer armed forces, proposed tax cuts, government regulations, and national defense, Bafalis said.

This year, some 400,000 questionnaires will be delivered throughout the district by the Postal Service, with one going to every home, every rural route box and every star route.

IRCC Itinerary

Time to register

There is only one week left for you to register for Fall classes at Indian River Community College. The formal registration period is scheduled for Thursday and Friday, Aug. 21 and 22, from 8 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Fees should be paid in the business office by 8:30 p.m. Aug. 22. One trip to the college and you can complete the entire registration procedure and be ready to begin classes Monday, Aug. 25. The first step is to go to the Guidance Office on the main campus or any of the other IRCC sites, choose your classes, and to have a counselor formally schedule them. Next, go to the business office to pay your fees. You can get a parking sticker and arrange for a student I.D. card through the Dean of Students Office in the Student Union, and have the I.D. card made in the audio-visual lab behind the college library. With the college bookstore open until 8:30 p.m. on both night nights of registration, you can pick up your books and supplies while you're on campus; and since season tickets for the 1980-81 season of the McAlpin Performing Arts Series will be on sale in conjunction with registration, full-time students will have the opportunity to purchase them then.

Five-day week

Beginning Aug. 18, IRCC will resume a five-day operating schedule. The college has been on a four-day week through the summer to save on energy costs, but with the large influx of students on campus during Fall terqn, it is necessary for the office to return to the five-day week. Effective Monday, Aug. 18, the business and administrative offices at the college will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., as will the Stuart site, the Okeechobee site, and the Mueller Center. The Guidance Division on the main campus will remain open from 8 a.m. until 8:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Fridays, except for registration days, when the hours are extended.

Communicate with deaf

For anyone who is interested in learning to communicate with the deaf on a basic level, the IRCC Continuing Education Division is once again offering a course in lip reading and sign language. To meet in Room A-204 on the main campus, the class will be held on Monday evenings at 5:30 p.m. beginning Aug. 25. For more information, call the IRCC Guidance Office, ext. 323.

Pick a language

Whether you are planning that long-dreamed-of trip abroad or simply want to expand your knowledge of languages, you will be interested to know that IRCC is offering an array of foreign language courses this Fall. Beginning the first week of August, Italian, Russian, German, and Beginning and Intermediate Spanish classes were started through the IRCC Continuing Education Division. For details, call IRCC, ext. 323.

Your family tree

The Continuing Education Division at IRCC is offering a course in Basic Genealogy this Fall in Room A-208 on the main campus, and Beth Kelly, a retired librarian who has traced her own family back to the 1600's, will teach it. Scheduled to begin Aug. 28, the class will meet each Thursday from 8 to 10 p.m. For more information, call IRCC, ext. 323.

Great gift idea

A Tole and decorative painting course being offered this Fall by IRCC's Continuing Education Division. Marsha McDowell, a Priscilla Hauser-accredited teacher, will provide individualized instruction at the classes, which will meet each Thursday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Room F-104 on the main campus beginning Aug. 28. For more information, call IRCC, ext. 323.

Ladies tailoring

A Ladies Tailoring Course is being offered in Room E-207 on the main campus.

You can learn to alter patterns, choose suitable fabrics, and to interface to achieve the perfect fit. Classes will meet each Wednesday from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. beginning Aug. 27. For more information, call IRCC, ext. 323.

"Building" a quilt

Quilting will be offered on Wednesdays from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. in Room E-207 of the IRCC Main Campus beginning Aug. 27. The focus of this class is a series of sampler blocks uniform in size that can be assembled by sewing machine or by hand into a complete quilt. Participants should have at least a basic knowledge of quilting before they take the class. For details, call IRCC, ext. 323.

Sewing in Stuart

Two specialty sewing classes will be offered at the IRCC Stuart site this Fall through the Continuing Education Division.

"Sew Quick with Knits" will be offered each Thursday at 9 a.m. beginning Aug. 28, and will include tips for sewing a variety of attractive knit tops quickly. The other class, "Sewing Lingerie and Bathing Suits", will meet at 1 p.m. each Thursday beginning Aug. 28. For details, call the Stuart site, 283-6550.

Training program could mean 200 jobs

While the rest of the country suffers through the symptoms of a sick economy, the Treasure Coast area can soon expect an economic shot in the arm.

Grumman Aerospace Corporation, Indian River Community College and the State Department of Education's Vocational Education Division will jointly put into effect this month a training program which could lead to the hiring by Grumman of as many as 200 local IRCC students.

Grumman corporate spokesman Paul Kessler of Bethpage, New York, cited exclusive government orders and a subcontract for the production of Boeing's 767 plane as the reasons that Grumman has adopted the new hiring program.

Because "the college feels committed to meeting the requirements of local industry," and because IRCC already has the necessary training facilities set up at its Mueller Center campus, a series of intensive training classes for potential Grumman employees, according to IRCC's Associate Dean of Instruction Robert W. Mason, should take the training to be offered by Grumman. Mason noted that the training to be given by Grumman will center around 80 hours of airframe construction practice over a two-week period. Gaspin, a 42-year veteran of the aircraft industry, including a 30-year stint in the Navy, will instruct from the classroom. To meet at the Mueller Center, each class will consist of 15 applicants and two instructors, allowing "to a large extent, one-to-one instruction," Gaspin explained. "We will be oriented to the interest of the individual," Kessler said that instructors will evaluate the attitudes of the trainees, as well as their ability to learn job skills.

Although the Grumman crew plans to hire those who meet the competencies required to pass the course, and whose attitudes reflect the knowledge that they are dealing with a product that is an aircraft, stated Ray Gaspin, IRCC's Director. "This is a personal technology and trainees should know that things must be done correctly."

Once applicants are accepted for training, pass the course, and are hired by Grumman, they will operate the machinery at the starting salary described by Isenberg as "premium," was not disclosed. Grumman officials, however, mentioned regular raises and cost-of-living increases as part of a liberal benefit package.

Applicants to the training program will be referred by the Florida State Employment Service and Great Plains Manpower Services and Development Corporation, where their interest, background, and aptitude for training will be assessed. Career Planning and Placement will then recommend trainees to the program.

The first training class will begin on Sept. 8 at 8 a.m. on Monday through Friday. According to Mason, IRCC will provide bus transportation as needed from the Stuart and Fort Pierce campuses to the Mueller Center.

Those interested in schedule appointments to discuss the training program should call 12 classes in the next year or so. Mason said, "We will be equipping a training lab at our new site in Stuart.

Writing for profit or fun

"Writing for Fun and Profit" is being offered this Fall on the Indian River Community College Main Campus.

Practical tips will be offered on how to get started writing, and on how to get along with the editor, and on how to improve one's writing style. Class meets from 6 to 10:30 p.m. each Thursday beginning Aug. 28. Instructor is Shirley Wagoner, former Public Information Officer for U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. For more information on this class, call the college, ext. 39.

Adelines picnic

The Sailfish Chapter of the Sweet Adelines held their annual picnic recently at the home of Director Evelyn Key, an synod swimming, canoeing, singing and participation in a Tug Blast Contest. The group of husbands who were judges chose the winning shirts of Sue Krewin, and Linda Gastrow, in the individual competitions. Mary Meier, Carolyn Wilson and Jane Bak were the winners in the individual competitions. Sweet Adelines, Inc. is a large international organization which features "Barbershop" four part harmony. A part singer will be held Sept. 6 at Dorris Hall at 7:30 p.m. All are welcome. The local chapter is interested in adding about seven more female voices to the chorus.

For more information call Eva Mitchell, 283-6874, or Evelyn Key, 334-7761.

PEACEFUL, BREAK—While Hurricane Allen devastated Caribbean islands and left a path of destruction on its way to Texas, local residents breathed a sigh of relief that the big below didn't come this way. And, with the taste on the way that it didn't affect the weather we had and get in a bit of look to the beach to walk in the sun. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Athletics at Indian River Community College are on the move. Just like the rest of the college, the Athletic Department is experiencing growth. Growth in our programs, growth in our staff, growth in support from the administration, and most importantly, growth in support from the community.

Indian River Community College is a part of Fort Pierce and the surrounding four-county area, and we are doing all we can to reach out and draw in the community to see just what Indian River athletics are all about.

Indian River offers a diversified program of intercollegiate athletics for all students to participate in. Men's teams are fielded in baseball, basketball, swimming and tennis while women compete in basketball, swimming, tennis and volleyball.

Success is the key word when speaking of IRCC sports programs. Every year since 1973, the men's swimming team has captured the national championship for junior college teams. Aiding in last year's sixth consecutive national title were Marley Marr of Stuart and Scott Primm of Vero Beach.

And while the men have excelled, the women have kept pace also. Their string of five straight national titles was snapped in March when they took second place. But coach Doug Ingram has recruited some fine talent that will put IRCC back on top in women's junior college swimming.

Basketball coach Mike Lauderdale has recruited several of the top players on the Treasure Coast for his '80-'81 team. Players like Ray Anderson, Ed Bagley, Rocky Bowersox, "Amp" Bush and Dwayne Turner will lead the Pioneers to an exciting season and hopefully, a return of the state title which they last won in 1973.

In 1979, baseball coach Mike Easom led IRCC to a 45-15 record and the Florida State Championship. This year, aided by former all county pitcher Jim Taylor of John Carroll High School, the Pioneers will look to repeat that state title performance.

Growth in the Athletic Department has also been made this summer with the addition of several full-time staff members as well as new faces on the coaching staff. Joining the staff are trainer Glen Lowenberg and sports information director Steve Hyatt.

Athletic Director Bob Bottger has also added a number of new coaches to the staff, including volleyball coach Charles Milford of Vero Beach and tennis coach Michael Hughes of Fort Pierce. Also, Zalia McDuffie joins the IRCC volleyball coaching staff.

So get involved in IRCC. Indian River is your community college. Give it your support and come out and watch the Pioneers in '80-'81. BE IRCC PROUD!!!

"We're excited that this Fall our staff will grow to include 7 new coaches with lots of new ideas to share. We'll have the strongest coaching staff this year that we've ever had." —Bob Bottger, Athletic Director

"One of our aims is to keep our athletic program growing - and improving. I think the two are synonymous." —Steve Hyatt, Sports Information Director

SEASON TICKETS TO GO ON SALE

Indian River Community College basketball begins November 18 with a home game against Brevard Community College. But the time to start making plans to see the exciting Pioneers is NOW! Season tickets go on sale September 1 and you will want to make sure that you don't miss out on any of the '80-'81 season.

Mike Lauderdale, one of the most successful junior college basketball coaches in Florida over the last ten years, is assembling a team that is guaranteed to provide plenty of thrilling moments for IRCC fans. With returning stars such as "Amp" Bush and exciting newcomers like Ed Bagley, Ray Anderson, and Dwayne Turner, you'll want to make sure you see every game. And the best way to make sure you get in is by having a season ticket.

A season ticket guarantees you admittance to all 15 of the Pioneer's home games and preferred seating in the reserved seats. Also, your ticket will get you in to see all of the Lady Pioneer games.

Values like this just don't come along every day on the Treasure Coast. You can purchase season tickets for just $30 for more than 30 exciting men's and women's basketball games. In addition, if you purchase a season ticket, all children that accompany you are admitted for HALF PRICE!

So bring the family, bring your friends. Buy an IRCC basketball season ticket. Don't miss any of this year's exciting action.

To purchase a season ticket, just phone 464-2000 ext. 230. It may be the best buy you'll ever make.

IRCC's Easom and Ingram in the Spotlight

DOUG INGRAM

Few collegiate coaches ever get the opportunity to coach at the Olympic or even professional level but Indian River Community College has two coaches who are doing just that this summer.

Doug Ingram, IRCC's swimming coach, was recently asked to serve as an assistant coach/manager for the United States Olympic Swimming Team that will participate in an international meet for boycotting countries next month in Hawaii.

Ingram received word of his appointment from George Breen, chairman of the International Olympic Swimming and Diving Committee. Last year, in his first season at IRCC, Ingram led his men's team to the National Junior College Athletic Association national championship and his women to a second place finish nationally. For his accomplishments, Ingram was named as NJCAA Coach of the Year.

"I am very thrilled to be going," Ingram said. "I was an assistant coach for the U.S. team that toured Europe in '76, and that was a great experience. I'm sure this meet will be very patriotic and emotional, what with the boycott and all."

The meet runs August 14-17 and prior to departure for Hawaii, the team will be honored at the U.S. Long Course Swimming Championship in Irvine, California and at the White House.

Meanwhile, up in Paintsville, Kentucky, Brewer baseball coach Mike Easom is perfecting his coaching skills with the Paintsville Yankees. Easom was offered the job when an old friend and fellow Florida State University alumnus, Dick Hoerner, was named field manager of the parent club, The New York Yankees.

Easom's Yankees have won seven of their last nine games to move within one game of the league leading Johnson City Cardinals. Paintsville will play a 70 game schedule in the Appalachian League that concludes August 28.

"The people at Indian River have been real good in letting me take time off to do this," Easom said. "In fact, I've even signed two recruits to play for IRCC next season."

Easom led IRCC to a 45-15 record and the Florida Community College Athletic Association state champion ship in 1979. He also received the Coach of the Year award for the state of Florida that year.

It's uplifting!
The Adult Basic Education (ABE) Program is for you if you have less than a high school education, or if you need to review the basics before continuing your education. These courses can lead to a GED, or high school equivalency, exam and diploma.

"IRCC has opened my mind to new avenues. I want to get into the Nursing Program this Fall. And IRCC has helped me grow up, meet people, make new friends." --Arthur French, IMT Health Lab

It's refreshing!
The High School Completion Program will help you review and prepare for the GED exam.

It's rewarding!
The Adult High School Program, a more traditional route to a high school diploma, includes a full curriculum of high school courses offered in the evening for students age 16 and over.

It's enriching!
The Adult NonCredit Program gives you a chance to discover new interests and develop skills to use at work or for your own fulfillment. Just to mention a few of the non-credit classes offered this Fall: languages, floral design, safe boating skills, interior design, "New Directions", painting.

It's individualized!
With the one to one instruction available to you through the IMT Lab, you can brush up your reading, math, language, job skills, or any other deficiency that keeps you from getting and keeping the job you really want. It's practical. It's free, and it's set up for your convenience.

"I've studied fashion merchandising at another school, and already I've learned more here at IRCC." --Shirley Mc-Cloud, fashion merchandising major

CONTINUING EDUCATION...IT'S A GREAT WAY TO MAKE LEARNING A LIFELONG HABIT!
For more information, call the Guidance Division, ext. 323.

Admission Procedures

IRCC maintains a policy of "open admissions", which means that any graduate of an accredited high school or any GED certificate recipient is guaranteed admission to the college upon presentation of transcripts and a $10 application fee. Special requirements must be met to enter some of the specific programs at the college, however.

Before you enroll at IRCC, you may wish to...

- visit the Career Planning & Placement Office on the Main Campus for help in setting your educational and career goals.
- find out from the Financial Aid Office on the Main Campus whether you are eligible for one of the many financial aid programs available to students.
- pick up a 1980-81 catalog, with an enclosed application for admission.

Now you are ready to enroll. Simply...

- complete an application and residency affidavit, and submit both with a $10 application fee to the Admission Office.
- have all high school and college transcripts forwarded to IRCC.
- see an IRCC counselor to select the courses that best suit your degree requirements and career plans.
- take your schedule with you to the Business Office to pay tuition fees. The cost of tuition is: $14 per credit hour for in-state students or $29 per credit hour for out-of-state students for all college credit courses; $8 per institutional credit, $5 per non-credit course; and $3 per adult high school class. Lab fees for certain programs are extra. Registration is not complete until all fees are paid.
- get a parking sticker and a student ID form from the Dean of Students Office. Be sure to have your license tag number. If you need transportation, bus service is available to all four counties.
- have your student ID card prepared in the Audio-Visual Department behind the college library.

The best time to enroll at IRCC is NOW. You'll avoid the Fall rush and have a better chance of getting the classes you want to take. Call or write the IRCC Public Information Office, ext. 408. If you have any questions.

The opening of the McAlpin Fine Arts Center this Fall on the Indian River Community College Main Campus marks a new era of growth for the college and the four-county community served by IRCC.

When the first classes were held back in 1963 on the 82-acre Main Campus, located on Virginia Avenue in Fort Pierce, only the most far reaching planners envisioned the college as it exists today. With its 22 buildings, branch campuses in Okeechobee, Stuart, and Vero Beach, and a full time student enrollment of approximately 5,500, IRCC bears little resemblance to the college that first opened its doors to 431 students only 20 years ago.

In 1970, when the college had expanded to 13 buildings, the emphasis was strictly academic. After all, the fundamental purpose of a community college is to educate, and the administrators were determined to build a top-notch two-year college that would prepare students destined for an upper-level university and those who intended to enter the work force upon graduation. What the community needed most at that time was a nearby college where students could grow academically beyond the high school level. IRCC was there, ready to meet that need.

Population in the four-county area surged in the 1970's, and with the new residents came new demands. Students wanted more than a good education from IRCC. They appreciated the up-to-date athletic facilities, the broad range of student activities, the support facilities such as the Charles S. Miley Learning Resources Center, the many student publications, and the general atmosphere of open learning and informality embraced by the college administration. The community demanded more from its community college, and again, IRCC was ready. With the new athletic and social experiences added to the already wide educational program, the college could now aim for the goal of every good college — full realization of every student's potential.

By 1975, the college was a well-established center of the community. Branch campuses, designed to make education accessible to all corners of the four county area, were added to the 18 buildings on the Main Campus. New programs, modern equipment, a large and highly qualified faculty, and the stable, but innovative, operation of the college all reflect the high standards that were set early and never lowered.

"The Fine Arts Center will give our students an opportunity for intellectual and cultural awakenings in a way that our community has not yet been able to provide. As a side effect the Center will bring culture to the community as well as the students." --Dr. Harmon A. Heise, President of IRCC

"The Center will not only keep us up with the times, but will put us ahead of the times. It's something extra to offer our students." --Dr. David L. Anderson, Dean of Students

"For the first time IRCC really has the facilities for cultural growth--not only for the college, but for our community as well." --Roberta Alla, music instructor

"How can our quad-county community help but grow culturally when exposed to the music of the great classical composers through WQCS. IRCC's new FM radio station!" --Pat Hassel, Director, WQCS

Although the growth of IRCC has indeed been dramatic, it has also been orderly. Flexibility and constant re-evaluation of facilities and services allow IRCC to keep up with the ever changing demands of rapid growth. Like a sailing ship, IRCC has shifted its course with the winds of change, but its final destination has never varied. The well rounded student has always been the ideal at IRCC; to reach ultimate potential, students must have a chance for intellectual, physical, and social growth. None are more important than the others, and all are vital to the full realization of each.

A broad spectrum of courses and programs, Continuing Education, instructional clubs, scholarships, and qualified instructors encourage the academic growth of IRCC students, while athletic teams, complete athletic facilities, and campus organizations stimulate physical and social development.

As the community expands, its residents become more diverse and sophisticated. Once again, IRCC is ready. The challenge of new ideas, the sharing of thought, the thrill of beauty and skill encourages growth of the individual. Through the exciting performances, thought-provoking discussions, and artful forms of expression planned this first season at the McAlpin Fine Arts Center, your imagination will be broadened and your outlook freshened.

As IRCC has strived to fulfill the developing needs of the community for the past 20 years, it will continue to meet those demands and accept new ones. The Center will contribute in such a way that our students will have the challenge, the vibrancy, the choices of the new without losing the traditional excellence of the old.

Indian River Community College is proud to introduce the new McAlpin Fine Arts Center to you as a growing experience — for the college, for the community, and for you.

Come grow with us at IRCC.

Ticket Information

The primary responsibility of a college is to its students, for this reason, full time students at IRCC will be given the first opportunity to buy season tickets for the eight productions scheduled this season at the McAlpin Fine Arts Center. Between August 21 and September 12, only full-time students may purchase ticket books, with a limit of one season ticket book per student. On September 15, season tickets will go on sale to part time students, the general public, and the IRCC faculty and staff. Season tickets cost $40 per book. Individual tickets will be made available only if season tickets do not sell out. For ticket information, call the theatre box office, ext. 261.

The Savannas

Enviromentally endangered, or a refuge for outlaws?

BY DICK CAMPBELL

From the air, there is an almost symmetrical pattern of tracks forming a stirring design in the marshes and flatlands of the Jensen Savannas. They extend from SR 707-A in Jensen Beach to Walton Road.

The tracks cover much of the area from the Florida East Coast Railroad to just east of U.S. 1.

However stirring the design the rutted damage of the four wheel drive vehicles that cause them is enormous. The endangered lands status of the Savannas should create respect for what is left of that natural paradise.

It does not.

The Savannas have become the private playground of four wheel drive vehicles, immune from the law, governed only by the temperment of the men who drive through environmentally sensitive marshes, plow floorboard deep into ponds, and protectively rescue each other when the mud, sand and water are just too deep.

Last week a property owner was threatened with a gun, a felony offense. The four wheel drive vehicle was slashing through private property. The property owner asked the driver not to do so, and was threatened.

No report was made to the sheriff's department.

Billie Chase, desk sergeant at the Martin County Sheriff's Department, told The Mirror that the area of the Jensen Savannas was large, and "you would have to be in the right place at the right time" to stop the four-wheel vehicles.

He admitted that except for Indiantown, the Sheriff's Department has no four wheel vehicles to go into the Savannas. But he said "We try to keep the people out. We have arrested some on occasion.

"If it's posted, we can stop them immediately. If property owners make a complaint, we'll send somebody out."

Posting though does not seem to be the answer.

Clap Cain, general manager of General Development Corporation's Port St. Lucie, told The Mirror that he had had one area posted seven days in a row.

"Each morning we went out and the signs were gone," Cain said.

To counter that, Cain gave a letter to the St. Lucie County Sheriff's Department and the Port St. Lucie Police Department stating that motorcyclists and four wheel vehicles were not allowed on GDC lands unless with special permission of GDC.

Ed Werder, PSL police chief, said, "We have the letter, and it is subject to enforcement. However it is hard to know just what is GDC property without the posted signs."

"I really don't have a solution now without getting out and looking at it," Werder added. He was concerned that the job was growing, with few men to enforce and patrol all the areas of the 65,000 acre community.

Communications to Werder are a major stumbling block in the battle. Recognizing that the four-wheel drivers were a tough breed, Werder said, "I don't want to send a man into an area without the communications to make sure he is going to get out of there."

The police chief suggested that the state post the lands in the Savannas State Park that have already been obtained with metal signs, harder to destroy.

St. Lucie County Sheriff Lanue Norvell said that the county had already rid the Savannas of airboats and motorcycles through a county ordinance. He added he planned to research the law to learn what can be done.

Norvell also said that the gun threat of a property owner was a felony offense and added that he hoped that property owners would post their properties so that there could be some enforcement.

They might have some areas posted until the rangers of the state park service can get it posted. Rangers have a lot of power and can get the job done," Norvell said.

But, it will take at least five years before the state park service can be on the job in the Jensen Savannas, according to Dr. Walter Stokes, one of the moving forces in the effort to save the Savannas and make them into a state park.

"Until the park has a resident ranger and it is all fenced, it (protection) won't be possible," Stokes said.

You just can't get it under control. You have to wait until the state park is set, then they will make a few arrests, and a few people will be sentenced. That is the way they handled it in all other parks.

"We're going to have a lot of trouble out there, and somebody might get killed by those wild people. One day I was out on Sugar Hill Road and I saw fifteen motorcyclists in front of the Jensen Women's Club Building. They were racing their bikes on one wheel and tearing up the lawn.

"I started to stop, but then I saw that all of them had guns and chains, so I drove home and called the sheriff."

County Commission Chairwoman Maggie Hurchalla said that an ordinance in Martin County wouldn't do the job until the area was fenced and protected by a park service ranger.

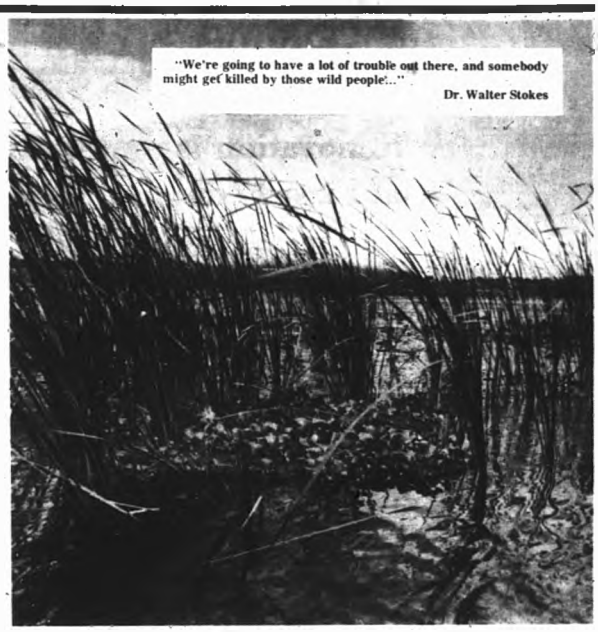
"It was distressing when the water was low two years ago. It became a playground. Good people went out there in four-wheel drive vehicles, families. They didn't know the damage they were doing when they run wheels across an area like that," Hurchalla said.

She added that it is already illegal to run vehicles across state land and that state law could be enforced by the sheriff of either county.

The chairwoman told of seeing a truck drive through a shallow pond just to make a splash. A mudfish flopped up and died. Can you imagine a fish being run over by a truck?"

Hurchalla said that the only way the Savannas can be protected is for the people to know what damage they are doing to the water table and the land.

"If they really knew, they wouldn't run through there," she said.



"We're going to have a lot of trouble out there, and somebody might get killed by those wild people'..."

Dr. Walter Stokes

SAVANNAS—Shallow marshes alternate in wet dry seasons to offer a vista that provides the many and varied moods of the Jensen Savannas. The Savannas have been declared environmentally endangered, and the state has purchased and is now negotiating to purchase thousands of acres in the area between Jensen's Commercial Street and Walton Road to place in wilderness trust. The sensitive flatlands, with many ponds, are even more endangered with the increasing number of people who drive four wheel vehicles.

Voter tally high in Martin

Voter registration is up 26 per cent from four years ago in Martin County. Statistics show that the number of people having signed up to vote for the first primary is 37,104. This is an increase of well over 10,000 compared to the 1976 tally of 26,406. Of those registered 16,913 are Democrats, 18,008 are Republicans and 2,183 are independents.

Those figures broken down into precincts represent 1,298 registered in Langford Park, 2,319 in North River Shores, 871 in Sewall's Point, and 316 in Ocean Breeze Park.

The Rio area has 885 people listed, the Jensen Beach Community Church has 1,154, the Samaritan Ambulance Station has 1,875 and the Elliott Museum lists 585 (Holiday Out in St. Lucie County on Hutchinson Island reports a total of 1,027.)

This means that 63 per cent of the population in Martin County is registered to vote as compared to the national figure of 50 per cent. According to Martin County's Supervisor of Elections, Peggy Robbins, "we'll have about an 85 per cent turnout at the polls."

While politicians are well into their campaign platforms in preparation for the November elections, behind those platforms, people are working just as hard to ensure all will be ready when the speeches are over.

With the general election to be held Nov. 4 and the first and second primaries scheduled Sept. 9 and Oct. 7 respectively, 250 people will work the polls in Martin County to handle the elections. Presently, Robbins and members of the staff are sending out absentee ballots to ensure the expected 85 per cent turnout. So far, 718 ballots have been mailed to those voters unable to go to the polls.

Area residents can obtain an absentee ballot by either calling the office (305-283-6780) or by writing Peggy Robbins c/o the Courthouse, P.O. Box 1257, Stuart, Fla. 33494. The deadline for returned ballots is 7 p.m. election day. Registration for all others closes 30 days prior to each election.

More gas for Martin County

Although Martin County has received a federal Department of Energy approval for an 8.5 per cent increase in gas allocations for the coming winter months, the gas future in St. Lucie County and Port St. Lucie is still uncertain.

At the height of the gas shortage during the tourist season last March, William O'Brien, Martin County Disaster Preparedness director and county fuel allocation officer, applied to the DOE for an increase in gas allocations.

O'Brien recently received word that the county has been approved for 8.5 per cent more gas during the December, 1980 through April, 1981 period. The gas allocation hike was based on figures showing an increase in the tourist population for that period.

Last winter, in both Martin and St. Lucie counties, there were frequently long lines at gas stations, with many stations only open a few hours per day and most stations closed on weekends.

St. Lucie County Disaster Prepared ness Director Phil Rodi says that like O'Brien, he requested a hike in the fuel allocation for St. Lucie County. He expressed frustration in dealing with the DOE, saying he had to send the same information to DOE officials several times, as they seem to have lost it. He said so far the county has received no extra allocation for the coming winter months, even though the county experiences a population jump due to tourists just as Martin County does. "I am in contact with the DOE appeals section, but don't know when I'll get a final answer," he said.

Rodi said one factor that seems unfair is that while it is tough trying to get more gas for existing stations, some new stations are getting DOE approval for high-volume pumping.

"DOE has approved some super-pumper stations of 145,000 gallons per month. I feel this will deprive the older stations of gas, with it going to the new ones. I don't think this is what was meant to be by the regulations they set up," Rodi said.

In Port St. Lucie, a Catch-22 situation seems to have caused a problem. City Manager Mike Szunyog said the city asked DOE for 55,000 gallons per year to use for city vehicles. That application was compiled last November.

Szunyog said the DOE granted a 29,000 gallon allocation and specified that it be used for the city police force.

Szunyog said the police department along, much less other city vehicles, could use 55,000 gallons. But he said when an appeal was made to the DOE to get the allocation raised to 55,000 gallons, the city was told that since there was no contract agreement as of March 1, 1979, for gas tanks for the city, the city could not qualify for more gas. But the city had no police department then.

"We lost the appeal, so now I'm checking into what is required to go through the judicial review process," Szunyog said.

BIKEPATH—A narrow strip of concrete is edging its way north along Sewall's Point Road, a bike path-sidewalk that will one day assist in completing the safety route from East Ocean Blvd. to Palmer Road. Work above is being done along the wall at Indialucie. (Dick Campbell photo)

DONATION—Harvey Schlossmer, community projects chairman of the Jensen Beach Lions Club, presented a check for $500 on behalf of the club to Dennis Dugle, executive director of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce this week. The $500 will be deposited in the fund to renovate the Jensen Beach Community Center.

Register to vote? Why some refuse

This year, a high number of Martin County residents have chosen to register to vote. Yet this area, like many others, still has its share of citizens who refuse to sign up for one reason or another.

Martin County Supervisor of Elections, Peggy Robbins, feels that the number one reason those people fail to register is their subsequent automatic eligibility for jury duty.

Some have suggested that the problem of lack of voter participation could be solved by basing jury duty on driver registration or choosing from the tax rolls. Robbins, however, feels that these alternatives would not offer solutions, but would discriminate against those without licenses or renters.

She also questions the belief that juries should be picked from retired persons who supposedly have both the time and the inclination to serve. To her, the system dictates a trial by peers and that purpose would be defeated without the needed variance in age and background.

Although Robbins obviously favors total voter participation, she still maintains that people have the right not to vote. Feeling that government regulation forcing that end would be just as damaging towards freedom of rights as total non-participation, she says that "they should not be taken to the polls at the point of a gun."

Although a sense of futility permeates many of today's voters, Robbins is convinced that "locally, one vote does count." To back up her statement, she cites several local elections that were won or lost by a narrow margin.

According to historians, single votes made a difference in just more than local elections. In 1776, Americans were spared from speaking German by a margin of one vote.

REMODELED—When the renovation project has been completed, First Federal of Martin will look like this with the main entrance facing Florida Avenue. Until the end of October, customers should enter at the south end (left) of the building.

Renovation is underway at First Federal of Martin

Martin County's largest financial institution is investing more than $800,000 in a renovation and redecoration project of its main office at 989 South U.S. No. 1 in Stuart.

William T. Wallis, president of First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Martin County stated, "Our goal is to service the most people as Martin County grows. We must utilize our site to its fullest potential in order to best serve the county's financial needs in the near future."

Wallis added that First Federal will keep inconvenience to its customers to an absolute minimum. Teller windows are now open at the south end of the building, while work is in progress on the north side.

Burk Mauldin, senior vice president of First Federal, said, "We expect that business will be conducted at the south end through the month of October. At that time, the completely redecorated north end will open for the convenience of our customers, and work will begin on the south side."

The new facade will include sun screens, which should improve the building's energy efficiency rating. Inside, customers will find two additional teller windows in the lobby, work stations designed for the greatest convenience of both customers and bank employees and a new vault with expanded safety deposit facilities.

The old safe deposit vault, located in the south end of the first floor, will become a records vault, and a new vault has been constructed adjacent to the north end of the building. On the second floor, above the vault, an equally large area will be used for storage.

The south side of the main floor will host the loan department, with three new offices for the convenience of First Federal's customers. The second floor will have a new board room, improved administrative facilities and an expanded employee lounge.

Jake A. Jones, an Atlanta architect, redesigned First Federal for Bank Building Corporation. Local subcontractors include: Maxely & Son Construction, E.W.K. Piping & Contracting, Alpine Electric, Inc., Landscape Associates, Inc. and Landahl Browning & Ferrari, Inc.

In addition to its main office, First Federal operates full service offices in the de la Bahia Plaza on Monterey Road in Jensen Beach, Hobe Sound, Indiantown and Okeechobee. Its East Ocean branch will be opening soon, just across from the Ocean East Mall.

What's happening in San Francisco

Nob Hill and the Golden Gate Bridge. Fisherman's Wharf and Chinatown. The floating city of Sausalito and the giant Redwood forests.

And that's not all.

The shops and boutiques of Ghirardelli Square and the Cannery. North Beach and the pre-earthquake restorations on Jackson Square. A ride on a cable car and a visit to one of the two national parks within a day's drive.

And that's still not all. There's the food. San Francisco is a seafood lover's paradise. Try the local favorite, cioppino (pot-au-feu, port-style all seafood).

But, be it on your first visit and successive ones, when you visit San Francisco...

We can help you. We'll make all the arrangements and handle all the rates. Have a nice lunge to send for our assistance and call Ely to Santa Francisco aboard a Pan Am Clipper.

Auxiliarists praised by U.S. Coast Guard

RADIO—Capt. Von Jourdon maintains radio communications with boaters on a volunteer basis

As pleasure boating increases in our area, the job of radio coverage becomes more important than ever. Radios have become a life line as much as the line thrown from one boat to another. Communications will provide contact with the Sheriff's Department, the Florida Marine Patrol and the U.S. Coast Guard Stations and will enable the user to obtain help in case of injury or any emergency.

All boaters who venture thru the inlet or use their boats on the river should have radio communication capabilities. Boaters spend, many thousands of dollars on their boats, motors and fishing equipment, but fail to spend a few more dollars on proper, VHF radios that could save their lives or the lives of their family or friends who are aboard.

Recently, Captain Von Jourdon and Lex Sheron, U.S.C.G. Auxiliarists, Flotilla 59, Stuart, received commendations from the U.S. Coast Guard, Group Miami, for all the volunteer radio time they have expended to assist boaters in this area. Captain Jourdon monitors Stuart Radio I and accumulated a total of 600 hours. Lex Sheron, Stuart Radio II, accumulated 245 hours.

Both of these Coast Guard Auxiliarists have volunteered their time and radio equipment to the boating public with a high degree of professionalism and without any fanfare. Stuart I has Radio Direction Finding (RDF) capabilities and Stuart II is working on an RDF installation. Both stations are located in the homes of these Auxiliarists and a normal day's operation begins at 6 a.m. and continues all day until the last boat is safely back in port.

Flotilla 59 has approximately 22 operating facilities, patrolling the inlet and crossroads, primarily on weekends. There have been 43 callouts during the week and after sundown.

Recently, Jack Hennon rescued four occupants of an overturned boat in the inlet. To date, Flotilla 59 has had a total of 81 assists with a value of $3,161,500.00.

The dedicated people have volunteered their time and expensive equipment, both land and radio stations and boats, without compensation in the interest of boating safety to the boating public.

Sewall's Point settles lawsuit

Attorneys for Dagne Jochem and the town of Sewall's Point reached agreement Friday on Settlement of Jochem's suit against the town.

The suit followed an incident in October, 1977, when Jochem's car, stopped for a traffic light, was struck in the rear by a police car driven by Officer Earl Pantell.

Jochem claimed bodily injury, malicious prosecution for a speeding ticket, and town negligence. The speeding ticket was earlier dismissed, but attorneys agreed on awarding Jochem $15,000 for injury and $3,000 for malicious prosecution.

The suit was due to go to trial on Monday.

Eagles to meet at new lodge

The Fraternal order of Eagles, aerie 3916, will be holding a district meeting in their new Port St. Lucie lodge.

The meeting will be held on Sunday, Sept. 14, at 1 p.m. Lunch will follow. The new address is 8512 U.S. 1, located in Kings Plaza (by T&J meats). All future meetings will be held at the new lodge.

The Eagles are an organization with contributions to charitable organizations such as heart cancer, and the Jimmy Durante children's fund. This aerie is a new one. If anyone can donate tables, chairs, glasses, cooking utensils, etc. to temporarily furnish the building, it would be appreciated. Any loans would help aid the aerie through its beginning stages. For further information please contact Al Stanco, president of the aerie, at 878-8361.

HOPE FOR HEALTH

Keys to Good Health Naturally

By
Dr. Jack L. Webb

Everyday, we at the Webb Clinic discover serious diseases and spinal health problems that should have and could have been caught and treated during their early stages. Unfortunately, however the victims did not have specialized health check ups or recommended by health authorities. The frequent result unnecessary pain and disablement.

We hear the following excuses routinely:

1. "I was too busy to find time for an examination."
2. "I figure you only live once so why worry about it?"
3. "I don't like doctors. They scare me."
4. "My father lived to be 94 years old, my mother lived to 91. I come from strong stock."
5. "I keep telling my husband, but he doesn't listen."
6. "I read a lot, so I can pretty well diagnose my own problems."
7. "I don't like to think about illness ... it gets me depressed."
8. "I had a physical exam 3 years ago."
9. "I had an appointment scheduled but something more important came up."
10. "We moved, and it's hard to get started with a new doctor."
11. "Doctors cost money, and we're trying to save."
12. "I figure I'd go only if the problem got worse."

Most health problems if caught early enough can be resolved. It's easy to put one's health needs last until pain or disablement shows up. Then it becomes the most important thing in one's life. That's why we recommend periodic Chiropractic check ups.

CHAPTER on AARP

BY ERNIE CURWEN
334-0756

BY ERNIE CURWEN

"The best things in life are free, is often heard, and it appears that the seniors the world over have found one of them that they enjoy most of all. It is talking about almost anything, as long as they get a chance to be heard, and up here in North Carolina for the last few weeks, it has been 'the heat', to the exclusion of all else.

St. Helens could blow its stack; Allen could rip and roar; Billy-gate could distract the politicians, but the senior's main concern was the awful heat and would it never end. They rescheduled many daytime activities to early morning or after sundown.

But, realistically, they took all this in stride, happily chatting about cool spots they had found, and how plentiful showers, many electric fans, frequent showers, lots of cold drinks, and cooking on electric hot plates make life here in the mountains quite bearable and even enjoyable.

Then came the electric bills with such comments as: My bill was more than double last year's; "It cost me $8.00 more than last month" "I thought that without an air conditioner, that my bill would be less than Florida"; "I'll have to stop opening the refrigerator door so often for cold drinks"; "Maybe my fans at low speed, instead of high, will be good enough." And as it went, with someone saying jokingly, "It's time the government did something about it." Well, believe it or not, they did.

A news release from Senator State says, 'Congress approves aid for the elderly (and others) needing relief from heat wave." The release goes on to say that over 2000 deaths have been caused by disastrous summer heat wave and many thousands have been hospitalized. Senator Chiles' committee on aging has found that a majority of these casualties are the elderly and too much heat can be just as serious for them as too much cold.

The release further states that often the stricken were found with fans and window air conditioners, but were afraid to use them, even in 110 degree weather, as they couldn't pay the higher electric bills. Therefore, Senators Chiles and Stone introduced a bill making $21 million available from 'Windfall Profit Tax' to alleviate this situation. They had tried last year to get this feature included in the 'heating assistance' bill, but were outvoted; it took 2000 deaths to make the point evident. (By the way, the release failed to mention what agency or department would handle this assistance).

Seniors' talk often turned to where is the best cool spot, and one senior said the Pisgah National Forest, with an interesting stop off at Forage Valley Park was the 'be-spot'. So, it was tried out.

It's the second picnic area as one enters the Pisgah Forest from the South. Good parking within easy walking distance of shady tables and grassy spots right on the banks of a gurgling brook. It was delightful in the shade, all thoughts of 90 degree weather were forgotten, especially when feet were dipped into 50 degree mountain stream. It was just as nice and cool as those seniors had said and coming back to 99 degree city temperatures wasn't easy.

CHAPTER ITEMS

The latest National AARP News Bulletin, had a full page of fine-print endeavoring to explain the financial status of AARP. It didn't have a resume in down to earth language, as is usual now with most corporate reports, so it is hoped that they are not stone walling, as it seems they had a million more income and a million less left over, than last year, and that's not a balanced budget. However, on the next page they are proposing an inflation cure that tells the national government that a balanced budget is essential. More weight would be given their suggestions, if it wasn't, "Do as I say, not as I do," so let's hope national has a balanced budget next year.

Food buying Co-ops are again being mentioned. While shopping at the 'Tailgate Market', a farm owner said he had to plow under 7 acres of cabbages, as the 5 cents per pound offered wouldn't pay for harvesting. He said it was a shame, when many of the elderly could use them, and he'd like to do as they do in California: let the seniors come in and clean the fields, after the mechanical equipment was through. He further said, keep in touch and be ready to send out a group, also he said other farmers would join the effort if asked. So, maybe there is a project in the making for those with more energy and time than funds, who want some farm fresh vegetables almost for the asking.

THE SELLER MAY FINANCE

QUESTION: How are investors putting together transactions in today's market? I have heard that many of the financing techniques used for years for investment property are now being used in residential sales. What are some of these techniques?

ANSWER: Yes, you are right. Many of the time-tested techniques of real estate investing are being adapted, often out of necessity, to the residential single family market. Of course, this has gone on before – but never with such frequency or intensity.

For example, single family real estate investment transactions are being negotiated today which use financing provided by the seller. This financing is either in the form of a purchase money mortgage or a contract for deed, depending on area custom.

Let's say, for example, that Bill Buyer wants to purchase the apartment building at 100 Main Street, for $100,000. Let's assume that there is $70,000 in available primary financing and that the buyer only has a $20,000 down payment.

In this case, there is a $10,000 shortfall. But the seller can consummate the transaction, which otherwise would fail due to lack of financing, by taking back a second mortgage for $10,000. Your real estate investment broker is in a unique position to assist in the negotiation of this type of financing whether you are a buyer or a seller.

Your broker is also in a position to utilize a variety of other financial techniques, such as wraparound mortgages, land leases, and sale leasebacks on leases with an option.

I will be happy to discuss any particular real estate financing problem you may be experiencing.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-0747, or stop by:

Ocean unusually cool...

Carole and Al Wright had a sad farewell on Thursday, August 14. Their grand daughter Kim Winter has been visiting for two months here at H Out. She had to return home, via air to Washingtonville, N.Y. as school soon starts there.

Happy Birthday Wishes – Gordon St. Louis, 8-22; Sandy Crawford, Mark Sumner and Maurice McKeever, 8-23; E. W. Schoen, 8-24; Ann Schultz, 8-26; Tom Miller and Sarah Mellot, 8-27.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES

Assisted by Peg Ray and Betty Lehrer

Sam & Nina Wooten arrived in H Out from N. Carolina. Will enjoy a short visit with their daughter who lives in Jensen Beach.

Catty and Les Ullmann are still visiting their niece and enjoying the teenagers. They talked to Carrie and Charles Ullmann who are busy packing for their return to H Out. Catty and Les went to visit Lena Black on Aug. 18th, then will be starting back to H Out.

August seems to be cooler than July as we are keeping the southeastern winds. The ocean is unusually cool for this time of year.

Vicki and Mac McKeever wrote they enjoyed their trip to Maine and are now settling down for the World Series Games.

Beryle and Cecil Roy celebrated their 48th wedding anniversary on Aug. 8th. They spent 4 lovely days in Paradise Maine with friends and picked blueberries.

Ethel and Bob Shellhorn wrote from Pisgah Ranch in Candler, N.C. They are enjoying delicious food that is grown on the ranch. Apple trees, peach trees and all fresh vegetables.

Al and Peg Ray enjoyed "Babes in Arms" at the Burt Reynolds Theatre.

Anniversaries congratulations Adelaide & Phulas Boucher, Edie & Steve Pointon, 8-22; Rita & Frank Streba, Betty & Dick Hare, Mary & Ivan Rhoden, 8-23; Jan & Len Anderson, Mildred & Leo Stall, 8-24; and Lois & Roger Denison, 8-25.

Peg and Clancy Guthrie have been having a pleasant summer at home in Endicott, N.Y. They spent several days visiting Thelma and Ike Gingrich and are now looking forward to having the Gingriches visit them.

Bill Blair wrote that the heat and humid weather in Delaware has caused a business boom for motels, apartments, restaurants, shops and amusement concessions in Ocean City, Md., near his home. Fortunately the area was spared the severe thunderstorms that caused so much damage in nearby Washington, Baltimore, Wilmington and Philadelphia.

Bill said that he has had a great deal of company this summer, relatives and friends.

He keeps up with local news in The Jensen Beach Mirror and looks forward to returning to Holiday Out in early November.

Bill Hogan, his wife and daughter from Pittsburgh, Pa., enjoyed the week here at his dad's place. Meanwhile Bob and Marian are at Kanai Peninsula in South Central Alaska, just south of Anchorage and Homer, enjoying the glaciers and gorgeous scenery.

We extend condolences to Mary Schmidt with the loss of her sister who had been ill. Mary is back in H Out now.

Pat and Catherine Taylor traveled to Oberammergau, Germany to attend the Passion Play. Enjoyed the settings and play immensely, which is held annually.

Mrs. David McCarthy, (Flora) passed away Friday, Aug. 15 suddenly. Flora was loved by many here in the park. They were residents many years of H Out, but the last few years resided in Stuart. There was a Memorial Mass at St. Joseph Church in Stuart on Tuesday at 10 a.m. She will be missed by so many, always doing needful things where needed.

June Carleton and Ruth Bowes are enjoying our grandson and great nephew, Joel Nava's visit for a week before school starts. It's the first year

Edward Koepka is now corporal

Marine Lance Cpl. Edward Koepka son of Howard W. and Catherine H. Koepka of 8 in Ventour Harbor, Jensen Beach, Fla., has been promoted to his present rank while serving with 3rd force service support group on Okinawa.

He joined the Marine Corps in February 1979.

Miles Granters seek bowlers

Residents of Miles Grant Condominium Complex in Stuart are in the process of organizing a mixed bowling league to bowl at Jensen Lanes in Jensen Beach on Mondays at 4 p.m. They extend their invitation to anyone who wishes to join them for the forthcoming bowling season to submit their name and telephone number to the manager of the lanes, Bob Tsai, or to the former secretary of the league, Mrs. Clara Shore, telephone 288-0816 after 3 p.m. weekdays. Jensen Lanes telephone number is 334-2733.

Teams will consist of 4 members, 2 men and 2 ladies wherever possible. Rules and regulations of IBC and WIBC to prevail at all times.

General membership meeting is scheduled for September 8, 1980, 7 p.m. at Jensen Lanes in order to elect league officers. The league play is scheduled to begin September 15, 1980 at 4 p.m.

Buying the Savannas will not save them

The Jensen Savannas must be one of the most beautiful works of God in the Nation. They are delicate, those little ponds and marshes that stretch between Jensen Beach and Ft. Pierce.

Anyone who has ever flown the route, down the Indian River, must have seen the interlocking pattern of lakes and marshes, with reeds blowing in the wind, the hammocks of pine and palmetto, seemingly hemmed in by the Florida East Coast Railroad tracks and sand dunes that formed the barrier between the blackish Indian River part of the sea, and the Savannas.

To the west, the lands seem to rise, but do not, for the flow of crystal fresh water from the Savannas is to the west, to the pristine North Fork of the St. Lucie River five miles away.

No person with any taste for beauty would develop the Savannas, and all property owners protected their holdings as a work of art.

All waited for the time when the State of Florida would purchase the properties as environmentally endangered lands, and all relinquished their quit-claim deeds with a religious fervor, as if the lands themselves were a shrine to the saints of nature.

To those who would violate the beauty of the Savannas, there was public uprising and scorn, unleashed as only the people en masse can do.

The lands that are high enough for development are strongly restricted from Savannas encroachment, and all plans thus far for the development of the Savannas vista have complimented the beauty of nature.

The eventual plan for the Jensen Savannas will have limited access to that wonderland, where fifteen pound black bass test the tenacious fishermen who can venture forth in a rowboat or canoe.

The wild hog will roam protected, as will the Florida panther, the dove and quail, and the dozens of other fur and feathered animals.

It will take five years to do the job.

It will take miles and miles of fences, hundreds of "posted" signs, with their metal posts. It will take park service rangers, with the full cooperation of the law enforcement groups on both sides of the Martin and St. Lucie County lines.

It will take all that, and the full enforcement of state, county and city law to protect what is so fragile — a natural resource that is unreplaceable.

Today, a full five years before the fences, and the posted signs, and the rangers, and the full protection of the law, the Jensen Savannas are endangered even more than before.

More and more people are discovering the thrill of a four wheel vehicle, the excitement of splashing through pond and marsh, of bumpy trails and places where vehicles have never been before.

It is the shallow nature of the land, the delicate dips and swales of an area that changes elevation a foot in a mile. One tire-track rut can actually change the entire configuration of the water table, and when two tire-track ruts meet, the water table has a drastic resistance to its former path.

It is the water table that keeps those fifteen pound bass alive and the hog, and the fur and feathered animals that abound in the Savannas.

The interlocking pattern of lakes and marshes, with reeds blowing in the wind, face an uncertain future due to the massive scarifying done by four-wheel damage.

If the Jensen Savannas are to be saved for future generations, protection cannot wait five years. Those who drive the four-wheel drive vehicles must realize that their actions might degastate what we all love so much, and what we must protect.

Those who revel in the God-given beauty of the Savannas, must know that they must share that beauty with generations in the future and not destroy it.

State law forbids four-wheel drive vehicles in the Jensen Savannas already owned by the state, and there are many acres under state ownership. It will take respect for the law, and for the Savannas, to reduce the damage already done by the vehicles that have torn the Savannas asunder.

Buying the Savannas will not save them. People will save them. We urge all who love natural beauty to respect and protect that beauty.

Letter to the editor

To the editor:

I wonder how long it has been since someone wrote to thank you for your kindness to the Martin Memorial Hospital?

I am writing to you wearing several hats: as a member of the Board of Directors; as a Volunteer and an Auxiliane; as a Resident of the Community and last but not least, as a Friend.

I happened to be substituting on Wednesday afternoon when all your nice Jensen Beach Mirror papers arrived. It was my job to deliver one to each room. Many, with limited finances, first said no; after being informed it was with the compliments of the Mirror, were delighted. I also found, those who were too ill to read, had a visitor who was delighted to have something given to them to take up some time.

I assure you, it was a very nice thing for the Mirror to do, and I personally wanted you to know, how much it is appreciated by our patients and visitors.

Thus, Richard, I especially thank you, for we Volunteers to give that extra T. L. C. and for the Hospital to give that extra added attention.

My best to you and yours. Keep up the good news coming our way.

Saving the Savannas

Running from David

The wind had not yet reached gale force but the chop on the Indian River was increasing. Hurricane David was on the way.

Many of the boats in the Outrigger Marina had left for safer harbor. The dockmaster was helping others get off. The intracoastal waterway was filled like a highway with boats heading for the inland safety of the St. Lucie River.

A 42 footer came into the marina and the crew hailed the dockmaster. He waved them on, saying the marina was closed. He suggested the Sandpiper Bay marina.

At Sandpiper Bay, the dockmaster was urging boaters to move out of the marina. If one boat broke loose during the storm it could destroy any other boats and the entire marina.

Large sailboats moved into the safety of Tarpon Bay, using several anchors and battening down for the big blow.

I made a few calls to friends and learned that there was a narrow ditch near Viking Landing, between one pond and the North Fork of the St. Lucie River. There I could pull my boat into the mangroves.

Capt. Pete Robertson was to follow me in the Fran E., the Evinrude charter boat, and we headed south to the Crossroads and up the St. Lucie River.

The wind was picking up as we moved into the narrow portion of the North Fork River (traffic was heavy, mostly sailboats that had run up from Palm Beach County to hide from David. They lined the narrow river, huddling near the east shoreline, anchors set in the sand and mud.

The wind was coming from the north, and intermittant rain blew under the lip of my cap, stinging my face and splashing against my glasses, as I eased the Sailfish into the small ditch.

I remembered the directions: stay close to the island point on the east, head straight for the water. Of course markers head due west at the markers and into the ditch.

I pulled the bow around in the ditch, turned carefully, and laid the starboard side up against the mangroves that reached out into the ditch.

Rick was with me, and it took only a few minutes to jump to shore with the lines.

After he jumped I sang. Watch for alligators. He almost crawled on top of the water to the safety of the bank on shore.

We tied the lines to the base of three mangroves. The depth was fine, and I didn't fear grounding the boat that close to shore.

Trees can be felled by hurricanes, but mangroves just blow and sway. They are the safest anchor in a hurricane.

I had filled bath tanks before leaving. I had in dry stores of food and water, in case we had to sit out the storm on the boat.

I had left early, so that it was not a panic rush to get the boat to safety.

In my preparations I had bought several hundred feet of good nylon line and had an extra anchor just in case.

The wind was picking up.

We walked down to the small dock at the entrance to the ditch. Two sailors pulled up in a 30 foot sailboat. We helped them tie the boat loosely at the dock, and the young man swam out a hundred feet to set two anchors. He would have to come back when the eye passed and move the boat to the opposite side of the small dock.

Capt. Pete pulled up in the Fran E. and came into the bay at slow speed. I had given him the directions, but the Fran E. took more draft than I, and he eased it along, backing down when he saw mud boil up from the screws, finding the right depth and then moving ahead.

He had no trouble getting it into the ditch, so we walked down and helped him tie the boat to the mangroves and set anchors in the mud of the field nearby.

I had secured my bimini top, and the mangroves were higher than my bridge, so I felt at ease.

We drove out several times that evening and night to check the boats. They rode well.

After David passed, we went back. Both boats were riding well in the high wind.

The only mistake I made was in tying a line to the railing, in addition to the cleat. The wind had blown so strong, the rail pulled loose out of its socket. It was simple to set back in, but I put a note in my mind for the future.

David wasn't as strong as we thought it would be, but it was strong. We were prepared. We had a plan, and we followed it.

As we pulled out of the ditch, I noted that the sailboat had been moved around to the opposite side of the dock. It was riding high and well.

Along the waterway, the double anchored craft were in good shape. Weather weary captains were preparing for their return to home ports. Several sailboats inadequately anchored were washed up against the shore victims of poor preparation.

A small rental boat from Sandpiper Bay came up the river.

Have you seen a 25 foot cabin cruiser? The anxious boater asked. He had used a light line to anchor it, and the boat had disappeared.

We continued down the St. Lucie and back to battle part.

I felt good. I had been prepared.

My boat was safe.

Sally Latham

Betsy a wetsy

Yes, Sonny, if learned early on that hurricanes are something you don't fool around with. When one of those storms grows up to the size they dignify it with a name, it is a force not to be trifled with. You don't stick your neck out and ask for it to do its worst, as I did with Betsy.

I had a funny feeling about Betsy, even as the weatherman in Miami was mapping out her course. Betsy, he said, was going to slide up the coast and miss the mainland by ten miles, at least where we were located, in Fort Lauderdale.

I was working for the Fort Lauderdale News, at the time. It was still and hot up there in the bureau office in Pompano Beach. I called the boss, downtown, and told him I wanted to go exploring.

"O.K.," said bossman Barc Bowman. "Don't get lost."

I headed for the beaches, to find out who was boarding up, and if so, why. Camera in hand, I went trading down the hot breathless sands to do my research. No signs of anyone boarding up windows or preparing for the storm in any way. Wait a minute. There was, too. One lone motel, The Ocean Ranch, was putting up plywood shutters on all of its lower windows of its five stories.

I went in and approached the manager.

"You really feel this one's going to hit?" I asked.

"Yes," said manager Mary, "and it's going to be a doozer."

I asked about the top three floors, and why she wasn't boarding up there. That glass, I was told, was hurricane proof — it could withstand winds of up to 250 miles per hour. We discussed the pending storm over a couple of drinks, and I wound up getting myself asked to spend the night — on the fifth floor. Thus began an experience I'll never forget.

I went home and packed my bag, not forgetting the makings for at least a two bottle hurricane.

Meanwhile, the winds began picking up. There was plenty of advance warning that Betsy had no intention of confining herself to the off the-coast area the weatherman was predicting. By early evening it became obvious that we were due for a real blow.

After dinner, enjoyed in the Ocean Ranch dining room, I called my friend and fellow worker Sylvia Maltzman and asked her to join me for the night. After all, a hurricane party is no fun all alone. We retired to our fifth floor aerie, and, sure everything was going to be cozy and safe, we retired early.

I awoke about 1 a.m. to a persistent whine and howl. The wind had become a living force, and was in complete control of the situation. I put my foot out of bed, and stepped into an ankle deep puddle of carpet. The spume from the thrashing ocean outside had made its way in through the cracks and was taking over the room.

I went to the door to the balcony and with great difficulty pushed it open. The scene outside was awesome. It was as if God had wielded a giant eggbeater, and was whipping the foam up into a gargantuan froth, shooting into the air the equivalent of two stories higher than the buildings on the ocean front.

As I looked, the wind peeled off the flooring from a partially completed condominium next door, picking it up like a banana peel and hurling it into the parking lot below. The next day we were to see the sheer force with which that metal sheet was thrown. The top of a car was sheared off by its impact.

The rest of that night was undescribed terror. We got a case of the what ifs. What if the 250 mile per hour guaranteed glass fails to hold? What if the door blows off? What if the building is undermined and dropped into the ocean? There are all kinds of avenues to fear, in the midst of a rampant hurricane. The best answer was — take another drink, go back to sleep and let come what may.

By morning, Betsy had done her worst and had gone on her way. But she had scattered potential pictures everywhere. Up and down A1A, nearly every sign had blown over. Carports were scattered about like broken toys. Restaurants that had failed to board up had windows blown out and flooding on every hand. The entire business section of Pompano Beach was a silent reproach to those who had failed to heed the incipient warning, or who had put too much faith in the weatherman's prediction.

sel sel sel

Betsy is still well defined in my mind. Not so my first Florida hurricane, Perhaps because I slept through it.

That was back in the days when the roads into Florida were nothing short of terrible. Leading to the west coast were only round topped roads which more likely than not would contain a cow or two sleeping thereupon.

This is to tell you the kind of trip my brother Dick and I were just completing, a trip of 657 miles in one day. The parents, traveling in a separate car, were a day behind us.

We knew a was weathering up, as we approached St. Petersburg, but both of us were too tired to care. We had no car radio, so were blissfully ignorant of the boiling atmosphere conditions we were running into.

When we arrived and unlocked the house, I had just one thing in mind — my own little bed. Leaving the unpacking to Dick, I took my aching bones into the house and crashed.

I slept around the clock, and awoke to havoc. Outside, trees were down, pieces of roof lay brokenly on the lawn. There was no water or electric power. The telephone was out.

Blearily, wanting a cup of coffee and not knowing how to hurdle one up, I went out and roused Dick from his nest in the guest cottage. What happened, I asked.

Seems we'd been through a hurricane. And I slept through the whole show.

From eclipses to helium

The Mirror is a small town weekly newspaper.

We don't have a UPI wire machine nor an AP machine and we don't carry syndicated columns or cartoons. Indeed we don't want any of that stuff.

We have a strong commitment to local news. That's all you'll find in our paper.

We make no apologies for being a small town weekly paper. We like life here in the small communities of Jensen and Port St. Lucie much more than we would like living in Miami or some other city. We feel there is much that a newspaper can do here and we try to do the best possible job doing it. And as we were judged the best weekly in the state in June, we feel we have done a pretty good job of it.

But in spite of doing our thing in our small communities, some folks feel we are much more than we are. Hence we get lots of phone calls for information which we doubt even a big-city newspaper could supply much less one our size.

For instance, we once got a call asking when the next total eclipse of the sun would be. That call came in to our advertising department.

And we have had several calls from folks asking the name and address of their congressman in their district up north.

We get several calls for information on the Cuban refugees coming into Key West.

Sometimes we get calls to settle arguments about who wrote a certain book, sang a certain song or won some football or baseball game, including calls for the name of the winning team of long ago World Series games.

I have fielded several calls about the tides, as for a couple of years it was my job to make the computations from the Miami tide chart for local tides. In the case of those calls, we had the right answers. In fact we take pride in having more accurate tides than anyone else around, as other local papers and the local bait and tackle shops use charts based on Miami tides. As the weather can affect tides, we can't always guarantee we'll be absolutely right but we should be closer to right than the others.

Once we got a call from someone who wanted to purchase a Mirror the leading glass type.

We frequently get calls from folks asking how to get in touch with a government agency. When we can help, we do. We know the local ones and some of the state agencies, but don't know a whole bunch of the federal ones. And, we don't have a vast collection of out of town phone books. Often the callers could save our time and theirs by looking under Government in the yellow pages, though if you do call us, we'll try to help.

Often we get calls from persons needing directions to various places, and if they're local or in most places in Florida, we can help.

A few times we have gotten calls from people who feel we should have the benefit of their opinion on national and state issues. When we have time, we're glad to listen, but there's really not much we can do about these issues, and it's rare that we even comment about such things on our editorial page.

We get calls from folks who want to complain about the state of the economy or who simply want to chat at length about anything and everything under the sun. Invariably, those calls come on Tuesdays, when we are very busy trying to get the paper put together. Sometimes the callers don't even identify themselves.

We often get calls from clubs or civic groups asking if we could take a photo of an event they're staging. Thing is, we don't mind, but we do appreciate some advance notice on them. We once got a call at 5:15 p.m. when the office is normally closed asking if we could take a photo an hour or so later of an Eagle scout presentation. Obviously, the event had been planned much farther in advance than that. And once one of our reporters got a call at home asking if the reporter would come over and take a photo of a night blooming cereus. The call came in at 11 p.m.

We did get one off the wall call last year that we were able to give an immediate answer to. A woman called to ask if we knew where she could purchase some helium. We knew, because the week before we had bought some for balloons to attach to our Great American Raft Race entry in Port St. Lucie. Unfortunately, even the helium didn't help us. We hope it helped our caller.

Orientation is scheduled for IRCC Fall term

Registration for Fall term at Indian River Community College has been scheduled for Thursday and Friday, Aug. 21 and 22.

During both days of registration, orientation sessions will be conducted for students who plan to attend IRCC for the first time this Fall.

Sessions are scheduled to begin at 10 a.m., noon, 2, 4, 6, and 8 p.m. on both days, and students are invited to choose the time most convenient for them to attend. The Campus Coalition Government, the student government association at IRCC, is sponsoring the orientation activities.

If interested, simply choose a time and plan to be in the Martin Room of the Koblegard Student Union on the Main Campus for introduction to the college.

Registry plans art showing

Rayben-Close Artists' Registry, 2580 Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach, will have an art show on Sunday, August 31 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Representative works by 16 of the area's finest artists will be on display.

Artists at work during the show hours will include Mrs. Irene Mortensen, silhouettes and charcoal sketches; Mrs. Ellen Ellis, watercolor demonstration; Dennis Holland, nautical woodworking. Admission is free.

Letter to the editor

To the editor:

I read with interest your article in the July 30 issue. Am I right in reading that there are 6,331 dwelling units that may be homes and or apartments, and that 1,042 are presently unoccupied?

This represents an inordinate vacancy rate.

What is the explanation for this? Are asking rents too high? Is the area overbuilt due to speculative builders?

The reason I ask is because I am thinking of building another house there for rental, but with a vacancy rate like that, forget it.

Are the vacancies habitable? Are they just partially built? I can see where vandalism would be high. No wonder the banks down there will no longer loan money unless the house will be owner-occupied. No wonder tenants always complain there is not enough suitable housing.

How do you explain this apparent discrepancy?

Weather Service monitors 'canes

Hurricane warning operations of the NOAA's National Weather Service begin when the storm is first detected.

A potential hurricane picked up in satellite images is usually the first in a series of advisory messages issued by the National Center of six hour intervals.

This set of messages is aimed at shipping and aviation personnel, as they are still out at sea. They tell where the disturbance is located, a little about the winds, central pressure and when it can be expected over a period of the next 12 to 24 hours.

When and if the storm progresses further, it is given a name.

The advisories then become more comprehensive, adding new information from aircrafts flying through the storm, satellites, ships and radar.

As the hurricane begins to approach the coastal areas, the advisory begins to focus on inland effects and the 6 hour advisories are interspersed with intermediate advisories. These will be more specific about probable dangers that may affect certain areas.

A hurricane watch becomes a part of the National Weather Service advisories. A watch does not mean that a hurricane will strike any given area, but that residents should keep in tune for further information of the storm's progress. Any safety precautions that take more than 12 to 24 hours to perform should be started in case the watch turns into a warning.

A hurricane warning is added to the advisory when conditions, such as winds of at least 74 miles per hour, high water, and storm tides are expected within a 24 hour period.

There are other important elements that come with hurricane advisories.

The area swept by hurricane force winds may only be a hundred miles of coastline but for some distance on either side of this area are gale warnings and other information that may pertain to small craft operators containing hurricane warnings also spell out probable flood danger in coastal and inland areas and the expectation of hurricane spawned tornadoes.

A gale warning is for those winds on the outskirts of a hurricane that may reach from 39-54 miles per hour, or a storm warning that takes in wind from 55-73 miles per hour.

Although most hurricanes give 12 to 24 hour notice in advance to area residents, a hurricane with an erratic path can reduce the notice substantially.

In most states, a landfall of a hurricane means the storm will begin to lose its source of energy, the warm ocean, but in the case of Florida, it may lose a little velocity but gain it back in the waters of the Gulf, as it could pass right over the state.

'Canes wind and water create a double threat

Many people have been through hurricanes but few have experienced the eye of a hurricane, the calm interlude between surges.

The eye can be void of wind and rains or there may simply by a letup in the storm to be followed by another heavy surge without much of a time difference, coming in the opposite direction.

The time period between the first strong winds of a hurricane and the rain squalls and a return to moderate winds is often about 24 hours. But this varies greatly depending upon the size of the hurricane, its speed, and how close to the area the eye of the storm.

There are two factors to a hurricane, wind and water.

The storm strikes in the following manner: the storm surge, which is the general rise in sea level, wind damage, possible tornadoes and inland flooding.

The storm surge begins out over the ocean. The low pressure and strong winds around the eye of the storm cause the water to raise the surface a foot or two higher than surrounding area water forming a dome that can be as much as 50 miles across. As the storm moves into shallower waters, decreasing water depth transforms the dome into a storm surge which can rise 20 feet or more above the normal sea level, causing flooding and destruction.

Just as the storm surge is superimposed on the normal tides, the high wind-driven waves are superimposed on the storm surge, creating an invincible wall that shatters anything in its path.

The highest and most dangerous part of the surge is located near the center of the hurricane, some 50 miles along the coast in the quadrant of the hurricane where the winds are blowing toward the shore.

Some Florida hurricanes have brought storm surges of 10 feet or more. For example, the 1935 Florida Keys storm brought an 18 foot surge. Tampa Bay had 14 feet in 1848 and the 1926 hurricane raised a 13.2 foot storm surge in Biscayne Bay.

The combination of water and wind can be extremely lethal in areas. The worst hurricane death toll in Florida took place in 1928 when the water was blown out of Lake Okeechobee, flooding several communities and killing 1,836 persons officially, though some locals say the toll was more like 3,500 deaths.

Wind speeds vary greatly in a hurricane and within each storm. Wind gusts may exceed sustained winds by 25 to 50 per cent. For example, a storm with 100 mile per hour winds may have gusts up to 150 miles per hour.

Because South Florida's building codes demand protection from winds, in an average hurricane there will be less extensive damage sustained by the buildings. However, structures built to hurricane specifications may be damaged if forced to endure winds of very powerful hurricanes.

The wind causes damage because of the force of the gusts and the rapid increase in wind force as the storm increases. Wind forces increase with the square of wind speed, meaning that when the wind speed doubles, four times as much pressure is exerted on structures.

That is why reducing weak spots in windows and glass doors will reduce wind damage.

Another threat that accompanies hurricanes are tornadoes, known as the most violent winds on earth, and often the most destructive. Tornadoes are often on the outer part of hurricanes and although not as strong as some of the tornadoes of the mid west area, they are still destructive, causing death and damage.

Rainfall varies with each hurricane, depending upon size and velocity. But there are some relative constant features. During the average 24-hour hurricane, five to ten inches of rain may fall, flooding low lying areas. There are plenty of hurricane rainfalls from 12 to 20 inches in Florida climatology, causing major flooding and general inconvenience.

Tune to radio for info

When a hurricane approaches, the best way to stay informed of latest developments in its progress and of actions you should take is to tune in to a local radio station or, if it is still on the air, to a television station.

There are a number of radio stations in our area designated as Emergency Broadcast Stations. For St. Lucie County, the EBS stations on the AM dial are WIRA 1440, WFTP 1330 and WSTU 1450. The EBS stations on the FM dial are WOLV 98, WIZD 96 and WRIT 93.

St. Lucie Count, Disaster Prepared ness Director Phil Rodi notes that in the case of south county residents who can receive WSTU persons should listen carefully to make sure the instructions given are for St. Lucie County as the station will also be giving announcements for Martin County residents. The same can be said for WRIT on the FM dial.

The EBS stations for Martin County are WSTU and WRIT.

Registration is up in PSL

Voter turnout in the Sept. 9 primary is expected to be the heaviest in area history, according to figures released by Port St. Lucie County Supervisor of Registrations Jimmy Brooks.

The biggest increase in the outlying precincts shows up in the Port St. Lucie registrations. A total of 3,014 are registered to vote at the PSL Marina, as opposed to 2,776 in 1979. Registered at PSL city hall are 1,879 this year, as opposed to 1,870 in 1979.

And the registration quota for PSL community center is a whopping 3,853 as opposed to 2,586 last year.

Spanish Lakes shows little change in the past ten years. The full complement in this year's poll is 1,586, as opposed to 1,536 last year and 1,557 ten years ago.

Walton, too, has a fairly static voting population. In 1970, a total of 399 voters were registered. In 1979 the count was 393, and this year's tally is 412.

Brooks said last week that the surge in population in the Port St. Lucie area will undoubtedly lead to greater voting clout and a louder voice in political matters for that area.

Hurricanes and himicanes

Women may not have won approval of the Equal Rights Amendment yet, but they have won a victory of sorts among the weather forecasting fraternity.

Since 1954, forecasters have been naming hurricanes after women. But last year, in a move to bring equality to the attaching of names to hurricanes, the forecasters began alternating male and female names for the big storms. Hurricane Bob was the first storm to bear a male's name.

Here's a complete list of names assigned to this season's hurricanes:

Allen, Bonnie, Charlie, Danielle, Earl, Frances, George, Hermine, Ivan, Jeanne, Karl, Lisa, Mitch, Nicole, Otto, Paula, Richard, Shary, Tomas, Virginie and Walter.

Sons of Norway seeking members

In anticipation for the tenth anniversary of the Leif Erikson Day celebration in Jensen Beach, the Gulfstream Lodge of the Sons of Norway is conducting a membership drive for the local lodge.

Persons interested in the Scandinavian tradition and history, or persons who are of Scandinavian descent will find an interesting and informative outlet for both social and cultural interests as a member of the Sons of Norway.

Members of the Gulfstream Lodge come from Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Okeechobee Counties.

Those interested can call 334-1561 for more information.

Several hundred march against busing

As estimated 200 to 300 persons staged a march in Port St. Lucie Saturday afternoon to demonstrate their opposition to forced busing of children to school.

The march was the latest effort of a group of city residents who are opposed to a court ordered plan to bus about 300 white children from Port St. Lucie to Garden City Elementary School in Fort Pierce and to bus an equal number of black children in Fort Pierce to the two elementary schools in Port ST. Lucie.

Though dark clouds threatened to rain on the march and the hot weither shade for a lot of sweaty marchers, adults and children kept up a vigorous pace as they marched from the parking lot of Sportsman's Park to Port St. Lucie Elementary School and back to the park. Many of the marchers carried signs proclaiming their opposition to forced busing and to Federal Judge Clyde Atkins, who last week approved the busing plan.

School Board officials approved a plan earlier this summer, for attendance zones for the two Port St. Lucie shcools, but Judge Atkins ruled the plan was "segregative" and ordered the board to come up with a new plan.

The board recently approved the new plan, as did a bi-racial committee in charge of reviewing school attendance plans, the U.S. Justice Department and Judge Atkins.

The busing plan applies to children in grades three through five at Port ST. Lucie Elementary, Morningside Elementary and Garden City Elementary.

When the plan was first announced, parents of local school children opposed it on grounds that it is a waste of gas, that it means children will have long bus rides to school, and that they ought to have the right to send their children to the schools in their own community.

At last week's school board meeting, the group opposed to the busing plan came up with another reason to oppose it. They pointed out that the evacuation plan for a disaster at the nuclear power plant on Hutchinson Island calls for all persons north of Midway road to be evacuated to the Orlando and Cape Kennedy area and for all those south to be evacuated to Palm Beach County. They argued that there are not enough buses to evacuate all the school children and that they did not like the idea of having to be separated from their children in the event of an evacuation.

St. Lucie County Disaster Preparedness Director Phil Rodi said, "If we had a nuclear disaster, I can see many frantic mothers and fathers running around trying to get to their children, perhaps going from an uncontaminated area to a contaminated area, and possibly going to the school and finding their children were already evacuated."

Rodi noted that the school system does not have sufficient buses to evacuate all the school children in one load.

Pam Miglino, one of the organizers of the march on Saturday, said the U.S. Senator Stone has been supportive of the anti-busing group's efforts. He told us what he needs most is individual letters from people asking to abolish forced busing and to bring out the point about the nuclear disaster evacuation plan. He said this would give him what he needs to go higher up in arguing against forced busing," she said, adding that Stone and Rodi both seem to feel that while the evacuation plan may not bring about a change in the busing plan it may help get the evacuation plan changed.

Miglino also noted that the anti-busing group is to meet soon with attorney Ellis Rubin, a U.S. Senate candidate, and that Rubin, "said he may be able to give us a few pointers on how to fight this thing."

Miglino said the local group also hopes to lend support to a nationwide effort to end forced busing. "We will not keep our children out of school, but we will not give up our fight either," she said, adding, "We have high hopes. Atkins only encouraged us to fight harder."

Marcher Barbara Kaste said she joined the march because, "We are paying school taxes for our children to go to their community school. We looked all over Florida to find a small community and should have been able to choose the school they go to."

Kathy Edge said she owns three parcels of land in the city, yet still can't send her child to the school of her choice. "The children were not considered in the plan. The children from Windmill Point will have to be on the bus two hours," she said.

Helen Narvel said, "I moved into this district for my child to go to school here. She added that she felt busing was a waste of tax money.

Roseann DiGiacomo does not have a child affected by the busing plan but said she joined the march because she agrees with those opposing forced busing.

School Board candidate Nick Sabetto marched and said the bus plan "is contrary to the American concept of American community living." When asked what he could do to change things if he was elected, he said, "I'm not opposed to violating the law, but you have to stand up and be counted."

Miglino said more marches will be planned in the future, and also called on persons to support a proposal by city Councilman Gerald Girard to have the city secede from the county and form its own metro government. She said under a metro government the city could set up its own school district and that citizens would get more for their taxes.

APPEALING to the crowd of anti-busing marchers for a letter writing campaign to Governor Bob Graham and Senators Dick Stone and Lawton Chiles is parade organizer Pam Miglino.

Story and photos

by Bob Fryer

FREE RIDE. While their mothers marched against forced busing, these two little boys got a free ride. They're obviously too young to be affected by this year's busing order, and the anti-busing group hopes by the time they reach school age, they won't have to be bused to a distant school.

SHIRT SAYS IT—The shirt this woman wore in the anti-busing march in Port St. Lucie last Sunday told the message she wanted to get across.

BEFORE THE MARCH against forced busing began, persons gathered in the Sportsman's Park parking lot to get organized and exchange views on the issue. All agreed that they didn't like the idea of having their children forced to ride buses to Fort Pierce to attend school, but most said they would begrudgingly comply rather than keep their children out of school.

ME WORE HATS [illegible] message, while others carried posters in march against a court order to bus children from Port St. Lucie to Garden y Elementary School in Fort Pierce.

SEA OF SIGNS—There were plenty of homemade signs on display at the anti-busing march in Port St. Lucie Sunday afternoon. Between 200 and 300 persons turned out for the march and organizers said there will be more marches scheduled.

Some answers to questions I am frequently asked about tennis, especially during the tourist season.

Do I have any resource if my opponent repeatedly tosses the ball in the air before serving and catches it instead of hitting it?

No, sir, you don't. The rules say a server can repeat this maddening practice as often as he likes without penalty. The only thing you can do is find someone else to play against.

What happens when my opponent quick-serves before I am ready?

According to the rules, it depends on what you do. If you react and try to make a return but fail, it's server's point. But if you don't do anything, the rules say you should play a let. This applies to both first and second serves.

Does it make any difference what direction a tennis court faces?

It sure does. In our hemisphere, courts running east-west should be avoided like the plague because one side will usually be playing looking into the sun. The best direction is 22 degrees off true north. And, if you're building in the back yard, watch out for shade trees that can cast trouble some shadows.

What's the rule about playing a let when there's a question about a hit ball being in or out?

Tennis etiquette, and not the rule book, is the judge of this one. Etiquette says a ball should be called good if there's any doubt. Lets are usually reserved for unexpected interruptions of play.

Does it make any sense to alter your racket depending on where you are playing or the kind of court surface?

It does if you are serious about tennis. For example, most experienced players prefer a head-light racket when playing on a fast surface in a higher altitude. It gives an easier and faster swing speed. Conversely, players on slower courts at sea level, like those found in Florida, like more weight in the head to provide deeper [illegible] strokes. Either way, you can fine tune your racket by adding a small amount of lead tape to the head or, after removing the grip, to the butt of the handle.

What happens in doubles when someone serves out of turn?

Rule 28 has the answer. "If a partner serves out of turn, the partner who should have served shall serve as soon as the mistake is discovered." The rule also explains that all points scored when the wrong person was serving should stand and, if a team goes an entire game without discovering their error, the final score should also stand.

What happens when my partner hits a ball with so much spin that it bounces in our opponents' court, then comes back to our side of the net but goes out of bounds?

For the umpteenth time, you win the point. The critical point here is that your team put the ball in the proper court and your rivals didn't make a play.

Another frequently asked question concerns the legality of reaching over the net into the opponent's court and hitting a ball that has landed in your court and spun back.

It's definitely legal to do this, providing neither you nor your racket touches the net.

Finally, some answers to quickie questions that get asked a lot but have nothing to do with the rules and regulations.

Who is the best player you ever saw? Bill Tilden. Are tennis players better now than they used to be? Not necessarily, but there are more good ones. Is Borg really that much better than the rest right now? Yes, he seldom has to go over 75 per cent of his real ability. But, if Don Budge, Jack Kramer, or Rod Laver were in their prime now, they would run Borg into the ground. What's the best surface? Many people will argue that question, it depends on where you live and what you are used to. In California, the surface is predominantly cement. The mid-west, mostly asphalt, the South, mostly clay type surface, but lots of asphalt as well. The East has everything, but this is about the only area you will find grass tennis courts.

When you have played the circuit, you quickly learn to adapt to what's there. This week I am playing in Philadelphia, at the Germantown Cricket Club, on grass. Here, you try not to let the ball bounce, as you may get some unbelievable no bouncers. Winners on grass have mostly been net rushers with big serves.

You have a good game today.

PSL women play golf tournament

Players share $3,700 in Open

BY MIKE SANDY

With play abbreviated because of rain to a single round played Sunday, a pair of Boca Del Mar assistant pros from Boca Raton ran one two in the pro division of the Martin Downs Pro Am event staged at Crane Creek. Joey Morris topped his colleague Jimmy Weeden by one shot to share the top cash award of $500 scoring an even par 72 round. Weeden took home $400.00. John Smith, who plays out of Crane Creek, repeated as the amateur tournament champion recording rounds of 70 and 76 while the team of Vero Beach pro Rod Carter collected top awards in the Two Best of Four Ball play in the pro-am segment with a 26 under 118 score.

A total prize fund of $3,700 was up for grabs to the 127 players who participated which included 37 pros and 90 amateurs.

Host pro Jay Pyle finished in a three way tie among the pros with a two over 74 score with Jame Firth of DeRay Beach C.C. and "Chip" Faur of Melbourne. Each taking home $250 as Steve Castigliano's 75 earned him $150 while a quartet ended up in the next slot with 78 rounds including Ken Zurk, Vero Beach; Rodney Morrow, Melbourne, Joe Lopez Sr., No. Palm Beach and Joe Sciortino, Delray.

The championship amateur flight found David Turner in second slot at 149 followed by Willie Wisely and Bob Sailey Jr., both of Crane Creek sharing third place with a 36 hole tally of 150 while Dale Anderson of Stuart finished with a two under 70 for his second round to finish fourth.

Gary Wirth walked off with "First Flight amateur award producing a 36 hole tally of 152 followed by Doug Campora, Stuart, 153 and Dr. Barry Allison, Stuart, and Woody Smoak, Crane Creek at 154.

Second Flight amateur leaders were paced by Joe Martire, Vero Beach and playing partner, Preacher Spair followed by Stuart's David Fareman and Crane Creek's Mel Turner. Tony Frassa of Sandpiper Bay won top honors in third flight play with 169 followed by Sandpiper's Mike Ciferri. Stuart's Dave Droist and Skip Horn of Vero with John Kozel of Crane Creek taking down Fourth flight honors with 180 trailed by Homer Hensley, Crane Creek, Vero's Jeff Meade and Crane Creek's Jeff Davidson.

The Fifth Amateur Flight was copped by another Crane Creeker, Bob Sailey Sr., who posted 186 trailed by Bill Mangold, Crane Creek, course superintendent and two other Creek men Vince Boechino and Jack Helmstedt.

Amateurs included in the top scoring Pro Am team included all Vero Beach linksmen Preacher Spiers, Joe Martire and Hal Haffield. Each player received $125 in cash or merchandise. The second place Pro Am team had Mariner Sands pro Chuck Knebels leading the way for his team's 119 score only one shot off the winners and amateurs were brothers Carl and Chuck Alfrey of Stuart and Dave Doelling, Mariner Sands. Each member received $90.00 while teams led by Stuart's J. D. Murchison and Austin Terico shared the next slot honors at 24 under and included Dave Turner, Dave Nogay and Armand Mastrodonardi.

An "eat feat" with all the trimmings followed play on Sunday with more than 150 in attendance viewing the presentation of awards to the winners. The tournament was deemed a huge success and reports have it that arrangements for next year's Martin Downs Pro Am are already in the works and that the affair might be limited to 120 entrants, according to Host Pro Jay Pyle.

Irrigation plans underway for St. Lucie County area

Irrigation from Lake Okeechobee into outlying areas of St. Lucie County is under consideration by the Jacksonville office of the Corps of Engineers.

The proposal, which is only in the initial stage of study, is a direct result of an Oct. 31, 1979 meeting between members of the South Florida Water Management District and the Corps of Engineers.

The irrigation plan is twofold. Not only will it provide water to surrounding farms and groves, but will decrease the phosphate load entering Lake Okeechobee from areas north of the lake. To accomplish this, water will be diverted from the Taylor Creek and Nubbin Slough at the north side of the lake, directly to St. Lucie County.

So far, engineers and officials have come up with six preliminary alternatives in their effort to improve the water quality of the lake.

Three of those ideas are variations of channeling water to the St. Lucie Canal to a point west of the St. Lucie Locks. From there, a newly constructed canal would carry the water north to the C-23 canal.

Other thoughts involve sending the water to the Florida Power and Light Reservoir near Indiantown. Then the water could be routed down the St. Lucie Canal and, again, north to the C-23.

Yet another option considered calls for digging a new canal located approximately midway between Okeechobee and Indiantown. With the help of lift stations, water would be pumped into the southwest corner of the C-23. This seems to be the shortest route between the two points, but cost will play an important role in the decision and financial studies have not yet been started.

The final plan calls for the construction of a reservoir located off State Road 710 between Indiantown and Okeechobee. Pumping stored water from the southeast corner of the reservoir, lift stations would send it through a canal the short distance to the southwest corner of C-23.

According to James L. Garland, chief engineer for the Army Corps, the plans are to include only enough water to supply the demands of St. Lucie County. Further expansion could later be added in stages if and when the need arises. At that time, water could be channeled from the C-23 into the St. Lucie estuary and into the Intracoastal Waterway near Fort Pierce.

Interested residents should send their inquiries or comments to the Army Corps of Engineers within 30 days P.O. Box 4970, Jacksonville, Florida 32232.

Goode named manager of bank branch

Dale M. Hudson, president, First National Bank and Trust Company of Stuart, recently announced the appointment of Lavonne Goode, assistant vice president, and former supervisor of operations in the bank card department, to manager of First National's East Ocean Branch.

Goode has been with First National for 27 years. She is a member of the National Association of Banking Women, Treasure Coast Group, and has received the American Institute of Banking Basic and Standard Certificates. She is a graduate of Florida School of Banking at the University of Florida at Gainesville.

Goode will be responsible for all operational procedures at the East Ocean Branch Office where she will be utilizing her banking experience to provide customers with a full range of banking services.

Roy H. Hicks, assistant vice president and former East Ocean branch manager was appointed to manager of First National's credit card department. Hicks has been with First National for 5 years and has more than 20 years of banking experience including credit card and installment lending.

FIT to graduate 88 in summer rite

"Why spend money on electricity when you could spend it on something else?"

Watt-Wise Living" pays. Just ask Mr. and Mrs. Renaud of West Palm Beach. They've been saving on their electric bill ever since they moved into their new home. Their average monthly bills in their centrally air conditioned four-bedroom home have been around $80 in the summer months, $65 in winter.

What's Watt-Wise Living? It's a combination of features that meet FPL's energy-saving standards and can be easily included in the construction of a new home. Over a period of years they can save you substantially more than they cost.

Watt-Wise homes have cost-saving features like extra ceiling and wall insulation, solar or heat-recovery units for water heating, a higher-efficiency air conditioner or heat pump. Power savers like fluorescent lighting and a microwave oven, and thermally efficient windows and doors, with glass areas planned to minimize heat build-up.

Today, there are many ways to save on electricity without giving up comfort. You'll find them in FPL's Watt-Wise Living Program. Today, it's one of the wisest investments you could make. Stop by your local FPL office and pick up a free brochure.

It's time to register children

Dr. Barbara Anderson, director of curriculum for Martin County Schools, announced that it is time to register first graders and kindergarten children for school.

Parents or guardians should register their children at the school they will attend between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. daily.

To be enrolled in kindergarten, children must have reached age five by Dec. 1 or have qualified for early admission.

To be enrolled in first grade a child must have completed kindergarten and attained age six by Jan. 1, 1981, or have attained age six by Sept. 1, or qualified for early admission.

Children entering school for the first time must submit a birth certificate, a certificate of immunization for DPT, mumps, polio, rubella and rubeola (measles). Also, a medical exam must have been performed on the child within nine months prior to Aug. 25, or a subsequent exam may be performed by a private physician or the county health department.

All kindergarten enrollees must be screened. Appointments for screening will be given at the time of registration. The screening schedule for Jensen Beach Elementary is Thursday and Friday, Aug. 21, and 22.

Flood insurance now available in communities

As often forgotten aspect of hurricane danger is the devastating flooding which can accompany them. The danger of such flooding is not limited to coastal areas. Hurricanes travel far inland, often carrying torrential rains.

For decades, the national response to flood disasters was generally limited to building flood control works such as dams, levees, and seawalls, and providing disaster relief to flood victims. Compounding the problem, the public could not buy flood coverage from insurance companies and building techniques to reduce flood damage to new construction were often overlooked.

In the face of mounting flood losses, Congress created the National Flood Insurance Program to reduce annual flood losses through more careful planning and to provide property owners with affordable flood protection. The program is administered by the Federal Insurance Administration of the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

For an individual to purchase flood insurance, his/her community must participate in the program. To do this a community carries out local flood plain management measures to protect lives and new construction from future flooding. In exchange for such protective measures, property owners in the area can buy flood insurance at reasonable cost.

Any owner of property, and that includes a building or its contents, located in a participating community can purchase flood insurance. Under the program, tenants may also insure their personal property against loss.

Once a community qualifies and has joined the program, a policy may be purchased from any property insurance agent or broker licensed to do business in the state where the property is located.

To find out if flood insurance is available in your area, contact your local insurance agent or broker, community officials, or call the Federal Insurance Administration (toll free 800-424-8872).

NEWLY LICENSED EMERGENCY MEDICAL TECHNICIANS—pose for a photo minus diplomas. Five EMTs pass with flying colors

BY NELLIE D. COOK

This week we are not only calling, we are shouting out two items of Good News.

This first — Our five students taking the Florida State Emergency Medical Technicians examination passed 100 per cent. We are so proud of them, no will give you a little history of each.

Let's begin with the only young lady in the group, Rhonda Dietrich. Rhonda is a student at F.I.T. coming here from her home town of Williams, Center Ohio.

In addition to her regular classes at the college, Rhonda works part time at the college library, and part time at the Kard Korner in Smithfield Shopping Center in Stuart.

Next we have a young man, David Di Pesa. Dave also is a F.I.T. student, coming from Saugus, Mass. Dave is in his third year studying to be an Oceanographic Technician, and will graduate in 1982. Dave has been a Samaritan for the past year, a driver on his day off (Fridays) and working on the day shift.

Bill Hogervorst who was born in Holland came to us via Long Island, Hollow York, where he immigrated after serving for his own country during World War Two. Bill is currently employed by the Department of Transportation, working on the Turnpike, out of the Stuart office.

Randy Springer, an F.I.T. student in Under Water Technology claims as his home town, Paremus, N.J. but came here from Teaneck, N.J. where he had been an E.M.T. instructor. A note here, Florida will not honor an E.M.T. certificate from any other state. So Randy had to retake the complete training. Randy has been with us for two years and will graduate in 1981 as an Under Water Technician, and will make his career one of commercial diving.

Ronald Giersdorf, a native of Omaha, Neb., took his high schooling in Atlanta, Ga., before moving to Florida to work in his profession as an engineer with Pratt Whitney. Ron with his wife, Michelle (Mickey) and a family of five lives in North River Shores, and has been a Samaritan for the past year.

The instructor, trainer of this course at the Rosehman Site, Martin County's college, was none other than Samaritan Mickey Giersdorf. Mickey of Florida Power & Light, based in Indiantown.

Congratulations to these fine Samaritans and their instructor, and I speak not only from the squad, but I'm sure for all the Jensen Area. Good luck and God Bless them, "they care".

AUXILIARY A REALITY

The evening of Friday, Aug. 15 a small but enthusiastic group of Jensen Area residents gathered at the Samaritans headquarters to hear Samaritan President, George Krauss outline plans for an Auxiliary to the Samaritans Inc. first on the list is a membership campaign. Tell your friends and neighbors how they can help. Ask them to join you and come out. We need you. You need us. Project two, Advertise our needs. Use the existing posters so beautifully hand made by our treasurer's husband, Ed Wagner. Move them from business places to other businesses, from Jensen to Rio, to the Island, etc.

No. 3. Meet face to face with local organizations, let them know how they can help us help the community.

Project no. 4. Get young persons to form a Junior Squad. This has been a success in Midland Park, N.Y. If they can do it, we can.

Project 5. Arrange for Auxiliary person to man building and receive supplies. Man the telephone. Type letters. Master copies for Zeroxing. There are many ways the Auxiliary can help.

Suggestion: a Pot Luck. Each person to bring a covered dish plus one dollar. Get acquainted, and start a little fund for the Auxiliary. This of course will be planned at a later date. George Krauss, overall chairman cannot do it all and work too. So that problem was solved when Dot Michna of Pinelake Village volunteered to be interim chairman with the help of her husband, Tony, a member of the Samaritans now in training.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 23 (Tuesday). The men from Ocean Breeze Park and Pinelake Village who have cleaned our vehicles for the past two years, were voted to be associate members automatically.

See you all Sept. 23 at 7:30. Don't say I can't help. Perhaps you have the skill we need most. Get your application. Mrs. Michna's phone no. is 334-1319.

Beau Rivage students will stay in MC schools

Martin County School Board officials voted unanimously to allow children in Beau Rivage West to continue in the Martin County school system for a period of one years.

The decision, which was reached at the Tuesday night meeting, was made after considerable criticism of a proposed change in the attitude of the board from Beau Rivage residents.

Beau Rivage is located in St. Lucie County making those school age children eligible to attend St. Lucie schools. To date, however, the approximately eleven children in that area have attended Martin County schools due to their close proximity.

Dr. David Anderson remained skeptical about letting the children attend Martin County schools, saying that once a district was opened up, it could not be divided. From that point, Martin County would be responsible for the remainder of children if their parents chose to send them there.

He went on to cite the incident that took place a few months ago when Martin County parents went through the hardship of possibly having their children turned away due to overcrowded schools. In his opinion, it wasn't fair to county taxpayer's to allow attendance now by the 11 Beau Rivage children.

Hugh Turner, a Beau Rivage resident, told the board that "That number is a drop in the bucket. What difference does it make if they attend Martin County schools?"

School Superintendent James Davitsky answered that Jensen Beach Elementary currently has an enrollment of 782 with a 762 capacity. He felt that because Jensen Beach is fast becoming overcrowded, it must be recognized that children in St. Lucie County would not be handicapped if the school system built a school in the south part of the county.

Another point taken up by the board was the problem of transportation. As it stands, parents of the eleven or so children have provided transportation without school assistance. Anderson felt that "if we accept those students, then we accept the legal responsibility of transporting them."

Navitsky was asked for his recomendation, to which he replied that he thought the problem of "growth needed to be addressed in Jensen Beach." With St. Lucie schools having the needed facilities, he recomended sending the Beau Rivage children now to Morningside Elementary in Port St. Lucie.

Anderson contended that while the children were few in number, it was more a matter of legal ramifications and principles.

"There comes a time when you have to bite the bullet," he said.

At that point, a visibly upset resident asked, "But why are you biting the bullet six days before my daughter goes back to school?"

Yet another resident asked for a year extension due to the late time element, saying that they would accept the fact that perhaps next year their children would be asked to attend St. Lucie schools.

Carolyn Lichty added "I see no real impact on Jensen Beach Elementary and urged the board to extend enrollment to the students for one year.

After further discussion, it was unanimously voted to allow the Beau Rivage students to attend grades K-12 in the Martin County school system for a period of one year.

Local 'cane history

Although the 1928 hurricane is still considered the worst, by far to hit this area since records have been kept, it is by no means the only bad hurricane to strike our coast.

A hurricane hit Palm Beach in 1933, but wasn't nearly as severe as the '28 blow.

Around these parts, the one old-time residents are still talking about is the 1949 hurricane. Dick Gideon, who lived in Jensen at the time but now resides in Port St. Lucie, says it is the worst one he's ever seen.

Gideon joined friends at the Victory Hotel in downtown Stuart, near the present-day Stuart City Hall, for a hurricane party. He said there were no lives lost that he knows of, but said destruction was widespread. Several of the photos of the '49 hurricane in this edition are from Gideon.

Gideon said a wind gauge in Stuart was pegged at 140 mph before it blew away during the hurricane, and he said roofs of buildings flew off and many homes were destroyed. His father's fish house near what is now Sailfish Cove was blown upside down and most all the planks on the old wooden Jensen Causeway were blown off. Destruction was heavy at Bailey Boats, and water splashed over the banks of the Indian River onto Indian River Drive. Trees were downed everywhere.

In 1964, Cleo took a swipe at our coast and caused some flooding, though relatively minor property damage.

The next year, Betsy came by. It killed a number of persons and created damage all up the eastern U.S. Coast, but no local lives were lost.

Alma in 1966 created high winds and lots of water here, but again no lives were lost.

Between 1966 and last year, things were pretty quiet. Then, on Labor Day, David blew into town, it's eye passing right over Jensen and Port St. Lucie. Winds were listed at 80 mph with gusts sometimes 10 to 20 mph higher. There was considerable property damage, but no lives were lost and only one relatively serious injury from flying glass was reported.

David may have begun cycle

In 1977 and 1978 Florida and the rest of the South was hit by wave after wave of cold weather, but hurricane specialists say that pattern — which kept most of the Atlantic hurricanes away from the country — has ended.

Our nation may be in for a change in hurricane cycles that's been expected for three years, and the change could bring vicious storms to millions of Florida residents who have never before experienced one.

In the last 17 years, most severe hurricanes formed over the deep Atlantic waters between Africa and the Leeward Islands, then moved west into the Gulf of Mexico. But forecasters feel that cycle may be over and a cycle may be beginning which will send major hurricanes slamming into the populous Atlantic Coast.

Hurricane David, which hit here last Labor Day, was not a major hurricane, but was an indication to forecasters that the cycle for Atlantic Coast hurricanes may have begun.

A survey taken after hurricane Eloise hit the Gulf Coast in 1975 showed that it's not new residents to the coastal areas that disaster preparedness officials have to worry about because they seem to have a healthy respect. But those who have lived along the coast for the past seven or eight years, who may have had a minor brush with a cane, but not felt the fury of a major one, are worrisome to emergency personnel. It's the latter group of folks who hurricane officials say may be most prone to take a big blow too lightly.

There are 28 to 36 million persons estimated to be living along the Gulf and Atlantic coasts who have never been through a major hurricane. Of the 5.5 million persons residing in Florida coastal counties, it is estimated that 4.2 million have never experienced a major hurricane.

History has shown that advanced weather forecasting techniques have helped reduce the number of fatalities from the big storms, but history should also have taught us that those who take mother nature too lightly often never live to tell about it. Preparation, not panic or apathy, is the key to survival, officials say, and they urge all coastal residents to be prepared.

THE SECOND HALF of Hurricane David brought winds from the south and smashed this houseboat against a seawall at the Anchorage Marina in Rio. At one time the owner had planned to stay aboard for the storm, but wisely decided to leave before David hit. A special section in today's issue of The Mirror tells you all about hurricanes and how to prepare for them. (Photo by Bob Pryor)

North-south winners were Peg Wagg and Jean Matrisian, 132; Bea Kolb and Harriet Cooley, 119; Irv Eberlin and Gus Grasseaux, 118.

East-west winners were Sara Claasen and Bob Garcia, 132; Iva Dean Bouck and Myrtle Fleming, 128; Jay Ebenger and Tom Walker 114.

Game time is 1 p.m. every Monday in the Harry Hoke Community Room of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Jensen Beach. All players are welcome. Kay Monroe, director, 334-2468.

Ocean Breeze news notes

BY LETA KEITH

Many have asked me to write some things during Ernie Curwin's absence, so a card from Ernie and Marion spurred me on. They said they would be back in September.

Ursula Tognerri writes, "I came up here to be cooled off but I have decided to return early to Florida to get cooled off. It's been very hot up here. At a family reunion there were about 75 attending and they had a lobster spread over the afternoon, according to Mae Cassady.

Evelyn Noble writes that she likes her retirement home very much. She has seen Ruth Miles and they both are pretty good.

Agnes Corliss fell early Friday morning and broke her collarbone. After Dr. Stalker set it she was brought home.

Val Wells is home after being in the hospital. She spent 38 days there. Her sister, Treva Kane of Pelham, N.Y. came August 12 to stay with her.

Alice Burdick went to New Hampshire to sell her place. Then back to visit with her son in Indiana.

Elsa and Walter Lindell are enjoying a visit of their two sons who came down this time without their families.

Walter Dryer is in Martin Memorial with his second heart attack.

Eva and Clarence Papst are expected to return soon.

Minnie and Cathy Cumpsty returned Sunday evening. They had cool weather in New York State, the first came to tell me it was cool up there.

Ray and Jo Bradley have been having 101 degree weather in Springfield, Mo. Ray's garden is almost sunburned.

In the clouds here we still have an ocean breeze.

PLANTING—Katherine End (left) and Debbie Janicek, two F.I.T. students working under the direction of Dr. Randy Hogg, plant Mangrove seedlings near the banks of Sailfish Point's 60-acre, inland harbor. According to Hogg, "What we learn here will be invaluable for the future of the entire state of Florida."

Ecological project nears completion

This project is the first of its kind. Little has been done in this area, and what we learn here will be invaluable for the future of the entire state of Florida.

With those words, Dr. Randy Hogg of the Department of Environmental Technology at Florida Institute of Technology (F.I.T.) summed up the project nearing completion at Sailfish Point.

Mobile Land Development (Florida) Corporation, which is building Sailfish Point, a luxury, yacht and country club community on Hutchinson Island, is working closely with F.I.T. to insure the environmental integrity of the development's 60-acre, inland harbor.

"For the past eight months, we've worked with the Sailfish Point people on a plan for vegetation," Hogg explained. "We're planting approximately 3,000 red mangroves and an equally large number of Spartina grass around approximately two-and-one-half miles of shoreline."

According to Hogg, the red mangroves and Spartina grass are being planted to stabilize the shoreline surrounding the inland harbor. The plants will aid in creating a healthy ecosystem where marine life will flourish.

To date, more than 2,500 of the red mangroves have been planted two meters apart, alternating with the Spartina grass at one meter intervals. Five hundred black mangroves, selected to enhance the character and color of the landscaping, will be added when the balance of the planting is completed.

Dr. Hogg and F.I.T. colleagues Dr. Joe Bridges, Dr. Mike Hartman, Joe Gilio and Gary Roderick are supervising a group of 40 students, who work in crews of 20 in two shifts at Sailfish Point on weekends. Bev Brown, a local horticulturist, has served as a consultant since the project's inception.

Most of the students do not receive college credit for work for an hourly wage provided by Sailfish Point. "You have to realize," Hogg stated, "that although they aren't earning credits, they are all studying Environmental Technology at F.I.T., and the knowledge and experience they are gaining in the field is invaluable."

One student, however, is actually applying her work at Sailfish Point to her F.I.T. degree. Sharon Schultz is comparing the growth rate of the mangroves involved in the project to that of those which grow naturally in the area for her senior environmental project.

The red mangroves were purchased from a nursery in the Keys because it carried the ideal size for planting, while the Spartina grass was obtained from Indian River sand bars in Martin County.

According to Hogg, about two-thirds of the planting is finished, and the project should be completed by the end of the summer.

Cable asks 4% hike

BY CATHIE FARAGO

Members of the Port St. Lucie community had a chance Monday evening to air their grievances towards Perry Cable TV Corp. when John Perry III, president, came before the city council.

Perry met with councilmen to present a plea for a four per cent rate increase. Currently, the monthly rate charged city customers is $6.50. If approved that would increase to $8.00.

In his explanation for the rate hike, Perry announced that the city has 33 per cent of the company's entire construction budget for the oncoming year. Because Perry Cable currently has only 3,200 subscribers in the area, not enough to justify the current high expense for service, the increase would only allow the company to reach a break-even point, he said.

Residents who attended the meeting had different thoughts about the matter and pointedly directed questions to Perry about the quality, or rather the lack of it, of the service provided them.

One resident noted that with the $1.50 increase Cable TV would be earning an additional $25,000 per year. "That's just a number that by itself has no meaning," Perry responded. He then went on to cite examples of their huge operating expenses and again said, "we're not turning a buck on this project."

Other residents however, felt that while profit margins were slim at the moment, Perry Cable TV would not have come into the area were it not for the probability of tremendous future growth. Perry said that he didn't know what General Development's plans were and instead, focused on further reasons for the increase.

The company intends to spend an estimated $60,000 within the next 60 days to improve reception signals in Port St. Lucie, while generally upgrading areas of the city at a cost of $53,060. Additionally, Perry mentioned that Cable TV has a waiver of petition to bring back Channel 6, and is trying to get it through the Federal Communication Commission. The possible additional channel however will result in a probably "small extra monthly fee" for residents, says Perry.

In response to the various questions by residents on false promises for cable, Perry said that in February, a change in management occured, mainly for that reason. He now says that residents can get an honest idea as to when cable in their area will be installed.

In the case of the irate resident whose been promised for the last five years cable is coming, he hopes its soon.

In other business, City Attorney Spencer Gilbert reported to the commission his findings concerning the request by former City Attorney Rupert Smith for payment of legal services.

Gilbert went on to say that while a written contract existed allowing for a $500 per month compensation to Smith, the subsequent agreement for $1,050 was an oral one. Furthermore, it was never approved by the city council, which, according to the by-laws, must take place for legal confirmation.

The city council decided to wait and hear Gilbert's final recommendation before voting next Tuesday on a response to the suit.

Also brought before the council was General Development Corporation's request for a special exception use for the Southport water plant and maintenance area. Representing GDC was Ralph Cain, who requested the change to allow for future plant improvements.

An alternative offered by the council was to change the zoning specification to the existing property. However Cain explained that due to the continuing population increase, GDC was in the process of expanding water and sewer lines. Because of that continual upgrading, the utility plant may well change its face in 10 years, he said.

Cain's request for a special exception use was passed by the council, but Councilman Gerald Girard ended by saying, "I don't see a problem with this particular situation," but added that further special exception designations in residential areas would not meet with his approval.

MIAMI DOLPHINS

Dolphins agonize over Woodley

BY DICK LUNDIN

THE QUARTERBACK CORPS of the Miami Dolphins fell on evil days in September of 1979 when No. 1 Bob Griese suffered a hamstring pull. No. 1 Don Strock had a heavily-taped right knee and No. 3 Guy Benjamin had an appendectomy scar. It got so bad that tight end Bruce Hardy, once a college quarterback, took a couple of center snaps to finish a game.

From that radar of famine, look at the situation that Coach Don Shula finds himself in a year later.

Now, not only are all three of the Dolphin quarterbacks healthy, but a fourth candidate has put his hat in the ring — promising Louisiana State rookie Dave Woodley, 6-2, 183 and no better than an eighth round draft choice last April.

"Even though it compounds our problem, we're happy to have that kind of a problem," said Coach Shula after watching the nimble Woodley direct two touchdown drives in a 17-7 victory over Detroit in the Orange Bowl two Sundays ago.

WHEN ALL'S SAID AND DONE, unless the final exhibition game against Minnesota dulls the luster of his play against the New Orleans Saints, Lions and Seahawks, Woodley's apparent charisma and leader ship qualities versus an apparent lack of same on the part of Strock, the Dolphin brass must really be agonizing over what to do with their four quarterbacks.

You can't trade Griese who'll make just about the finest backup quarterback in the NFL, nor Benjamin, who should be just about ready to play, and that leaves the towering Strock, 6-5, 220, an inviting target for blitzing defensive ends and linebackers. He has all of the mechanical skills but just may not have the leadership intangibles Woodley has.

It's hard to see Shula going with Benjamin as his No. 1. Griese as backup and Woodley as No. 3, but it's an intriguing supposition all the same — especially if Strock should be appealing trade bait somewhere in the NFL. There are three or four NFL teams needing seasoned backup quarterbacks, like the Dallas Cowboys and S.F. 49ers.

With the first preseason cut (down to 60 from 67 for the Dolphins) scheduled for early this week, and nothing earth-shaking anticipated, let's hear it from Coach Shula on that Detroit game and how he appraised it.

"There were some good, solid things that happened on both sides of the line of scrimmage. Our defense permitted only 81 yards in the first half and linebacker Ralph Ortega's interception thwarted the Lions' only scoring threat. Strock had an apparent touchdown pass dropped by a receiver (Durrel Harrsal and Benjamin drove the offense to a third quarter field goal by Uwe von Schamann.

"But the heroics belonged to Woodley who played the second and fourth quarters and completed eight of 10 passes for 108 yards. He scrambled six yards for the clinching TD behind a block by guard Jeff Toews, with 3:46 left to play.

"He's looked good with every opportunity that he'd had, and it seems that he looks better each week. We're not showcasing him. We want to see what he can do for us. The thing I like about him is his ability to beat the pass rush and throw on the run, which he did on a couple of occasions," Shula commented.

Woodley, who operated in a two quarterback system at LSU, eluded the Lions' pass rush on a third and 14 and whipped a 16-yard pass to rookie Elmar Bailey. Later, he tossed a 31-yard pass to rookie tight end Joe Rose while scrambling from defenders.

"I feel as though I'm playing well. That might not be what it takes. I'm not sure exactly what it takes. You just try not to think about it. If you sit there and think 'I really don't have too much chance to make the team,' then that's when you start getting lazy and going through the motions. You stop striving to improve" — Woodley.

THE STARTERS for the Seattle game:

On offense, Harris and Nat Moore at wide receiver, Eric Laakso and Cleve land Green at tackle, Ed Newman and Larry Little at guard, Mark Dennard at center, Griese at Quarterback, Delvin Williams at halfback, Steve Howell at fullback and Hardy at tight end.

On defense, Vern Den Herder and Doug Betters at defensive ends, Bob Baumhower at nose tackle, Kim Bokamper and Earnest Rhone at outside linebacker, Steve Towle and Rusty Chambers at inside linebacker, Don McNeal and Gerald Small at cornerback, and Tim Foley and Neal Colzie at the safeties.

MIAMI'S 24-7 victory over the Seahawks put in the Kingdome Monday night was scarcely artistic as is always the case in the first two exhibition games of the season when coaches are pouring in rookies and free agents wholesale in a last minute attempt to be ready for the first cut of the preseason.

Seattle, playing without its No. 1 (Jim Zorn) and No. 2 (Tom Myer) quarterbacks, went with a No. 3 (Sam Adkins) and starter agent Dave Krieg. They were not up to putting points on the board as were all three of Miami's quarterbacks who saw action.

The Dolphins, held to a 7-7 tie in a lackluster first half, exploded for two touchdowns in the first five minutes of the third quarter against the Seahawks as they wound up with 185 yards rushing and 182 passing for an impressive overall total of 367.

Bob Griese played the first quarter and engineered an 88 yard drive in 12 plays for Miami's first touchdown, scored on a 3-yard pass to tight end Bruce Hardy. Griese looked in mid season form in his brief stint.

Guy Benjamin got the second touchdown, driving the Dolphins 87 yards in eight plays, going over himself on a one yard bootleg, ought. This score followed an aborted drive that was stopped by a gallant Seattle defense right on the goal line. Benjamin looked sharp.

That fabulous rookie Woodley mustered the other 10 points, setting up a 39 yard field goal by Uwe von Schamann late in the game and capitalizing on a Seahawk miscue for the third Dolphin touchdown. Woodley didn't fool around any on this one. Shifting wide receiver Elmer Bailey for 30 yards and then sending fullback Bob Torrey four yards for the touchdown on the next play.

EXCEPT FOR THE QUARTER BACKS, there weren't any outstanding performances by the Dolphins Monday night. Torrey and Howell didn't settle too much in their duel for the fullback spot, and it may well be that Miami will make that rumored deal with the 49ers for Wilbert Jackson. Don Bessillieu and Glen Blackwood came up with key interceptions and Ron Hall recovered a fumble.

Because Coach Don Shula seems to have a genuine aversion to players who fumble away promising drives, Torrey might have done himself in when he fumbled in half a Miami drive at the Seattle seven yard line with the score tied midway through that dull second quarter.

Seattle's score was something of a gift. Cornell Webster, taking advantage of some indifferent downfield pursuit by Dolphins, returned the kickoff after Miami's first score 63 yards to the Miami 30. Miami's No. 1 draft chaice, McNeal, was then called for pass interference putting the ball at the Miami one yard line and setting up an eventual two yard touchdown burst by Sherman Smith. You can bet that some of the seven fumbles by Coach Shula were on the special team that blew that kickoff return.

SATURDAY NIGHT at 8 p.m. in the Orange Bowl, the Minnesota Vikings will provide the third test of the preseason for the Dolphins as both Shula and Minnesota Coach Bud Grant get down to the serious business of preparing to open the season on Sept. 7.

Indian River League Wing-Ding is September 21

The Vero Beach Country Club golf team won the championship of the four team Indian River Golf League which culminated its 17th season finale with play on the Martin County course Sunday. Individual scoring honors were shared by Sandpiper Bay's Cal Sam Dewhurst who carded the lowest gross round of the day with 76 while Joe Kennedy of Indian Hills garnered the low net with 69.

The Fort Pierce Indian Hillers finished second in the season's league standings trailed by Sandpiper Bay and Martin County with less than one percentage point separating the first and fourth teams. Sunday's play included Vero Beach's "swan song" in the league action as an announcement was made during festivities that Vero will not be included in Indian River League action next season after participation since the league's inception 17 years ago. league president Bob Wilson indicated that another Vero club is being sought as a replacement to complement the four team league action next year.

Other individual awards in Sunday action included these winners: Martin County — Lyle Lundy, low gross 83 and Jim Marr, low net, 70; Vero Beach — Ned Williams low gross, 78 and Tom Case, low net 69; Indian Hills Mario Llanos low gross 83 and Norris Enfield, low net 68; Sandpiper Bay — Denny Long, low gross 79 and Carl Rumuch, low net, 69.

The annual Wing Ding League affair will be held at Indian Hills CC in Fort Pierce Sunday, Sept. 21 with a "shot gun" start at 9 a.m. followed by scramble team and individual awards at the Wing Ding dinner when more than $1,000 in prizes will be distributed.

BARNEY HODGE—whose wife took this photo, caught these (an 11 lb bonito, a 10 lb king and an 8 lb barracuda) on trolled ballyhoo in 100 ft of water due east of the Fort Pierce Inlet. Barney says he fishes every chance he gets and that this is a fairly representative catch for him.

Sandtrap

BY MIKE SANDY

Jay Pyle, host pro at Martin Downs Crane Creek golf course and his assistant Phil Campoli together with officials of the facility should be cited for operating a magnificent "Open" tournament last week which also included a star studded Pro Am event which attracted not only leading pros but top amateur players along the Treasure Coast.

The pros were to compete 36 holes with 18 on Saturday and a final 18 on Sunday. But the rains came late Saturday washing out the first segment and it was decided that the 18 to be played Sunday would constitute the pro play.

It was ironic that a pair of young men who serve as assistant pros at Boca Del Mar C.C. finished one two. Both these young lions, Joey Morris and James Weedon, recently came off the 1980 South Florida Section PGA Apprentice championship play at Hunter's Run in Boynton Beach with Morros losing out to Skip Gusa of Delray Dunes by one shot and Weeden taking over fifth place in that stellar studded event. Morris fattened his pockets with $700 and Weeden $450.

Rod Carter of Vero Beach, an unattached pro, appeared to have an edge in the Downs event when he posted a 69 during the Pro Am segment on Friday, he was tagged a favorite for the Pro title but ran into tree trouble Sunday finishing with 80 blows. Carter incidentally holds the course record at Martin County, recording a 66 during a 1979 Pro Am event.

The number 80 seemed to come up to plague local area golfers as the event as talented swingers like J. J. La Flair, Sandpiper Sandy Scharlau, Stuart, Kelly Childs and veteran pro Joe Sabo let that figure, however, the one who was the victim of the most was Bruce Patterson of Sandpiper who, leading the tournament going into the 17th hole, took an astronomical even dozen strokes on that hole to also finish with 80. Steve Cunningham also finished at the figure while Julius Boros Jr. and Chuck Knobels failed to register their cards.

And did you know that Steve Castigliano who has been playing pro events in this area of late is the son of Dr. Gordon Castigliano a mainstay and resident of Sandpiper Bay? And that Joey Morris is a native of Paducah, Ky. and is assistant to head pro Jack Peck at Boca Del Mar and that Joey Morris had a first round of 66 which qualified him to represent the South Florida PGA in the National Foot Joy Assistants Championship in September?

Did you know that nine year old Chris Dvorak, of Port St. Lucie, continues to impress golf buffs with his stellar play. He recently finished seventh at the Presidential course at West Palm Beach where the PGA conducted a South Juniors champion ship which incidentally was won by Jack Nicklaus 3rd, son of the Golden Bear. Dvorak was presented a Sarah Corona typewriter and then went on to an impressive with place finish in the North South Junior event at Greenleaf C.C. in Cypress Gardens.

The Indian River Golf League which just completed its 17th season of play with the same four clubs that were included in the loops summer activity, lost one of its original members when it was learned that the Vero Beach Country Club contingent has formally withdrawn effective in 1981. Ironically, the Vero swingers won the league's championship trophy following compilation of figures with Sunday's play.

However, the trophy, emblematic of the league's supremacy will be on display at the Vero club.

Meanwhile efforts are under way to bring in a replacement club for the 1981 season and it is likely that another Vero Beach area country club will be represented and also that another country club along the Treasure Coast area has made inquiries which could bring the league to five clubs. The remaining three clubs at present are Sandpiper Bay, Martin County and Indian Hills, Ft. Pierce.

Bob Wilson of Sandpiper who is completing his first year as president of the league asked us that members in good standing at each of the participating clubs qualify to participate in the summer monthly league events. There are no membership dues in the league, and all a golfer need do is to sign up at either of the participating pro shops and post $15.00 which includes green fees, cart fees and a luncheon.

League action is on a once a month basis beginning in May and concluding in August with the annual "Wing Ding" highlighting the year's play with a gala dinner at which time more than $1200 is expended for prizes and dinner without cost to the players.

The league is one that was founded for "good fellowship" and affords players a chance to get to know one another.

Bob Wilson walks away from field

Posting the lowest score of the day Bob Wilson, president of the association, led his Sandpipers in every nine to walk off with the Individual Stableford scoring event on the Sandpiper course when he racked up 41 points and low round of 78.

Ninety players competed with a quartet of swingers finishing deadlocked in second place only one shot off the winner's pace. In that group were Bob Crane, Wilbur Hyde, Ev Stabler, Charley Duval. Unusually high scoring prevailed in the day's event as the markers were placed back and the placements were in tough to reach spots. Wilson's tally was the only one under eighty mark for the day.

Ken Pagel and Al Van Nostrand managed 39 points followed by Ed Downing with 38 and four at the 37 mark including John Radcliffe, Jim Flanagan, Norm Kracke and Bill Rutherford.

The Sandpipers will compete Thursday in a scheduled event featuring individual play using the best nine holes of an 18 hole round.

Offshore fishing is perking up

ANGLERS TROLLING BALLYHOO have been having good success this week on king mackerel, bonito, barracuda and dolphin, working an area northeast of the St. Lucie Inlet in 40 to 100 feet of water. The best dolphin fishing, however, seems to be out much farther, like in 600 ft.

That cold water down deep seems to be affecting the bottom fishing off the SL Inlet, but those going northeast of the Fort Pierce Inlet report good action on snapper and grouper.

SEATROUT FISHING is just about holding its own. The trout have apparently moved northward and most of those being caught now are being taken from the power plant close up to Fort Pierce by waders and boaters using trout lauts, mirrolures and live shrimp.

Those delicious eating southern flounder are back in the Indian River and you might catch one almost anywhere on live shrimp or perhaps a small white feather bounced along the bottom.

There are big schools of mangrove snappers on the river and you just have to find a deep hole for some action with fresh, frozen or live shrimp. Remember the wily mangrove likes his bait with the head on and tends to move off a few feet before eating it.

The whiting and croakers aren't too plentiful in the surf now but some have been caught down around the House of Refuge this week, sand perch too.

SNOOK FISHING just hasn't been too great this year. About the best now is in the river and the surf. Feathered jigs and live bait are effective in the river and spoons like a redeye will entice Old Linesides to strike in the surf early in the morning.

Bottom fishing from the Frank Wacha, Ernest Lyons (25 cents) and Evans Crary (10 cents) bridges is pretty slow generally, but gets wild at times at the Wacha Bridge. Jensen Causeway black drum and mangrove snappers feed on an outgoing tide. They're also getting a few snook at the Roosevelt on the outgoing tide.

FROM THE MISS FORT PIERCE party boat (464-8828) going full days from the Fort Pierce Inlet Bridge is Rita Fasano. "We were down for a week but started sailing again on Aug. 16. That day was slow, but Verle Norris had a 17-0 (17 lb) gray grouper. On Sunday, we had a few small mangrove snappers and gray grouper. Monday was real good with 18 mangrove snappers in the 8-15 lb range, a 25-12 red snapper (what a beauty), 4 gray grouper from 12-20 lbs., 10 bonito from 8-12 lbs., and 2 spade fish. Paul Prentice, Ft. Lauderdale, won the pool with a 20 lb. gray grouper."

THE KING OF THE SAVANNAS, the veteran Earl Castner, called us to report good action on small bass in the Savannas and to assure me that he hadn't forgotten his promise to take me on a tour of his favorite fishing holes there. "I haven't forgotten you but let's wait until that hot weather lets up. The water out there is 88 degrees now."

MURIEL WEIDEMAN from D&M Bait and Tackle at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S. 1 just north of Stuart: "They're catching some snook on an outgoing tide. Fishing for drum and mangrove snappers was excellent on an outgoing tide Saturday morning. Calvin Flick caught a nice string of sand perch, some mangrove snappers and a drum on fresh shrimp fishing down around the House of Refuge.
